C. DAVIES SHERBORN
DONAVIT.

Peterborough Street
Gateshead
28th Ap. 1865

My Dear Sir, I hope you will pardon me for troubling you at the present time, but I am very busy among the teeth, and I am anxious not to lose any thing rare by going to work without knowing what I am about. By this post I send two pieces of skull, upon each of which is a group of what I take to be palatal teeth. Will you kindly favour me with your opinion of them? If you do not consider them of any importance you can throw them aside; if on the other hand you should deem them worthy of attention, I wish prepare them as you may desire, and place them among a number of other sections which I am setting apart for your use when you again find yourself at Liberty to resume your investigations in this department of odontology.

Remain,
My dear Sir,
Your faithful servant,
J. Craig
