affectionate Mother's hours on my ^{way} there without having to any extent realized that I am gaining, nevertheless faith being the substance of things hoped for, I mark the evidence of faith, I may now look forward to the hope of attaining the end, wh: I trust may prove worth all the trouble. We have as yet our little temporary home I find it very comfortable having my conveniences unknown in other bags. Amongst these a wardrobe, drawers & writing table.

 We have a large bunch of roses brought to us by Mrs. Finley, three bunches of lily-of-the-valley & a large basket of pines, gingers &c. that Mrs. Mc Lerman quite departed in our Cabin. I was only discovered this morning. "All very unexpectedly kind people are met; in regard to passengers they do not look a promising or interesting set. We may be pleasantly disappointed. Mr. Adams sits at papa's left hand & he finds her chatty & agreeable. A Colonel Phaulkes & attendants sits opposite her & agree there he looks imbecile. I fancy he must have had paralyis. The Captain is blunt & pleasant.

I am sorry that we shall pass India to night while it is dark.

In answer to your letter in wh you dep^{te} me, with Eric's help, to select a present for Sharonna. I am surprised at the amount you are willing to spend & feel much responsibility in being trusted with the disposal of so large a sum. You may rely upon my doing my utmost best, but it w^old have been a Compro if we c^old have had a hint or two fr^o you. I fancied that a good thermometer & barometer w^old a happy thought but papa says he thinks
