Dearest Eve,

Surely a greeting ought to go to you today, the years go on, & they remind us of many things. Certainly not our ward feels of God's good promise - but there is all too much failure on our part - It surely ought not to be - & certainly my mind is set on doing the most I can with each day - I do not think or plan far the future more than needs must - I saw you from one with Eric's gazing life cut off -

We had expected to go to Metis last Friday & ever had packed up when baby took another of those frightful convulsions - We got Dr Deeks in a short time, & he sent off

June 9th 1842 The Anti Party has left & I leave them for a few minutes - before I go down over the Wharfedale papers & money also received there. After a while - also a call from the paper telling of their expense - Holy controverses very well & happy. I see several leaf - is looking well. he is to go out as soon as he is - of replies the 21 - that he continues that were accidental mistake of receiving & papers threatening more material - it is probably contained as - which the news is sent by also tips the work - I will be the same as I am quite well of late - I hope probably better by this time - I will return from this evening to other evening for two others, & used artificial respiration, hot applications over the heart & so on, but it was nearly $\frac{3}{4}$ of an hour before he recovered consciousness.

A quite unusual case as so often happens to us. & the three doctors gave me to understand it was as grave as possible, & insisted upon my telegraphing to B. & evidently thought there was very little hope for the child. - but little fault was hardly blamed by a too hot bottle, some too zealous person had applied. - However after a long sleep the child looks up apparently relieved & well & so he has continued since to their great amazement. - I rest - quite - is enjoined which is not easy - but now I hope to send Clara, Bernard Lair & Eva down to Paris to narrow with Kate & Culloch & wait here till I am allowed to follow - I telegraphed a second & 3^d time to keep B.'s mind easy - so he is going on with his tour

would be better I had forgotten this, but you reminded the other ones.

There need this on to another as there not time to write more. The matter has been very bad & is still not any how to help & the small people.

W^d you like some of these articles written baby's hands as can you get the news on your side.

Affectionately
