UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO
BOULDER, COLORADO
DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGY

Sept. 22 1917.

Dear Dr. Wood.

I am indeed most grateful for the gift of your splendid work on the eyes of birds. It illustrates once more that there is no part of the body which does not possess characters of value in classification. Especially interesting is the resemblance between the apteryx eye & that of the reptile, & the absence of such resemblance in the Penguin. Query: are birds Polyphyletic?

I send you a few of my papers, but I fear little of interest to you.

Yours sincerely & gratefully,
Theo. D. A. Cockerell.

Boulder Colorado.
March 7. 1934.

Dear Sir.

I am deeply grateful for the "Introduction to the Literature of Vertebrate Zoology" which will be most useful to the workers here, though I myself am about to retire

I note your request for autograph letters, & enclose one of A. R. Wallace I can doubtless find others. — I find one also from Leonard Darwin

Yours truly.
Theo. D. A. Cockerell

RECEIVED
MAR 12 1934
ANSWERED