

from the battle of Hastings: The river Dee is beautiful, & if the weather had been fine we would have sailed up it.

The Inn where Chas I stayed, has still in really old part, & when one thinks of his standing on the tower on the wall, sure of his divine rights, & unconscious of his mundacity. one feels sorry for his feelings as he saw his supporters flee from Kewton Moor.

Monday. Mrs White had to leave by a 17 train, so I saw her off by the train & left my baggage at the station, & got on a street car & went all through the city & out into the country as far it went.
I sat on the top, & it did not rain, I saw a fine monument to - Cotton. Lord — who seemed to have fought at every grain of British possession. The Castle built partly on Roman foundations, the races, a race course - & many pretty suburban houses - then I came back on the cars till I got to the castle, & walked about it - & down Bridge Street & again along the queer rows, & past - "The God's Providence House, & Bishop's Lodge Palace.
The inside of this last is most curious the stucco ceiling, the high oak wainscot the carved balusters, & quaint leaded windows =

We have been to the Woodlands gardens & they are beautiful.

File on file of lovely colour, like the photos of some Japanese gardens
