WEATHER GLASS, or BAROMETER.

The great use of this instrument is to predict the future state of the Weather for several hours, and sometimes days, preceding the change. In order to do this, observe,

1. The Mercury rising prefaces fair weather ; its falling, wet.
2. In very hot weather, its falling usually fortells thunder.
3. In winter, its rising portends frost—a continued frost, snow
4. When foul weather happens soon after its falling, expect but little of it ; and so on the contrary of weather.
5. When the Mercury continues to rise before the foul weather is over, expect a continuance of fair weather to follow.
6. In fair weather, when it continues to fall before rains come, then expect a great deal of it, and probably high winds.
7. An unsettled motion denotes changeable weather.
8. In any kind of weather, a sudden fall portends wind
