B -
With an entirely unprepared mind I find my self face to face with the end of the summer, & every one talking of Pulman's & preparations papa & family are to leave Monday or Tuesday next week - Florence w^d like to linger on in hope that at the 11th hour she may get a holiday & run down for a week & bring her home, but she won't stay a day behind me, & daily enquires when I am going - I hope you will get my letter wh. I sent on Saturday - for it will not be much, notwithstanding the long easy to communicate with Kate summer. As long as things jig under a week either for it or on as usual I can manage anywhere, & Christina intends to stay well, but that fuss about papers for a month or two after I quite used me up. I have Eric leave & help her account, Mrs Grant Clare have both been ill, for a who is quite laid up with a day or two. & I am just now sore leg, & there is no hope of the at all today. Eric was making recovery of that poor Dan - Mary abt after his boots on Friday & ^{the} boots had to have. & they are a very cold day. & when he came up a road household. A good nurse dinner time I said he must ^{be} about whom Mrs Boney was account take off his boots again ^{for me,} inquiring, has decided to go to ^{some} scolded him for being so stupid relative for the winter, so I have as to go in, in such weather - we no clue in that direction. If he did not take them off, but got do come down. try & let me have into some stupid wild foley, & a few days warning, & I will went in & act among the band for as possible, but things in durs getting quite wet. - Just day train & pack up odds & ends so high fever, headache, & violent that we may have as much of pain in his stomach wh ^{meas} the days free as possible. In we rather uneasy - however he died I am not fit for very has spent two days in bed, & is think all right now - The weather is worthy of remark - I met day last week - all cold - & yesterday V. 24. it began again, & stormed violently all night, & still continues - I scarcely think I will write again, as it is unlikely to catch glass if you leave Winnipeg about the 1st.

We have had several very pleasant reading evenings at mother's & Mrs. Boney's - & I fancy there will be one or two more.
Eric wants you to bring him a rattle - snakes tail - as any other particularly repulsive & striking curiosity - You will be surprised at baby. I am sure he is a perfect little busy body never still - I cannot keep him off his feet as much as I wd like to - he is a capital shot with stones, throws them much better than Victor. & has pretty independent notions also -

I hope every day to hear when you are really on the out ward track, & what we are to do about going or staying

All the little ones seem love - they are busy at some play - I hear Cora's offering large baskets of fruit - for sale - in the market
