

The Woodstock Inn

OPEN ALL WINTER.

ARTHUR B. WILDER, MANAGER.

Long Distance Telephone.

Passenger Elevator.

Woodstock, Vt., Sept 26th 1906.

Dearest B -

I have quite a new idea for you, but seeing of this I see has just been repaired as to the roof, & they have simply put on on the old roof, boarded over, & put on new shingles, an entire new roof over the old. It is a common plan in this part of the country, & of course makes the house warmer in winter & cooler in summer, & a dew air space being left between, all is well - What wd you think of this for our cottage, it probably wd make the front gallery dry - & certainly wd save a lot of mess - but wd deprive us of a store of kindling -

The Carnegie scheme sounds very well, now you must clamour for an increase of salary, in view of the proportionate retiring allowance - get something ^{easy} to do worth $2000.00 or 1500.00 a year & be better off than ever before. I have an easy time - It is nice of Carnegie to provide for the widows, for they are likely to suffer in case of sudden or sudden bereavement -

I am glad to feel that tonight will free you from the "advanced woman" - I hope Clare went to see what was to be seen -

Did you ever answer Florence's letter about Victor's afflictions, for she will think you do not respect her views if you do not, & she has been very touchy lately - Also just think what a blessing that all will be well -