My dear Anna,

I have not heard from you directly of late but suppose that there is nothing particular to say at present.
Bernard is I believe about to visit you & I have no doubt that you will then be able to arrive at some decision which will be for the best. Do not fail to advise me if I can be of any service in any way. William proposes to

I must be on Wednesday I believe & I will follow him toward the end of the week & spend Christmas day there. It will not be a very festive Christmas, but the children should not be neglected. I believe I am very much attached to places & I do not feel somehow that there can be any proper Christmas now that the old home has been abandoned.
 It seems more than a thousand years ago some
