

TELEGRAMS,
BOOKCRAFT, LONDON.
TELEPHONE,
4253 GERRARD.

KINGSLEY HOTEL,

HART STREET,

BLOOMSBURY SQUARE,

LONDON.

July 8/06

Dear Mother,

As you see we are now in London but I have not seen much of it having only arrived here last Friday night. Yesterday morning we registered our names at the Canadian Office & then wasted about two hours strolling around Westminster Abbey. I think that it is a fine looking church, but all this rot about burying people there. That part of it has no interest to me. I suppose that I am glad I went there so as to say I was there. We had lunch with Dr. Uwen & Mr. Lafleur (the lawyer) at the Savoy one of the finest hotels over on this side. We then had dinner at the Cecil Hotel another big place & went to the theatre after. It was a swell show called Colonel Newcome. I think that it was taken from a book.

We went to some church this morning & afterwards went into St. Pauls. I liked it much better than the Abbey for appearance sake. ~~Ed~~ And it has such a swell big dome & to hear the music roaring around the dome was swell & by the time the music reached us there was hardly any tune, just a kind of rumbling.

This afternoon we saw Nor Brown & went over to tea at Uncle Rankin's. Margaret is O.K. & has her wim like the rest of the people.

Beginning to get tired of sight seeing. Give my love to Mrs. M.
love to my body. Bernard.