

Toronto
Beloved 28/86

Dearest Love,

I am sorry you thought I complained of your not-writing to me for you have been so exceedingly good in writing It was the long time after I left before I heard that made me feel forsaken I did not intend to seem ingrateful to you dearest who are always so good & kind & thoughtful -

I am exceedingly grieved at hearing such dismal news of poor Mary
- if I had had any idea

I have few days anything could be done for her. I would have stayed with her, at all hazards. I was left her to that happy of a sister - I am glad that the Drs have found her out I hope they gave her a stern admonition, unless she has rallied, I feel it is useless even to write to her, poor desolate soul!
Let me know how it goes with her -

Here I am safely at Toronto - arrived last night - It would be charming if you could come for me, Everything is so quiet here it will be repose indeed.
Only no one anywhere seems to need so much fresh air as I do - as fancy I do - as no necessity after -

As some doors to the circle opening I must write a note to them - I am so glad who is placing her best - I thought who was -

Yours truly

Anna
