Dear Genl

I have found

 for my respects of the Well I wish, I am sorry to mention

As to the British Institute, for many
 good scientific men are connected with it now
 that there is no

I am going over many
 old papers at present
 and may possibly find something. By the way Hamington's life of Logan has some curious facts
 about the origin of
 his survey as well as
 about DeLaBeche and
 the English survey. You no doubt have the book, but if not I
 can lend it to you.

As to the list of
 speleothems, it will be on the line of some present work but I may find time to complete it for the R. S.; and I shall not be cashed

for paying me your without
a paper,

I have taken over
of the Museum for the present two wooden
figures, a pair of moccasins
and
two fine West coast coats.
They will be taken care of till you indicate their disposal.

Mamma and I
are well - for us - and
doing our best to enjoy life. Ever yours

you; but do not
trouble to pay anything unless you wish. The article was sent to me, and I do not wish to pay anything. You must have missed a letter of mine referring to it.

As to the states of Europe, I fear I have no information. The English Survey and that of New York and I think of Massachusetts were started before the Can-

29, there is a review
of Serpie's last Report, which has some interesting facts. It is the second notice. The first is in an earlier number ^{which I think I saw in Washington} but I think I have seen something on the subject in "Natural Science", and shall try to look it up.
If you go to Washington
you will be pretty well to find some one posted in Survey Statistics who can give information.
