Dear Sherborn

I have now acquired Unger's life, but there is not a word in it of any other Christian name but Franz. I have also looked at his larger works & he never used anything more than F. or Franz.

I expect however the Franz Joseph Andreas Incidans of the Bak. Zeit. 28 p 243 1870 is probably right. It must have been written by some very intimate friend, who happen to know it all. It is unlikely that he invented it. I wonder if the J. A. D. Collectively can be a Saint. Unger was no doubt a Catholic & as such would have a Saint in the background, whom in practice he ignored. I think the Xaver must be wrong. Some one stuck on the wrong Saint to him.

If you can get hold of a Calendar of Saints recognised by Rome, it might prove very useful in such cases.

Sorry I can't do more. I intended to look up Poggendorf & Ratzeburg Biographies in which I know Unger is stated, but someone has got them out of the Univ. Libr. It might be worth seeing what they say.

Kindest regards from us both

Yours ever

E. A. Newell Archer
