Dear George

I am again unable this week to send the Irish paper. The delays are something quite vexatious; and these same delays prevent me from getting the electotypes of the cuts. The printers here are extremely troublesome in this way.

I had thought that it was the two-net presses that Brady had attended to. If it was the Post's plume men, then I would like to have his notes here to help with Post's plume work. If not too long you could keep a copy of the substance at least in case of accident. But perhaps you have one of the specimens, and he means to publish the description himself. In that case when you get a copy

Send it out. You must be sure that letters from me, as I am extremely busy. After thank of your kindness and most earnestly pray for your welfare both for this world and that which is to come. With all good wishes your loving father
