Dr. Casey A. Wood,
Museum of Vertebrage Zoology,
Berkeley, California.

Dear Dr. Wood:

Dr. Walter P. Taylor has infomed us that you desire information regarding the occurrence of Aethiopsar acridotheres cristatellus and Sturnus vulgaris so far as their occurrence in Washington or Oregon is concerned.

We have no record for the former except in Vancouver, British Columbia, although it very likely will ultimately extend its range southward. Of Sturnus vulgaris we have an indefinite record from Portland on the authority of Mr. W. L. Finley, and he might be able to give you more specific information if you would write him at Jennings Lodge, Clackamas County, Oregon.

Very truly yours,

W C Henderson

Acting Chief of Bureau.

November 16, 1918.

Mr. Robert Ridgway,
1030 South Morgan St.,
Olney, Illinois.

Dear Mr. Ridgway:

In the absence of Mr. Nelson, who is now in the West, I am acknowledging receipt of your letter of November 12 in regard to a Federal permit for collecting migratory birds for scientific purposes.

Your application has been duly filled out in the Bureau and we take pleasure in sending you herewith two permits, one expiring December 31, 1918 and the other December 31, 1919.

We shall be glad to call Mr. Nelson's attention to your letter upon his return to the city.

Sincerely,

W. C. Henderson
