Bowdler Sharpe Collection

My dear Sharpe

Some little time after you were here I had my photo taken and now send one for your collection. I often think of that beautiful slide of yours showing the swallow teaching its young to fly. If it was copied from a picture Could you send me a Copy of the picture or tell me in what book I could see it. I saw Paden one day last week. He told me that it was pretty well settled that a man was coming from the British Museum whose title is to be Inspector of Museums Paden to have charge of the Natural History branch the new man to take charge of all the rest with Paden under him. The highest pay under there circumstances expects to get is about £250 a year. After 30 years service during which he has done the most of Moore's work it is rather hard lines. If you can send me any stamps I shall be pleased and will return those I do not want. If you get the chance do not forget to name as you promised an Indian bird after me.

Another promise was to send me one of your photos. With best wishes

Yours Sincerely

W M Adam
