Dr. Casey A. Wood

Dear Sir:

Let me thank you heartily for your fine monograph on the Tensores Tympani of Birds, which I have as yet only found time to glance through. It is evidently a valuable contribution to comparative anatomy and I shall be glad of the opportunity to learn something of this branch of ornithological science. Meanwhile as a publisher I congratulate you on the fine appearance of the book.

Yours very truly,

Francis H. Allen

My dear Mousley —

I am very grateful to you and Dr. Cabey Wood for the complimentary copy of his monumental bibliography of Vertebrate Zoölogy. I have already found it useful and expect to have occasion to refer to it often. There is much good reading in the Introduction evidently, but for this I must wait for a little more leisure.

Ought I to write to Dr. Wood too, or would it be only an impertinence?

I hope you had a good summer with the birds. My own was rather an uneventful one — much less interesting than that of 1930, when I sampled acquaintance with some of your British birds.

Yours sincerely,

Francis H. Allen
