

I regret I
 do not have a paper for him in to
 the
 the
 from will enough
 Anna
 Lennor, will
 May 4th 1901

I am sure you are still up to the hilt in business, & also sure you will continue so till you make wings, & fly away to Metes so make a definite mark in your calendar, a just stop there. I am trying not to think about the affairs of life - I seem still to be obliged to write a good deal as Mother does not wish to write at all, & I am trying to get Man पास in shape - which I may do. - Very cold weather yesterday & today - but we did go for a very charming drive this a.m. following the St. Francis, the Mississippi - the salmon & the main rivers - quite a geog. lesson in rivers & their tributaries & so where can I get a map with roads, & rivers, with places therein We are going to see Lalla Aylmer & her husband is Sheriff of the Co.
 & may have maps. This is a charming village - I think it wd. quite suit me - mamma seems to come & live here to be near their boys

I want to see the school, but have not hitherto managed to stir mother up to any interest in it.
The school boy is all persuading if I knew the size of Cor's head I'd get him a white felt-hat, here the universal head. ~~two~~ wear of boys & casting 8.5 cts of concern they are discarded from cranium to brain & are presumptively deprived of lining, hand & brain - but they look much more sensible than the little cap on the back of the head - The master one also sees now & then, & at once recognizes his English tongue, but hitherto I have not caught even its echo in the bones of the lads -

I fancy we shall return money - & may have to start from Sherbrooke as the trains here do not seem to suit - well mother thinks she wd like to have a look at East-Halley where the Americans go - It is about 10 mi & can be reached by train - I hope all goes well, & without trouble & especially that Clare is not doing too much, & that Cor, is not doing too little - much love to the dear dear Poppie - There was a vacant seat in our carriage today & how