Dear Anna,

We arrived here
Saturday evening, after a somewhat tiresome
journey. In the forenoon
it was intensely hot,
but in the afternoon
the wind set in from the East, and it
became quite cool, and
at night in driving
snow even cold. *
Clare Miss Baker
with Jenkins and had

arranged most things
for us but it
was Friday Morning
before we got fairly
to bed, and as a consequence we are
somewhat fagged
to-day. We found
our people all well,
though baby is evidently suffering a little from teething; but seems
quite bright to-day.
Clare seems to be

Managing very well,
and matters are
well in shape. The weather has been
dry and it seems
as if we were
to have a water
famine as I were
as last year; but it may prove just
the reverse, and
indeed there are signs
of rain this evening.
I shall however make

arrangements for
pure water for
both homes. Netas
is very quiet at present - The vegetation
very luxuriant and
flourish, and the
strawberries and
salmon in.

On the train Maxman
got from Nip Runway
the address of a

It is a place in your view, but she says
higher up and very nice in case, after
some experience, you
should prefer more
decidedly mountain
air. My own feeling
is however rather
to ascend gradually
than at once: I
hope you will soon
be able to inform us that Eric feels

The benefit of the change. For our part we shall do all we can
to make matters
comfortable here.

I am from both
of us to you and
vice, and may God's best blessings
be with you.

Ever yours
