My dear Sir,

Might I ask you to give me your opinion on two points of natural history. In the first. I see Lord Wenlock assures the Lords that it is easy to tell the difference between British hares & foreign hares. British hares of course include the White hare of Scotland & the Brown hare and in both instances I believe him to be wrong. Either way they have managed to pass a worse than useless act.

Brown? O.T.

A correspondent who signs himself F. L. S. tells me that the principal food of Pharmacyan is heather & ling. I have that hundred but never opened one; but I cannot understand why, if they live on heather & ling they are always found where neither plant grows. i.e. above the line of both. Yours sincerely
