me when we meet. Ed

My dear George

Acc. 976

I must again apologize for scarcely writing you a word or two. I am so dressed - writing every night being so tired - in hope of getting my final papers ready in time. Schuyler book has given me no end of additional trouble He has unsettled some names in a very unprobious way, and has made no end of mistakes in referring to my North American plants as his work, though a mass of inaccuracies, is likely to thought an authority in England, I must refer to all these things.

Great Huxley's address in the Report in the Pall Mall which you kindly sent and afterward in the public report in Nature. He makes some very good points in the earlier parts. In the latter part he falls off into wild imaginings, not in the least scientific, one great mistake of his is to take for granted that unless we adopt Darwinism there is no alternative but to suppose that every thing we call a species was separately "made of dust" as he says - quoting Mises, I suppose, though not correctly. There are other alternatives, as I hope to show by means of my plants and Port-pleveine shells.

With all love ever from affectionate father
