

McGill College,

Montreal,

May 31.

Dear Anna

I sent you Lumber yesterday the photo purchased, used a pencil I scrawl to George. We found the Montreal Steamer
 crowded with passengers from the Western - but a state - room left. I managed with great difficulty to get me small darkness for Mamma

and the children. Mr Linn and I were sent down into the
hold, and thankful
to be there, for the whole floor of the Saloon looked in the morning like a hard frozen battle field, strewn with prostrate forms in all stages of
distress & contortion.
I have never witnessed such a crowd. I

Hope it will not be so bad in your case.

All is well here. Plenty of ripe apples in the garden
- green corn, and all the other luxuries of the season awaiting you.

Please do they all
our parting injunctions, and come on Wednesday
day if you can.

Do you & Mrs Reddy
think her children desire to enjoy themselves, except 1869.

being a little squeamish
in the rough weather
on Monday,

I enclose a small
ticket for the Mankore boat which I had secured in my purse

With all love
Your & George's
Dada
