Dearest B -

I did not intend to write this evening, but forgot to speak about money when I wrote you in case of your leaving next week I thought you wd like to know I have at present about $15.00 - of wh. I owe to the washerwoman I will pay when she comes with the clothes - Lepege has just sent in his bill amounting to $18.40 milk cream, butter & eggs - I have not paid Ellen or Nellie, whom I ought also to do soon I will amount to $21.00 - I have paid Mademoiselle - there are all my liabilities at present - you might send a cheque for Lepege if you do not come soon - I have no other liabilities that I know of except some 5 or 6 hours of Mr. Tuckey - he is too busy now to be of much use. Campbell & Samuel goes tomorrow Eric & I were up at the Flute tonight the young Savage's there, I am pleased garden - The weather is still raining - all day we have only got out when they speak promised better things - I might thick fog wraps us round but it is not very cold -

Maed. Liberality has arrived

Dearest,

To my surprise I found this tucked up in my blotting paper - I thought I had sent it - & that you were fully aware of what money was required down here - I wrote this on clay last week, & have now in hand only abt 4 or $5.00 - Strawberries, Jam & a fine mattress I have had made having been added to the running expenses - The children are in high glee over the organ & Clare is writing in the hope of giving you directions as to music - If you really have Wednesday as you speak of in yr letter tonight you will of course not get this - but it may be useful if you get it

Not leave till Thursday - we have had a lovely day today, & Eric had been out-riding, on a very fine & fine on the waters landing that he is not to meet it - to any other day, as you see he is hardly gone good reputation, which I hope to see do in other regards as well -

It seems scarcely worth while writing now, if I shall see you so soon - to write close with much love -

Anna
