

O maiden fair with eyes so blue,
How can you look at him?

His face is pale,
From Mory's ale,

And his eyes are blurred and dim.

It is with pain

And great disdain

We see the fix you're in.

But wait, we say,

Until the day

When Nineteen-nine gets in.

1909