PREFACE.

 UR Aut万or, Bartholomew Leonardo de Argenfola, was a Learned Clergyman, and as fuch employ'd by the Prefident and Conuncil of the Indies to Writa this Hiftory. He calls it, The Conqueft of the Molucco Iflands, without Enlarging any further. in lis Title, t7o' at the fame time bis Work contains their firft Difcovery, their Defcription, the Manners, Cuftoms, Religion, Habit, and Political. and Natural Hiflory; with all the Wars, and other Remarkable Accidents in thofe Parts, fince they were firft known to Europeans, till their Reduction under the Crown of Spain. In Speaking of. them be Occafionally runs out to give the fame Account of the Philippine Iflands, and of feveral others in thafe Eaftern Seas. This is frequent in Spanifh Books, wherein we generally find much more than the Titles promife, contrary to what is Prattis'd with us, who firive to fill up a Title Page with abundance of Inviting Heads, the leaft part whereof is Treated of in the Sody of the Work, or at beft fo Superficially, that foarce any more can be made of them there, than was in the Frontifpiece.

For the Compiling of this Work the Auttor, being Employ'd by the Aithority abovemention'd, bad the Command of all Autbentick Manufcript Relations, which were either in the Kings Cuftody, or in Private Hands; hefides the Teftimony of fuch Perfons then Living, as bad been Eye-Witneffes to any part of what lie delivers. His Defign was only to Write the Conqueft. of thoje Iflands, by King Philip the Thivd of Spain; but confidering bow few were acquainted with them, and that of Confequence moft Readerswould be at a lofs to know where, or wluat thefe Moluccos mere, be Fudicioufly Refolv'd to bring down his Hiftory from its proper Source. To this End be begins with the Antient, and Fabulous Original of their Kings; then comes to the Difcovery of them by Europeans, and proceeds to the Wars between: them, and with the Natives, for the Poffefion of tiofe fo muchls coveted Dowinions.

The Preface.

His Defcription of them is very Exact; That of the Cloves, their principal Commodity, no lefs Curious; and that of the other Product and Animals, Inferior to neitlser. The Wars carrying him over from one Place to another; Le gives a foort Account of the Iflands Paptas, and that of Celebes. The Spaniards, to avoid pafing through the Portuguefe Sea, attempted to fettle Trade at the Moluccos, by the way of the Streights of Magellan, which gives occefion to Argenfola to entertain us with a particular Account of the Spanifh Fleet fent into the faid Sirciglot, under the Admiral Sarmiento, which Was been litherto very Inperfectly Deliver'd in Englifh, tho' very Remarkable, and full of Surprizing Accidents. In Bort, not to fluetchs out this Preface, with the Subject of the Work, we flall find in it a lrief Defoription of the Ifland Sumatra; of the vaft Empire of China; of all the Philippine Iflands, and thofe of Ceylon, Banda, Java, and many otbers of lefs Nore. Nor does he omit to fieak of the Dutch Voygges; and Undextakings of Sir Francis Drake, and other Englifh Adventurers; and Embelifbes the whole with fuch variety of pleafing Incidents, that few Books of Travels afford fo mach Profitable Entertainment, with fuch good Autlority.

No Author ever bad a better Reputation, anong all that Underfland, zind Bave bad the good Fortune to Meet with bim; for being fo Valuable, be is extraordinary Scarce, rare to be met with in Spain, and canfequently much more in England. This may pertaps be the main Reafon whly be bas not yet been Tranflated, and being fo Valuable, be cannot mifs of that Reception which be has found in the Original. But it is not jutended to prepoffefs the Reader, who is left to make his own fudgment, and theyefore a long Preface is defignedly avoided, that be may the foower enter wpon fo Ufeful and Diverting a Work. It is not improper, neverthelefs, to Aldife the Reader not to take notice of fone Reflections in Point of Religion, and in other Cafes, confidering the Book was Writ by a Spaniard, and that it was not proper to Omit, or Alter any thing, where a Fair, and Entive Iranglation is promifed. Befides, That thefe are vexy few, and inconfiderable, and confequently not worth obferving, as indeed the generality of Judicions Readers will be fufficiently fatisfy'd and this Caution is givens for their Sake, whom perkaps Paflion, of overnach Zeal may move to comiam a Wronss on fuch an Ofaffon, wlen they oan find no other mather to Cayp ar.

B OOK I.

Write the Conqueft of the Molucco Iflands by King Pbilip the III. of Spain, and the reducing of their Kings to their former Subjection, to his Predeceffors, by Don Pedro de Acurba, Governour of the Pbilippine Inlands, and Admiral of the Spani/h Fleet; a Victory worthy the Forefight of fuch a Godly Monarch, the Application of thofe worthy Statefmen that compofe his fupreme CounciI, and the Valour of our Nation; not fo much on account of the Wealth, and Fertility of thofe Countries, as for that it took from the Northern Nations all occafion of Sailiag in our Seas, and Debauching the new Converted Afaticks, and the Inhabitants of our Colonies Trading among them. The Celerity with which the Expedition was concluded, does not in the leaft diminifh the Glory of the Event; which, for that very Reafon, might rather deferve a place in a more ample Relation. I am fenfible of the Dangers I expofe my felf to; but am no lefs fatisfy'd, that I fhall find fome to ftand by me. The mort famous Painters, and Carvers, have generally a great value for Heads, Arms, and other Limbs, which have been drawn to perfection from the Life, by which they compofe all the Parts, when they defign fome excellent Piece. The ignorant in thofe Arts have no Efteem for fuch Fragments, being only taken with the entire Statue, or Picture, confifting of all its Limbs, without examining the Defects there may be in each of them. The Relation I undertake to write of thefe Iflands will find the fame Esteem, and be expos'd to no lefs Contempt; for the Judicious, who underfland kow Hiftory is Compil'd, will value this part drawn to the Life; whereas thofe, who, as they fay themfelves, Read only to divert the Time, will make little account of it, asbeing mote fond of fome Romance, tull of Monfterous Events; or of fome bulkey Work, bearing the Title of a Hifory, treating of numerous Armies, and mighty Slaughters, and beffowing the Succefs, not where Providence gave, but where they would have it. This is the Reafon why many Things, worthy to be knowen and preferv'd, remain bury'd in Oblivion; becaulfe being left for-General Hiftories, there are only flight Sketches of them Drawn at the Time when they hapned, by thofe who had a fhate in them, fo that when thefe Manufcripts are to be made ufe of, either they are not to be found, or elfe they reduce the Writer to a neceffity of fubfcribing to whatfoever either Self-Love, or any other Pallion diffated to the Authors of fuch Memoits, without any poffibility of examining into the Truth. To obviate this Inconveniency, in a matter of fuch moment as that of Ternate, the Capital of the Molucco. Iflands, I was Commanded to write an Account of it, at a time when they were fitll living who acted in and directed it: And I have fuch full Information of all that is requifte for this purpofe, that I hope Truth wild take amends for my want of Ability. This is as much as I have thought fit to Advertife the Reader, without entering upon the Advantage he will reap by perufing this Relation; beeaufe, if he is well affected, all I can fay for it will be fuperfluous; and if otherwife inclin'd, tho' I endeavour to fet him right, he will never conceive it.

Aimong the fourteen moft potent Princes, who Lord it over the Arclipelago of the Molucco Iflands, under the Tirle of Kings, thofe of Ternate and Tydore loaif of a Divine Original; fuch Liberty to be vain do Men take upon them, or fo much do they aforibe to obfcure Antiquity. There is an ancient Iradition among thofe People, look'd upon as Sacred, That they zwere once Govern'd by a molt Ancient Prince, called Bicocigava, who Cailing along the Coaft of Rachianz, perceiv'd that among fome craggy Rocks there wexe grown up abundance of Rotrs, forthey call a fort of folid Canes, which, when fmall, they make ule of inftead of Ropes. He lik'd them, and orderd they iffould be cut dawn, and brought into his Verfel. His Subjects going to fulfil his Orders, and having fearch'd all the place, return'd to their Mafter, defring the would look again, leant his Eyes deceiv'd him, for they could meet with no fuch Canes. Bicacigara, who faw them difinetly from his Boat, was pofitive with his incredulous Reople, and orderdd them again to bedrought; but to decide the matter, went himfelf Afhore, where immediatly they appear'd to them all. He commanded them to be cut down, and as they went about it, Blood ran from the Canes that were cut. Being aftonifh'd at that Prodigy, hedifcover'd elofe to the Roots of them four Figgs, which look'd like a Snakes Eggs, and at the fame time heard a Voice, proceeding from the hollow of the Canes cut down, which faid, Keep thofe Eggs; for from them faall come four excellent Governouns. He toak up thoie fatal Eggs, with Religious Refpect, and carsyid them home, where they werekept in the beft place of his Houfe. In a fhort time, from the four Yolks proceeded four Rational Chickens, being shree Men, and one Woman, who afterwards Reign'd, the firft of them in Linothan, the lecond in Butan, and the third over the fllands calld Papuas, Iy ing Eaft from the Moluccos. The Woman was Marry'd to Prince Loloda, who gave Name to the Country of Batoclina, not far from the gieat Boconora. This Fable has gain'd fuch Reputation, that they honour Bicocigara as a Hero, worfhip the Rocks, and adore the Eggs. The truthof it is, that the cunning Man, by this prodigious Superflition, Sancttfy'd his awn Race, and gain'd Kingdoms, and Refpect for his four Children. So Greece feign'd, of beleiv'd, that Leda Conceiving of the Adulterous Swan brought forth the Eggs, from which came Caftor, Pollux, and Helena. Forture, when the raifes Men to a high pitch, perfwades thofe fle defigns to Crown, to lay the Foundation of their Majefty on Fables, refembling true Mrfteries, fo to perfwade the Multitude that they are fomewhat Divine, and to diftinguifh the Royal Race by a reculiarity even in the Univerfal Law of being Born into the World. Of this Race thirteen Idolatrous Kings fucceeded one another in Tydore, down to Sultan Tydore Bongue, the firft that receiv'd the Malometan Alcoran, tho' intermix'd with Idolatry, which lafted above Eighty Years, and being confounded aming the Precepts of that abominable Sect, bred Divifions, and Diftractions among the People. Afterwards, when the Commander Brito arriv'd in that Ifland, as we fhall foon fee, he found a Caciz, or Prieft, taught them the new Superftition, and that many oppos'd him, on account of the old Fable of the Eggs, which the Perfan Morabout could never Decty; fo great is the power of Error tranfmitt d from our Fore-Fathers.

King Tydore Bongue's Succeffor, was his Son Cachil Boleyfe, no lefs Superflicious than the Father, but in another way. He pretending to the Spirit of Prophecy, gain'd fuch Reputation, by the Experience and Forefight of his Riper Years, that he came to be Honour'd by his Subjects as 2 Prophet; or by the leaft Credulous, as a Perfon of fingular Prudence, fo that all Men gave Ear to him, as to an Oracle. Puffed up with this Vanity, he pretended to Fore-tell future Events; which when no particular Perfons, or fet Times are appointed, is a fafe way of Predicting, without Danger of being found Falfe; either becaufe in procefs of Time fomething Accidentally happens, that may be adapted to the Prophecy, or in regard, that is always expected which will never come to pafs. For this Reafon, as in moft Countries there are fome current Notions of future Expectations, conceiv'd upon trivial Occafions, rather than any Obfervation of the Stars; therefore Boleyfe us'd to tell thofe about him, That the time would come, when Iron Men fhould arrive at Ternate, from the remoteft parts of the World, and fettle in its Territory; by whofe Power the Glory, and Dominion of the Molucco Iflands fhould be far extended.

In the Reign of King Jobn the firt, of Portugal, his Son, Prince Henry, having employ'd feveral Perfons on Difcoveries, John Gonzates, and Triftan Vaz found the Iland of Midera, in the Jear 1419, and others foon after thofe of the Azores, and CaboVerde, and ran along the Coaft of Guinea and Africk. Afterwards, in the Reigns of King Edward, and Alonfo the V . thofe Difcoveries were continu'd, till under King Fobn the II. they proceeded as far as the Cape of Good Hope, and a Hundred Leagues beyond it, along the Coaft, call'd Fio del Infante. The honour of this Difcovery is due to that famous Seaman Bartholomew Diaz, if we may believe the Manufcript Memoirs of Duarte Refende, for the Hiftorian

Barros. This rais'd Emulation in the Spanib/ Nation, already engag'd in fuch Voyages, as having Difcover'd the Weftern Inands, call'd Antilles, or Caribbee Iflands. This Difcovery occafion'd a Controverly about the Right ta them, Portugal pretending to, and Spain defending its Poffefion. After much Contention, the Difference was adjufted by Ruy de Soufa, and Don $\mathfrak{F o b} n$ his Son, and Arias de Almada, Commiffion'd by Portural, who in the Year 1404. agreed with the Spanifo Embaffador, That, fince this inferior Globe, confifing of Earth and Water, anfwers to the Degrees into which the Celeftial Sphere is divided, it fhould be equally parted between the two Kings, by a Meridian Line drawn through the North and South Poles, and compaffing the Land and Sea, fo as to cut them into two halves. It was appointed, That the Share to the Eaftward fhould belong to the Crown of Portugal, and the other to the Wefward, to that of Caffile; and that it fhould be fo mark'd down on the Sea Charts; the Line paffing through a fixt Point on the Earth, which was to be the Boundary of both Nations. This was by mutual Confent fettled 360 Leagues Weft from Cabo Verde, and fo the Line, or Meridian, fell upon the Country we call Brazil, about the moft Wefterly part of the Mouth of the River Maranlsao, which difembogues there to the Northward. This Line cuts through that Country, and to the Southward runs off beyond the River of Plate, from whence the Spaniards begin to reckon their Degrees of Longitude Weftward, and the Portuguefes Eaftward, 180 belonging to each of them, for as much as the whole Circumference of the Earth contains three humdred and fixty Degrees.

Valco de Gama difcovers India.

Portuguefes Pretextionstothe Moluccos.

Vafio de Gama, employ'd by King Emanuel of Portugal, to Difcover and Conquer India, profecuted this Enterprize, look'd upon by Ptolony, as impracticable; he travers'd the main Ocean, within the Portuguefe Divifion, where he Difcover'd, and fince the Portuguefe Commanders have Conquer'd fo many Kingdoms, Nations, and Iflands, fo diftinct in $\mathrm{Cu}-$ floms, Manners, Laws, Languages, and Colours. They returning home admir'd what they had feen, and lay'd it down in Maps, but fretching out the Longitude, that is the Diftance from Weft to Eaft, beyond what it really was; thus Craftily providing for the Controverfy which might arife upon this Occafion, as it foon happen'd, through the Falfhood of the Sea Charts.
By virtue of this practice, and by the Pope's fublequent Authorizing of it, the Portuguefes pretend that the Molucco Iflands, and thofe of Banda, and Amboyna, are within their Bounds, as they were adjudg'd, and fettled by experienc'd Sailers, calculating the Extent of that Meridian, and they even flretch it 15 Degrees further. Refende complains, That Magailoaens, whom the Englifh call Magellan, magnify'd the Opinion conceiv'd of the Eaftern Seas, when in the Year 1519 he went away Difgufted into Spain. Magellan grew up in the fervice of Queen Ellenor, then ferv'd King Emanuel, and went over into India with that Alonfo de Albuquerque, of whofe Bravery, and Conduct, we have written Hiffories, befides what Faine, and Tradition have deliver'd. This Man, not fatisfy'd with the firft Conquefts, fent Antony de Abreu, Francis Serrano, and Ferdinard de Nagallaens from Malaca, with three Ships, to Difcover the Molucco Iflands. All thefe three Commanders fleer'd feveral Courfes. We thall foon fpeak of Magellan again. Antony de Abreu arriv'd at Banda, and returning towards Malaca, richly Laden with Spice of that Country, Serrano was parted from him in a Storm, and Shipwrack'd on the Iflands of Lucopino, fignifying Iflands of Tortoijes, fo call'd from the Plenty and Bignefs of thofe Creatures.

There the Tempeft left the Portuguefes, only their Lives and Arms fav'd, Serrano for their funck, which is a fort of light Veffel, was Stav'd. The Lucopine caft on the Iflands were Horrid, by reafon of their want of Water, and being Defert; Iflands of for their Rocks lying under Water, and the many Sea Robbers that fre-Lucopine. quent them, and always keep Sentinels pofted to difcover any Sailing by, that they may fall upon, and plunder them. Had not Hunger and Thirft threatned the Portugufes with fpeedy Death, they had realon to expect it at the Hands of thoie Pyrats ; but that which had been the Deftruction of others, at this time prov'd their Safety. Thofe Mifcreants had obferv'd the Shipwreck, and Rowing up in a Veffel call'd a Caracoa, as it were to a certain Booty, drew near to thofe who had fo narrowly efcap'd perifhing in the Sea; but the Malaca Pilots, and Mariners were not ignorant of their defign. They acquainted their Captain with the Danger, defiring him to take fuch Meafures as might be for his own, and their Safety. Serrano, like a Man of Valour and Difcretion, having view'd the Shore, conceal'd his Men in a hidden Place. The Pyrates landed to purfue them; but as fcon as ever they were at fome diftance from the Shore, the Strangers rufh'd out, and poffefs'd themfelves of the Caracoa. The Barbarians thus furpris'd, reflecting on their Mifmanagement, and perceiving they were lof Men, gave over the thoughts of Robbing, and had recourfe to Intreaties, throwing down their Bows and Arrows, and begging they would not leave them in that Ifland, but rather take pity, and pardon what they had done; and promifing, if he would carry them off, to conduct him to another place, where Strangers were well receiv'd, and there was Trade. Serrano granted their Requeft, and admitted them, and having repair'd the fhatter'rd Funck, and Embarking together, they directed their Courfe to the Ifland of Amboyna, where they were well receiv'd by the People of Rucutelo, who were ancient Enemies to thofe of Veranula, a Neighboring City of Batochina, with whom thofe of Rucutelo coming to a Battle, they obtain'd the Vietory, through the Afliftance of the New-comers. The Fame of this Succefs flew over to the Molucco Ifiands, at the Time when Boleyfe Reign'd in Ternate, and Almanzor in Tydore, who were both not long before Idolaters, and then Mabometans. Thefe two were at Variance about the Limits of their Dominions, and underftanding that the Portuguefes were at Amboyna, each of them defiring to Strengthen himfelf againf his Enemy, fent Embaffadors, and Ships, to invite, and bring over to them thofe Forreign Soldiers; thinking it alfo convenient upon other accounts, to enter into Alliance with thofe People, whofe great Actions were then fo freth in the Mouths of all Men. Boleyfe was quicker than Almanzor, and fent ten Ships for Serrano, with a Thoufand well Arm'd Soldiers for their Defence, the whole under the Command of his Kinfman Cacbil Colibas The Tydore Embaffadors return'd from Rucutelo difappointed. It is but a fhort Cut between Amboyna, and Ternate, and therefore Boylefe's Ships toon return'd with the Portugwefes. That King went out attended by his Subjects, to receive the new Guefts; all of them concluding, That they went to fee the fulfilling of their fo long expected Prophecy. Serrano Landed in bright white Armour, and his Companions in the fame manner. When the King faw them, he embrac'd every Man, with a Counte nance full of Pleafure and Admiration, fhedding Tears, and lifting up his Hands to Heaven, blefs'd God, and gave hearty Thanks, for that he had granted him to fee that which had been Predicted fo many Years before. Thefe, faid he, my Friends, ave the Warriers you bave fo long wi/b'd for, oh account of my Proplecy. Honoux them, and let us all vie in Entertaining them; fince the Grandeur of our Country depends on their Arms. The Porfuguefes, well pleas'd to be thought worthy of a Prophecy, the Beleif whereof was a Politick Invention, conducing to their Reputation, made no Iefs Courteous Returns, expreffing their fingular Affection. They fettled Amity, and Trade in the Moluccos; whence they fpread it to the adjacent, and remoter Mands, which it will be now requifite breifly to Defcribe, for the better Underftanding of this Hiftory.

The Eaftern Archipelago, not to fpeak of the Divifion of thofe Oriental Parts into Northern, and Southern, Contains fo many Iflands, that the cestain Number of them is not yet known. Hence Modern Authors difribute it into five Divifions, being fo many Archipelagos, under the names of Molucco, Moro, Papruds, Celebes, and Anboyna. The Name of the Firf, in their Language, is Moloc, fignifying, the Head, becaufe it is the Chief of all about it. .Others will have it to be Malucco, which, in Arabick, im ports, the Kingdom, as the Principal of them. It Contains five moft Remarkable Hlauds, all of them under the fame Meridian, one in light of another, their whole Extent being 25 Leagues; the Equinoctial croffing them, fo that the moft Northern of them has but half a Degree of Latitude that way, and the mof Southern, one Degree on the other fide. Near to them, on the Eaft, is the Illand Gilolo, by the Portuguefes call'd Batochina de Moro, and by the Moluccos, Alemaera. Among all the others lying about them, call'd alfo Moluccos, as we fay the Canaries, the Terceras, or the Oreades, thefe are the mof Remarkable, for their great Plenty of Spice. The Names of them, beginning with the Northermolt, ate, Ternate, Tydore, Moticl, Maclian, and Bacljian; by the ancient Heathens call'd, Cape, Duco, Moutil, Mara, and Seque. This laft, which is Baclian, is divided into many Lflands, feperated from one another by little Chamnels, Navigable only in fmall Veffels; for which reafon, as alfo becaufe it is under one Soveraign, it has but one Name, and all the Molucco Iflands are Subjeet to three Kings. They are divided by fmall Arms of the Sea, and fome Defert little Iflands, as alfo by their Antient Enmity. The Coaft both near the Shore, and farther off at Sea, full of Dangerous Shoals; among which there are fome Inlets, where the Ships Ride in Safety. The Soil of them all is generally. Dry and Spungy, fucking up all the Water, tho it Rains never fo much, and in many Places the Brooks that run down from the Mountains do not reach the Sea. According to that grave HiAorian Folm de Barros, thefe Iflands afford an ill Profpect, and are no way pleafant to behold; becaufe the Sun being always fo near them, fometimes paffing over towards the Northern, and fome times towards the Southern Solftice, the natural Damp of the Earth fills them fo full of Trees, and Plants, that it thickens the Air, and hinders the Sight; for by reaton of the Earthly Vapours, the Trees are never naked of Leaves; bur before one falls another has fprung out; and the fane is among Herbs. Others affirm, they are Pleafant to look to, but not Healthy, efpecially for Surangers, who are all fubject to the Difeafe call'd Berber, which is common in that Country. This Malady fwells the Body, and difables the Limbs, but is cur'd with Cloves, the Wine of the Ploilippine Iflands, drank with Ginger, and the ufe of a certain Herb, known to the Natives; and the Dutch, do it with the juyce of Lemmons, a Remedy found by their own Apprehenfion, and Experience.

Providence has flor'd thefe Spice-Ifands with Bananas, Coco-Nuts, Product of Oranges, Lemmons, Ligmam-Aloes, Sanders, Cinamon, Mace, Maftick-Trees, the Mobut above all, with abundance of Cloves, and other Plants; all of them va- luecos. Iuable for their Fruit, or delightful for their Ornaments: They have neither Wheat nor Rice; but Nature gave them Induftry, and Matter to fupply this Defect. They beat a fort of Tree, like the Wild-Palm, with Mallets made of itrong Canes; and thofe dry Trunks, fo batter'd, yield an extrnordinary white Flower, coming from the braized Pith; which they mould up in fquare Pipkins, and this is the Sagu, or Landor, fo made into fquare Loaves, like the Caftile Sope. This Plant is about Fitteen Eoot high, and from the Top of it fiprout out fome Branches, like thofe which produce the Tomit xinds. Thefe bear a Fruit like the Cyprefs-Nuits, in which there are certain fine Hairs, which if they touch a Man's Flefh, burn it. From the tender Branches of the fame Plant cut, flows the Liquor which ferves them for Drink, putting the Ends of the faid Branches fo cut into narrow Mouth'd Veffels, which are fill'd in a Night, and the Liguor fo gather'd, is 1ike Milk Whipped, and Frothy, which they call Tuac, When Drank new, It is Sweet and very Fat'ning; boil'd like new Wine it taftes like Wine, and after grows fharp as Vinegar. The fame Advantage they reap from two other Plants call d Nipo, and Coco; the laft of them yiells alfo $O y i_{\text {, }}$ Boards, and Timber to build Houfes. They alfo Drink another pleafant Liquor, which Nature has fout up in the Hollow of the Canes they call. Bamikooes, fo large that the Knots are a Yard a funder. They abound in Flefh; but the People are more affected to Fifh; notwithftanding Hugo, the Dutclman, fays they want both. Providence afforded them no Mines, either of Gold, or Silver; whether it was a Punifhment, or Mercy we do not decide. Neither have they found any, of other lefs precious Metals; but not far from them is Lambuco, an Ifland abounding in Iron and Steel; whence, and from the Mines of Sula and Rutva, the People of the Maluccos Dring them, to make their Caampilanes, which are fhatp heavy Cymiters, and their Grifes, being finall Daggers. The Portuguefes and Dutch have now furnifh'd thofe IHands with fmall Fire-Arms, and Cannon of all forts known among us.

Ternate is the Capital City, and Court of that King, near to which a dreadful burning Mountain Flames out, about the Equinoxes, becaufe at thofe Times the Winds blow; which kindle that natural Fire, on the Matter that has fed it fo many Ages. The Top of the Mountain, which exhales it, is cold, and not cover'd with Afhes, but with afort of light cloddy Earth, little different from the Pomice-Stone burnt in our Fiery Mountains.

People of Ternate.  Religion, Manners, Laws.  تate.

Defcending thence to the Foot of the Hill, which ftretches out like a Piramid, down to the Plain; it is all uncooth, being thick with Trees, whofe Verdure is fpar'd by the Flames, and the very Fire, Waters and Moiftens them with Brooks, which it draws together in the Hollow of the Mountain, and forces it to Sweat, and pour out.
The Natives Differ from one another, as it were through a Miraculous Bounty of Nature; for it has made the Women Fair and Beautiful, and the Men, of a darker Colour than a Quince; their Hair lank, and many anoint it with fweet Oyls. Their Eyes are large, the Eyebrows long, which, and their Eye-1afhes, they colour Black. Of Body they are Strong, much addicted to War, and floathful for all other Employments. They are long Liv'd; grow grey earlie; and are as Active by Sea as by Land; Officious, and Courteous to Strangers; but when they grow Familiar, Importunate, and Troulfefome in their Requefts; in their Dealings, all bent upou Intereft; Jealous, Fraudulent, and Falfe. They are Poor, and therefore Proud; and to name many Vices in one, Ungrateful.
The Clbinefes poffers'd themfelves of thefe Iflands, when they fubdu'd all thofe Eaftern Parts; and after them the Favenefes, and the Malayes, and laftly the Perfians, and Arabs; which laft, together with their Trade, Introduc'd the Malbometan Superftition among the Worfhip of their Gods; from whom fome Families boafted they were defcended. Their Laws are Barbarous: They have no limited Number of Wives. The King's chief Wife, call'd in their Language Put riz, enables and gives the Right of Succeffion to which her Sons are preferr'd, tho' younger than thofe by other Muthers. Theft is not pardon'd, tho' never fo inconfiderable; but Adultery eafily. When the Dawn appears, Officers appointed by Law for that purpofe, beat a fort of broad, flat Tabors about the Streets, to awake Marry'd People, who they think deferves this Care from the Government, on account of Procreation. Moft Crimes are puniff'd with Death; in other Refpects they Obey the Will, or Tyranny of the Conqueror.
Their Hakit.

The Men, on their Heads, wear Tunkifl Turbants of feveral Colours, with abundance of Feathers on them. The King's ends above like a Miter, and ferves inftead of a Crown. For their other Garb they all wear Waftecoats, which they call Cleninas, and Blew, Crimfon, Green, and Purple Breeches. Of the fame they make their Cloaks, or Mantles, which are fhort, Soldier-like, thrown over, or knotted on the Shoulder, after the Ancient Roman manner, known by the written Defcriptions, Statues, and other Monuments of thofe Times. The Women are Proud of their Hair ; fometimes they fpread, and fometimes they plat it, flicking abundance of . Flowers among the Ribbons, which hold it together; fo that in their Drefs, they are not encumber'd with loofe Viels, Plumes, or Feathers. All that variety adorns them without Art ; they wear Bracelets, Pendants, and Necklaces of Diamonds and Rubies, and great Strings of Pearls, which are not forbid even the meaneft, no more than Silks, wherein the Women particularly are Clad after the Perfian and Turki/b Fafhion; and all this coftly Attire is the Product of the Neighbouring Lands and Seas. Both Men and Women in their Habit ffow their natural Haughtinefs.

In thofe Parts all Antiquity, and the Art of Navigation are afcrib'd to the CDinefes. Some aftirm, That the People of the Molucco Iflands are Defcended from the $7 a 08$, who fettled there, being invited by the Fragrancy of the Spice. They loaded their Veffels with Cloves, till then unknown, and holding on that Trade, carry'd it to the Gulphs of Arabia, and Perfia. They Sail'd about all thofe Countries, tranfporting Silks, and Porcelance, the Product, and Manufacture of Clina. The Cloves were by the Perfians, and Arabs tranfmitted to the Greeks, and Romans. Some Roman Emperors had a defign of Conquering the Eaft, till they fhould come to the Spicy Countries; fo covetous were they of that Commodity; and believing they all came from Clina, call'd all thofe People Chinefes. The Spaniards formerly brought them among other Goods from the Red-Sea. The Kings of Egypt for fome time poffefs'd themfelves of all the Spice, which they Tranfinitted from the Hands of the Afiaticks into Eutrope. This the Romans continu'd, when they reduc'd Egypt into the Form of a Province. Long after, the Genoefes, Transferring the Trade to Theodofia, now Caffa, handed them about to all Parts; and there the Venetians, and other Trading Nations, had their Confuls, and Factors. They afterwards were convey'd over the Cafpian Sea and Trabifond; but this Trade fell with the Eaftern Empire; and then the Turks carry'd them in Caravans of Camels, and Dromedaries to Berytus, Aleppo, Damafous, and feveral Ports on the Mediterranean. The Sultans of Egypt brought them back to the Red-Sen, and thence to Alexandria, down the Nile. The Portuguefes having Conquer'd the Eaft-Indies, took them from Egypt, and brought them in their Fleets by the Cape of Good Hope, finking and taking all Ships that attempted to carry any to Grand Cayro. For that purpofe they kept Squadrons on the Coafts of Arabia and Perfa, and at Cape Guardafu. By this means the Trade of Egypt was furprefs'd, and all the Spice brought on the Kings account to India, and thence taking a prodigious compafs, to Lisbon. He who is Mafter at Sea will be poffefs'd of this Wealth; by which, and other Commodities, we fee that is made good, which fome write Themijtocles was wont to fay, That be has all things who bas the Sea.

The Kings, Boleyfe, of Ternate, and Almanzor, of Tydore, contended a-bout-Entertaining Serrano, and each of them courted him to build a Fort in his Ifland. It is well worth Obfervation, To fee how eagerly thefe Kings fought after, and begg'd for that which they were foon after to be averfe to. They writ about it to the King of Portugal; But Antony de Miranda coming to the Moluccos, befides a wooden Fort, or Houfe he built at Talangame, erected another at Maclian, an Ifland belonging to the two Kings, by which means he fatisfy'd the Requeft of both. Soon after Cacbil Lardin, King of Bachian, made Application to Don Triftan de Menefes, on the fame account. Don Triflan was come to the Moluccos to Load Spice, and with a defign to carry away Francis Serrano, and to induce Boleyfe to confent to it, he perfwaded him, it was requifite that Ser7.ano mould go to Portugal, to prevail upon King Emanuel to order the Fort he defir'd, to be built upon Ternate, and not elfewhere. Eoleyfe approv'd of his defign, and to that end, fent Cachilato, as his Embaflador, with Servano. Don Triftan fet out, and his Ships being difpers'd in a Storm, was oblig'd to return to the Moluccos, and to Winter in the Wooden Houfe above mention'd; but as foon as the Monfon blew, he put to Sea again, and touching at Bachian was inform'd, That they had kill'd fome Portuguefes, of Simon Correa's. Veffel in that Ifland. This troubled him, but he diffembled it, and proceeding on his Voyage, return'd to Malaca, by the way of Amboyna.

Brito at the MoJucco's.

Antony de Brito, appointed by the Governour of India to fucceed Serrano in that Poft, Sail'd from Cape Sincapura, through the Streights of Sabam, with 300 Mer, and fome experienc'd Commanders. He touch'd at Tuban, a City in the Ifland of Jaua, and went over to another, call!d Agazim, a Mart in thofe Parts, oppofite to the Ifland Maduya. Its nearnefs inviting him, he fent a Roving Veffel thither to get fome Information what Courfe he was to Steer. Seventeen Men there were in the Veffel Landed on the Coaft, and went up along the fide of a River, cover'd with beautiful Trees, whore Fruit deceiv'd the Sailers; for they attracted with the pleafant fight, and unexpected fatisfaction, forgot to fecure their Veffel. The Natives obferving the Opportunity, firft took the Veffel, and then all the Men; whofe Ranfom prov'd afterwards difficult, tho' the Lord of the City favour'd it. Brito fail'd directly for the Moluccos, and touching at Bachian, fent Simon de Abreuk in all hafte to burn a Village, and kill all the Inhabitants, in Revenge for Simon Correa's Companions flain there; that King

King of Ternate Dies. Laudin might underftand, they fhould not efcape unpunifh'd, who wrong d. the Fortuguefe, and that fince his Ifland was the firf that took up Arms againft them, it fhould allo be the firft that felt their Vengeance. He executed his feverity without any Lofs, tho' that King did not forget the Obligation he laid on him. Brito went on to Tydore, and was Inform'd by Almanzor of the Diforders there were at Termate, becaufe Boleyfe was dead, and it was fuppos'd he had been Poyfon'd. He being near his Death order'd, That during the Minority of his eldeft Son Cacljil Boluat, or Boyano, the Queen his Wife, who was Daughter to the King of Tydore, fhould Govern; and that Cachil Daroes, Natural Son to the faid Boleyfe, fhould Act jointly with her. The Queen who was Crafty, fufpecting that her Father Almanzor might under that colour aim at fome Advantage, to the Detriment of her Son, call'd her Subjects together and told them, That it was enough for her to take care of her Sons Education; and therefore the laid the greateft frefs of Government on Cachil Daroes.

The King, and the Governour Daroes, expected the Commander Antony

He Landed, thewing State, and appearing worthy of that Applaule; vifited the Queen, the King, and his Brothers; and after the Ceremony of Condoling the Death of Boleyfe, ordering Affairs in Conjunction with Daroes, he approv'd of that Form of Government, and upon all occafions Defended his Province againft that of Tydore. To do this with the greatef Security, he pitch'd upon a proper fpot of Ground, according to the Rules of Fortification, which were not then very perfect, no more than Military Difcipline. The Foundation being dug, Brito, in the prefence of the King, and all the People, laid the firft Stone of the new Fort, with his own Hand. This happen'd on Midfummer Dar, and therefore he gave the Fort the Name of St. Fohn Raptift; and tho' it was built for the Defence of Ternate, yet in Brito's mind it was Dedicated to the fervice of the Gofpel, and its Minifters. He us'd endeavours to fend away the Caeiz he found there fpreading of Mabomet's falfe Doctrine, as an Obfacle to the True; but the War which is there always fertled and natural againft Tydore, obftrufted thefe Defigns; tho' at the fame time the Troubles of thofe two Revengeful Nations increas'd the Revenues of Portugal,by contributing of their Spice; and the defire of Superiority brought them into Subjection. However, in Portugal Brito had a Succeflor appointed him, and he was inform'd, That the other was already failing for the Moluccos; and there was need enough of them both, and of doubling their Forces; becaufe Spain ftill infifted upon taking thofe Countries as its Right, and Brito began to be hated, on account of his offering Violence to the Royal Family.

- At the fame time Magellan having Sail'd Soo Leagues towards Malaca, was in certain Iflands, whence he correfponded with Serrano; who having thriv'd fo well in Ternate, with Boleyfe, fent his Friend word what Kindnefs, and Wealth he had receiv'd from him; advifing him to return to his Company. Magellan confenting, refolv'd to go to the Moluccos; but in cafe his Services were not Rewarded in Portugal, as he expected, he would take the way directly for Ternate, under whole King Serrano grew fo Rich in Nine Years. He confider'd, that fince the Moluccos were 600 Leagues Eaft from Malaca, which make 30 Degrees, little more or Jefs, they were out of the Portuguefe Limits, according to the antient Sea Chart. Returning to Portugal, he found no Favour, but thought himfelf wrong'd, and refenting it, went away into Cafille, carrying with him a Planifphere, drawn by Peter Reynel; by which, and the Correfpondence he had held with Serrano, he perfwaded fthe Emperor, Charles. V. that the Molucco Illands belong'd to him. It is reported, That he Confirm'd his Opinion with Writings, and the Authority of Ruly Faleyro, a Portuguefe Judiciary Aftrologer, and much more with Serrano's.
Hereupon the Emperor gave him the Command of a Squadron, with which he fail'd from Sanlucar, on the 21 fh . of September, 15 Ig. He ftay'd four days at the Canaries, where a Caravel overtook him, with private Intelligence, that his Captains went with a Defign not to Obey him, particularly Jolon Cartagena, who had the fame Commiffion as Magellan. He bravely feem'd to take no notice and failing away with a fair Wind, being pafs'd Rio de Janeyre, in the Province of Santa Cruz, commonly call'd Brazil, the Sea growing very cold, and much more the River of Plate, which is in 35 Degrees of South Latitude, the Captains queftion'd him about the Voyage, fince they could not find the Cape, or Streight, they went in fearch of. He anfwer ${ }^{t}$, as to Men that were entirely Subordinate to his Direction and Authority, That ibey muft go on, for be knew what be was about, and the Confts of Norway and Ireland were in a greater Lat $i$ tude, and yet Ships faild along them. Thefe Contefts lafted almoft all the Voyage, and increas ${ }^{t}$ w ith the cold and dreadful Winds, and the hideous fight of the Mountains of Snow and Ice, grown old, which they met in the Latitude of 52 and 53 Degrees. They magnify'd thefe Difficulties, alledging, That it requir'd fix, or Teven Months to come from Cafile, Nor is it to be believ'd, That Marellazz fhould confult fuch a Deceitful a Science as Judiciary Aftrology, upon fuch difficult Points, or fhould prefer it before Aftronomy, amidft fuch dreadful Dangers. The Hardfips became intollerable; and Difcord fo far prevail'd with the Captains, Jobn de Cartagena, Gappar $2 u e f a d a$, and Lewis de Mendoza, that they refolved either to Kill, or Secure Magellan. This Confpiracy coming to his Ears, as he lay at the Mouth of the River of St. Fulian, having contriv'd what was to be done, as Jobn de Barros writes, he caus ${ }^{\text {d }}$ Lewis de Mendoza to be Stab'd, which was done by fonzalo de Efpinofa. Next Gafpar de உuefada was Quarter'd Alive; and a Servant of his, who was concern'd, had his Pardon. Cartagena he condemned to a lingering Death, leaving him in that Defert Country, with a Clergy Man, guilty of the fame Crime, which was High Treafon againft their King. So fay the Portuguefe Hifories; but the Spanijb inform us, That they were privately proceeded againf, and the Judgment was Read to them. This done he made fome Speeches to Juftify the Fact, and Comfort his Companions. Cartagena, and the Clergy-Man, who were left with fome Provifions, got away a few days after, in one of the Ships of the fame Squadron, which return'd to Spain. Magellan overcoming incredible Difficulties, found the Streight, and Paflage, which makes the Communication Getween the two Seas, and preferves his Name to this Day. He there took Giants above fifteen Spans high, who wanting raw Flefh, which they us'd to feed on, foon $D y^{6} d$; then he paffed the Streight fuccelsfully. But tho' he got under the Equinoctial, either by reafon of the Currents, or the Faultinefs of the Sea Charts, he Sail'd round about, and almof in fight of theMolücco Iflands, yet could never come at them. He Touch'd at others, where he was oblig'd to. Fight; and went on to thofe of Zebu, or the Mamilas. At this fame time his Friend Serrano was failing for India, and tho, it happen'd in feveral Places, yet they both Dy'd on the fame Day, and much after the fame Manner.

It would be fuperfluous to dilate upon the Story of Magellan, his tedious Navigation, and the many Difficulties he met with, before and after he pafs'd through his Streight into the Pacifick, or South-Sea; his Arrival at the Ifland of Zebu, and perfwading the Idolatrous King to embrace the Chriftian Faith, and the Battles he fought on his account, with his Enemies; for befides that thefe things are Related by very good Authors who Treat of the Difcovery of the Moluced Iflands, which was the main Object of his defperate Undertaking, we muft be brief in repeating thent, to fhow how eager feveral Princes, and Nations were for thefe Iflands, and the Notion they had of what great Confequence they would be to them.

The King of Zebu was Baptiz'd, rather to make his Advantage of the.

Spanifs Arms, than out of any Zeal, or that he knew the Faith he Embrac'd. He took the Name of Ferdinand in Baptifm, to flatter his Godfather, who He is Murwas Ferdinand Magallaens, himfelf. After obtaining feveral Victories by der'd-with, his Affiftance, thinking he could fhake off the fecond Yoke he expected thofe Strangers might lay on him, he turn'd againft them. He contriv'd an Entertainment, in Honour of Magellan and Thirty five Spaniayds being at it, he fell upon them at a time appointed, with a Multitude of Barbarians, and confounding the Feaft, murder'd his Gueits, who handled their Arms to defend themfelves, which only ferv'd to render their Deaths more Honourable. The reft of the Spaniards, who efcap'd becaufe they were at Sea, for their better Government under that Misfortune, prefently chofe Barbofa, a Kinfman of Magalloaens, for their General, and Lewis Alfonfo, a Portwguefe to be Captain of the Ship, call'd the Victory. The perfidious King, thinking to conceal his Treachery and Apoftacy, as if it were poffible to keep it fecret, fent to invite Rarbofa, faying he would deliver him the Tewel he had promis'd for the King of Spain. Jolın Serrano, thinking it a Rafhnefs, to truft a Man again, whofe Hands were ftill Bloody with the late Execution, diffwaded Barbofa from accepting of the Invitation; but was not regarded. Barbofa went with the other Gueits, and Serrano himfelf, who, to fhow it was not Fear that mov'd him to give fuch Advice, was the firft that got into the Boat. They were conducted into a Wood of Palm-Trees, where the King expected them, with a fimall Retinue, the Tables being fpread in the Shade, amidft the Mufick of Bag-Pipes. When they were feated, and began to Eat, a great number of Archers that lay in Ambufh, ruft'd out, and fhot our Men. They faved Serrano, whom they lov'd, not out of Kindnefs, for they fhow'd him bound to thofe that were at Sea, demanding for his Ranfom, two Brafs Guns, and then he told them, the Slaughter that had been made. Our Men, not trufting to them, any longer, fet Sail, and did not only fee the Indians carry Serrano back to their Town, but foon after heard mighty Shours in it; and it was afterwards known that they gave them when they killed Serrano, and ran to throw down a great Crofs, fet up before the New-Church, which they could not perform. The Spaniards wanting Men, burnt the Ships, call'd the Conception, and chofe Jolon Caravallo for their General, and Gonzalo ${ }^{2}$ Gomez de Efpinofa, Captain of the Ship the Vidtory. They came to Borneo, on the Coaft whereof they found thofe Peoples Fleet of Carcoas, Painted, and the Prows of them like Serpents Heads gilt.

The Soldiers appear'd well Arm'd, who having fpy'd our Ship, acquainted their King with it. He order'd 2000 of his Guard to go out, and receive them, before they reach'd the City. Thefe Men came brandifhing their Bows and poifon ${ }^{\imath}$ d Arrows, Trunks, Cymitars, and Sheilds, and wore Breaft-plates made of Tortois Shells, and encompals ${ }^{\text {d }}$ an Arm'd Elephant, on whofe Back there was a wooden Caftle. When the Spaniards came up the Elephant ftoop ${ }^{\text {d }} \mathrm{d}$ down, and fix $\mathrm{arm}^{6} \mathrm{~d}$ Men coming out of the Cantle, put Gnnzalo Gomez de Efpinofa, who was then General, into it. Thus attended, he went to Vifit the King, in whofe Prefence his Secretary fpoke to him through a Trunk, and E/pinofa gave him an Account of the King of $Z e b u^{6}$ s Perfidioufnefs. All condold the Accident, and our Men taking Leave Sail'd away for the Molucco Iflands, being reliev'd with what they wanted, and furnifidd with able Pilots.

Not far from Borneo, they met 150 Sail, whereof they took two $7 u n k s$,

Spaniards at Tydore in which they found an Hundred Men, five Women, a Son of the King of Luzon, and an Infant two Months Old. This they thought would. be a fufficient Ranfom to recover their Companions; fo they let go the Prince upon his Parole, he promifing to reftore them the Captive Spaniards. They had fome Storms; but arrivid at Tydore, on the 8th of November 152T, When Almanzor heard the falute of the Canon, he fent to enquire what People they were, and prefently after he came to our Ships in a little Boat. His Shirt appeard woven with Gold and Silk, a white Cloth which trail'd being girt over it. About his Head a fine Veil of leveral Colours, made like a Perfian Miter: Being Aboard the Commodore, the Relations of that Voyage fay, he fopp'd his Nofe with his Fingers, either at the Smell of our Meat, or of the Ship. Maloometanifm was newly come into his Itland, and moft of his Subjects, efpecially thofe Inhabiting the Mountains, ador'd Idols. He bid our Men wellcome, gave them good Words, and afterwa ds was as kind in his Actions; andbeing inform'd of their paft Sufferings, gave them leave to load Cloves. They prefented him with a Chair of Crimfon Velvet, a Robe of Y ellow Velvet, a great Loofe Coat of falfe Cloth of Gold, a piece of Yellow Damafk, four Yards of Scarlet Cloth; Handkercheifs, and Towles, wrought with Silk, and Gold; DrinkingGlaffes, Glafs Beads, Looking-Glaffes, Knives, Scizers, and Combs. They gave his Son anuther parcel of Gifts, and a Cap, and did the like by his Cacbiles and Sangiacks. When they afk'd the Kings leave in the Emperors Name to Trade, he granted it, adding they fhould kill any that offer'd to hinder them. He ferioully view'd his Majefty's Picture and Arms on the Standard, and defired to fee our Coin. And pretending to be an Aftrologer, or Soothfayer, or as others fay, having Dreant, or Guefs ${ }^{\star} \mathrm{d}$ it, or being told it by Cbinefe Priefts, he faid, He knew the Chriftians were to come so bis Lands for Spice; and defired that they would not leave bim. They treated about an Alliance, and when they were agreed, two Tydores brought fomething in their Hands to the Ships, which they afterwards underfood was the Alcoran, tho' at firt they did not, becaule cover'd with Silks, and Strings. Almanzor lay'd his Hands on it, and then on his Head, and Breaft; and this was the Ceremany of his Swearing Friendihip, and Fealty to the Crown of Caftile, and that he would allow them Cloves, and all Commerce for ever. Then the General Efpinofa, in the Emperor's Name, before an Image of the bleffed Virgin, fwore to protect them both in Peace and War, and prefented King Almanzor with Thirty Indians he had taken Prifoners. Soon after, as fome Authors affirm Corala, Prince of Ternate, Nephew to Almanzor, came to Tydore to fwear Fealty in like manner, as did Luzuf, King of Gilolo, of whom it is Written, That he had Kings Writ to the Emperor; ratifying their Fealty, and Sebaftian del Cano fail'd away in the Ship, the Victory, by the way the Portuguefes ufe, with the Letters and Inftruments; the General Efpinofa returning towards Panama, for Caftilla del Oro on the Continent of America, to pafs thence to Spain.

At this time the new Governor, Don Garcia Henriquez, was under Sail, to fucceed Antony Brito, and being come to Banda, waited for the Monfosi to carry him to Iernate. Monfon is the Name by which the Portuguefe call the Wind, which blows fix Months to carry them to India, and then fix Months again to bring them back. There he furnifhed himfelf with Monfon, wolat it is. all Neceffaries for the Fort built by Brito. He had need fo to do, for he received Advice, That Spanifb Ships were failing thro' the Bays, and openeft Parts of the Archipelago. He fent to difcover them, by the Induftry of his Soldiers, and being receiv'd at Ternate, view'd the Fort, and obferv'it the poiture of the Government. He propofed a Peace with Cachil Almanzor, King of Tydore. We fhall have frequent Occafion to repeat thefe Words Cachil and Sangiack. Cacbil is perkaps deriv'd from Katil, which in Ara-Cachil and bick is the fame as among us, a Valiant Soldier. In the Molucco Iflands Sangiack, they Honour their Nobility with this Title, which is fomething more than their ffgDon in Spain. The Title of Sangiack, which anfwers to that of Duke, nifications. or Earl, might come from Senchaq; which in the Turki/h Language, imports a Commander: To conclude this Peace, he thought it convenient to fecure the Royal Family; which he accordingly executed, and though he colourd it with fair Pretexts, they plainly perceived this was an Introduction towards Opprefing them, and fhow'd a miftruft. We may fafely affirm, This was the firft Diftafte which, as being a notorions Wrong, difturbdd that Nation, and from that time they grew Cold, and Jealous, thinking themfelves obliggd to feek Revenge; and this Action was the occafion of all the enfuing Slaughters, as we often fee a great Fire rife from one fmall Spark.

Cachil Daroes endeavour'd to obfruct this Peace, as Tutor, and Governor, fearing the Trade of Cloves would be transferr'd to Tydore, to the Deftruction of the Infant King's Dominions. But notwithftanding this Oppofition, the Peace was concluded, upon certain Conditions, as, That the King of Tydore fhould deliver a Ship he had taken, the Canon, and fome runaway Portuguefe. Almanzor, who ftood in need of a Peace, and the Friendfhip of the Portuguefe, to gain the Affection of Cachil Daroes, propos'd to Marry him to one of his Daughters. Don Garcia believing that this Union among them would produce that of their Forces, and lefs Submiffion to the Portuguefe's Dominion, to obftruct this dangerous Alliance, fent to the King of Tydore to borrow the Canon. That King ex$c^{4}{ }^{\text {d }}$ himfelf, alledging, that he had lent it a few days before, to the King - of Bachian. Cackil Daroes complying with hitn, agreed to all the Articles. Don Garcia being diffatisfy‘d, waited an opportunity to break all that Contrivance, and be Reveng'd. Almanzor fell Sick, and defir'd Don Garcia to fend him a Phyfician; who fent an Apothecary, and he either not underftanding Phyfick, or, as was believ'd, by order of Don Garcia, kill'd the Parient. Manifeft tokens of Poyfon afterwards appear${ }^{\iota} \mathrm{d}$. The Funeral was order ${ }^{〔} \mathrm{~d}$, and at the fame time the Commander, Don Garcia, appear ${ }^{\bullet} \mathrm{d}$ in the Morning, in a parcel of Carcoas, before Tydove. He fent Baldaya, the Clerk of the Fort, to demand the Canon, threatning War, in cafe of denial. The Regents excufing themfelves at that time, with juft Reafons, and particularly the Funeral Solemnity, when they were in the Height of the Ceremony of Burying their King, they heard the Shouts of Dcn Garciats: Mengiving the Affault. The Portuguefe enter'd the City, firing the Houfes, plundering and killing, which obliged the Ty dores to abandon theirs

Thofe, who had fled return'd, with fome Apprehenfion, and found the City ruin'd hideous, and almoft reduc'd to Afhes; but recovering from their Fright; they proclaim'd Cacbil Raxamira, the Son of Almanzor, King. They committed the Education of him to Cachil Rade, his Kinfman, the War being declared between Ternate and the New King of Tydore, who was feafonably fupported the Spaniard's that came to his Country.

War betwixt Spaniards and .Portuguefes.

The Ship Vifory returning into Spain, with the Letters from the King of the Molucco Inlands, which the Emperor receiv'd, he was more fully convine'd, that thefe Iflands were within his Limits. Their Wealth, and his Right to them were fo lively reprefented to him, that he order'd another Squadron of four Ships, two Galloons, and an Advice Boat to be made ready at Corunna, to be Commanded by the Commendary Fray Garcia de Loayfa, a Gentleman of Bifcay, and under him, as Vice-Admiral, Sebaftian del Cano, and the Captains Don Rodrigo de Acunna, Fames de Vera, \&ce, They Sail'd on the Eve of St. Fames the Apoitle, 1525 , touch'd at Gomera, and running along the Coaft of Guinea, could not make Cape St. Auguffine for want of Wind. By reafon of this Calm, all agreeing to ir, he alter'd his Courfe to the Cape of Good Hope. A Portuguefe Ship guided them to the Ifland of St. Matthew, which is Defert, and full of lofty Orange Trees, where they faw Hens, the Track of wild Boars, and fome Portuguefe Words carv'd on Trees, which fhew'd they had pafs ${ }^{\text {s }}$ d that way. The Ships leaving them, they pafs'd Cape St. Auguftine, making for the Streights of Magellane. In.this Courfe they endur'd Storms, and Err'd in their Accounts. Sebaftian del Cano ftruck on a Shoal, and was reliev'd. The Galloons and Advice Boat made New Spain. The Admiral, by the Advice of $\mathrm{CanO}_{3}$ pafs'd the Equinoctial, upon information, That in 12 Degrees of South Latitudé, he would find certain Iflands that were rich in Cold and Silver. All the Men fickn'd, the Admiral, and Cano dy'd, with fome others. The remains of the Squadron choofing Toribio de Salazar for their Commander, return'd under the Line; but he dy'd at the Illands de lns Velas, now calld Ladrones. or of Thieves. After fome Strife, Martin Iniguez, and Ferdinand de Buftamante fucceeded him, and agree'd to Command by turns. Thus divided they came in fight of Mindanao, and thence to the Molucco Iflands, took in fome Refreffiment at Cope, a Town of the Illand Moratay, whence they went on to Camafo, of Morotoja, whofe Sangiack is Subject to the King of Tydore.

They proceeded through the Gulph of Canafo, where they were Inform'd by the Ship of Don George de Menefes, who had been fored thither by the Currents, that the Portuguefes held the Fort of Ternate, and Don Garcia made War on Tydore. Inigues, and Buffamante offerdd them the Affiflance of Spain, by which, coming fo opportunely, they gain'd the Affettions of them all, and fu nifhed themfelves with Neceffaries. Don Garcia being already provided againft the new Enemy, gather'd fome Carcoass, and tho' he could not perfwade Daroes, the Tutor, to go along with him, oppo 'd the Spaniards. Firf the Porruguefe fent an Admonition, wherein he offer ${ }^{\text {d }}$ d them Peace, and Entertainment, as Subjects to the Emperor, who wwas fo near Ally'd to the King of Portugal; protefting, That the Molucco

Iflands were within his Limits. This avail'd nothing, and Daroes Embarking in 12 Carcoas, with Emanuel Falcao, fent that Proteftation in Writing, and in cafe it was Rejected, to declare War. The Spanib Commander receiv'd the Lawyer that was to make the Proteftation, with much Civility and Refpect, and anfwer'd, That the Molucco Iflands belong'd to the Crown of Caftile, and therefore he, in the Emperors Name, required Don Garcia not to break the Peace eftablifh'd between their Kings. After all they were oblig'd to have recourfe to Arms. Inlguez Landed on Ty dore frengthen'd the Works, and furnifh'd them with Canon. The Portriguefe follow'd, and both fides Firing, there, was a great Slaughter; but thofe of Ternate retir'd fo diforderly, that the Tydores remain'd Victors. However neither the Proteflations, nor the War ceas'd, the Spaniards urging $M a-$ gellan's Difcovery, and the Portuguefe, Serrano's, and Brito's. The Tydores and Spaniards took fome Carcoas belonging to Gilolo, in which they kill'd a Portuguefe, and fome Terwates, as alfo a Cluampan Laden with Provifions for Talangame.

In the Pbilippine Iflands they give the Name of Carcoas to a fort of Carcoas, Veffels that ufe Oars, open, and bigger than our Barks, and are Steer'd by wofat fort two Rudders, the one ahead, and the other aftern. The Ternates call'd of Velfels, them fanguas, which differ from the Carcoas only in having two Half- and otbers. Moons of Wood, Painted, or Guilt, rifing above the Keel at the Head and Poop. About 100 Men Raw in each of them, to the found of a Tabor, and a Bell. They carry twenty Soldiers, and fix Mufketiers. The reft ate employ'd about four or five little Brafs Guns. Both the Men that Row, and the Soldiers are Arm'd with Campilancs, that is Cymiters, and Shields, and abundance of Calabays, and Sagus, being long Canes burnt in the Fire, to harden them; which they throw, without tacking, as the Moors do their Darts. Their way of Fighting is to come within Gun-fhot, and as foon as they have Fir ${ }^{6} \mathrm{~d}$, both fides fly with all fpeed, till they have Loaded 2gain, and then return to the fame Poft. They fet three Men to each Gun, the one Levels, the other Charges, and the third Fires it. This is the way among the Illanders; for when they have to do with Europeans, our Example has Improv'd them in the Art of War. But in their Carcoas they are always expos'd to be kill'd by our Cannon, becaufe they have no Fights to cover them; and the fame is in the Champanes, which differ but little from the others.

The Victory we have fpoken of Encourag'd the Tydores, and with the Affifance of the Spaniards, they Arm'd, and falling upon Gaca; a Town of Ternate, Plunder'd and Burnt it; but at their Return, they met with Martin Correa, whom they Fought, plying their Carcoas, the Succefs remaining doubtful: Whilft this. War was at the hotteft, Don George de Menefes camc from the Papuas to Ternate, to whom Don Garcin prefently refign'd the Poft, tho' the Hoftilities continu'd, with Burning and Slaughter on both fides, which it was expected would be greater when the Portuguefe Succours came from Malaca, and the Caftilian from Spain. The new Portuguefe Commander in Chief, and Martin Inniguez came to a Conference, and with much Couttefy, and defire of Peace, concluded a Truce, which lafted not long, tho' not on account of the main caufe.

There were many Battles between the Spanifh and Portuguefe Nations, from Gitolo and other adjacent Iflands, about the Poffeffion of the Moluccos, and they were under feveral Commanders, the Event whereof we thall fee in its Place. Therefore, and becaufe others have Treated of them Copeoufly, they fhall be now pafs'd by, that we may return to the Actions of thofe Kings, which ought to be diftinctly deliverid now at the Beginning, for the better Underftanding of the Caufes why they came to be Loft.

The King of Tydore was lefs Supported by Spain than he had been before, and was therefore oblig'd to fue for Peace, laying fome Burden of Tribute, on his own Revenue proceeding from the Cloves. He alfo promis'd never. to admit of any Spanifb Succours; befides fome other Conditions, which put an end to the Wars for a time.

We have already obferv'd, That Caofil Boleyfe, King of Ternate, left Daroes, and the. 2ueengovern Ternate. three lawful Sons, viz. Cachil Bayano, Cachil Dayalo, and Caclijl Tábarija. The Eldeft of them was not above fix Years of Age; befides whom there were feven Baftards, the Eldeft of them, Cachil Daroes, was Governor of the Kingdom, in Conjunction with the Queen. When Brito, in the Yeat I521, Built the Fort, to fecure the Subjection of the-Ifand, tho the had another Pretence for it, he took the Infant King, and the Queen his Mother, into it. She generouly refenting this Violence, as not able to endure, that they ftould oppofe the courfe of her Government, which fe manag'd, together with her Step-Son, loudly Complain'd, and Threatned, as a Queen, and as a Mother. She wanted no Conveniencies for the Education of the Children; but there being Wrong difguiz'd among all that feeming Kindnefs, neither her Family, nor the Nurfe, nor the Perfwafons of Great PerTons, could appeafe her Anget. The Nâtives obfer*sd the Difference of the Portuguefe Domination, and that fince their building of that Fort, they us'd intolerable Rigor, and confequehtly began to grow cold in their Affection, Portuguefe Infolent.

They Infult the Natives. and to llacken in their Refpect; efpecially when they perceiv'd that Brito's Succeffor continurd to keep the Royal Family under Opprefion. The young King was bred up in the Fort, till he was of Age to enter upon the Government of his Kingdom; and being 18 years old, fonn $d^{\mathrm{s}} \mathrm{d}$, net without the ufual fufpition of Poifon, bur it was affirm do to be given by private order of Cachil Daroes. O the wonderful Effects of the Defire of Rule !
Sultan Bayano being Dead, order was taken that the People fhould immediatly Swear Cacbil Dayalo; but Don George found alfo means to get him into the Fort; the Mother demanding him, as fearing his Death, by the example of the Elder. Don George condefcended, not fo much in compliance to her Fears, as to oflige Cachil Daroes, with whofe Government he was well fatisfy'd ; and it was he that had interven'd in, and advis'd that way of Breeding the Princes. Soon after there happen'd an Accident, which broke off their good Intelligence; "for Daroes grew jealous of the Commander in chiefs Behaviour, obferving fiom much to favour Cachil Tayaco, a Man of note, whofe Friendflip he was futpicious of, and he with reafon fear², that the Commander would in time value Bryaco more than him. This' well grounded Fear grew up in his Breaft, till it turn'd to down right Hatred, and he contriv'd to kill Dön George. The Defign could not be cary'd on fo private, as to be conceald from him, and he to difappeint it, retir'd into the Fort. Daroes puffed up with the Applaufe of the People, fent immediatly to require him to deliver up Bayaco, to ty him upon fome Complaints he had ayaioft him, being his Judge, as Governour, and oblig'd to do Jullice. Don George was deffrous to lave Cacbil Bayaco, and to that purpofe affembled the Alcayde, and other Officers. Some faid he ought to deliver him, others advis'd to appeafe Daroesly fair means. Bayaco, who hated him fo mortally, that he woul'd chufe any fort of Death, rather than fall into his Hands, being lock'd up in a Room of the Fort, underftood that his Cafe was doubtful, for they Confulted without any great Privacy. This made him Refolve what to do, and going to a high Window, he threw himfelf out with fuch Fury; that he beat himfelf to Pieces. Don George was troubld at the Accident, and thought himfelf cblig'd to Revenge it; which he began upon finding a Sow kill'd, either to fpight him, or becaufe the Neighbours were Maloometans, and had done it as fhe grazid, or went aboit the Courts of the Fort. This was a rediculous Occafion, but of Moment enough among thofe People; Encuiry was made who had kill'd her, and it appear'd, or Don George would have it, that the Fault belong'd to Cacljil Baydua, a near Kiniman to Cachil Daroes, very Learned, and Zealous in the Law of Mabomet, as allo a Caciz, or Prieft, and of great Authority in the Kingdom. He was feiz'd by Don George, and carry'd into the Fort, without regard to the publick Feace. Daroes, in a great Confernation, went with the chief Men of the Kingdom, to defire he would releafe that Sacred Perfon. Whilft they were difcourfing this Point, Peter Fernandez, a mean Fellow, Servant to the Commander in Chief, by his Mafters Order, or of his own Accord, in the Prefence of them all, went up to Cachil Baydua, and rubb'd bis Mouth, and Face with a fat Collop of the fame Sow, neither the Oppofition he made, nor his Complaints to God, and the Commander in Chief availing him; but on the contrary, the Portuyuefes laugh'd out aloud, approving the Action by their Applaufe. Daroes on his part, caft himfelf on the Ground, and Weeping, prevail'd to have Baydua reftor'd to him, whom, Don George being fattsfy'd, or appeas'd, and taking Security, fent to his Houfe. Daroes attended him, and all the Prime Men; and Baydua, by Reafon it is an Abomination among them to touch Swines-Flefh, prefently ufed their Purifications; and the more to exprefs his Concern, voluntarily left the Inand for fome Years, and travel'd about all the others in the Neighbourhood, preaching, and magnifying the Affront offer'd to one of Maliomets Priefts, thus ftirring up the Natives, and perfwading them to Unite in Defence of their Honour.

This Accident, which as a Difgrace to their Religion, exafperated the People, was feconded by another much worfe, which quite render'd the Portuguefes Odious. The contrary Winds kept back the Trading Galeon, that us'd to carry the Soldiers. Pay, and their Wants increafing, they began to feek Relief, breaking into the Natives Shops, and Store-Houles, and taking away their Proviofins, without Paying for them. Daroes, offended at it, order'd, That no Provifions fhould be brought into the City to fell, and that the Shops which dealt in them, fhould be ghut up. This was accordingly done, and reduc'd thofe in the Fort to fuch Diffrefs, that the Soldiers mutinying, rail'd at their own Commander, and the Governor of India, demanding Relief with their Arms in their Hands. Don George being hard prefs'd, and blaming the Avarice of his Country Men, fent fome Carcoas with Soldiers, under the Command of Gomez Ariaz, to barter Goods in the adjacent Iflands for Provifions. They Landed on an Ifland near by, where, being defperate with Hunger, they Plunder'd the Town of Tabona, the Inhabitants whereof, no longer able to endure fuch Affronts, and Robberies, running to Arms, fell upon them, and kill'd the greateft Number, and moft of the reft being Wounded, were Difarm'd. They embark'd for Ternate, where their Wounds and Nakednefs fooke what had. befallen them, as much as their. Words. Don George, who, befides his being naturally Paffionate, was now quite enrag'd, threatned Daroes, That if he did not deliver up the principal Actors in this Mifchief, he would. feek his Revenge other ways. He was obey'd, and tho' Cachil Daroes, knew that all the Fault belong'd to the Portuguefes, yet he deliver'd up the Governor of Tabona, and two other Chief Men of the Place, to Don:

Barbarous Ciuelty. George, thinking he would be fatisfy'd with keeping them I riloners for fome Days. As foon as they were brought before him, he orderd the Hands of the two to be cut off, and that they fiould be then fet at liberty. The Governors Punifhment was anfwerable to the Cruelty of him that was his Judge; they ty ${ }^{\text {dd }}$ his Hands behind his Back, and expofing him on the Shore, fet two fierce Woolf-Dogs upon him, he having no way to withftand their Fury, made feveral va in attempts to flip afide from them; and endeavourd to defend himfelf with what little Power was left him in thofe Limbs that were not Bound. The Mulitude with Horror beheld the Spectacle, touch'd with Compafion, and admiring the Inhumanity of the Punifhment. The wretched Man attempted to Fly, but, perceiving that the arm'd Soldiers, had fhut up every way, on the Land dide, he calt himfelf into the Sea, the only Refuge accidentally left him, to feek fome uncertain Hope of Safety. However the Dogs being already blooded, left him not; but barking and howling, bit and tore him, tho' he fill fwam with his Legs. At laft, being defperate, and almont in the làf Agony, he took a Gorrid Refolution and fell upon thofe fierce Creatures with his Teeth: fuch was the Effect of Pain and Defpair. Thus the unhappy Man took ho'd of one of the Dogs by the Ear, and holding fant, funk with him to the Bottom. The like Barbarity had never before been feen in any of thofe Countries to which the Portugzefes Traded; and by it they loft the Reputation they had before gain'd, to their great Applaufe, that they infliCted Punifhments, as it were by Compuifion, and Oblig'd to it, and that:

Confpiracy

to deftroy the Portuguefes. with Mildnefs, and Compaffion, to fhew their Generofity.
This Action brought them into general Hatred, and all the People of the Molucco Iflands being exited by Cacbil Daroes, contriv'd to kill Don Georgex. with all the Portuguefes and Spaniards, and fa deliver themfelves from their. Yoke. Daroes undertook to Unite all the Kings of thofe Iflands in a, League againft the Chriftians; fent away trufty Perfons to ftir up the Confederates; and particularly to Cachil Catabruno, Governor of Gilolo, during. that Kings Minority, advifing him, at a Time appointed, to rife in Arms againft the Spaniards inhabiting his Dominions, and then to kill the Infant King, and Ufurp the Crown; for the compafing whereof he promis'd his Affifance, for they fhould both make that their common Caule, becaufe he defign'd the fame Slaughter upon the Portuguefes, and upon the Infant King Sultan Dayalo, whom he would Succeed in the Throne, and never fubmit to any Spanijbilyranny. At this time the Voice of the Goipel refounded in the Ears of the Barbarons Nations of the Archipelago, by the Preaching of the Religious Men of the Orders of St. Augufin, St. Dominick, and St. Francis, and of Father Francis Naverius, a $\mathfrak{F}$ fuit, and his Companions; Churches were built, and therefore God, who was taught by them, would not fuffer the Minifters of the Gofpel to be extirpated. Don George was inform'd of the Confpiracy, and the Preparations that were making to put it in Erecution, which he kept to himfelf. Daroes, the better to difemble it, never abfented himfelf, but reforted to the Fort, and paid Vifits to the Governour ; fometimes when fent for by him, and others, of his own Accord. He fent one Day defiring he would come to him, and bring Cacloil Tamarano, Admiral of the Illand, and Cachil Boio, the chief Jufice of the Kingdom, to treat about fome important Affairs. Cachil Daroes knowing nothing of Don George's Defign, took thofe two Cacbils with him, and went away to the Fort. Don George receiv'd them courteoufly, and with achearful Countenance; but being come into a Room where all Things were prepar'd for the Purpofe, they were feiz'd and put to the Rack, on which they difcover'd the Confpiracy. Immediately he pars'd Sentence upon them in Form, and at the fame time caus ${ }^{\text {d }} \mathrm{d}$ a Scaffold to be erected, adjoyning to the Fort, on the Outfide, where the People were already gather'd in a Crowd. Then Cachil Daroes being brought out, and plac'd high on the Scaffold, a Cryer proclaim'd his Crimes, and the Penalty he was condemn'd to. His Head was cut off 2 and his Companions put to a lefs honourable Death; but what that was, no Hiftory or Relations inform us.

The Queen and all the Natives, were fo terrify'd by this Action, that they fled out of the City, to a craggy frong Mountain at the Town of Toruto: Thence the Queen fent to demand her Son, whom the Governour kept as a Prifoner; but he not anfwering her Letter, fhe was fo offended at, and jealous of his Silence, that fhe caus'd Proclamation to be made, forbidding all the People of the Iland, upon Pain of Death, to fell any Provifions, or other Neceffaries, to the Portuguefes. Her Orders were readily obey'd, and the Portuguefes prefs'd by Hunger, found it a more powerful Enemy, than thofe they had wrong'd. Their Skins began to fhrivel, they grew Lank and Weak, and muft have perifh'd, had not Gonzalo Pereyra arriv'd then with the Trading Galeon. Gonzalo Pereyra came from Malaca to fucceed Don George de Menefes in the Poft of Tervaie; and impraving the Opportunity, touch'd at Borneo, where he vifited the King, with whom, the Spaniards not obfructing, he fettled perpetual Peace and Amiry; thence he fet out immediately for Ternate, where he arriv'd in Safety. He prefently took Poffeffion of the Fort, and paid the weak Soldiers. The Queen fent to vifit him, and to complain of Don George, and demand her Son Caclil Dayato, which was her greateft Concern. Gonzalo Pereyra anfwer'd her generoufly, promis'd to do her Juftice ; and to begin, fecur'd Don George in the Principal Tower, to appeafe the Queen, engaging his Word, That he would reftore her Son, as loon as the Fort was in a good Ponture. He fent to intreat her to return to the City, and former Amity; that Juftice might be peaceably adminifies'd. She feeing fome Effects of his Promife, in the Imprifonment of her Enemy, and the Expectation of Releafing the King her Son, turn'd paft Sorrow into Joy, return'd to Court, and Gonzalo Pereyra reforn'd Abufes, repair'd the Fort, and built Baftions of Square Stone, which till then had been unhew'd, the Queen furnifhing Workmen and Materials. Still Cachil Daydo was detain'd in the Fort, without being reflord to his Liberty; and the Queen and Pecple help'd to build the Fort, as the fure Means of obtaining their King's Liberty, Gonzalo Pereyra, when he thought it a proper Time, refolv'd to execute fome Orders he had brought from Goa, which were the fame that had before endanger'd the Diffurbance of thole Kingdoms.

Some Governours, fays the Portuguefe Hiforian, Conto, only fudy to Frefb tp- enrich themfelves, impoverifing the Provinces, and their King; for to pians caussd by the Gover204\%. Prince can be rich, if his Grandeur depends upon poor Subject. The Governbur how perceiving that all Things were guiet, and he had little or no Depeudance on thole People, made Proclamation, that none fhould buy Cloves in thofe Ellands, but the King, his Mafter's Factors. At the fame Time he order'd, that his Officers ffould enter the Houfes of marry'd. Men, which are the Richeft, and take away ah their Cloves; and this not only among the Natives, but in the Habitations, and Colonies of the Portuguefes, paying for it after the Country Rate ; and that they fhould break all their Weights, Scales and Meafures, and other Implements of this Sort, all which he caus'd to be publickly burnt. The fland was again in an Uproar, and the Portuguefes were for quitting it, becaufe it was to no Purpofe to live there, if they were depriv'd of that Trade. Moft of the Portuguefes repair'd to the Houfe of Ferdinand Lopez, a Prieft, who was the Bifhop's Vicar in the Fort, and ought to have given them an Example of Modefty. There one Tincent Fonfeca, a feditious Fellow, heading the Mutiniers, they refolv'd to require the Governour to permit them tolive in their former Liberty; and in cafe he flould not Confent, they would depart the Fort, and the Country, and go over to the Spaniards, or elfe to the Mabometans, and Idolaters Towns. Some there were, who boggied

Sesmutiny. ${ }^{2 t}$ the Crime of abandoning the Service of their King, together with the by Means of the Natives. Whilft they were thus unrefolv'd, the Governour fent to feize Vincent de Fonfeca, for fome difrefpectful Words he had fpoken upon this Occafion, to another Soldier who was viewing the Guards. The Multitude, who had already given themfelves up to the Direction of Fonfeca, were as much concern'd at his Imprifonment, as if every one of them had been put into Irons : and as generally in fuch Mutinies, they are not without fome fpecious Pretence, the' it be but fuperficial, many of the Seditious, being incens'd, and refolute, repair'd to the Queen's Palace, where they were eafily admitted, and fome of them to more Privacy with certain Counfellors of her's. There they reprefented the Hardfhip of depriving them of the Trade of Clove, without any Demerit on their Side. But, faid they, they may as well deprive us of this conmon Air, of this Light, and of the Beneffit of our Senfes. Our Kings give no fuch Orders; But they proceed from the Avarice of the Covernours and Commanders, wobo tyrannize over ut, and this Man more than all his Predeceffors, being comle to defloy, that whick be was fent to preferve.

He bas no Defign to refore your Majefly your Son: but on the contrary we are fatisfy'd becontrives to deflroy boths the Son and the Mother. Her be will fecure, as foon as be bas brought his Wozks to perfection, that be may not be again kept from Provifions. If you will ft and up for your Country, and kill the Commander, we fhall not olfirult it, but on the contrary foall be as vigorous to af againft fim, asme are weady to plomife it.

The Queen and her Councellors were well pleas'd, hoping by that means to get rid of Tyrants, as they call'd them, and therefore would not let flip fo favourable an opportunity to compais their Ends. The Queen affembled the prime Men of the fland; reprefented to them the Condition it was in ; put them in mind, how King Boleyfe her Husband, protected the Portuguefes, who came thither in Diftrefs; bow they had fworn A= mity, and folemnly given their Hands upon it; the Honour and Kindnefs he fhow'd them ; and that for their fakes he forfeited the good will of the Neighbouring Princes ; that after he hrad receiv'd them, he maintain'd Wars, and fuftain'd loffes, even to the hazard of his life, to protect them; that he treated them as affectionately as if they had been his own Children; and how they, i iseturn for his Entertamment and Favours, as. foon as tle Breath was out of lis Body, pre fumid, faid fie, to lay violent Hands on me; from whofe Ty ranny and Oppreffion lefoaped, by abfoonding long atmong the Rocks, and Branibles. Aly Cbildwen, they fuatchd from their. Nurfes Breafts, to confine them int Prifon, the their orn Kingdom, and among their Subjects. When Cachil Bayano came to age to govern, they poyfon'd bim. They now defign after the fame manner to deftroy lis Brother, a lawful King, as if lie were fonte vun-away Slawe. See what regavd a parcel of intruding Strangers bave for your Portunss, your Houfes, your Daughiexs, and your Vives, in your cun County, and in my Irefence. Any one of the fe thing's ought to be a fufficient motive to caft off the roke we laid zipon our Necks through, our own Credulity. What then will not they all zogether oblige us to do? Rut befides all this, what ought we not to do, feeing our Religion affonted? Our Temples polluted? Our Priefts trampled on? And all our felves in general defpis'd? Can you bave a greater Teftimony of the juftice of your Caufe, than to foe the Portuguefes themelelves on your fide? Do not let flip this Opportunity, my Friends, fiand by them, fince they promife to difitt us. Deliver by their means your King, your Coun$t r y$, and your Religion; that all the may be aftermakds refou'd from them, and we may exclude fuchs ungratefuil Guefts.

Thefe and other Exhortations made by the Queen, as Mafers writes in Confiracy His Latin Hiftory, were receiv'd with Abundance of Tears, and they all againft engag'd toput their helping hands to the execution of what had been con- the Gocerted ;and fixt the day and hour. Great Diffimulation was us'd, and the vermor. Queen forwarded the work of the Fort with much application, without fparing any Coff, giving cut, fo as it might come to the Governoun's Ears, That the King her Sons Liberty depended on the finiffing of the Fort. This was the effect of Motherly Affection. The appointed Day being come, the Natives appear'd in Arms, juit during the fcorching Heat of the Noon-day; Some hid themfelves in a Mofque, behind the Fort; others in a Wood, not far off, all of them ready to affault it, upon a Signai given, they being to enterat a Breach, which was not yet made up. Some of the Arm'd Illanders flily mixt themfelves among the Mafons, and $\mathrm{L}_{\mathrm{a}}$. bourers, and among the King's Servants, who were going and coming with kind Meffages between the Son and the Mother, and by this means convey'd him his Arms, and being us'd to talk to him freely at other times, HisDeath. they had then the Opportunity of acquainting him with the Defign, and advifing to be in a readinefs to fall on boldly in due time. Thence they went to the Governour's Apartment, where he was taking his Afternoons Nap in all poffible Security, his whole Family being afteep. The Ternates burf the Doors open with their Shoulders, and ruind upon the Govor and whoin the voife had awak'd. He defended himfelf with his Sword and Buckler for a confiderable fpace ; but his Enemies being numerous, and all ders out of the Mofque, without expecting the Signal. They laid hold of a Portuguefe they met, but he broke loofe, and efcap'd their Fury by flight. The Slave continu'd crying out, Moors, Moors. With this the Governour's Servants came running arm'd, and going up to the chief Tower, where their Maffer was wont to divert himfelf, found all the Murderers there, whom they laid hold of, and caft down headlong, and then thut the Gates of the Fort. Then they rang the Bell, the found whereof, and their not hearing the Signal, difcourag'd the Ternates who lay in Ambnfh, fo that they flunk away into the City.

Fonfeca m made Gozernour.

The Portugues Confpirators went flily diffembling into the Fort, and finding the Governour dead, requir'd the reft in his place to admit of the Alcayde, or Conftable of the Fort, becaufe the King of Pertugal had fo order'd. They refus'd him, and particularly the Vicar, who took upon him to head them all, and prevail'd fo far that they chofe Vincent de Fonfeon for their Governour, who immediately took Poffeffion of the Fort, and beginning to go on in the Tyrannical Defign of Genzalo Pereyra, left the Trale of Clove as it was before ; but fecur'd King Dayalo. No notice was taken of the Governour's. Death, as being executed by the confent of them all. The Queen infifted to demand her Son, fince fhe had furnifin'd all Neceffaries for that Work; Vincent Fonfeca reter'd the Anfwer to the Marry'd Men. All thofe Nations are of npinion that the difcreeteft among them are the Marry'd Men, both on account of their Age, and as more faithful Councellors, becaufe they have a greater intereft in the publick Good, and therefore it is ulual to refer to them all Debates and Anfwers in matters of Difficulty. They all voted, That the Queen fhould not have her Son deliver'd to her, becaufe it was convenient to keep him as an Hofrage, fearing the fecond part of what had been concerted, and that their Friendfhips would laft no longer than till it could be executed. But to palHiate the true caufe of detaining him, they anfwered, That they muft firf accuaint the Governour of India. In the mean while the Mother did not ceafe to weep, and to intreat. She fed upon thefe Hopes, grounded on the Hatred the Portuguefes fill retaintd for Pereyra, and on the Generofity fhe had us'd in reftoring the Trade of Clove, and other means. The moft prevalent of thefe feem'd to be the gaining the affections of the Marry'd Portuguefes, to whom that Affair was referred, and under-hand of Vincent fonfeca himfelf, by rich Prefents, and extraordinary Gifts. But fhe was foon undeceived, for Fonfeca offered her fuch Reafons or Excufes, as proved his Tyrannical Defign; alledging, that having already fent to confult the Governour of India about the King's Liberty, it was not in his power to come to any Refolution in that affair, till the Anfwer came from Goa, for they would cut of his Head, fhould he go about to act of himfelf. The Queen perceiving that neither Gifts, nor Intreaties would prevail to get her Son, the refolv'd to ufe Force.

She firtd up all the Neighbouring Kingdoms againft the Portuguefes ; and ordertd the Provifions to be all remov'd, that none might come to the Fort, either by Seá or Land. Thofe within began to feel the want of all Neceffaries, to fueh a degree, that they fu'd to the Queen for Peace, which was concluded, and they gave up her Son, which was the only thing fhe

The Queen recovers ber Son by force. aim'd at, without regarding the inconveniency of lofing the Fort. The Queen having obtain'd the King's Liberty, granted the Portuguefes all the Conditions they demanded, and was fo throughly appeas'd that the Chriflians continu'd their Settlements and Colonies, and Trade, and Provifions were reflurd. The Queen put the Government into the hands of her Son, who at firt thew'd fome Sevcrity and Harithefs towards the prime Men, and difcover'd fome Weakneffes, which till then his Confinement had either conceal'd, or fupprefs'd. Thefe things render'd him fo odious, that the cafe was alter'd, and they would have beent glad he had been Prifoner again. The Mother could not curb his ill Inclination, for the extravagant Youth's deprav'd Nature would not allow of it.

At this time three mean Fellows of the Portuguefes Colony, went to thofe of the Natives to rop; befides whichthey tavifh'd fome Women. The Iflanders would not bear with that Infolence; but thofe who had been wrong'd in revenge kill ${ }^{\text {d }}$ the Offenders. Vincent de Fonfeca hearing of it, magnify'd the Heinoufnefs of the Fact, without mentioning his Countrymens Guilt, and order 'd frict Enquiry to be made after the Slayers. What Care ought Princes to take to fecure the Affection of their Subjectso The King was fo hated, that certain Natives went to the Governour, and being conducted into a private part of the Fort, becaufe they were Men of Quality, they affurd him that the King had been the Occafion of the killing of thofe Portug rue fes, grounding the Accufation on their own Surmifes, and aggravating the Offence with other Circumfances, in fuch manner, that had Fonfeca lov'd the King, he could not but have believ'd them, He prefently contriv'd to feize him ; but being impatient, and defpairing of fecuiring him by Art, had recourfe to Force. The King did the like, tho feufible how little Affiffance he could expect from his cople, however be arm'd a few Veffels, and falling upon fome Chriftian Towns, look feveral Prifoners. The Governour on the other Hand, without fparing Ternate, attacked what Towns he could, fo that Cruelty and Rapine were again in ufe, even to affaulting of Cities, the very Sufferers approving of it, and pleas'd with their Loffes, that fo they might be reveng'd of their King. He fearing that the Hatred they bore him, might cccafion his being feizd and delivertd up to Fonfeca, went over to Tydore, where that King for the prefent entertaintd and affifled him, as a Friend and Relation. The Governour fent with lpeed to call the King's younger Brother, named Sultan Tabarija, who was fled with fome Malecontents, and with the confent of all the reft of the People, who were before no lefs diffatisfy'd, proclaim‘d him King, with all the Eorms and Ceremonies used in that cafe. Many approv'd of it, yet fome were fcandaliz'd. The fame Divifion reign'd among the Portuguefes, remembring the unjuft Election of Vincent. de Fonfeca, and that he was the firf and main inftrument of the Death of Gonzalo Pereyra. Fonfeca himfelf was not at Peace with his own Confcience; But fo full of Apprehenfions and Dread, that he was never unarm'd, diff confolate, melancholy, and attended by all thofe ill Symptoms, the Memory of Guilt produces in the Mind; and he could wifh he were difcharg'd of the Burden he had taken upon him. The new King Tabarija began his Reign fhewing Kindnefs to all Men, and cherifhing the Portuguefes, which offended his abfent Brother; and adminifterd occafion to irritate the Kings of Tydore and Ternate againn him fo haftily, that he immediately broke the Peace, and declar'd himfelf their Enemy.

At this time Triftan de Atayde came to Ternate, whofe Prefence brought Triftan de Arayde Governour of Ternate. all Things into better Form. He appeas ${ }^{\text {dd }}$ the Queen, and commending Tabarijats Government, gain'd his Affection. Trade went on without any Obfruction. Vincent de Fonfeca imbark'd for India, and was feiz'd by the Viceroy of Goa, for the heinous Crimes he had committed in the Molucco:Illands, whence a full Account of them was fent with him; yet he was not punifh'd, but liy.d quietly for the future. Ternate flourifh'd under this mild Government; the King, his Subjects, and the Portuguefe Officers being united; but all thofe Garrifons fo remote from the Head, being Receptacles of feditious Perfons, who are contriving Innovations to difturb the Peace, and thrive by Difcord, there wanted not fome Promoters of fuch Changes, who perverted Triftan de Atayde, and divefted him of his former Mildnefs. About the beginning of his Government two Carcoas of Barbarians plunder'd and almoft deftroy'd the City Momoya, the Inhabitants whereof were Idolaters, in the Inland Moxo. The Lord of it a powerful Sangiack, and good Moral Man, tho' a Heathen, made his Efcape. Gonzalo Vellofo, a Portuguefe, was then not far from his City, following his Trade, and going thither, upon his paying a Vifit to the Sangiack, he told him the Havock that had been made, complaining of the dangerous Neighbourhood of the other Iflanders, and asking his Advice, how he might be reveng'd and fecur'd for the future. Vellofo, God directing his Tongue, told him, That the fureft way : was to fue for Peace to the Commander in chief of the Moluccos, and entertain Amity with the Portuguefes, for if his Enemies once faw he was fupported by their Power, no King nor Sangiack would dare to offend him. He affur'd him that the King of Portugal fent them for that End, being oblig'd to put down Tysanny and Oppreffion; but that for the obtaining that benefit more fully, it was requifite he fhould become a Chrinian; for by that means he would two. Vellofo faid fo much to this Point, and the Spirit which directed, fuggented fuch important Truths, that the Sang iack at firft admiring them, approv'd and fubmitted to them, and grew very, earnef to be admitted to Baptifm. He defir'd ronzalo Vellofo to be affifting to him, and gathering fome of his Family and Friends, they fet out for Ternate, the Sangiack himfelf flaying behine for their Anfwer. The Heathens came with Vellot.

So to Ternate, where they were generoufly received, and entertain'd by Triftan de Atside. Having heard what they came about, he put them all into the Chriftian Habit, appointing Clergy-men to inftruct and Catechize them. Being thus prepar'd, they receiv'd Baptifm with extraordinary fatisfaction, the Commander in chief being their God-father. Then he commended the Sangiack's Refolution, fhewing how advantageous it would be to him to become a Son of the Church, and reject the abominable and foul Ceremonies of Idolatry, in which he had liv'd. He fent him word, to appoint the Day and Place for being Baptiz'd, and he would fee all perform'd as he fhould direct,for which Reafon he left it to his Choice. The Meffengers returning to Momoya, were not only proud of having embrac'd the Chriftian Faith, but of the good Ufage they receiv'd from the Governour and other Chriftians, telling the Sang iack all that had happen'd, and the Anfwer they brought him. The Sangiack, led by his own inclination, and encourag'd by their Account, imbark'd in fome Carcoas with the greateft Splendor of Mufick and Gayety he was able. Being come in Sight of Ternate, Trijtan de Ataide went out to meet him with no lefs Pomp. He lodg'd and entertain'd himaccordingly, and order'd a Learned and Religious Man to Catechize and inftruct him. Some Days after when the Cathecumens were fitted for it, they receiv'd Baptifm, with publick Rejoycings, and greater Solemnity than had ever been feen in Ternats. There was nnt a Chriftian but what brought Palm-Branches and Flowers from that natural Garden of the Illand ; befides Mufick, Dancing, Firing of great Guns, and even the very Barbarians rejoyc'd. The Sangiack in Baptifn took the Name of Don Joln; he flay'd fome Days rejoycing and Feafting with the Portuguefes, and then return'd home, taking along with him the Prieft that infructed him, call'd Simon Vaz, to improve him in the Know ledge of the Faith. That Prieft liv'd with him fome Years in his City, leading an Exemplar Life, and exercifing himfelf in Works of Officious and pure Charity, by which means he converted great Numbers of Heathens, and particularly the Inhabitants of Momoya. But Leing alone, and the Number of thofe God was pleafed for his Glory, to bring to him inereafing very faft, he fent to Triftan de Atayde for another Prieft to affift him in that Function, and he accordingly fent F. Francis Alvarez. They both in a fhort time converted the Infidels of that Part, throwing down all the Pagodes, fo they call'd their Idols, cleanfing thofe Places, and converting the Houfes of Abomination and Darknels into Churches of the living God. Triftan de Atayde fo far favour'd the new Don Joln, as to fend along with him fome Portuguefe Soldiers to defend his Perion and Fort, and this Prince maintain'd very friendly Correfpondence with him. His End we fhall foon fee and admire in the Sequel of this Hiftory.

The People of Ternate at the fame time took another Courfe, for they hating sultan Tabarija, and defiring his Death, talk'd with the Governour in private, and gave him to underftand that his Life was in Danger, for Tabarija contriv'd to kill him, as had been done by Gonzalo Pereyra, that fo he might feize the Fort, turning out the Portuguefes. The Governour hearing his Life, and the Fort were both in Jeopardy, and calling to mind the yet frefh Example of his Predeceffor, eafily believ'd the Defign, dut cunningly diffembled. He contriv'd that fome Portuguefes on account of real or pretended Differences fhould have Recourfe to the King's Favour, as fometimes they usd to do, and fhould prevail upon him to come to the Fort to fpeak for them. He was apply'd to by fome, and like ail innocent Man fufpecting nothing, went to the Fort to intercede for them. He was immiediately feiz'd and loaded with Irons, and being b ought to Trial, the fame Perfons that contrivid his Inprifonment, appeardd as Witneffes againft him. After a tedious Examination, or flow of it, the Refult was,

His Converfion and Death. that he fhould be fent to India to junifie himfelf. He imbark'd with a fafe Confciense, and his Caufe being examin'd before the Viceroy Antony Barreto at Goa, he was clear'd, and confeffing the Holy Spirit had taken that method to draw him to Salvation, was Baptiz'd in that City with great Satisfaction, by the Name of Don Ennanuel. In his Return homewards, expecting the Monfon at Malaca to put to Sea, he dy'd with extraordinary Tokens of a fincere Chriftian; and having no lawful Heir, appointed King Foljn the Third of Portugal to fucceed him in all his Kingdoms. The Will was afterwards carry'd to Ternate, where the great Ones and Commonalty accepted of it, owning King $\mathcal{F o b n}$ for their Soveraign. This was perform'd with Acclamations in the Streets and publick Places, as alfo in the Courts of Judicature, taking Poffeflion with the Royal Standard of Portugal difplay'd, and all other ufual Solemnities and Ceremonies. In the Year 1549, Fordin de Freytas carry'd the publick Inftruments of the Po:feffion to Lisbon.

To setura to the Courfe of the Hiftory when Triftan de Atayde had Imbark'd King Tabarija fur India, he fought out for a Baftard Brother of his call'd devio, born of a Javanefe Mother. The Lad was then ten years of Age, bred by his Mother in a retir'd manner, at a Pleafure-Houfe en-

She adortd the Sun, and brought up her Child in that Folly, that he might forget the Rudiments he learnt at Goa, when in the Colledge of the Fefuits. The Idolaters believe, or feign, that a mof beautiful Daughter of Parizataco, a Satrapa, or Nobleman, fell in love with the Sun, and that he aiter complying with, and obliging her, fetled his Affections on another, and the fiff not able to endure that another fhould be preferr'd before her, kill'd her felf. This Plant is calld in the Canarine Tongue Parizataco, from the Indian Womans Father, who was Metamorphos'd like Daplue, tho on another Account. The Alalayes call it Singadi; the Arabs, Guart; the Perfians and Turks, Gul; the Decanines, Pul; and the Portuguefe, Arvore Trifte; that is, the Melancholy Tree. It fhoots out abundance of flender Branches, regularly divided by Knots, from each of which two Leaves Sprout, oppofite to one another, like thofe of the Plum-Tree, but foft like Sage, and cover'd with a white Down, From each Leaf fprouts a Nib, or Nipple, whence five Heads thoot out fmall at the end, each of them adorn'd with four fimaller

This Fruitfulnefs lafts all the Night, till the Appearing of the Sun renders it barren, and caufes all the Flowers and Leaves to drop off, the Boughs femaining wither'd. On a fudden all that Fragrancy ceafes, which enrich'd the Air with all the fweet Odours of Afiay - included in this alone; till the Sun leaving the Horizon again, the Plant again flourifhes in its beloved Darknefs, as if it then retriev'd the Wrong it receiv'd from the Light. The Afaticks are exceffively fond of Perfumes, which is an Argument of their Lafcivioufnefs. Great Taxes are laid in feveral Provinces, on all fweet Scents.

The Portuguefes came $a r m$ 'd to that Houfe, where the aforefaid Princefs bred her Son, and demanded him in the Name of Trijtan de Ataydo; the would willingly have hid him, but could not, and therefore began to excufe heil felf, and beg they would leave him. It avail'd nothing, for the Meffengers had Orders not to return without him, and to gain her Confent, $f$ wore they would carry him to reign in the ftead of Tabarija, and that as foon as he came to the Fort, he fhould be received as King, both by the Ternates and Portuguefes. Some Relations tell us, that then the Mother, fhedding Abundance of Tears; ftreightly embracing the Prince, erysd out, faying, Were I affurcd that you took bini away to reign peaceably, without any Oppofition, or Apprebenfion, well belov'd and obey'd by lis Subjects, and in fettled Profperity, undiffurbd by any Friglits; yet would Irather fee bin grow up and continue in a private Life, without burdening limfelf with any publick Concern, than that be poutd reign to pleafe your Humour; this was my Intention in retiving with $\operatorname{bim}$, and I would gladly conceal Jim from all bumane Converfation. Confederasy againft \%hem. of the Soldiers put an End to all; for tho they nad no fuch Orders from their Commander, being deaf to, and weary of hearing the Complaints of a Difconfolate Woman ; they at the fame time feiz'd the Son, and laying hold of the Morher, caft her headlong out at the Window: The new King was carry'd to the Fort, and at the fame time that the Subjects fwore Fidelity to him, they with general Lamentation celebrated his Mother's Obfequies, which were perform'd with greater Solemnity, than even thofe of the Principal Queens. This Inhumanity exceeding even the $C_{a}$ nibals, and confequently unworthy the pretended Portuguefes Bravery; being bruited Abroad in the Neighbouring Provinces, produc'd that juft Hatred which was of Force to unite; and actually drew into a Confederacy all the Kings of the Archipelago, againft the Porvuguefes. They affembled in Council, and in the Meeting concerted their Defign, declaring that the Oppreffion they were under, was intollerable, the Portuguefes making and depofing Kings to thier own Humour and Fancy, infulting thofe Crowns which had given them the Power they had abus'd, contrary to all Laws of Humanity, without allowing the Natives fomuch as a Vote in Elections. Having agreed upon the Enterprize, they provided all Things for the Execution, whilft the appointed Time came, which they diligently made as fhortas might be, and expected with Diffimulation.

The Spanifh and Portuguefe. Fleets at this Time continu'd their Voyages
Difference bout the Moluccos, between Spain and Rortugal. to the Archipelago, their feveral known Ways; the Spaniards from New Spain to the Phillippine Iflands; the Portuguefes along the Coafts of Africk, and fo to Malaca. Both Sides exercifed their Power, and carry'd on their Trade with Ambition, and, as fome fay, with Cruelty; but the moft bloody Theatre of continual Tragedies, was Ternate and all the Molucco's. There both Nations of Coffile and Portugal decided their Quarrel by the Sword, whilf their Kings in Europe only contended by Dint of Cunning, and Cofimography. At this time the Matter was not fo plain, as when the Cofinographers and Commiffioners on both Sides, lay'd down the Mexidian, whereby to affign each of them one half of the World to their King. For the Admiral Chrifoopler Columbus returning from his firt Difcovery of the Wefl-Indies, in the Year I493. Pope Alexander the VIth. granted the Inveftiture of them, for the Crown of Cafite, to their Catholick Majefties, King Ferdinand, and Queen IJabel, or Elizabetb; and to obviate the Differences that might arife between the two Crowns, to the obftructing the Propagation of the Gofpel, by the fame Apoftolical Authority, whi h in that firitual Capacity is not limited to any part of the Globe, he divided it betwixt thofe two Crowns, ordering a Line to be drawn along the Heavens to cut both the Poles, diftant on the Earth one hundred Leagues from theflands of the Azores and Cabo Verde. By Vertue of this Divifion, the Emperor pretended that the Molucco Iflands were within his Limits, ever fince Gonzalo Gomez de Efpinofa, his Commander in cinief, Sebaffian del Cano, and his Companions, who went with Magellan, took Poffeffion of them for his Crown. PretendIng at the fame Time, that they were the firf Chriftians that arriv'd at the Moluccos, and that then he was own'd as Sovereign by Sultan Corala, King pf Ternate, who reign'd before Sultan Bungue; by Sultan Almanzor, King

Fealty by their Idols, and the Alcoran; and that Gonzalo Gomez admitted them, and fwore to the Obfervance of what had been agreed on, in his King's Name, before an Image of the Bleffed Virgin. He urg'd, that by Mathematical Demonftration, and the Judgment of Men learned in that Faculty, it appear'd, that the Moluccos were within the Limits of Caftile, as were all others, as far as Malaca, and even beyond it. That it was no eafy Undertaking for Portugal to go about to difprove the Writings of fo many Cofmographers, and fuch able Mariners; and particularly the. Opinion of Magellan, who was himfelf a Portuguefe. And that in Cafe. he might be thought partial, becaufe of his being difoblig'd in Portugal, that Exception did not lie againft Francis Serrano, who was alfo a Portugruefe, and had been favour'd and cherith'd. That to fay the Sea Charts had been malicioully contriv'd, was a groundlefs Objection, and not probable. Befides that, in Relation to the Article of Poffeffion, on which the Controverfy depended, it was only requifite to ftand by what was writ by, and receiv'd among Cofmographers.
In Anfwer to his, King Jobn of Portuşal, deny'd the Fact of the Difcovery, as to its Precedency; for Serrano's was in the Year I5II, and that of Magellans, Companions nine Years later, in $\mathbf{5} \mathbf{2 0}$. He declar'd the Globes, Aftrolabes, and Sea Charts to be partial, and that in Cafe they were rectify'd, drawing the aforefaid Meridian, according to Rules of Aftrology, his Limits would not only comprehend the Moliccos, but reach far beyond the Pbilippine Iflands. He offer'd King Tabarija's laft Will ou his Behalf; and faid, that if the Line were fairly drawn, obferving Eclipfes, as had been done fometimes, the Truth of his Affertion would appear. To this they added, the Papers of the Geographer and Aftrologer, Andrew de S. Martin, by which it appeartd, that he failing with Magel lan, his before unattempted Voyage, had obferved feveral Eclipfes, and Oppofitions. Among the reft, on the 17th of December, 1519 . He in the River call'd Rio de Faneyro, took an Obfervation of a Conjunction of Fup̈iter and the Moon; on the firft of February 15zO, another of the Moon . and Venus; foon after another of the Sin and Moon, after paffing the Streights, another Oppofition of the Sum and Moon, and others at other times; all which, tho' calculated by him to the Meridian of Sevil, avail'd nothing to his Defign, which was to prove that the Molucco Iflands did not belong to Portugal; for which Reafon he found Fault with Fobn de Monteregio's Tables and Almanacks. All thefe Papers were prefervid by Edward Refende Factor at the Moluccos, a learned and curious Man. They faid, that fince there was then a Treaty about the Poffeflion of thofe Iflands ; in a Cafe of that Confequence it was not proper, to avoid alledging, and examining the Grounds of their Property, to prevent the Decifion of the Sword, which was the Court where that Controverfy was pleaded; and when once it comes to that pafs, there was no Poffibilfy of ftanding to fpeculative Writing, which not being made good by Experience, mult at leaft be look'd upon as uncertain.
The Poffeffion of the Molucco Iflands was of great Confequence to the King of Portugal, for carrying on the Trade of Spice, and being inform'd. of the War ftill maintain'd between his Subjects and the Emperor's, in thofe Parts, he daily us'd frefh Endeavours to bring that Bufinefs to fome Conclufion, that fo the War might ceafe. The Emperor had not fo: much Intelligence of what his Commanders did in Afia; becaule the Portrgruefe fuffer'd no Ships, but their own to pafs by the Cape of Good Hope; and the way of New-Spain, that Voyage was not much frequented, and therefore not fo well known; and befides all this he then flood in need of a great Sum of Money. In the Year 1525 , there was a Treaty at Segovin, \%ative was held at Eevil, whete the Portniguefe Embaffador; and the Licenciate Azevedo of that Kings Council, were met by the Bifhops of Ofma, Prefident of the Council of the Indies, Doctor Laurence Galindez, of the fame Council, and Don Garcia de Padilla, firf Commendary of Calatravat, on the Emperor's fide, as Commiffioners, and Plenipotentaries, befides the Lord-High-Chancellor, and the Popes Nuncio, Mercurio Gatnary. After many Meetings, and much Strife, to which there were alfo Civilians, Geographers, and Mariners admitted; all which only puzzled the Caufe, whence enfu'd Law Suits, Arbitrations, and other Fruitlefs Negociations in Sprin, and Wars in Afia between the Ships of both Crowns: After all this there was a Ceffation, and Quietnefs, the Emperor Mortgaging thofe controverted Iflands to the King of Portugal, for 350000 Ducats. This was concluded at Zaragoza, on the 22d of Auguft r529, as his Imperial Majefly was going over to be Crown'd in It aly. The Line of Divifion was again examin'd, and what Parts of the Earth it is to sun through; the Times of Payment were fix'd, with other Conditions, and Salvos of the Right on both fides, that fo neither Oblivion, nor the Kindred between the two Kings might confound it.

By Relations Written in thofe Days it appears, that the Emperor conSpaniards againft quitting the Moluccos.
fulting Peter Ruyz de Villegas, a grave and learned Qentleman, about this Mortgage; his Anfwer was conderning it, and declaring, That his Majefly had better to have Mortgaged any other of his Kingdoms, than that of the Moluccos, Trapobana, or Malaca, or any other in the Eaft; all which, in his Opinion, belong'd to his. Majefty; and he grounded his Opinion on Time's cafing Treaties into Obliviou, and the great uncertainty of 'State Affairs. Many others advifed the Emperor to repay that great Sum to the King of Poitugal; 'and what is yet more, the Reprefentatives in the Cortes of Cafitile, propos'd that the Emperor fhould make over to them the Molucco Illands for fix Years, by way of Farm, and they would pay King John the Mortyage Money, and bring the Trade of Spice to Cormm, and alter the fix Xears his Majefly fhould carry on that Trade. The Emperor hearing of this Innovation, order'd a flop to it, and that' no further Progrefs fhould be made in fitting out the Fleet defign'd for the Molaccos, urder Simon de Alcazova, and forwarded by the Bifthop of Ciudad Rodrigo.

Orders, and Letters Patents, were drawn and fealed, for both Nations to forbear Hofilities, but the Empegor's Subjetts never receiv'd Commands from him to withdraw their Forces for any other Enterprize, nor did they know what had been agreed on in Sprim, any other way than by the Account they had from the Portusuefts who had receiv'd Orders from their King, to conclude a Peace, and to Ship off the Spaniards by the way of India for Spain. This Agreement put an End to all Judicial, and Military Comtention. Since then the Vicifitude of Times has invefted all the Right, and Title in our King. So that, according to grave Civilians, he might, as they fay, invert the Titles, or poffefs by them all, without confounding the Right; Heaven having defign'd him to be Sovereign of fuch a vaft Monarchy, and given him that Hereditary Zeal, which makes him offer his whole Power to oppofe Hereticks and Sectaries, and to fpread the Faith, and its perfect Politicks among fuch Multitudes of Souls as have received it, in fo many barbarous Provinces. For this fame Reaion it will be fuperfluous to examine any further into the Limits affign'd by that Law, which could never be fettled.

This Accommodation being concluded, the Portugiefe Fleets, without Portugue:any Oppofition from thofe of Caftile, peaceably poffefs'd themfelves of the fes PoffefiIflands of Ternate, Tydore, Bacbian, and the others about them. From the on of the firt of thefe, as their Head in Spirituals, our Priefts went Abroad to Moluccosi preach the Word of Truth, which was receiv'd by feveral Kings and Nations, leaving but inconfiderable Remains of Idolatry, and other Sects, Whole Cities, whofe Soveraigns chofe to continue in their Darknefs, not regarding their Prince's Example, which ufes to have the Force of a Law, threw down their Idols, and confecrated Profanenefs, dedicating their Temples to the True God. The Kings of Portugal built Garrifons, and Factories for the Chriftians to inhabit ; fending their Commanders and Officers, who curbed the Kings, and the Sangiacks their Subjects. Some Governours there were, who befides the Care they took of propa-Converff. gating the Gofpel, and maintaining Peace in thofe Parts, endeavour'd by ons. endearing Means to attract the Barbarians to love our Habits, to affect our Ways of Entertainment, and the European Affability and Converfation, and gently inclin'd them to our Cuftoms and Manners, which in fome Places made them look upon that as a Sort of Equality, when it was no better than Servitude. The powerful Union of Juftice and Religion was however the moft prevalent; but the Commanders and Governours being defective in the firft of thefe Virtues, on which inward Felicity and Government depend; the Subjects loft the fecond, and return'd to their former Blindnefs, as appears by what has been already faid, and more fully by what is to follow, fince we are now come to the Election of Sultan Aerio, in whofe Days Ternate was utterly loft, and could never be recovered either by Force or Art, till the Reign of our Sovereign Lord the King; a juft Reward of his Piety and Zeal. The lawful Queen, by thofe People call'd I'utriz, was as much concern'd for Aerio's. Mother's Death, as for any of her own Sons. She was prefent at her Funeral, and lamenting im moderately, curs'd the Domination of the Portuguefes, calling it Tyranny. All the Machinations of thofe whoftudy'd Revenge were known to her, and fre forwarded them with her Advice; for as they faid, nothing now remain'd of the former Moderation of the Governours fent thither out of Europe, nor of that Regatd and Refpect they ufed to have for them.

 HE Alliance concluded betwixt the Kings of the Acchipelago, and particularly Vaygamano, Vaigeo, 2uibibio, and Mincimbio, reigning in the Iflands Papuas, was follow'd by fuch an Accident, that tho' the Minds of the Confederates had not been already fo well difpos'd, nor the Blood of thofe Innocent Kings fo newly filt, it would have confummated the Hatred they had conceived againft the Portyguefe Nation. All the Ports of the Molucco Iflands were fo well fecur'd, and the Paffage for Provifions fo wholly flopp'd up, that Tijflan de Atayde defpairing of Relief, fent Captain Pinto to Mindanao, Finto fent and the Neighbouring Iflands, to furnith fuch things as were abfolutly nefor Relief. ceffary for the Support of Life, there being nothing to be had within his Liberties. Pinto failing in a good Ship, arriv'd at Mindanao, vifited the King, by whom he was well receiv'd; and he having feen his Credentials, and confulted the Sangiacks of his Council, eftablifh'd Peace and Amity with him. He fold the Commodities he carry'd at his own Rates, and buying and barterring, loaded with Provifions to his own Content; thence he went over to the Ifland Seriago, where he was no lefs fuccefsful with the King. In this Illand, that their Friendfhip might laft for ever, they concluded the Peace with a barbarous Ceremony, which when praCtis'd in thofe Parts, they never break the Articles. The Parties being met, certain Officers appointed for that Purpofe, draw a Quantity of Blood from Barbarous Cuffome. their Arms, and each drinks the other's, as a Gage of Affection; believing they convey it into their Souls, by that horrid Draught. This Contract fo ratify'd, produc'd fuch Confidence, that their Ships repair'd to our

Ports, and nurs to theirs, with all poffible Security, without any Let or Prohibition, Pinto perceiving what a Multitude of the Natives reforted to his Ship, refolved to make a Prey of them; and the laft Day, Forty of them coming Aboard to Trade, he perfwaded them to go down into the Hold, on Pretence of fhowing them its Bulk and Conveniencies, and as Villany of foon as they were down, fhut the Hatches upon them; ; this he practifed fe- Pinto. veral times, till at laft, tho' he obferv'd them clofe, one of them forcing his Way out, leap'd into the Sea, and fwam afhore. He went directly to the King, whom he acquainted with the villanous Practice: The King juft 'y enrag'd, to fee Friendfhip fo newly contracted, and confirmid by the she moft facred of Tyes, in his Opinion, fo perfidioufly violated by the Poxtuguefes, thinking Religion affronted, immediately order'd a'l the Ships that were afloat to be brought together, and fuch as were finifh'd in the Docks, to be launch'd ; all which being well equipp'd, for'd with Guns, and full of thofe furious Barbarians, encompals'd the Portuguefe Ship, attacking her on all Sides, Pinto was begiming to weigh his Anchors, having feen the Ships in Motion, and the Men hafting Aboard; he defended himfelf withonly 25 Soldiers, who had fcarce time to handle their Arms ; for the Natives of Seringo began already to Board, and thofe who were Prifoners under Deck had prevaild, but that the Mariners loos'd their Sails. At this time there fell a dreadful Storm of Rain, with fuch amazing Thunder and Lightning, as if the Heavens had been rent afunder. The Seviagos quitted the Portuguefe Ship, endeavouring to recover the Shore in their own Veffels, with their Sails rent, the Hulls fhatter'd, and the Rigging difabled; and to get off the better, they threw over-board their Cannon and Arms, being in danger of finking. This Tempef lafted two Days, during which Time, Pinto's Ship could not efcape, his Men and he being fo far fpent, that they had neither Strength nor Courage to ftand by their Tackle; they let the Ship drive with the Sea, and threw over-board their Provifrons, Merchandize, Guns, Arms, Cloaths, and all they could come at; and being convinedd of the Jufticc of the Judgment, for having broken their Faith, and folemn Engagement they had made, arrived at Ternate aftonifh'd, dumb, and out of Countenance, thinking they were Rill in the Storm. Such are the Effects of a guilty Confcience, which prefently provokes God's Wrath.

All the Kings of the adjacent Iflands were foon acquainted with the Perfidioufnefs of thofe few Portugzefes, that they had tranfgrefs'd the facred Laws of Hofpitality, and always made a mifchievous Ufe of Benefits; whereupon they immediately concluded their.League, to be exercifed like defperate Men. They prefently made Proclamation, forbidding, under moft fevere Penalties, the conveying of any Provifions to the Portugzefes, either by Sea or Land, that fo they mightbe reduc'd to quit all thofe Provinces, and fly into India, and fince they could not batter the Fort, for Want of great Guns, they fhould ftarve it out; enjoyning all Perfons of all Ages, and both Sexes, to be vigilant in obferving this fatal Decree, that fo the Trading Galeon might not afford them the Comfort of hoping for Relief. Then confidering that the main Motive of their exercifing fuch Tyranny, was the Spice of Cloves, wherewith Ternate, and all the Molluccos abound, the Natives refolv'd to fet Fire to all the Trees, endeavouring that the Conflagration fhould be fo Univerfal, as that the Moluccoos might ever after remain barren. They well knew that this was contriving their own Ruin; but they look'd upon it as a pleafing and advantageous DeAtuction, fo they might but be reveng'd of their Enemies.
Acfiction. The Crop of Cloves makes the Wealeh of the Molucco Kings, much more than the Taxes their Subjects pay; and tho' Rage, and Detpair put Fire into their Hands, to burn their Country, it might happen, as fometimes Miflakes prove advantageous, that what they defign'd to render their Fields Barren, might make them more Fruitful. It is well known that courfe Afhes mix'd, and fcatter'd on the Face of the Earth often Fertilize it. Nothing is more frequent in Europe than to burn the Stubble, and Straw upon barren Lands; becaufe, either the burnt Earth gathers fome unknown Strength, and produces good Pafture, or elfe the Fire confumes its Ranknefs, and exhales the fuperfluous Moifture: Perhaps the intenfe Heat opens feveral Paffages, and dilates the clofe Pores, and hidden Veins, thro' which the Nourifhment flows, and thence the Earth receives it in all farts, to make it capable of a new Product; or elfe it hardens, and clofes the Vents which were opendd, that fo the thin Waters, or the continual Intenfenefs of the Sur, or the piercing Cold of the North-Eaft Wind, which is chilling, may do it no Harim. Befides, Nature having chofen that only Part of the World to produce this fort of Eruit, in which there has never been obferv'd any Failure, or Intermiffion, it could not be believing that a Momentary Violence fhould utterly caufe it to ceafe. However the Defigis of thofe People was not to renew thofe Spicy Groves, but entirely to deftroy them. This fhows how mifchievoufly they were bent againft themfelves, and againft all Nations. It will be therefore convenient in this. Place to treat of the Cloves at large.

Account of Cloves.

The firft that made any Account of it, were the Clinefes, who attracted by the Scent, began to load their funks with it for the Gulphs of Perfia and Arabia. Pliny was acquainted with, and defines it, faying, It is a long, Pepper; and calls it Garycppillum. The Perfians gave it fince the Name of Calafur, it does not belong to us to decide which of thefe Words was derived from the other. The Spaniards formerly call'd it Girofe, and afterwards Clavos, becaufe they are like Nails, which bear the fame Name. The Head of the Clove, having four fmall Teeth that crofs it, refembles a Star. The Natives of the Moluccos call the Tree Siger, the Leaf Varaquary and the Fruit Chamque. The Plant is not unlike our Bay-Tree, but bears a greater Head. When it begins to bloffom, it fpreads a mof delicious Fragrancy, and on the very Top like the Myrtle, from one fingle Stock produces an infinite Number of Clufters, like thofe of Elder, or the HoneySuckle. At firft coming out they are White, as they grow up Green, and the third Seafon, when Ripe, makes them Red ; this Variety of Colours, by inward Virtue, fhowing the feveral Terms that bring it to Perfection. Thofe that remain on the Clufters, which they call Mother Cloves, continue there a year, growing larger and ftronger. They either threfh the Branches to gather them, or elfe fhake them with Cords they have made faft above, drawing from below, after the Ground about is clean'd; but it is naturalty clear from Weeds, for this Sovereign Tree fuffers no fort of Herb to grew abeut it. It draws all the moifture fo powerfully to it felf, that all

Roots about are dentroy'd, or flarv'd. It bears at eight Years ftanding, and lafts an hundred. Some fay it would hold longer, were it not.ftrip'd with fuch Violence, which it avenges by growing Barsen; but they are miftaken, for in the Iflands of Baclian, they lop the Branches, that ther may produce more Cloves, and the low Branches bear leaf. From thefe they gather the Cloves with their Hands, and they only bear when the Monfon blows. They yield their Fruit from Seftember to February every two Years. Others fay once in three; becaufe when they gather the Clove, befides that the Plant is much impair'd, they break off thofe Buds, which produce the Bloffoms of the Cloves; but then they afford certain hopes of another Crop. The Truth of it is, that Nature allows them a Year's refpir, during which they reft like the Olive-Trees in Europe. They are gathered when Ripe, and their Ripenefs appears by being Red. Being ppread in the Sun, in three Days they dry up, and contract a blackifh Afhcolour. Avicen, by his leave, was deceiv'd, when he faid that the Gum of the Clove Tree is anfwerable in its Virtue to Turpentine; for Experience has prov'd the contrary. Befides, that Trees exceflive hot or cold, yeild no Gum, but only thofe which are temperate between both. Sea-Water Feeds, and Frefh does them Harm. A certain Hiftorian Writes, that they gield Fruit twice a Year; if by it he means the middle Crop, which is very fmall, we grant it; but if he fpeaks of the moft Fruitful, as the Triennial, which with general Amazement produces enough to ferve all Nations, the Belief of his Affertion will remain in the Author himfelf. Thefe Plants make amends for their delay in the Abundance of their Product; which is fuch, that after enriching all Nations with it, the K. of Spain's Revenue out of it, Yearly amounts to two Millions of pieces of Eight, little over or under. It is generally reckon'd that only the five Molucco Iflands produce all the Clove, becaufe of the prodigious Quantity they yield. They always amount to Four Thoufand Bars, each Bar of Ternate being four hundred Weight, and three quarters, and this for that Illand; but the third of the whole taken for the King amounts to fix choufand Bars, and every common Bar is bettet than five hundred Weight of ours. Perhaps the Word Bar might come from the Greek Baros, fignifying a Load. The Cloves grow alfo in the fmall Illands of Ires and Meytariant, about Ternate; thofe of Pulo and Gavali near Tydore, and in Gilolo, Sahugo and Gamoconora, Towns of Ratacbina; as alfo in the Ifland's of Amboyna and Veranula, more in this laft than in all the others, but they are weak, and fmaller. The Clove Trees grow up without any Help of Art, like all. Trees coming from Rocks, and they made the only Woods in thefe Iflands, which fucking in all the moifture Heaven affords, it is atwonder to fee any other Plant near. When they have a mind to Tranfplant a Clove Tree, they fet it where many Weeds grow, that it may thrive the fooner, by the help of the Moifture, and Virtue it fucks from them, and as the Tree thrives thofe Plants perifh. For the fame reafon Cloves are ill Neighhours to full Veffels. The Ring Doves, whereof there are great numbers in Gilolo, eat many of thofe Cloves which grow Old upon the Tree, then flying they purge in the Air with the Motion, and from their Excrements dropping on the Ground Clove Trees grow up. Heaven has given thein fo plentfully only to thefe Hlands, abifractly from all the World befide; being at firft not valu'd, or known by the Natives. This is what they would have deftroy'd by Fire, that it might be totally annihilated; becaufe the Flames gather more Strength among combultiole Matter, than other Violences, to which fublunary things are fubject.

Since we are now upon the Defcription of the Moluccos, and in regard that thofe delightful Provinces are fo remote from us, we will go on with what is remarkable in them, to fhow the defperate Fury of thofe People, who had condemn'd them to the Flames. All the five Molucco Iflands are almoft round, and of the fame Shape. The compafs of the biggeft is not feven Leagues. They have all, Grass, of a wonderful Height, cover'd with an odoriferous Fragrancy of wild Cloves; and about them feveral Cities, Towns and Forts. Their exact Roundnels is the Reafon they have no good Harbours for both the Monfons of Norwef and South. Only Terrate forms the Port they call Talangame, and a League from it, that of Toloca, where Ships ride fafe, and with their Boats clofe to the Shore: The Forts were not erected in either of them, becaufe they fhould not be remote from the King's Court. Both thefe Ports look to the Eaftward, and have ridges of Rocks that break off the Sea, and fecure the Veffels. That of Ternate, oppofite to the Fort admits of Caravels, at high Water and fpring-Tides, which being unloaded ride where they will. This Ridge of Rocks is of a fort of Stone, that turns into Coral, which when old hardens, and footing out many Branches, knits together, and turns again into Stone, whereof excellent Lime is made. It is fo contriv'd that thofe who come to it by Sea, think they fee noble Structures erected for the Defence of the Harbour. The Mountain, which rifes in the midf of Termate, two

Mountain.

 Leagues in Height, and cover'd with, Palm, and other rare Trees, has on the Top of it a Mouth or Cave, that feems to reach down to the very Center. A Man can hardly be feen from the one fide to the ather. Within it is a Square Spot, like a Threfhing-Floor, made of Stones and loofe Earth. Some curious Perfons have view'd it, and among them one Galriel Rebelo Factor, and Alcayde of the Fort; who having founded it, tying together feveral long Fifhing-Lines, found it was 500 Fath. deep. At the Bottom gufhes out a beautiful Spring, tho' no Man has daf'd to Taft of it, or try whether it is Sweet or Sower. The loofe Floor fakes with the Fire in the Bowels of the Mountain; wherenf the firf Account was given by Antbony Galvam, who Obferv'd it in the Year 1538, when he was Commander in Chief over thefe Iflands. He went up to fee that Wonder in Nature, at a fafe Time, for he could not have done it in April, or September, when the Sun moves from one Hemilphere to the other, and croffes the Equinoctial, which cuts half a Degree of Ternate, becaufe onf the Winds then kindling the Flames. Had Pliny, when he went out of Curiofity to fee the Burning of Mount Vefurius, in Italy, taken another opportunity, he had not been Burnt to Death, as his Nephew writ to Cornelius Tacitus. It ftinks, and cafts out Smoke, Sulphur, and Red.Stones, as it were out of the Mouth of a Canon; Shewing the Mountain to be hollow at the Foundation. It caufes Earthguakes, and Noile : and the Flames, and burut Stones, have reach'd to the City, and Fort, and even to the Illands of the Meaos and Cafires, twenty Leagues from Ternate. The Smoke is of feveral Colours, becaufe the Moifture and Corruption of the Earthexhales it thick, and diverfify'd,which is he'p'd by the ill Quality of the Air, and that, with the falling of the Excrements the Fiie calts out upon the Springs, corrupts the Waters, and deftrgys Health. Going up this Mountain two thirds of the Height, it is all Green and Fruitful; fout the Top is exceffive Cold, without any fort of Fowl, or Birds, but abundance of Flyes. Thence is defcry'd a fpacious Sea, and an infinite Number of Iflands; becaufe the Purity of the, Air, freefrom Exhalations, as is faid of the Top of Mount Olympus, reprefents curious Objects to the Sight, and favours it without any Let, the greater part of the Year. Where the Thicknefs of the Trees Terminates, a Spring of Efefh Watex gufhes out, fo very cold that there is no Drinking of it, but by Sips. At the Top, fome difance from the Mouth, which cafts out the Elames, they at this time tore away a piece of the Mountain, whence for two Days aluundance of Water flow ; great pieces of Rocks roul'd down the fide of the Hill, to the Sea; forming Concavities, and bearing down Trees, and Ruins, The fame Mountain, on the Top, has a facious fweet Pool, encompafs'd with Trees, wherein there are blew, and gold-Colour Alligators, above a Fadom long, who, as foon as they hear People ftirring, plunge down to the Bottom.
Thefe Illands know no Difference of Summer and Winter; nor is there Seafons. any fettled Rajny Seafon, but it generally Rains more with the North-Eaft, than with the South, Wind. The Molucco Inlands breed Suakes above 30 Foot long, and proportionably thick; but they are neither Quick of Motion, nor Venomous. Thofe who have feen them affirm, That when they want Suftenance, they chew a certain Herb Nature has fhown them, and climbing the Trees by the Sea-fide, caft into it what they have chew'd; many fifhes come to Eate it, and being made Drunk, lye helplefs upon the Wate; ; then the Snakes launch out upon them, and fatisfy their Hunger, tin they are full of thofe flupify 'd Fifhes. The Crocodils on the Land are Crocodils, the fierceft of Monfers; the Ancients write almof the contrary of thofe of the Nile. Thefe in the Sea are fo Timorous, that they fuffer themfelves to be bound under Water. A Crocodite has been taken that had four Eyes, and a very liste Heart. Here are allo found certain Infects, which they Infect. call Cuzos, living on Trees, on whofe Fruit they feed : They are like Rabn Lits, their Hair thick, harm, and curld, of a brightifh Brown; their Eyes round and fprightly; their Feet finall; and a very long Tail, by which they hang, the better to reach the Fruit, and they flink like Foxes.
In the Defert Parts there are Wild-Fowl; fome of the Tame are the fame we have in Europe. The Parots, in their Tongue call'd Nores, of feveral Colours intermixt, Cry exceffively, but Talk well. An Iflander affirms, That at this time, when the People were Confpiring, a Parrot in the Air cry'd, I Dye, I Die; and beating his Wings, fell down Dead. A Relar tion tells us of another, that came from Amboyna, on the Maft of a fmall Vefiel, when they went to take him, he cry'd out, Sebaftian, Sehaftians; who was his Mafter, and came to his affiffance. There are great flocks of Brids and black Geefe, with Parrots Feet; Martins, Swallows, Feldefares, Thrufhes, and Sparrow-Hawks. The variety of Fifh is infinite; the Sea-Cow, like that of Brazil; a fort of Crab, one part whereof Eaten, kills in 24 Hours; this is on the Sea-flore, under certain Trees, whofe flade fuffers no Grafs or Herb to grow; thofe who Sjeep in it Sicken, and it dries and parches up, the Shels, to eat the Almonds; they breed among Rocks, are taken at Night with Light; their Body, Claws, and all the Flefh, is like that of a Lobiter. Near the Tail they have a Bag, full of a certain Subfance delicious to the Taft, for which they are as mueh valu'd as Pullets.
Strange
Sticks.
All over the Moluccos there grows a fort of reddifh Sticks, which burn in the Fire, raife a Flame, and are like a burning Cole, without wafting: They look to be of a Stony Nature, moulder away betwixt the Fingers, and Tree of ButterElies. are eafily broken by the Teeth. Not far from the Fort of Ternate, is to be feen the Plant call'd Catopa, from which there drop Leaves lefs than the common fort; the Stem whereof, on a fudden, is form'd into the Head of a Worm, or Butter-Fly; the Body and Fibers coming from it, make Feet, and the Leafy Part, Wings; fo that it foon becoms a perfect ButterFly, and at the fame time a Leaf. This Tree buds out every Year, like a Cheftnut-Tree, and from the Buds proceed thefe Worms, which run upon Threads faftened to the Leaves. Nature was profufe with thofe People; efpecially as to the Cloves, which I diftinguifh from the Long-Peper Pling perhaps fpoke of, when he nam'd the Garyophillum. But fince the Profit of that fo highly valu, d Product, was to occafion fuch bloody Wars, fuch incredible Voiages, from all Parts of the World, that the real Dangers, are

This is the precious Commodity, which gives Power and Wealth to thofe Kings, and caufes their Wars. A Wonder of Nature, which plainly fhows it has created nothing fo harmiefs, but what is abus'd by human Malice. This is the true Fruit of Difcord, rather than the fabulous Apple of the three Godeffes, fince for it there has been, and fill is, more Fighting, than for the Mines of Gold. Had this happen'd in the Days of the Greek, or Latin Poets, how much more would thay have fpoken of our Moluccos, than they did of the Illands Gorgones in the Ethiopick Ocean? Let us flop a little to reflect on the Dangers Mortals expofe themfelves to, $\underset{H}{\text { rather, perhaps, to pleafe their wanton Appetites, than to confirm their }}$ Health.

Deing impatient to put in Execution their defperate Defign, chofe the King of Tydore for their Head, to joyn with him of Iernate, that had been expell'd on account of the Death of Gonzalo Pereyra. Among the Relations ufually collected by the Chrifitian Curiofity of the Religious Men of the Society, we find that thefe Kings met in the little Ifland, which divides Ternate from Tydore, before they went each of them to his proper Poft for performing what was ripulated in the Confederacy, and there the King of

They rob, kill, and fubdue, taking away our Dominions under falfe Titles, and think they bave no fetthed Peace, till they bave reduc'd the Provinces into Defarts. Experience bas Jow'd us, bow odious our Valour has been to the Chriftian Commanders, whom, for the fame Reafon, we muft never lope to find more modeft, or less our Enemies. Affure your felves then, and remember, both Kings and Subjects, hoth you who feek Glory, and you who provide for your Safety, that neither of there is to le bad without Liberty, nor this without War; non is the W ar to be maintain'd without Courage and Unanimity. The Power of the Portuguefes is increafed, and on it their Reputation depends. Having then difcover'd the Myftery, and Caufe of this Tyranny, who is there that will not prepare to try the utmoft of Fortune, to purchafe the greateft of Duman Felicities, swhich is Liberty. Other Nations, which when they bear of our Refolution, will call it Defpair and Saviagenefs; if they weigh it with the Occafion, will rather Commend than go about to find Excufes for us. Befides, every Man knows what is fit for lis Religion, bis Honour and his Country, better than thofe who judge of thefe Things at a Diftance. Ins floort, What is Life worth witlout Liberty?

Thofe incenfed Kings made fuitable Returns to thefe Words, and having taken proper Meafures to commence and carry on the W ar, went away in their Veffels, without lofing Time, or admitting of Delay ; as well knowing the many Dangers agreat Undertakiniot texpos'd to, which depends on Secrecy, and is imparted to many.
On the Day appointed, all the Natives departed the City of Ternate, with their Families, not in good Order, as in Tranfinigradems, but raging, in Confufion, and loaded with their Children, and a few Neceffaries, having before fent away their Effects to other Iflands. To convince the Portuguefes of their Defign, and that the People of Ternate abandon'd the Country, they fet Fire to the City in feveral Places; the Flames began to take hold and fpread, till they met, and of many fmall ones became one general Conflagration, with hideous Noife and Cries; for not only the Houfes were burnt, which had for fo many Ages belongtd to their Forefather, and Anceftors, but all that attracts the Affection to our Native Country, the Temples, all their worldly Treafure, and the Bounty of Nature; for the open Country began now to feel the Defolation, the Caves, $\mathrm{Lakes}_{3}$

He promis'd to make Satisfaction, and that all Things fhould be fet right, but it avail'd nothing; for they rather grew more furiaus, and would not hearken to any Propofal, or admit of Treaty, that mightmake them flacken in their Refolution. Being come to thofe Places which Nature has made ftrong among the Rocks, they arm'd, and in Parties fell upon the Chriftians, lying in wait for them when they went out for Wood or Water, and killing or wounding them by Surprize. At this tine the Governour of India, tho' there were fome Troubles at Goo, and in other Places, fent Succours to Ternate, becaufe it was towards the End of Summer, and one muft of Neceflity go to fucceed the Governour. Antony Galvam was the Man appointed, who laid out above 10000 Ducats of his own towards reforing the Places that had been burnt, by which it may be truly faid, he redeen'd the Moluccos. He was defirous, not only to People, but even to enlarge Ternate, and to this Purpofe he treated with fome poor marry'd Men, and needy Families, to go over with him and their Wives and Children to thofe Iflands; the fame he did with Men and Women, who were lewd Livers, that they might mend their Lives in another Country, and embrace the legal State of Matrimony; to which End, he lent them Money, and provided Neceffaries for their Voyage. In the mean while, the Tyrant Catabruno, affembled his Forces, and mov'd againft the City Momoya, where the Sangiack of it liv'd, who had been before anignorant Idolater, but then a Chriftian Prince. He finding himfelfinferiour in Power, retired into a Fort, with his Wife, Children and Family. Some Portuguefes fent him by Triftan de Atayde, not daring co truft themfelves fhut up there with him, withdrew into the Mountains, where they were foon kill'd, purfuant to the Ediet of the League, Catabruno enter'd the City, without any Oppofition, where he exercis'd his Cruelty, becaufe the wretched Inhabitants would not quit it ; and many new converted Chriftians recanted for Fear, or thro the Violence of Torments. Being Mafter of the City, he laid Seige to the Fort, giving it feveral furious Affaults, which Don Fobn withftood, making a refolute Defence, and in fome Sallies return'd. Victorious; yet his Example prevail'd not on his People, as it ufually does where it meets with generous Souls; fo that this Prince foon difcover ${ }^{\text {s }}$ d how faint-hearted mon of them were; he fufpected that fervile Fear would degenerate to fuch Bafenels, that they would deliver him up to his Enemy, and therefore like a brave Man, he prefently bent his Thoughts to fecure the Salvation of bis Soul. This was a miftaken Notion; and to go through ftiteh with it, he would, ftill perfifting in the fame Error, have killdd himfelf, but that he was hinder'd by his own Servants, who to purchafe the Tyrant's Pardon, deliver'd up to him that Chriftian Prince, who had been fo ill advis'd by his Zeal. before Catabruno, who was inform'd how cruelly he had flain his Wife and Children, he ask'd him, Why he had undertaken fo barbarous and inhumane an Action? Don $\mathfrak{F o l} n$ anfwer'd him with great Courage and Undauntednefs. At that Time, and in my Thoughts, I bad more regard to the Salvation of their Souls, than to the preferving of their Lives. I miflrufted the Sex, their Age; andyour Torments, and would not hazard their perijfting in the true Faith. Souls are Immortal, and I took nothing from my Children that they can feel the want of, or which Time, or yowr Sword would not bave depriv'd them of; the latter we /hould all bave been thankful to, as the Inflrument of the Divine Will. But I much more dreaded your Pardon and Mercy, by which you might bave perverted thein Minds, with thofe Soothings which pleafe frail $M_{0}$ :tality. I leing more refolute, tho ${ }^{6}$ expos'd to all your Fury, am So far from fearing the Effects, either of your Torments or Intreaties, that I Shall look upon your as God's. Executioner, and were it bis Will, that you Boould take away my Life, I Jhould receive a greater Benefit from your Sword, than from your Mercy. Gatabruno, enrag'd at his Anfwer, order'd him to be kill'd ; but the Tyrant's own Friends, who lov'd Don Folm, the Sangiack, carry'd him out of the Room, and contriv'd he fhould have his Liberty, and be reftor'd. Their Intreaties prevail'd on Catabrumo, and he liv'd many Years after in his own Dominions, with a Chriftian Conftancy, confeffing his indifcreet Zeal, which had caufed his own Sword to deprive him of Wife and Children. A Mind truly worthy the beft Part of Europe, and not to be the Product of the moft remote barbarous Nations; and highly commendable, had it been directed by more folid Rules, to curb that Fiercenefs, fo oppofite to all natural and divine Laws, which looks upon fuch horrid Murders, as a Piece of Piety.

Several Actions.

Triffan de Atayde was troubl'd at thefe Misfortunes, which were almoft under his Eyes; tho' he wanted nor for others nearer, for the People of Ternate being now Mafters of the Ifland, burnt all the new and old Towns, belonging either to themfelves, or the Chriftians, and amongft others, thofe of Trutupalate, Calamatn, and Ifico, yet they met with brave Oppofition in them all, and they coft much Blood. Twice our Men went out to Fight the Tydore Fleet, which came within fight of the Fort, and thn' they both times retir'd Shatter'd, and well Beaten, the Barbarians had not much caufe to Boaft of their Victory, for Abundance of them were kill'd, and fcarce any went off unhurt. The Confederates fitted out other numerous Fleets, wherewith they much Streightened the Chrilians in the Fort, till Antony falvain arriv'd, who was at this time Sailing. But Relief came before, Don Stepleen de Gama, lending a Galeon laden with Provifiens and arriv'd fafe, and with it the Support of thofe Difconfolate People. They took Heard, a ong ventur'd to go abroad, fpreading themfelves about the whereof ftill fmoked, and Woods, met with ruin'd Buildings, the remains on the Mountains. However they was Dark, they oblery'd the high Flames and throughout all the Iflands there were hourly Ens upon the Barbarians, the Chrifian Iuhabitants, or the Soldiers of the Forts; and at Sea they heard the Martial Mufick, which Sounded whilft they Sail'd, or Fought Manfully, and at that time was dreadful.

In the mean while Captain Alvarado, a spanifb Gentleman, fent by Ferdinand Cortes to Ternate, that the Valour he had fhown in thofe Parts, ferving God and his King might not lie ving God and his King, might not lie idle, difcover'd the Iflands of the at the $\mathrm{P}_{2}-$ Papuas, and fought thofe Barbarians with Refolvtion, tho' the Portuguefe puas.
Hiftories affign the Honour of this Difcovery to Don George de Menefes who arriv'd at them in the Year 1526, as we have feen. The great Commander Alvarado alfo Difcover'd other Iflands, call'd Gelles, in one Degree of North Latitude, and Eaft from Ternate, I25 Leagues from Batochina. The Natives of thofe Iflands are like thofe of the Moluccos in Colour, Habit, and Cuftoms, differing only in Language, which is peculiar to themfelves.

Antony Galvant fail'd from Malaca with the proper Monfon, with the Men, and all Neceffaries to fight, and fettle Colonies. When he was paft the Ifland Borneo, and the ridges of Rocks which lie under Water, in fight of that Coaft, 2s F. Marta, the Tefuit, writes to the Governor Gomez Perez, and appears by his Papers, in Sight of Malaoa he Difcover'd a great Fleet of Carsoas, and other Clinefe Ships, with Sails made of Canes, and Palm-Tree Leaves wove together. He was foon fatisfy'd, that they were the Auxiliaries which had joyn'd the Fanguas of Tydore and Catabruno, who, with the expell'd King of Ternate, were Cruzing to meet the Portuc, guefes, or Spaniards, that fhould come into their Seas. Galvam order'd his Men to be in a Readinefs, to clear his Guns, and prepare all Things, doing the Duty of a Commander, and of a Soldier. The Enemy drew up in three Lines, each of its particular Nation, as if the Portuguefes had many Ships. He was himfelf in the Trading Galcon, and with it a Pink, and another fmall Veffel, wherein, among the Marry'd Men, and Families unfit for that Service, there were fome few that could take up Arms. The Infidels drew near, but without Artillery, the Gilolo Archers let fly a great number of Arrows upon our Men, and then one Line fhearing off, the other difcharg ${ }^{〔} d$, the Air refounding, being peirc'd by the Darts, and Calabays, or Staves hardned at the Fire. Galvam not regarding the Danger, tho' at firft he defended himfelf with Fights and Planks; when he thought they had fpent moft of thofe flying-Weapons, among which they fir'd fome Muskets, he began to play his great Guns, tearing their Veffels, and deftroying the Men. He Sunk a confiderable number, and Took feveral, becaufe they fought diforderly, relying, as it were a Land-fight, on the Multitude of their Soldiers, as ours did on their Valour, and Experience. But Galvam, whofe Bufinefs it was to get to Ternate, held on his Voyage, and arriv'd there as he defir'd. His Men landed in that difmal Solitude, among Smoke and Ruins. The Joy of thofe who were in the Fort, and the extraordinaty Relief, coming quire unhop'd for, were an Encouragement to them all. The Clergy came out to receive him, the Soldiers fhouting amidft the Divine Hymns, confounding the Proceffion, and their Satisfaction. It was a Pleafure to behold, and they gazed on him as a Deliverer fent from Heaven. Triftan de Atayde refign'd his Poft, and Antony Galvam took Poffeffion, enquir'd into the Nature of the Confederacy, and the Fame of his Arrival being fpread Abroad, Things began to mend. To this Purpofe he arrefted Triftan de Atayde, and afterwards feut him to Go.\%. He had before fent Meffengers to the Queen, to acquaint her with his Arrival, and the End of it, which was to ferve her, and retrieve all the Mifchiefs an fnordinate Defire of Revenge had occafion'd. In the mean while he began to repair the City, the Colonies, Churches, Keys, and Houfes, diftributing thofe Families he had brought with him. Nor did he neglect Husbandry, but planted Vines brought from Portugal, which he foon faw grown up into fubftantial Vinyards. He deliver'd to the Clergy the new Conflitutions drawn up by Cardinal Henv, afterwards the laft K. of the Houfe of Portugal. He offer'd Peace to all that would comply, fent Religious Men to inculcate to thofe who liv'd like Outlaws, the Love of their Country, its re-eflablifhment, and how difhonourable it was to them to make choice of a Life like that of wild Beafts, only for a cruel Satisfaction.

Galvam Jails over to Attack them.

The Queen, who not to fipeak of her natural Fiercenefs, expected to fee her Son reflor'd and fet at Liberty, and to drive away the Portuguefes, would not give Eax to any Accommodation. The greateft Burden of the War Jay then upon Tydore, where the Confederate Kings, with the depoFed Dayalo, a moft Fierce Man, gather'd above Fifty Thoufand Fighting Men; but they had not yet enclofed that City with a Wall and Ditch, being fatisfy'd with having built a Fort upon high Rocks, whence they fpread abroad to pick up the Fifhermen, and other Portuguefes that went out from Ternate to get Provifions, and thence they infefted that dangerous Coaft. Galvam fearing left the Prolonging of the War fhould reduie him to the former difficulties, fent other Meffengers to treat of Peace, and perfwade thofe obfinate Kings, to Publifi an Oblivion of all paft Wrongs, without taking Notice of the late engagement, offering them mighty Prefents, to purchafeCommerce at the Price of them. They being puffed up with fome good Succefs, and their mighty Power; would not hearkeu to any Propofals Peace; but on the contrary, as Maficus Writes, they return'd an Anfwer very abufive to the Portuguefes. Galvam imploring the Affiftance of Heaven, fo managed the Affair, that it was look'd upon as amazing, even by fuch as view Things impartially. Nor would it be credible, unlefs confirm'd by other Enterprizes of his fuitable to this. He had only four Tall Ships, and a few fmaller Veffels in the Port; thefe he fpeedily form'd into a Squadron, putting in $400 \mathrm{Men}, 170$ of them Portriguefes, the reit to make up the Number, Slaves, and the common fort of Ternate. He left Trijtann de Atayde with fome Men to defend the Fort, and fecure Sultann Aevio, and fail'd away himfelf for Tydore, without meeting any Enemy, the reafon of it not known, and lay by in a fafe Place, about a Musket-flot from that Ifland. Being come to an Anchor, he took a full View of the Multitude that guarded the Shores, confidering the Nature of the Country, and Situation of the City. Having called a Council of War, he refolv'd to Storm the Fort on the high Rock, then little regarded, the Confederates thinking themfelves fafe. He made a Speech to them in plain Terms, without any Rhetorlcal Ornaments. Thefe are the fame People, faid he, we bave fo newTy Varquiflid, to refore whom to the Liberty they defive, would be a matter of small moment, did they when poffefed of it allow the Freedom of preaching the Gofpel. This is the Caufe we are imbark'd in. Who then can doubt of TVidory, or not wilh to Die for the obtaining of it? As the fe Enemies are the fame we Defeated, fo are we the fame Vitiors; fo that Ineed not bave Recourfe to Foreign Examples, to encourage you. Their Difobedience and Reflefnefs is of a long Jlanding ; it will be but reafonable that our Arms add one Viforious Day to fo many Turbulent lears, that fo we may lay the Ax to the Root of Rebellion. They call us Tyants; that does not at all trauble me ; becaufe after the Vidary, we fanll bave the Opportunity of difpelling that Slander by our Moderation.

They would not fuffer Galvam to put an end to his Speech, all of them The manprefing earnefly to Fight, and he refolving to make himfelf Mafter ner of the of the Rock, as he had contriv'd, piek'd out 120 Portuguefes, and made out Attack. 300 from among the Reft, leaving the Remainder to lecure the Ships, and Keep the Enemy in Play, if they fhould attack them; making fhow of a greater Number, by appearing in feveral Places, and fhouting, by which fuch as fear are eafily impofed upon. In the mean while, Galvam having taken a Native of Tydore, and oblig'd him to ferve for a Guide, fet out at the fourth Watch in the Night with his Men, through by-ways remote from the City, over-grown with Brambles, and fearce practicable, and with the greateft filence he could came to the Top of the Mountain. The Portuguefes had march'd the greateft Part of the Way by the firft Dawn of Day, and refting them a little from the Fatigue, defory'd the Enemy's fhining Helmets and their Feathers on them, Galvan then beginning, all the reft raifed the Cry, To Arms, to Ayms. The Confederates, with Horrid Shouts, which refounded on the Rocks, and in the Woods, made ready for their Defence, notwithftanding the furprize; but foon perceived they fhould fall a Prey to our Men. The Fight began, and King Dayalo, enrag'd for that he had been depos'd, appear'd the foremoft with fome Troops, to fecure the Paffes, and advanced to meet the Portriguefes in a Plain. They avoided him not, and both Parties mixing, much Blood was fpilt. Dayalo was vifible by his bright Helmet, adorn'd with Variety of fanding high Feathers, and his Body cover'd with a Steel Coat of Mail, brandifhing with both Hands a Lance, as like a fmall Yard of a Ship, and charging with defperate Fury; but happ'ning to rufh in among our Pikes and Musketiers, unadvifedly, he receiv'd feveral Wounds on allsices, and fell down raging. He was wonderful ftrong, and ftarted up immediately; concealing his Wounds and Pain, and beginning a frefh Charge in the firft Ranks, for fear of difcouraging his Men. He Fought a confiderable Time; but not being Drefs'd, and the Action caufing the Blood to run the fafter, his Eye fight fail'd him, and he dropt a fecond Time, faying to his Guards, Move Trence as faft as you can, and carry me carefully that the Doss, fo he call'd. the Portuguefes, may not have the Satisfaction of cutting my Body in Pieces. His Soldiers did fo, not without great Danger; and he foon after he had been carry'd off, gave up his haughty Soul. His Forces daunted by this Accident, turn'd their Backs, hiding themfelves among the Rocks and Brambles, throwing down their Arms, and getting off through almoft inacceffible Ways. Others return'd to the City, and meeting fome Troops that march'd to their Affiftance, made them return another Way. The Portuguefes follow'd the Chace, killing fuch as fled, and Galoam came to the Fort, with the Lofs of only one Slave. This Victory, which happen'd on the Feaft of St. Thomas, the Apofle, in the Year 1537, humbled the Pride of the Confederates; was afcrib'd to the Interceffion of that Apoftle, and they obferv'd a folemn Thankigiving. The Fort was fired with good Advice, for the Citizens and Traders, leeing the Flames fo neer, abandor'd.

Galvans was now coming down from the Hill, having drawn together his Men, and form'd them into fmall Bodies, with found of Trumpets and Singing, to make his Victorious Entry into that City, now void of Defendants, and full of Wealth. Of the People of Tydore as many were taken as did not in Time fave themfelves by Flight; as allo a Junk in the Port, and feveral orher fmall Veffels. The Enemies afterwards perifh'd in other fmaller Actions. The daunted King, hafted Home to fecure their own Lands, difolving the Confederacy, and being fufficiently warn'd, gave Ear to, and

The King of Tydore oblig'd himfelf to reftore Galvam the Cannon; not to affif the Enemies of Poriugal, not to permit the Clove to be difpos'd of into any other Hands than the Portuguefe Officers; and to fell it as was ufual at Ternate. Galvam went over next to fubdue Gilolo, and the other Kings, all which he compars'd fuccefsfully. The Queen alfo fubmitted, either on Account of the King of Tydore's Falhood, or that, as fhe faid, fhe grew weary of the War, or elfe becaufe the depos'd King was kill'd. Catabruno was appeas'd by Galvam's good Behaviour, and accepted of Conditions, among which the chiefeft was, that Galvam fhould fet Sultan Aerio at Liberty. Thus the Confederacy was diffolvtd, and the Maluccos laying down Arms, fubmitted again. Provifions were furnifh'd as before, and the Crops, and Trade of Spice were reffor'd.
Sultan Aerio attended by the Chriftians and Gentiles, Dancing, and making other demonfrations of Joy, went from the Fort to his Palace, where he remain'd with his Guard, and Family. Before he Marry'd, tho' he never wanted for Concubines, he in Perfon took a Progrefs to the principal places in his Dominions of Ternate, Moutil, and Maclian. Thofe in the Fort attended and affifted him, together with the Sangiacks, who went all about that Arclipelago, firit on that fide they call Del Moro, that is towards Batochina, and is diftant from the Moluccos 60 Leagues Northward, beginning at the Ifles of Doe, two Leagues to the Point of Bicoe. All thefe are Iuhabited by Wild People.

Batoclina is 250 Leagues in Compafs, and Sulject to two Kings, which Batachina, that is Gi lolo deforib'd. are thofe of Cylolo, and Lolada. This laft is Ancienter than all thofe of the Moluccos, or in thofe Seas, and formerly was the mof Powerful; but now the Weakef. The Inhabitants of the North part of Batocbina are Savage, without any King, Laws, or Towns, living in Deferts. Thofe on the Eaft-fide have populous Towns, on the Sea Shore; and tho' they fpeak feveral Languages, yet they underftand one another. This Coaft they call'd Morotia, that is, Land Moor. The other Iflands oppofite are çall'd Marotay, that is, Sea-Moor, and all thofe Ifles breed deceitful, brutal and daftardly Men. Only the City Moncoya is Warlike. It ever wanted Laws, Weights, Meafures, Coin, Gold, Silver, and all other Metals, and a King; but it is overftock'd with Provifions, Arms, Idols, and Devils fpeaking in them. The Women Till the Land. Each of thefe Towns is Govern'd by a Magifrate chofen by the People ; they pay him no Taxes, but have Regard to his Defcent. The Molucco Kings conques'd them, and every one kept what he could get; the better part belongs to him of Ternate, and lefs to the King of, Tydore, whofe Dominions were enlarg'd by the Power of Spaim. They went on to eftablifh their Poffeffions among thè Paprias, or Papout, Eaft from the Moluccos, being Iflands little reforted to, becaufe many of them are all encompafs ${ }^{\text {d }} \mathrm{d}$ with Flats and Shoals. The Natives of them are Black, like the Cafres; they wear their Hair wound about in large curl${ }^{5} d$ Locks, their Vifages lean and ugly. The Name of Papuas in their Language fignifies Blacks, being a ftern People, enur'd to Labour, and fit for any piece of Treachery. All their Iflands are fubject to Kings, and abound

Papous, in Gold, which they do not Tranfport, becaufe no Man lays up any more of it than is us'd in their Ornaments. Among thefe Black-men there are fome as White and fair as the Germans; if thefe go out in the Sun, they are fruck blind, tho they do not look at it. Thofe in Spain are calld Alkinos; yet fome of them are ftrong, and can behold any Object. Among thefe Papluas there are many deaf. As to the Extent of this Country, if we may believe the Accounts of Spanifh Pilots, who have fail'd that way, thefe Illands run along a vaft Continent, which terminates at the Streights of Magellan. Thefe Kings entertain Friendfip with Ternate, whither they fent Embalfadors, and as much as was here fubject to the Moluccos, had no. Share in the defperate Fury of the League. So did thofe of Celebes to the Weftward, being many notable Iflands, the great Ifland Celebes it felf, as alfo Mindanas ; fo thofe of Bifaya, abounding in Iron; Mafcaga, and Masbate, which have much Gold, as well as Mindanas ; that of Sologo, and others producing Provifions, Spice, Sanders, Eaglewood, Ginger, and Long Pepper. Some of $O t /$ ard thefe Iflands are fubject to and Bacbian, but the moft to him of Ternate. The People are generally, treacherous; many of them go naked, painting their Bodies in Falcage, and other Figures; their Hair long, hanging on their Backs, or elfe knot ted, and cut fhort over the Forehead, like our Peafants; their Faces large; their Teeth well fhap'd and black; and their Ears bor'd. The Natives of Celebes are filthy, and vile in their Behaviour ; the Æquinoctial paffes over their Ifland, which is full of little Towns; a whole Race living in every Houfe. On their Walls they hang the Hair of thofe they have kill'd in War; and the greateft number of them is mof Honourable. There are among them feveral forts of Monfrous Productions. One of thefe isTree bearing vaft Head, the fade whereof kills any Man that lyes down under it on the Weft-fide, unlefs he immediately lye down on the Eaftfide; the fame fhade at only a Y ard diftance being an Antidote againft its oppcfite Malignity. In thefe Towns there are horrid Stew's of Sodomy; tho there are no fuch at Ternate; but they have gone as far as Amboyna, vhichlyes South of it, Among the Moluceos there are many Iflands fab? Formerly they were free, afterwards conquer'd by the Kings of Ternate and Tydove; againft whom they alfo rebell'd, and fubmitted to the Queen of Japara, and many Chriftian Towns were fubject to the Portuguefes. They yield above 2000 Hundred Weight of Cloves Yearly; which the Faos are Mafters of, none being to obftruct them; they go over and Barter, and carry it away in their Junks. We fpeak elfewhere of their Fertility. Our Relations tell us, they produce a fort of Reeds, of Canes, ac bove fifty fathom long, and no thicker than a mans litele finger. South from Amboyna lye the Illands of Banda; and about 300 Leagues to the Eaftward, fome affirm, there is one which is all over an entire Mine of Gold, and the Natives not above a Yard high. If this be fo, and the fe the true Pigmies, who will look upen the Battels mention'd in Homer's. 3d Iliad', betwixt them and the Cranes, as Fabulous. Thofe featter'd Dominions were again united and fubmitted to Sultan Aevio, whofe Marriage Solemnities, Building of Mafques, Publick Feftivals, and other Works of Prepences to deftroy King Aerio. Peace, we mutt pafs over in filence, as not proper for our purpofe, they being only a pleafing fort of Digreffions.

The Kings of Portugal fent feveral Commanders in Chief to Ternate, and Jât in the Year 1570, Fames Lopez de Mezquita, who had commanded on the Molucco.Seas, took Poffeffion of the Fort. In his Time Sultan. Aerio, a courteous and affable Man, continu'd in Subjection to Portugal;, valuing himfelf upon being true to his Word in all his Actions. Neverthelefs, there wanted not fome ill-meaning Perfons, who miflik'd his Government, and pretended that he did not exercice his Power legally. They faid, he had given way to thofe Vices, into which luxurious Princes are wont to fall; thofe being generally the Fruits of a long Peace. They fancy ${ }^{\text {b }}$, he retain ${ }^{6}$ d the Memory of paft Tragedies; and particularly his Mother's inhuman End, and therefore perfecuted our Religion; tho at the fame Time the Memories of thofe Days do not charge him with any Temporal DiSobedience, or want of Fidelity ; but they rather compar'd him to Mafiniffa, King of Numidia; and fay the Portuguefes ought to have refpeCted him, as the Romans did the other. The Commander hearing of thofe Abufes, and fearing greater might enfue, fome Religious Men encreafing his Jealoufie, he endeavour'd to redrefs them by Friendly Admonitions, and other Contrivances. Thofe Methods had no effect on him, for he anfwerd, he was in his own Daminions, where, without offence to the Portuguefe Soveraignty, he might live as he pleas'd. Mezquita refolving to try harfher means, fince the others did not at all move the King, nor make him uneafie, as relying on his Innocency; began to deprive him of his Revenue, and the Income of the Spice; threatning alfo, that he would, in all other Refpects, execute the laft Will made by his Brother Tabarija, wherein he appointed the King of Portugal for his Heir; or at left would treat him fo like an inferior Perfon, that he fhould fcarce be able to affume the Name of King; for fuch is the Punifhment they are lyable to, who do not obferve that Decorum which was inviolable in their Anceftors.

Cacbil Babu, Son to Sultan. Aerio, taking a Progrefs about this Time, through his Father's Iflands, a Subject came to complain to him againft extain Portuguefes, who had taken away his Daughter; for which fault
he order'd them all to be kill'd, as if they had been acceffary to the raviYhing of the Maid. He had no Directions, nor fo much as the confent of King Aerio for this exorbitant Command, which took no effect. On the contrary he afterwards fo generoufly refented it, that he order'd the Prince to be feiz'd, and would have punifh'd him feverely, had he not been hindred by thofe the wrong was offer'd to. This plain Demenftration was not lufficient to divert the Portuguefe Commander from imputing the Sons Fault to the Father, contrary to all Reafon and Likelihood, All difcreet Methods us'd by well-meaning Perfons to reconcile them two, failing; Fames Lopez by his King's Authority, which generally is moft unreafonable, the farther it is from the Prince, from whom it is deriv'd, prefum'd to imprifon the Sultan; being dragg'd away from a Pleafure-Houfe, where he was paffing the Heat of the Day, among his Women. His Sub. jects lov'd him, and their Refentment for this wrong was proportionable to their Affection; nor did the Portuguefes approve of the Fact. The Commander perceiving that all Men were againit him, and that after all Enquiries and Examinations, the King's Caufe fill appear'd the better, and his Fidelity was more vifibly made out, he gave him his Liberty, to the great Satisfaction of his Kingdoms, which were attentive to the Event; but upon Condition he fhould go to Goa to clear himfelf, where he expected they would cut off his Head, upon the Informations he would fend againt him. The King fet out, and before he came to Malaga, the Viceroy writ to him, begging he would return to his Kingdom, for he was fully convinc'd of his Infocence, and promis'd to punifh the Caufer of thofe Troubles ; but at that Time, for fome Confiderations, was fatisfy'd with reproving him. The K. returning to Ternate, the? Commanderfwas fent Prifoner to Goa, and had been more feverely punif'd; but that Fortune prefervid him, to be an Inftrument of the lofs which has lafted till our Days. -
Within a Year after his Imprifonment he was reftordd to his Command in Ternate, where he again practicd againft that King; for there are fome Difpofitions which never part with the Jealoufies they have once conceiv'd. Ternate was as it were the Metropolis in Religious matters, and King Aerio had never offer'd any Affront to us either in Spirituals or Temporals, for which Reafon there never wanted fome grave Perfons in his Court. Thefe Zealoufly reconcild them two, and that perfectly, as to outward Appearatice, and that their renew'd Amity might be lafting, the King affur'd the Commander upon Oath, according to his Sect, that he would never privately harbour the leaft Jealoufie of him ; but before he admitted of any, would difcover it to him, that fo he might either receive, or make Satisfaction; to the end no Accidents might revive any Mifrufts. The Commander made the King the fame folemn Promife, both of them being thus pacify'd, and in the Opinion of all thofe who mediated betwixt them, fo Ffiendly, that none could imagine fuch perfect Amity could ever be diffolv'd. But there being nothing lefs permanent among Men than Reconciliations, the Partuguefe Commander reaffuming the Hatred which never was extinte, or perhaps fo much as lay'd afide, refolv'd to deftroy Sultan Aerio, when only five Days were elaps'd fince the Re-eftablifhment of their Friendffip fworn to on both fides. This could not be kept fo private, as not to come to the Sult an's Ears; but the Confideration that he was a King, his own Sincerity, and the frefh Reconciliation, made him think he was fecure. But if the Nature of Man be fuch as not to forgive when it has done a Wrong, what can be lefs fecure than injur'd Innocence? The Commander feigns himfelf Sick, and fends to defire the King, that fince he is not able to wait on him in his Palace, he will be pleas'd to honour him with a Vifit in the Fort, there to confer with his Highnefs about fome important Affairs which concern the King of Portugal, his Mafter, and are not fit to be communicated to any other. All the Anfwer the King return'd, was to go himfelf to Vifit the Sick Man, thos he had Information better grounded than on bear Surmiles, that Martin Antonio Pimentel, the Commanders

Aerio's Innocent Bravery. Nephew, had Orders to mulder him, as foon as ever he came into the Fort. He could not prevail upon himfelf to believe a Treachernus Defign; fo far does Innocence prevail over a generous Soul. But when he faw that at the Gate, they fopp'd his Guards, the Sangiacks and Cachiles, that attended him, he then beganto be convinedd of the Villany, yet went on without being diforderd, and foowing an undaunted Countenance. And tho he could nor forbear dropping fome Tears, when he took leave of his Sons, however he prefently compos'd his Countenance, fo that he was not at all difmay'd, tho' in the Commanders Nephew's Looks he faw vifible Tokens of his Unkles Commiflion. He would have complain'd to the Cormmander of the Difrefpect of thofe who flopptd his Attendance, but they would not fuffer hisp to go on. The Mask being now laid afide, and the true Deffign appearing, in Violence he call'd out to the Sangiacks, but the Gate was fout againft him and them. Pimentel came up to him with a Naked Ponyard, and begg'd his Pardon like an Executioner. The King, without fowing any Surprize, or Diforder, Bid him confider. what he was going to do; For there were many left to revenge his Death, befides his-Sons and Subjeets, all the Kings of the Arclipelago, as well the Sovereigns who were in Alliance, as thofe who ow'd Fealty to the Crown of Portugal, This Infance, faid he, will wake them dread every Capricious Humour of a Commander in cbief. If fiill that Fealloaffe furvies, wbicb bas fo often been prov'd groundlefs, I will deliver my felf up to the King of Portugal ; and if my Death be of fuch Confequence to you, yet refpite the Execuution but a Pittle, for at my Age, Time will foon perform what your Swords are to do. They now began to fall upon him, and he feeing a Bralis Cannon, on which were the Arms of Portugal, clafping his Arms about it, faid, Cbrijfians, at loof/f fhom fome Refped to thefe Arus; for you kill a King that bas paid the greateft Deference to your Crown. This laft Teftimony of his Innocence was of no Force to appeafe thofe Murderers; though formerly in Rome, the embracing the Statues of the Emperors was fufficient to deliver Siaves from being punif'd by their Mafters. It may be a Queftion whether his Soul was lav'd; for there are thofe who affirm, he intreated the Murderer to permit him to be Baptizd; who anfwering, It was then too late, without granting his Requef, or any Refpite, ran furioully upon that Antient Prince, who made no Reciffance, and Aabb'd him in feveral Places. They carry'd the Body into a Vault. The King's Kindred and Servants heard the Noife, and fufpecting the worft; went away in great Diforder, to the City, where there was already a confufed Rumour of what had happen'd, and being Diffrated, ran Ahrieking about the Streets, where nothing was to be heard Lut Weeping, Threats, Complaints and Diforder.
The Principal Queen, with the Kings other Wives, and Slaves, his Sons, and Brothers, laying a fide all State' came out of the Palace, already furrounded by the Mulutude, in Confufion and Difpair, and being follow'd by moft of the Portuguefes, who no lefs abhorr'd the Fact, ran to rhe Fort, crying out to let them fee their King, as ftill doubting of what they heard The Commander appear'd in Armour on the Wall, and faid, They bould Mezquifee Jim immediatly; and then came up a Soldier, bringing the Kings Head with the Royal Turbant on it. After him came others, wth his Arms, Legs, and Body cut into fmall pieces, all which they hung upon the Battlements in the fight of his People. Afterwards they Salted them, as if the perpetuating of the Wrong had been requifite. This was what mof provok'd the injur'd People, who no longer able to behold fo inhumane a Spectacle, and being befide themfelves, and fearing more Mifchief, return'd with their Family. The Sons out of Refpect to their Fathers Body, went away from Ternate to feveral Iflands, tho ${ }^{6}$ in Reality they departed to excite others by their Prefence, reprefenting the Hideoufnefs, and Horror of the Fact ; and to difpofe their Revenge. For the prefent they were fatisfie with feuding to complain of the Commander in Chief.
Their Embaffador arriv'd at Goa clad in White, which is the Mourning Comof the Molucco Iflands, and upon the Faith of his Credentials, acquainted the Viceroy with the whole matter ; proving the Innocency of the Murder'd Sultan; reprefenting the Wrong done to, and the Sorrow of his Family, and Kingdoms, who fo paffionately Lov'd him; and befeeching him, in the name of them all, to Right them againft the Man, who with the Power and Authority of the Portuguefe Arms, had Violated the publick Faith and the Laws of Nature. The Viceroy gave him a favourable hearing,thos by that Time the matter was otherwife reprefented at $G a a$, at leaft among the Portuguefe Nation. They faid, That King Aerio going to vifit the Commander in Chief, Martin Antonio Pimentel went in with him, and they contended in Words upon fome Point, when the Portuguefe anfwering him angrily, they fell to their Weapons, and the King was kill'd in the Quarrel. They added, That he was Advis'd fo to do, by fome of our Religious Men, who were offended at the Perfecution of the Chriftians, and the $\mathrm{Ob}+$ flructing of the King of Portugal's Service. Pimentel made his Defence with the Original Letters, of thofe who perfwaded him to cominit the Fact, and whoafterwards fav'd him. However the Viceroy did not Reject the Plaintifs;but promis'd to Right them; and to frew that he defign'd them farther fatisfaction than a bare Promife, he fent away the neceflary Supplies for the Security of the Fort of Ternate, and Nunno Pereyra de la Cerda, a Gentleman of Courage, and the neceffary Sagacity to fucceed the other in a Poff where all things were in Confufion. He alfo writ to King Sebaftian of Portugal, acquainting him with the Death of King Aexio; how Cruelly and Unjuftly he had been kill'd; what a Revolution there was caufe to fear it might produce; whom he bad fent to fucceed Mezquita; the Orders he had to Secure him, as allo Pinentel, if he could find him.

Nunno Pereyra arriv'd at Malaco with the Molueco Embaffador, whence, at the proper Seafon, they Saild to Ternate, where as foon as they Landed, order was taken for Correcting the Infolency of thofe in the Garrifons, who robb'd, and obfiructed Trade. When he had fettled thefe Affairs, he feiz'd the late Commander in Chief, Fames Lopez; but did not punnifh him there, in the fight of thofe who had been wrong'd, which would have appeas'd them. The new Commander follicited the Kings Sons to return to Ternate, and endeavout'd to give them, and the Kingdom Satisfaction. He eafily convine‘d them, that the Publick was no way guilty of their Fathers Death; but only the Commander Mezqiith, who fhould be feverely punifh'd. That he deliverdd them the Kings Body, to be Bury'd with due Honour. That they fhould fettle the Succeffion, offering it to Caclil Guarate, Aerio's Eldeft Son. He told them, the King of Iortugal did not fend his Commanders to be Enemies, but Protectors of the Royal Family and State of Ternate, and therefore they fhould make ufe of his Arms, as their own. They return'd apparent Thanks for what Pereyna did, and being indifferently fatisfy'd with his Promifes, took the Kings Body. A few Months after, on the Day appointed for the Barbarous Oblequies, Embaffadors from the neighbouring ATembly of the Indians to confent. Kings, and Kingdoms landed at the City, who all repair'd to the Palace, clad in White, with the dead Kings Sons, and Brothers, the Sangiacks and Soldiers, and the Chiefeft of them, going into the Room where the Coffin was before the Mourners, who are Officers of the Grave, began their Lamentations and Cryes, they all fwore upon the dead Body, to take a Revenge fuitable to the Wrong; but becaule this Refolution reçuir'd a more deliberate Preparation, they fulfended it for a Year. It is reported, that Heaven anticipated them within that time, punifhing Pimentel, Ariking him to the Heart with the Difeafe call'd Berbor, whereof he dy'd fwelling up, and raving.

The Funeral Rites leing perform'd, the Prince took leave of Nunno Pe. reyra, to go over to the Ifland Ires, where they have a mioft flately Coun-try-Houre, and the principal Mofque. There they all met on pretence of Diverting themfelves after their Sorrow, tho it was now almoft two Years fince the occafion of it happened. The Cachitas and Sangiacks repair'd thither under the fame Colour, and without loofing any Time, they propofed the Uniting the Forces of their Kingdoms, and fhaking off the Portuguefe Yoke. What foall we, faid they, value the Portuguefes, if once we come to be fenfible of our own Strength? Wbat can we Fear, or not Dare to attempt? The Portuguefes value fimm who Robs moff, and is guilty of the greateft Crimes and Enormities. The forcing away of our Produt, their one lewd Pleafures, and our Wrongs, are Occafion for them to make War; ourss are our Country, and the Defence of our Parents, our Wives, our Cbildren, and our Liberty. It is neceffary to expedite the Executtion, beciulfe a Secret is not lafting among many, and in Affairs of this Nature, there is more Danger in Confulting, than even in Execution. We bave been alveady too long in Confufion, without a Head. No Man contradicted; but neither Cachil Guarate, the Eldeft of the Brothers, nor the Second, durft take upon them fo difficult an Enterprize. Caclile Babre, the Third, undertok it, with the ufual Ingagement, either to Conquer, or to Dye. They prefently lifted him up, with general Applaufe, and his Election being made publick, the Kingdom eafily fubmitted to him, through the defire of Revenge; tho' according to the Cuftom of the Molucro Illands, as foon as the King has any Son sorn, they fwear him his Succeffor, in his turn, and there was then no need of any other Oath, yet they again fwore to Cochil Babu. This done, they went out to their Mofque, in Proceffion, to offer Sacrifice. A Boy went foremoft with a naked Sword on his Shoulder, and with the other Hand leading a Kid, which was to be the Victim, with the Ii,te Horns Gilt. The Alcoran forbids Sacrififing; but thefe Iflanders receive the Rites of Mabometani $m$ fo confus'dly, that with them they alfo retain thofe of their ancient Idolatry, and intermix the Ceremonies. He that conducts the Sacrifize, is, according to their Cuflom, follow'd by part of the Kings Soldiers, with their Pikes advanc'd, and after them goes one holding up on high a fmall Gold Veffel, or Pan, with burning Coals in it, the Frankincenfe they throw in Smoking. Next to him was the new King, over whofe Head they always carry an Umbrello, made of Feathers of feveral Colours, in thape of a large Semicircle. The King was encompafs'd by thofe Soldiers, that are given him by his Subjects by way of Acknowledgement, like the Turki/h fanizaries. In this Order they came to the Mofcue, at whofe Gates, whenfoever they are to enter, they find Kettles and Pots full of Water, to wafh their Hands and Feet before they go in. As foon as the King was upon the Threfnold the Mufick play'd, and they Ppread Milk-white Carpets, as is the Cuftome: Kneeling on them, they mutter out their vain Prayers, bowing their Heads down to the Ground. In the midft of the Mofque ftands a Pulpit, cover'd with white Cloth. Inftead of a Bell, there hangs up the holy great flat Drum, which they beat with Sticks; tho each Mofque has a great Bell, without a Clapper, which they ftrike with a Stone, or piece of Iron, when requifite. All that hear it, of what Condition foever, repair to the Temple, with Pikes, Shields, Cymitars, and Muskets. The profane Sacrifice being ended, they conducted the new King to the Harbour; he went into his Carcoa, with his Family, and the other Sangiacks, and great Men, into many others. The King's is fo contriv'd, that there is a Gang-way all round it, made of Canes. There are two Slaves to each Oar; others do the Service of the Veffel, and near every one lies a Number of Arrows. Inftead of Oars they ufe a fort of great Paddles, like Spoons, with which they allo lade out the Water the Veffel takes in. On the upper part they make Mufick with their Tabors, and Sounding-Bafons of Metal, according to which they Row fafter or llower, as we Dance to our Mufick. In the fame Place there are feven Brafs Guns; a confiderable number of Pikes advanc'd, longer than ours, and a Bed adorn'd with Quilts interwoven with Gold, and by it hung the King's Helmet, Breaf, and Back Plates. He fat, or lay on that rich Bed, the Servants of his Bed-Chamber Fanning him with a large Wing, made of various colour'd Feathers of the Birds that fly about his Ilands; thus he Coafted about, the Sea and Shore refounding with Guns, Shouts, and Barbarous Inftruments.

At the fame time that they feem'd to be wholly taken up with Sports and Diverfions, in the Ifland Ires, they Vow'd an irreconciliable Enmity to the Portuguefe Nation, with the fame Solemnity as they had fworn A1legiance to their King; and this Secret having been inviolably obferv'd, when the new K. thought convenient he caufed it to be Publifh'd throughout all his Dominions, which confifts of feventy two Iflands in that Archipelngo, betwixt thofe of Mindanno, on the North; Bimd and Corca on the Cold, Amber, and Birds of Paradife; all which Provinces have been Ufurped from other Kings, on whofe Ruins his Pride is fwollen fo hish, that he files himfelf in his own Language, Emperor of the Archipelago. In moft of them there were at that Time fome Chriftian Towns, Churches; and Preachers, and the Gofpel was receiv'd in the eight principal Nations. Idolater and Mahometan Embaffadours came from them all to acknowledge, and fwear Fealty to Cacbil Rabu. In this great Affembly the Defire of Revenge was made the Caufe of Religion, and in it began the longeft Perfecurion the true Faith has undergone in our Days. It will be therefore requifite, diftinctly to defcribe the remote, and neighbouring Countries and Nations that carry'd it on; and the Strength, and flanding Forces; they have ready at all times upon any Occafion.

This was the flanding Force, which without adding to it the uncertain number, nor the multitude of flaves, amounts to 120300 Men. This particular F. Mavtinn fent to the Governor Gamez Parez, and the original was deliver'd to me. Since then, that Kings Power is increafed, and becaufe more Formidable, by reafon of his Alliances wiih feveral Princes, entering Amity with fome, and Oppreffing others, and practifing the Rules of Tyranny among them ail, as Artfully as was formerly done by Greece, Rome, and Carthage. ## the SPICE-ISLANDS.

For managing of this great Defign, the King privately fent about his Brothers, and Sang iacks; but fo great an Army could not be contraCted from fuch diftant Parts, without being heard of by the Chriftians, and particularly 2 (unno Perey*a. He fufpecting that the Defire of Revenge ftill prevaild in the injur'd Parties, and that the frit Effects of it would fall upon his Fort, tho the Sultan's Murderer was not then in it, ftrengthned it proportionably to the Siege he axpected. Prudence fupplies the Place of Prophefy. The Fort was not then erected, which is fince to be feen in Ternate, on a high Ground of difficult Afcent, next the Sea, and the Back of it defended by a Lake, next the Mountain; being three Miles diftant from the firft Fort; It was afterwards buift to defend themYelves againft great Flets; not fatisfy'd with that they had before on the Plain, next the Sea, made of dry Stones, without Mortar; which being fince improv'd in all Refpetts, is now built with Lime, the Walls a Yard and balf thick, and Fifteen in Height ; Forty in Length next the Sea, with a round Tower at each Angle, like the ancient Spanifh. Fortrefles. Nianno Pereyra endeavour'd with all poffible Diligence, to fhut up in it the greateft Number he could of all the Chrifian Families, and to be in a Readinefs to ftand the Siege, which foon enfu'd. He lent Advice to India and Portugal of the Intelligence he had receiv'd, demanding Succours, as in a certain Danger ; but it could never have come in Time; for fome Part of thofe Forces being affembled in the Illand Ires, the Reft faying on Botochina, in that Part which is properly call'd Gitoln, and is remote from the Portuguefes, they there began to perfecute Chriftianity by publick Decree.
The Apprelsenfion of thefe Mifchiefs, had much perplex'd all the Governours of thofe Provinces, becaufe it was daily confirm'd by vifible Proofs of an open Infurrettion. Fames Loper de Marquita was already kept Prifoner in the Fort of Benaffarim at Goo, thofe confin'd, and the Viceroy expected Orders from Spain to difpofe of him, and the Forces; becaufe it was fear'd the King of Ternate might make ufe of the great Supplies which con'd be fent him from chine; efpecially if that were cercain which was then difcourfed in Spaim. It was reported, That the Council of Srate, obferving that the Philippine INands were father an Expence, than an Advantage to the Crown, being many, and hard to be maintain'd, had propos'd to King Philip, to quit them, and withdraw the Court of Juftice, and the Garrifons that defend them. They added the Example of the Clinefes, who abandon'd them, tho they are fuch near Neighbours, and can relieve them with as much Eafe, as if they were joyning to their Continent. That as Spain governs them, the Lofs they occafion is comfiderable, without any Hopes that it can ever be alter'd for the better; a vaft Quantity of Silver being cens thither from 2 (en Spain, both for the ufual Expences, and to buy Commodities; that fo all that Treafure is convey'd by the Hands of the chinefes into the Heart of thofe Dominions, render'd intractable by the Severity of their Laws, by which they are trench'd in, as it were with Fortification, againft all Commerce with Strangers. They alledg'd that a Monarchy difpers'd, and divided by fo many Seas, and different Climates, could fcarce be united; nor could humane Wifdom, by fetrled Correfpondence, tye together Provinces in remov'd from one another by Nature. That thefe Arguments are not the Ofspring of Wit, but of Experience, and Truths obvious to the Senfes. That all fuch as might be urg'd againft them, were only grounded upon Hovour, and full of a generous Sound, but difficult in the Execution; and therefore the beft Expedient, was for the King to ftrengithen himfilf in Eqrope, where his Forces can be ready to meet all Dangers, without being expos'd to the Hazards of the Sea, and the Dominions of others. Each of thele Arguments was fo fully reprefented by the Officers of the Reveriuc. that the Propofal was thought worthy to be debated and confider'd, and had God permirted the King to exclude the Philippine Iflands his Monarchy, leaving them expos'd ro the firft that would take Poffefion, the Moluccos had fo, far been ftrengthen'd, as to become unconquerable.

mifchievous Advice. That moft prudent Monarch anfwer'd, That the Philippines Thould be maintain'd, in the fame Manner they were, and the Court fhonld be invefted with more Authority, that Juftice might prevail, for he laid the Strefs of Government, on its being upright, and impartially adminifter'd. That in the fame manner the Troops Chould be kept up there, and maintain'd ont of the Revenues of New-Spain, or any other of his Kingdoms, fince all the Treafures dif-cover'd, or ftill hid in the Bowels of the Mines, ought to be apply'd to the Propagation of the Gofpel. For what would the Enemies of Chrift fay, if they perceived that the Philippine Mands were left diftitute of the true Light, and is Minifters to propagate it, becaufe they did not produce rich Metals, and other Wealch, like the Reft of the fruitful lflands in $A$ fia and America? That all the Power of Kings, ought to be fubfervient to this Sovereign End, as becomes Sons of the Church, and Promoters of the Apoftolical preaching, which is continned by Succeffion. That fince he had refufed to mitigate the leaft Point of his Severity towards his Northern Subjects, or to grant them Liberty of Confcience; why Thould he remit any thing among Heathens, and Mahometans, which were the Harveft God had alfign'd him, to enrich the Church with thofe Children, fo remote? Thus the Project was put down, and this has always been the glorious Refolution, when miffaken Zeal, or worldly Interefts have propos'd the quitting of thofe Dominions. This feems to have been a peculiar Providence of Heaven, which knew how foon they were all like to belong to the fame Mafter, and thas the Right and Conquefts thould be all United in his Perfon, the one being the Means to recover the other, as has been feen in our Days.
King Ploilip was govern'd by this Religious Motive; but there were others urg'd by fuch as were acquainted with the Riches of $\mathcal{A} f i a$, which are chiefly Diamonds, Rubies, large and Seed Pearl, Amber-Greece, Musk, Civet, Camphir of Borneo and Cbina, Vermillion, Coral, Quick-Silver, Copper, fine Muflins, and Calicoes of Cambaya and Bengala, Carpets, Coverlets, and fine Quilts. Perfan Silks, Brocard, Ivory, Rheubarb, Cardamome, Caffia Fiftula, Frankincenfe, Benjamin, Wax, ChinaWare, Lake for dying, and Phfryck, Cloves, Mace, Gold, Silver, Medicinal Plants, Aloes, Eagle Wood, Calamba, Ebony, and very many more rare Trees, Drazr,Spices, and Ornaments. All this they faid, Venice loft, when the Trade was remov'd to Portugal ; and this fame fir'd up the Sultan of Egypt, as well knowing therein confifted all fubftantial Wealth, to enter into a Cenfederacy with all the Kings of India; who were already alarm'd by the Portuguefe Fleets; fo that they at the common charge fitted out a Navy of Galleys, and other Veffels, in the Port of Suez furnifh'd it with Cannon, and put aboard 3000 Mamelucks, befides a great Number of Veretian and Genoefe Renegadoes. With this Power the Sultan enter'd India, in the Year 1508, and tho the King of Cambaya affifted him, he was vanquifh'd by the Portuguefes in the Port of Chaul. They urg'd, That at prefent thefe Riches are ftill more valuable, and that if the Trade of them were ouce brought into the way of Amboyilippine Illands, it would fave all the Dangers met with, by the many Storms brought by the Portutuefes in their fubject to. For the Clove particularly was Moluccos, to pay their Garrifons. In this Shing they eon, which goes from Goa to the laca and Goa, 24000 Quintals, or Hundred Weight of year carry'd away to MaAt thofe Ports it was dealt to Perfians, Turks, eight of Cloves, little more or lefs. the third Part came to Europe. The Kings, Clinefes, and Africans, fo that fearce Part, whence it was fent to Alexandria. All Achem, in Sumatra, fecur'd another to Malaca, pay eight per Cent. The Spice that commodities, when they come to all the Kingdoms of Europe; and it miaht be comes into Spain is diftributed into bring the greateft Part to Spain from the Philipp contriv ${ }^{\circ}$ d, fay thefe People, one of the nobleft Proie?ts, that will be the Philippine lllands; which would be venue, confidering what a great Price Clove be of for improving of the Rein the Molucco. This was the Opinion when thofe Spain, and how cheap it is Mafter, and it was no eafie Matter to divert the Tre Mands belong to another from the ufual India Voyage, Befides the Religious Men of the Orders of St:

Auguftin and St. Dominick, had already propagated the Faith in thofe and other In inds, whence that which flourifh'd, and advanc'd in Ternate and Tydure was Fec.

Cachil Babu fail'd with his Brothers, and a great Number of Veffels from Tres for Ternate, with much Joy, and forebodings of Victory; greater Forces continually joyning him, through the earneft Defire they had all of delivering thofe Parts from the Portuguefe Domination. As fon as ever they arriv'd at Ternate, they landed, and immediately invefted the Fort, which they call'd the Seat of Servitude. They affaulted the Houfes of the Portuguefes, and that fo fuddenly, that though they had Notice before, and lived in Fear, they fearce ftood upon their Defence. Rage and Succefs made a more than Barbarous Havock. They fet Fire to the Houfes with Fury, and popular Tumult; fo that whatfoever was not within a Wall and Ditch, perifh'd that Day. Thofe in the Fort-attempted to fuccour their People, but greater Numbers of I erisates coming on, killd fome of thofe, who had fally'd out, not only with Darts of folid Canes, which they caft moft dexterioufly, with Arrows, Cymiters and Shields, which they us'd when Idolaters; but with Muskers and other Fire Arms. The reft of the Portugue fes routed, fed to their Fort; for thofe who had gain'd Repuration by fo many brave Exploits, were that Day depriv'd of their Courage, by the Injuflice of the Action they had been concern'd in. They fent again to $G o a$ to defire Relief, and to reprefent the Diftrefs, not only of the Fort of Ternate, but of all the others the King of Portugal held in thofe Eaftern Parts; for they had caft off Subjection to him in moft of them. They forgot not to mention the perfecution of the Religion, and the fearcity of Arms and Provifions, of both which the Ternates had deprived them. Thefe News were flown into India and Spain by other Ways; and all the while the Siege lafted Goa fent Succours to the Moluccos, in their trading Galeons; but the vaft Diflance, the many Shoals, and the violent Storms thofe Seas are fubject to, occafion'd the Lofs of thofe Ships, or put them by their intended Voyage.
The Commanders in thofe Eaftern Ports, who follow'd the Example of thofe of Ternate were not Idle; for the Portuguefes, tha' the reducing of thofe Rebels fucceeded not at that Time, did not mils of obtaining other ViCtories, which fhould we relate them here, would make this look more like a Hiftoy y of all India than of one fmall part of it; befides that the Portuguefes Nation has not wanted Learned Authors, who have tranfmitted them to us, where they may be feen at large. The Spaniards have alfo done the like, in a much more loftier Stile than mine. We muft therefore circumferibe our felves, and return to the Moluccos, where the Befieged, as it were forfaken, and abandon'd by all the Earth, endure the Hardfhips and Perils of Places fo ftreightned.
Thus all their Hopes, under Heaven, depended on their own Valour, and the inviolable Friendfifip of the King of Tydore, fo implacable an Enemy to him of Ternate, that neither the Neighbourhood of the Kingdoms, divided only by an Arm of the Sea, a League and half over, in the midft whereof is a fmall Defart Ifland, which almoft joyns them, nor the ancient and reiterated Alliances, do in the leaft abate of their Hatred, which feems to be fatal, and confequently unavoidable betwixt thofe two Kings and Nations.

However, the Ternates being always intent upon War, and thinking no Practice unlawful, that may fecure their Succefs, they ply'd their Weapons on one Hand, and on the Other, carry'd on their Intrigues, for a Pacification with the King of Tydore: not fo much out of any Defire of coming to a. Conclufion with him, as to the End that being amaz'd with the Hopes of Peace, he might grow flack in Re1 eving and Affifing the Befieged. They offer'd to reftore him fome Places, taken from him during the late Wars; and to give him thote and others, as a Portion with a Daughter to the King of Ternate; befides other Advantages, of which Accommodation the King of Bachian was the chief Manager. To thefe fair Offers, the y added Threats; and both the Kings and their Nitions agreeing in Religion, and it being eafy to cover any Occafion of War under fair Eretences; it happen'd that the Tydores, at leaft while this Politick Gamie was playing, did not afford their Succours with the fame Zeal as they hal done at firft; and that

King, who till then had been a conftant Friend, upon another Confideration fert'd his coming to a Refolution. He waited, as well as the Befieged, the in val of the Portiguefe Succours, and feveral of his Carcoas often touch'd at $t$. Mlands of Borneo, to enquire what Ships pass'd that Way from India. They e: amin'd every Veffel they met, and every fight lorelligence puff'd thein up, as quite caft thern downs. In fhort, both Parties protracted the Time, witli fo little Regard to any other Principles, that all their Courage and Hidelity, depended on it alone.

This is fo certain, that the King of Tydore being juft at the Point of accepting the Wife, and Lands offer'd him by the Enemy, fell off upon the News bronghit him, that a Galleon was feen failing for the Molucio IDands, and he rejected all the Propofals. It was afterwards known to Be bound for the Philippine Iflands, and belong'd weither to the Portuguefe not Spaniards; but to Venetian Metchants, who traded between Manila and China, with feveral Commodities of their own Country, and other Parts of the Levam; fo that the King of Tydore, and the Befieged themfelves began to make frefh Reparations, like Men that fhatpentheir Weapons, and fit their Armour.
Sallios, and the zentstio of the Siege.

Thefe Succours encourag'd them to fever a Salley, to nail up the Enemies Cannon, and thu Attempts. The Befieged made affault d their Camp fill res feveral Times They difmounted all their ceturning Victorious, without any confiderable Lofs. them, becaufe they were not made accor the walls, their Works nothing availing the Portuguefes futtaining it with not according to Art. The Siege lafted five Years, no lefs Obftinacy ; nor wonld notable Refolution, and the Indians prefing with thips of the Seafons have been tollerable, had not they been common to both Parties. Extream Want, was the Occafon of feveral fienal Exploits of that Valout, wherewith they defended their Lives, and the Fort. This produc'd Ragt and Admiration in the Enemy; and an affeetionate Compafion in the Women of the Iland among whom they found Advice, Secrecy, Intelligence and known Favour. So great is the Power of Perfecuted Virtue, that it prevalls, even upon thofe Enemies, who harbour the Memory of a Wrong; to convert it, firft into i Defire of forgetting it, and without long Interpofition of Time, produces a Zeal zo fuppote that Valour they firt hated.

BOOK. III.

BOT H Sides now took the Breathing of a fhort Ceffation; advantagious to Ternate for the Liberty of Trade, and to the Por, tyguefes, becaule it gain'd Tirie to their Hope of Relief, which they concluded muit be near at Hand, by Reafon it had been long expected. They were not difcouraged by Events, thofe having prov'd alternatively Succeffful and Unfortunate, and Victory was tofs'd to and fro; befides that the Interruption of Commerce had knit fome the clofer together in Friendfhip. I I could mention feveral Infances of this Sort, contain'd in Letters, and other Spanijh and Portuguefe Relations, fent by Religious Men from the Molucots, to the Governours of the Plilitpine Iflands, whofe Papers have, upon this Occafion, been lay'd before me, formy better Information, for which Reafon we may make Ufe of fome of them, without departing from the main Subject. The graveft of the Greek and Latin Hiforians iometimes intermix private Adventures, as it were fhort Epifodes to divert the Reader. The Example of great Mafters is a fufficient Authority for Learnerg, for which Reafon I may well be allow'd this Freedom.
Ope Dunate, a brave, Enfign, had contractediftrict Friendfhip with Cachil Tudur a, which was no way obofrutediby the Difficulties of the Seige, nor fo much as interrupted. Duarte was wont in the dead of the Night, to ga fafely into the City in the Habit of the Coumtry, and by the Help of the Language, being Mater of, it, where he was privately admitted into his Friend's Houfe, and well receiv d there on amother Account by Tridurifat, his only Daughter, who, being prevail'd on by the Love fhe bore Duarte, imbrac'd the Chriftian Religion. The Father was not unacquainted w th their Love, but he allo knew that it was attended by Modefly in Tudurifa, and true Courtely in Duarte. Returning to the Fort, he uled to be taken in the fame dangerous, way, by thofe Perfons who had let him down with a Rope. He brought with him fome Intelligence and Provifions; but he came not fo entire himfelf, for the Indian Woman, who was to be his Wife, had robb'd him of his Heart. Nuno Pereyra going the Rounds mifs'd the Enfign at his Poft, and enquiring into it, underfood the Caufe of his Abfence; in Refpect to which, confidering the mighty Power it often has over great Souls, he conniv'd at the Breach of Martial Difcipline, affigning that to the Paffion, without reproving the Lover. Whether he follow'd the Example we read of Quintus Fabius Maximus, in the like Cafe, or on Account that Experience fhows, there is Nothing can hold a Lover fo faft as the Prefence of the lov'd Object; Pereyra enjoining all Perfons to keep the Secret, contriv'd, without offending Tudurra, that his Daughter ffould come privately into the Fort, which the confented to, without many, Perf wafions. Having fo done, the Commander in Chief, callingltris)Eufgen, faid to him, $\mathcal{I}$ am inform'd, that at certain Timies, and that when the Danger is greateft, you forfake us ; but tbat it is not for want of Affection, or not knowing the Duty of your Poft; tho we were not confn'd to thefe narrow Walls, I would not punilb your Failure, becaufe Mildnefs bas ever been more efficacious for correiting of Generous Souts, than Rigour. It will noz be convenient for the Fulure, that wo le left without you, and in Fear for 37hat way befall yout: Here is your Wife, and then the appear*d, brought bither without any Force, or Oppofition from ber. Duarte was amazed, generoully out of Countenance, full of Love, and knew not what to fay; but was excus'd by his Friends, and even by Nunno Pereyra.

Hopes and Defpair of the Befiegcd.

Propofods of Accommodation, and Reafons for it. It was now the Year 1575 , when the Befieged began to conceive fome Hopes of their Deliverance; becaufe the Eangiacks and Caclils of the King of Ternate's Race were divided into Factions, and there wanted not fome among them, who endeavour'd to draw the Portuguefes over to their Partyv Thefe Mifunderfandings made them act lefs vigoroufly; and did not they look on theirs as the Common Caufe, the Defign had fucceeded. The Portuguefes in this Condition, defpaiting of all Relief, the Natives of Ternate on the other Side of the Illand, next thofe of the Meaos, difcover'd a Galeon coming from Malaca, having coafted about Borneo; they concluded it was that which brought the Succours from Portugal, and being affur'd it was fo, they became umanimous again, and prefs'd on the Seige; but Force litule prevailing againft the Refolution of the Befieged, Cacbil Tulo, by Permiffion, propos'd fone Terms, which the Commander in Chief had long Jiffen'd to from the Wall. One Day making feveral Oyertures, Tulo told him, That the King, his Brother, was willing to put an End to that tedious Seige, ufon any Conditions. That to this Effect he had concluded a Peace with the King of Tydore, that he might not relieve them for the Future. That the King of Bachian had joyn'd him for the fame Purpofes, to the End, that fince they were all convinc'd that was their coimon Caufe, they inighit with their joynt Power make their utmoft Efforts. That the Ceffation which had lafted till then, tho' advantages to the King, as encouraging the Trade with the 'Favanefes, and Rwnes, who came to Load Clove, mult of Necefitity ceafe. He ahk'd how long they would expofe their Lives to the utinof Dangers, only to gain an empty Name of Loyal Suljects, which, perhaps; would never be known to him that was to reward it. He bid them confider the Vilfany of his Father, King Aerio's Death, and that by their Obat inate Holding out they made the Murderers Caufe more Cthinal. That they thus fhow they approv'd of anothers Treachery, whofe Punifhent they would compafs by other Means. That they ought to be very thankful, that the King would not involve them in the Guilt of that Wreteh, who contrary to hits folemn Oath, to the Laws of Friendflip, and the Honour of the Portugurefe Nation, or rather to Nature it felf, had Murder'd that King, who mott inviolably obferv'd the Faith he had engag'd to him. Befides, that they were fenfible how little Comfort uncertain Hopes could afford amid ft real Wants; and how impracticable lit was for Relief to come from fo great a diffance, through fuch boifterous Seas, caufing fo many Shipwrecks, and which feem'd' to have confinir'd againft thofe who had opprefs'd and injut'd Ternate.
He concluded his Difcourfe requiring the Commander in Chief, to deliver: up the Fort, or expect the utmof Rigour; for if he onice refus'd the Terms offer'd, and provok'd them, they would fpare neither Sex, nor Age. The Befieg'd were not freelfrom Jealoufie, that here was Fratd in tjefe Offers; yet, perceiving that the Succours never came from India, either becaufe retarded by the African War, in which King Sebafian had engag'd himfelf, or by the Difficulties of that dangerous Voyage; and believing that the two Kings of Tydore and Ternate were reconcil'd, as Tulo told them, thinking he of Tydore, without whofe fupport they could not fubfift, had forfaken thieir Friendfhip, the Propofals were accepted by unanimous Confent, after Nuno Pereyra had return'd a refolute Anfwer, fuitable to that Part of Cacbil Tulo's Words, which contain'd any Threats, fignifying to him, How fittle they mov'd himfelf, or his Men; and that he would hearken to no Conditions to the diffetvice of his God, or his King or to difparage the Bravery of his Soldiers, which had been fo often try'd to the coft of the Natives of Ternate; neverthelefs upon fome other Confiderations, he wouid furrender the Fort, provided that all the Portuguefes might march out in a Body, Colours Flying, with their Wives, Children, Slaves, and all their Goods, having firft Hoftages given them to their content, that no IFarm, or Injury fhould be done thent. That the King fhould fecure them their Paflage to Amboyna, and find them Vefrels; and that fuch as fhould happen to be left in his Dominious for want of them, fhould have no Ranfome demanded of them; either then, or at the time of their departure. That the Fort and Guns fhould be deliver'd to King Babu, upon exprefs Condition, That he fhould hold it for the King of Portugal, and in his Name, to whom he fhould reftore it, whenfoever he effectually punifh'd the Murder of King Aevio. The King eafily Granted, and Swore tu perform all thofe Conditi. ons, beingleager to poffefs himfelf of the Fort, Eefore the Succours arrived, which were now near at hand. Steplien's, the Ternates took up all the advantageous Pofls to view the Portuguefes, who march'd out as if they had been Concuerors; and no fooner were they out of the Fort, than the Natives running in, poffefs'd themfelves of the Guns, with loud Laughter and Shouts, Scoffing at thofe that Jeft it; for the third Day after the Galcon arriv'd, well Mann'd, and furnifh'd with Guns, and all Necerfaries, and Fames de Azambuja in it, as Commander in Chief. They had thoughts of Recovering the Fort, but it was too late, becaufe the Enemy was pofiels'd of all Things, without any Oppofition. Perayra then perceiv'd how great an Obftacle Precipitation is to the chufing of the fafeft Advice, and how infallibly it is follow'd by fruitlefs Repentance, fince had he delay'd but never fo little longer, tho' it were only to weigh the Enemies Propofals, who ought never to be fuppos'd Sincere, he might have fav'd himfelf and Deftroy'd them. For this Reafon, tho' he wanted not an honourable Excufe, be refolv'd not to return to Gca, haying private Intelligence that the Viceroy would not fail $t 0$ fecure him, in Order to cut off his Head. Azambaja protected him in his Galeon, and he went over with many others to Amboyna. The reft jpread themfelves throughout the Neighbouring Tflands, in Veffels they begg'd. Some return'd to Malacn, and only fixteen Portugucfe Families remain'd in Ternate for want of Shipping; who at firf fubmitted to the Portuguechange of their Fortune ; but could not afterwards comply with the Diffes fettle at Tydore. ference there is betwixt Domination and Servitude. The King of Tydore a moft trufty Friend to the spaniards in their greateft Affiction, offer'd them his Illands, Houfes, and Irade of Spice He fent them a good Number of Carooas, which carry'd them over to his Dominions, and foon after afign'd them a convenient Place to build their Houfes and Churches. This CoJony was increafed, and the Number of its Inhabitants augmented by Sancho de Vafconfelos, who fent others from Malaca, being Commander in Chief of Goa, and afterwards of Amboyna, in the Year 1578 . Antisoive other Molucco Ilands are found thofe Birds, they, in their Language, call Manuscodiatas, fignifying Birds of Paradife, from a Fable, credited by thofe fuperftitious People, that they came down from Heaven. The Fort here was afterwards enlarg'd by Nuno I'ereyra, not far from the Port, and then by Fames de Azambuja. The latter did not only contribute with his Induftry, but with his Labour, carrying the Materials himfelf, when it was recuifite to fet the Soldiers an Example, and forward the Work; which the King often view'd, and was well pleas'd to fee the Fortifications. Ho difcours'd

They flrengthen'd themfelves with Works and cther Preparations, erected Forts on high Places; and bending their Minds againft the Chriftians, putt many to cruel Martyrdoms; that fo the Foundation of our Faith may be in all Parts cemented with the Blood of the Faithful. They difmember'd the Bodies, and burnt the Legs Per jectuand Arms in the fight offithe flill Living Trunks. They impal'd the tion. Women, tore out their Bowels, and they furving themfelves, beheld their nill moving Flefh in the Hands of their Executioners. Children were pull'd Piecemeal before their Mothers Eyes, and Infants fill in Embrio (olsmis were rent from their Wombs. It has been made out, that above Gooto Chriftians fell by the Sword in only the King of Ternate's Dominions. This is afferted in the Annual Relations of the Fathers of the Soeiety, who preach'd in thofe Parts. They give an Account of this difinal Rerfecution, with all the Circumftances of the Cruelties $;$ jas how the perfecuted Perfons fled to the Mountains, feeking for Compaffion among the wild Beafts, others caft themfelves into the Sea, where they perifh'd, either devourd by its Monfters, or fwallow'd by the Waves themfelves, not being able to reach the other Iflands. A confiderable Number of thefe religious Fugitives, as they fwam met a Portuguefe Ship, coming to the Relief of sury thofe at Amboyna, and with difmal Voices cry'd out, Help, Relieve ais, for strodons

Yet at this fame Time, when cructry advanced Godss Glory, Providence feem'd to ate Counter in the very Cities, and Deferts. Idolaters and Mallo onetans were convered, and our Religious Men preach dd and catechists, without any Fear of Punihnents, which they rather covered, and thought themfelves unworthy of it; encouraging one another with the Examples the Tyrant made, for-feveral Purpofes, But all thofe People looking upon it as their Duty to feek Revenge, their Cuuely yaining Applaufe underthat Name, and Euroje being involv'd in Difmal Troubles, they mer with no Oppofition in the Execution of their Vengeance, and the Calamity ran fo: high, that in the fpace of thirty Years, they either quite obliterated, or much obfured the Name of Chriftianity in thofe Eaftern Parts, deftroy'd our Churches, and, like thofe who prepare to hunt wild Beafts, arm'd themfelves againft the Faithful who liv'd in more fecurity among thofe favage Creatures, or in Deferts never penetrated by Men, feeding on Herls, and gaining Time, by that lawful Retreat for the fake of the Gofpel, for the Wrath of Heav'n, whofe Executionets thofe Men were, to pals over. However the Chriftians dy'd with fuch Refolution, that the Perfecuters took not a way any Life but what became a frefh Example of Magnanimity, and perhaps Providence might permit that Accident of Aerib, with a Detign to advance the Churehes Glory:  Augufin Si SuItan Babi making his prefent Victory an Inftrument to obtain others, Nunezfent Ship'dlhis Men, in Order to befiege Tydore and Baclian; and tho' he met to Command at with a vigorous Defence in both Places, and the Portiguefe Auxiliaries Amade fome Anends for his Superiority of Power, yet they fubmitted to the Tyrant: This. Revenge made hin fick at no Cruelty. In NovemLev, this fame Tear, a Galeon came to Malaca from India, to carxy Succours for the Moluccos; commanded by Captain Auguftin Nunez, the Eldeit and Bravert Commander in thofe Days, as he made it ap--pear in the Expedition of Cluaul, when it was beiteged by Niza Molucsco, when Don Lteys de Atdyde was Viceroy of India, in the year 1578. The Galeon was ftor ${ }^{2}$ d with all Neceffaries, and in it $J_{n m e s}$ James Lo-Lopez de Mezquita, the Murderer of Aevio, defigntd for Punifhment, in Sa pezdeMez tisfaction for the Wrong done. He was fo ftrong, and fierce, that to fe quita fent cure him, he was fetter'd with a great Chain, the End whereof was made faft Prifoner to to a heavy. Piece of Brafs Cannon. Augiffin Ntintez had Orders to convey Ternate. him to the new King of Ternate, to be deliver'd to him bolted, like a Criminal, that he might pafs fuch a fentence of Death on him as he thought fit, which fhould be executed in his Prefence, purfuant to the Orders fent by the King of Porttrgah. They put him on double Fetters, Manacles, and Chains, and kept him in the Steeridge. Auguftin Nunez went to fueceed Sancho de Vafconcelos, in the Fort of Anboyna; but a ftorm rifing, he was forc'd into the Port of Japara, of Smida, in the greater Fava. The Galeon wanting water, and Refrefhment, he there fent for it ; which the Native Favanefos brought him in 40 Veffels. Among them came rgo Soldiers in the Habit of Peafants, and Fifhermen ; who making many words as is ufual among Buyers and Sellers, drew the Ponyards they brought conceal'd, and furprizing the Portugzefes, fell on with fuch Fury and Cruelty, that they  The Mur-kill'd them all. However he got a Sword and a Bucklet wherewith he cut dewn ten $\operatorname{Zav}$ arefer, revenging on them the Death of the Portwguefos, and they on him, that of King Merio of Ternate, which hadoccafobid fo much Slaughter. Seventy three Chriftians were killd and above the fame Number of Forvirefes, and their Veffels had been taken, but that dhers came to their Aftiftance from the Shore in the Heat of the Action, in which there were Metl with Fire-Locks terlong, the Points of them poiforn'd. It is to be obferv'd, for his Juflification that it does not appear, nor is it reported, he was incens'd to perform that ACt through Intereft, Ambition, or any other private Motives; but was mov'd to it by Informations which perfwaded him it was convenient, for the Eftablifhing and Advancement of Religion, and the pubick Peace. Very hrave men muftalfo be allow'd fome Exceffes of Fiercenefs, which proceed from an extraordinary Force in the irafcible Part of the mind, and wherein Valour is fubdu'd. When thefe Perfons find themfelves encompats'd by great Numbers, and ftreightned by wiongful Violence; if they are not to be daunted and overcome, it comes to pafs that Patience often provok'd turns that Courage into Fury and Rage, which caufes them to make mighty Slaughters, and Examples of Cruelty; led to it not only by Paffion, but alfo by Judgment and Thought, which directs them to caufe themfelves to be dreaded even to Aftoniffinent, to fave themfelves and their People from other great Cruelties which ufually mean Souls attempt and practice upon thofe they ftand much in Fear of. Let this Reflection ferve for a general Excufe to othen Offences of this fort mention'd, or blam'd in our Hifory.

This Accident, in as much as related to the Death of James Lopez de Mezquita, was forgot, or at leaft not known for many Years, for in 1603 the King of Ternate demanded Juftice of our King, againft that Man not knowing that God had fummon'd him before a more upright Tribunal. The News being brought to Malaca, the Commander Arias de Saldana immediately fent away another Galeon, he call'd S. Peter and $S$. Paul, for the Moluccos under command of Peter Lopez de Soufa, and a Galley with I so Soldiers to relieve Sancho de Vafconcelos at Amboyna, where he wanted Frovifions, and was ftreightned. They faild in May 1579 , to touch at Bomeo, there to take in all Neceffaries for the Defign. He arriv'd on that Illand in fune, and found it in an Uproar, occafion'd by the Spaniards who came thither with Doctor Sandi, Governour of the Philippine Iflands in 30 rowing Veffels. He took the City, and put the King to flight, who was a Lover of the portuguefes, and from that time Manila began to bes look'd uponas a place of Arms, for the recovering of the Molucco Iflands; and if Sandi had then employ'd thofe, he carry'd to this other Expedition: againft them, he would have found the Tyrant lefs fettled, and confequently his Revenge more eafy. Yafconcelos died at Amboyna, and Fames de Azant buja fucceeded him, fo that nothing came now from India but fair Promifes. In the Pbilippine Iflands they had no Orders at that Time to intermeddle in thofe Wars, becaufe they then belong'd to another Sovereign, and therefore they were only Lookers on to thofe Martyrdoms, and Revolutions: and employ'd themfelves as they us'd in Camboxay Mindanao, Fapan ande Chinat, and themparticularly inBorneo, without regarding thofe other Succeffes.

Borneo lies between Malaca, and the Moluccos, and according to the Opinion of Gerard Mercator, is that which Ptolomy calls, the Ifand of Good Fortune. A Point of it lies under the Equinoctial, and the greater Part Eorneo dea fcris'd. fretches out to 6 Degrees of North Latitude, taking up the two fiff Parallels. Thus it appears to be above 400 Leagues in Compafs. It abounds

He promifed which would be no difficult Matter, in Regard of the Hatred the People bore the King, that he would make the Kingdom Tributary to the Kings of Spnin. The Governour having taken fufficient Precautions, condefcended to his Recueft, and arming as many Spaniards, and Prilippines as he theught convenient, with all Neceffaries for a great Enterprize, thip'd them, and arriv'd happily at Borneo. This was feen by all thofe who came in a Caravel, from the Mand of St. Micbael ten Leagues before they came to that of St. George, the Bifhop whereof refiding in that of $4 n g l a$, fent the Affidavit of it to King Plizijp the Second, which was receiv'd and much talked of by the Judge Freytas, a grave Perfon. All the Men of the Carawel figntd it, as Eye-Witneffes, who affirm, That being touched with it, they contels'd their Sins at the Sight of the Prodigy, begging Mercy with Sighs and Tears. Our Underfandings ousht to ftand amaz'd, and praife, him that produces both what is Natural, and Miraculous, and wto by fo many Warnings fhows us, that he has referv'd Times, and Moments in his own Hand.

King Sebaftian, at that Time had other Conquefts in View. The Lofs or the Recovery of Ternate and the neighbouring Moluccos concern'd him alone; but he referr'd that to the Governour of India; whilft he himfelf, folicited by the Xevif Muley Maloomet, whom he defign'd to fet upon the Throne of Merocco, tho' with a good Defign, joyn'd the African Army, with another of Catholicks, confifting of the Portuguefe Gentry, of Spaniards, talians, and Germans. And, if we may believe thofe who committed that Expedition to writing, he went over into Africk, contrary to all the known Rules and Maxims of Martial Prudence, which Proportions the the Strength to theUndertaking,to afcertain the Succefs and forecafts, in Cafe Things profper, to fecure and preferve them. This he did upon the Affurances the Xerif gave him, that as foon as ever the Portugzefe Forces appear'd, the People would fubmit to him. But God permitred that moft Chriftian Prince to be kill'd, the Xerif perifhing with him; and their Armies to be routed,

The Prodigies, and Fears of the wifer fort were verify'd in the King of Portugal, and particularly that which happen'd before his Birth. It is certainly reported, that the Princefs Joanna his Mother, one Night faw a great Number of Moors come into her Chamber, in the Palace at Lisbon, clad in feveral Colours; ffee believ'd or fancy'd they might be thofe they call Monetros, who Prodigy. are fuch as do the Duty of Guards in the Royal Apartment. Some went out to enquire, and found them all ftill, as hufht as at other Times. The Princefs feeing the imaginary Moors come in again, fwoon'd away in herLadies Arms. Afterwards at the proper Time, fhe was deliver'd of King Sebaftian, whofe fingular Virtues, fupported by the Loyalty of his Subjects, might have Thin'd as bright as his natural Magnanimity, had not that haften'd his End. That was mourn'd for and lamented by all Chriftendom, and brought Trouble to all its Princes, who began ferioufly to difcourfe about the Succeffor to the Crown of Portugal. There they prefently fwore Henry, the Prince Cardinal, Unkle to the late King, then Eighty Years of Cardinal Age, and the laft Lawful Male of that Royal Houfe, which began in ano-King. ther of his Name. Antony, Prior of Crato, Son to Prince Lewis, pretended to fucceed him, and the' declar'd illegitimate, there was a Party that follow'd him. This Revolution, and the Hurry in fuch difficule Exigences, were the Occafion, that Care was not taken to fupply other Places, much nearer than Ternate. Befides that difmal Accounts brought 5000 Leagues, tho' they were reprefented by Demofthenes, would come cold from his Mouth and fcarce move the beft difpos'd Prince, when never fo much at Leafure; and King Heny, had no Power, but only his Zeal for Religion, to oppole the Tyranny practis'd in the Archipelago of the Moluccos. The Cardinal King thought all his Forces little enough, and neceffary confidering the extraordinary Jealoufie he had conceiv'd, upon our King Plilip's declaring himfelf a Pretender to thole Kingdoms, and having order'd a confiderable

Army to make up to the Frontiers, which he had drawn together during the faid Cardinal's Life. The Generals were the Duke of Alva, and the Marquefs de Santa Cruz, the firft at Land, the other at Sea; and in the mean while the ablef Divines and Civilians of Europe, in all the Schools, and Parliainents writ concerning his Right.

Elizabeth of England, feeing the Princes of Europe, particularly thofe in the Weftera Parts, make Warlike Preparations, as being divided in Opinions; form Leagues, and direct all their Defigns towards the Kingdom of Portugal, fhe to make fome Diverfion with Security, had on a fidden fitted out four Ships, of eighteen Brafs Guns each, and in them two hundred Men, and ten young Gentlemen, who befides employing their Valour, on fuch Occafions as it fhould offer, were to be very intent upon the Bufinefs of Navigation for greater Ends. ## Sir Francis

 Drake his Woynge. $v a$, in the Year 1566 , added fome more Ships. He fet fail from the Port of Plymouth, for the South Sea, and to find out that Streight of Marellan, fcarce believed by the Vulgar, and declar'd by feveral Cofmographers. He promis'd to fail as much as might be to the Northward, and to take rich Prizes, infefling all thofe remote Seas, and to return Victorious into England, through the fame Streight. This prefumptuous Hope he grounded on his own Valour, on the Negligence of the Spaniards, who are intrufted with the Places of Strength; on our want of Ships; and above all on that Opportunity, or Seafon fo full of fundry and extraordinary Commotions. He touch'd on the Coaft of Africk, and refitted all his Ships at Cape Bojador. The Moors took two of his Men, and a Portuguefe Ship pay'd for it, he robbing her at Cabo Blanco of an hundred Quintals, or hundred Weight of Bifket, befides much Fifh, and many Arms. He touch'dat the Illands of Cabo Verde, where he took another fimall Portuguefe Veffel, richly Laden with Wine, Cloth, Holland, and feveral other Commodities, with Sylva, the Pilot in it, who was well acquainted with thofe Seas, and better on the Coaft of Brazil. But fix or feven Days after the Veffel funk, and not a Man was fav'd except only the faid Pilot. Drake went on to the River of Plate, and Winter'd for fome Months in $\mathcal{S}$. Julians Bay, which is not well fhelier'd, but expos'd to exceffive cold Winds, in so Degrees of South Latitude, where he lof fome Men.One Tbomas Haugbton rais'd a Mutiny there, in order to Debauch the Squadron, Drake laid hold of him, and ffruck off his Head. Here they faw eight Indian Giants to whom the talleft Englif/oman. look'd like a Dwarf. They fhow'd their Bows and Arrows, and an Englifhman, who valu'd himfelf upon his Dexterity at thofe Weapons, breaking the Peace effablifh'd with thofe People, let fly an Arrow at one of them, which pierced him through, and he dropt; the others in Revenge difoharged theirs, and killd two of the Eng lijh. The reft then affaild the Indians, bur they ffled fo fwiftly that they feem'd not, to thofe Engli/b who faw and writ this, to fet their Feet on the Ground. They departed thence, as foon as the North Winds they had expected began to blow, and holding on their Coutfe to the Southward, in fifteen Days came to the Mouth of the Streighr.家121A

From thence to the fecond Narrowing they fpent five Days, by reafon of the Currents and Shoals; at a fmall diftance from them they found no Bottom. They met with fome Calins and Storms, and being come into the SouthSea had one which lafted forty Days, and in it loft fome Ships. The ViceAdmiral return'd through the fame Streight into England, where the Queen order'd him to be Hang'd for having forfaken his Admiral; but he was reprievsd till Drakes Return, and then Pardon'd, at his Requeft. He went on with only his own and fome other Ships, but wanted not Men, Provifions, nor Ammunition, he took fome belonging to private Perfons, and the Kings, loadedewith the Plate they were bringing for Spain, a Robbery of great Confequence, not fo much for the Quantity of the Treafure, as for the Ufe it is apply'd to in our Monarchy, which is the Advancement of the Catholick Church, and which thereby ceas'd, and deplorable for the unjuft Abufes it was to be apply'd to in Scifmatical Kingdoms. Having wander'd, Steering various Courfes, in which his Pilots made their Obfervations by Sounding and their Charts, he touch'd at fix Iflands, to fome whereof he gave Names, in Imitation of the fabulous Heroes, and even of true Catholicks, who affign fuch Names according to their particular Devotion. One he call'd S. Bartbolomew, another S. Fames, and a third, which he thought larger and more fruitful, New Albion, from the Ancient Name of England, this is California. There he ftay'd a Month and a half, refitting his Ships, and failing thence to thofe call'd de los Ladromes, or of Thieves, in nine Degrees of North Latitude, kill'd 20 Indians, becaufe they attack'd him with 100 Canoas. Twenty Days after, he came to an Anchor at the Molucco Iflands, having before touch'd at others, without any Action Arrives at worth remembering. His Cruelties, and Robberies might well gain him the Mothe Title of the greateft of-Pyrates, in thofe remoteft Parts, as he had it in luccos. Europe. He came to Ternate, but, fucceeded not at firft, that People being War-like, and at that time Arm'd by their own Malice, and an implacable King. He attempted to barter for Clove, without his Leave, was inform'd how feverely he handled fuch as Tranfurefs'd, and flighting the Advice, the King came to hear of it, and order'd him to be Kill'd. It came very near the Execution; but Drake, whofe Genious well experienced in Frauds was no Srranger to Diffimulation, retir'd to his Ships, to make his Efcape by Flight. Thence he contriv'd to appeafe the King, which was no difficult Matter, by means of fome Prefents he fent him. With them he purchas ${ }^{6} \mathrm{~d}$ the good Will, and an Audience of that cunning Tyrant, and going afhore feveral Times to vifit him, agreed he fhould enter into Amity with the Queen, and Nation of England, and that Factories fhould be fettled out of Hand. The King confented, and Drake promis'd him the Protection and Arms of England; and taking with him, among nther Gifts, a rich Ring the King gave him for the Queen, he fail'd homewards, with a great quantity of Clove. He met a Portuguefe Ship croffing the fmall Channel of Ty dore, but either durft not, or thought not fit to attack her, whether it was for being Inferior in Strength, or out of a Defire of fecuring the new acquir'd Wealth. Scarce was he got clear of Ternate, before the Winds began to tofs him, in that Sea full of Flats, whence they fore'd him, in order Is in $a$ : to deliver him quite up to Tempefts. He was oblig'd to lighten his Ships, Storm... and among other Things of Value, threw over-Board a Cannon, of an extraordinary Bignefs, which the King of Ternate, hearing afterwands of the Storm, cauled to be taken out of the deep Sea. Then he built a Houfe before his Palace, on the Roof whereof lif planted it openly, and pointing over, either on Account of its Magnitude, or by way of Oftentation, and in Memory of the firft Englifoman, that came into his Kingdoms, from whom and the Sea he had taken that new offenfive Booty. Diake went on to the greater $\mathfrak{F} a v a$, where he laid in Provifions of Cazali, Plantans, and Floul, in exchange for Cloth. Next he put into another Ifland, in four Degrees of North Latitude, where he flay'd fix Weeks. There he left a Woman, and two Men, all Blacks, that belong'd to him, giving them Fire, Rice, and fome Grain, that they might People the Place. An Heroick Foundation of a Colony. Then he continurd his Voyage, turning in and out to feveral Places, with unexpected Dammage to all thofe he touch'd at.

It is to be obferv'd, that it being poffitively believed in Spain and the $I_{n-}$ dies, that none had ever pafs'd the Streights of Magellan, fince the firft Difcoverer, except $F$. Garcia de Loayfa, and one of the Ships fent by Don Gutierre de Vargas, Bifhop of Palencia, to the Spice-Iflands, it was look'd upon as incredible, that any Pyrates were come into the South-Sea, efpecially through the Streight, and to the Hlauds of Ternate, and that Archipelgo. This Man was the firft that open'd the Paffage to the Sectaries Hugonots, Lutherans, and Calvinifts, who afterwards pierc'd into thofe Seas, with Ship I oads of perverted Texts, Heretical Bibles, and other Books of unfound Doctrine; but the Divine Providence has given Proofs, that it is fo much Offended at this Hellifh Innovation, tho ${ }^{6}$ it permits Idolatry, and Mabometanifm, that it has not fuffer'd thofe Souls which through its profound Judgments, lie involv'd in the Shades and Darknefs of Ignorance, to imbibe that Poyfon, till it fent them the Gofpel in its Purity. It has Oppos'd thofe new Apoftacies making ufe of, as Inftruments of Spanifh Religious Men, giving Strength to our King, who protects them, his main Defign being the Support of Religion. This Truth plainly appears in the many Victories ahe Church has obtain'd through his Officers, and the Armies maintain'd in the remoteft Parts of the Monarchy, for the Propagation of the Faith preach'd to the moft diftant Indians.

But the better to demonftrate this true Forecaft and Care, I think it a this Digreflion. tions made by the Viceroy Don Francifco de Toledo, directing his Actions to this End, as became a Minifter who follow'd his Princes Defigns, in Order to feeure himfelf againft Drake's furprizing Celerity and Boldnefs; for as much of this as concerns the Molucco Iflands, obliges us to write it, and we will flightly run over all the particular Paffages.
Preparations of the Viceroy.

The Viceroy of Peru was of Opinion, That in Order to fecure the Indies, their Peace and Religion, and for the removing, at firft, of all Obffacles to its Exaltation, and making Examples for a Warning, it was of the greatef Confequence to erect Forts, as divine and humane politick Precautions, and to Arm againf that Pyrate, fo to give a Check to the Northern Parts by his Punifmment. Tothis Purpofe, and in Order to his Deftruction, a more exact Obfervation was to be taken of the Paffes into the South-Sea, and more particularly of the Way he was to take, to return iato his own Country. He was egg'd on ly Fear, or the Lofs of RepuyFismudop:ts tation, becaufe fome Englifh Ships, Part of Drake's Squadron, ran along the Coafts of Chile and Arica, obliging the People to Arm; it being apprehended that Drake had erected orts to fecure the Paffage, for carrying on the Trade of Spice and Jewels, and the bringing in of peiver ing Minifters with their poifonous Doctrines. For this Effect, he pitch'd upon Peter Sarmiento de Gamboa, a Gentleman of Galicia, who had twice a!: ready engag'd with that Pyrate. The firft in the Port of Callao near $L_{i-}$ ma, where he touk from him a Spanijh Ship, laden with Commodities of Spain; the feconda few Days after, purfuing him as far as Panama. The Ticeroy refolv'd he fhould go to difcover the Streights of Magellan, an Enterprize look'd upon as impractable by the South Sea, by Reaton of the many Mouths and Channels which obfruct the Accefs to it, where many Difcoverers fent by the Governours of Peru and Cloile have been loft. Others have attempted it, entering from the North Sea, and mifs'd of the Streight; fome were caft away, or beaten back by Storm, and all gene- Magellan. rally defpair'd of finding it. Rut now that Terror being remov'd, they can take a fix'd Latitude, fettle a Rumb, and fteer a fafe Courfe to the Streight, fo to fecure the Paffage before an Enemy poffeffes himfelf of it. The Viceroy made Choice of two Ships, which he took Care to fee well rigg'd, arm'd and provided. Sarmiento call'd the Bigger, Our Lady of Hope, which was Commodore; the other being fubordinate, had the Name of S. Francis. Two Hundred Seamen and Soldiers were put into them, with virtuous and learned Religious Men, fit for that Employ. Captain Folm de Villalobos was appointed Vice-Admiral. Ferdinand Lamero Head Pilot, and under him Ferdinand Alonjo and Antony Pablo, all of them very able Pilots in both Seas. Thefe took an Oath of Fidelity, Difficultio of the Streight of and the Viceroy gave the Admiral particular Inftructions, the Purport whereof was, That they fhould purfue the Pyrate, fight him till taken or killsd, and recover the great Booty he had taken upon the King's Lands His $\mathrm{I}_{\mathrm{rf}}^{\mathrm{f}} \mathrm{f}$ u* and Ships, whatfoever the Hazard might be, fince they had fufficient Men, gions. Arms and Ammunition to overcome the Enemy. That they fhould fail into 50 or 54 Degrees of South Latitude, as might be moft Advantageous, about the Mouth of the Streights of Magellan. That both Ships fhould have Lights out at Night, that fo they might not lofe Sight of one another in the Dark, but always keep together. He charg'd them to be unanimous in their Confultations, particularly the two Commanders; which Direction was not fo well obferv'd, as it ought to have been, thro ${ }^{\text {e }}$ the Vice-Admiral's Fault. They were commanded to lay down the Ports, and Seas in exact Draughts. To take Poffeffion of any Country they landed on for his Majefty. When they met with any Towns of Indians, to mollify and endear them by difcreet Courtely, and gain their Affections with fuch Gifts, as fhould for that Purpofe be deliver'd to the Commodore, being Siffars, Combs, Knives, Fifhing-Hooks, Buttons of feverail Colours, Looking-Glaffes, Hawks-Bells, Glais-Beads, E'c. To carry with them fome Indians to ferve for Interpreters; and fo provided difcreetly for all. other material Points. Then to encourage them he made a Speech, intermixing it with Hopes and Exhortations. The Commodore having conferr'd with his Vice-Admiral and Pilots, concerning the Defign of their Voyage ; they agreed, That if any Strefs of Weather fhould happen to part the one Ship from the other, they fhould carefully feek one another out, or make the Mouth of the Streight in the South-Sea to the Weft ward, there to wait for one another. The next Das being Sunday, the ixth of Ofober, 1579. When they had all confess'd and receiv ${ }^{6} d$ the Holy Eucharift, they embark'd in order to introduce the Faith into thofe Nations void of all Worfhip. On Board the Capitana, or greater Ship, the General, or Commodore Sarmiento, $F$. Antony de Guadranivo, of the Order of $S$. Francis, and Vicar-General of this Expedition; the Enfign Fobn Gutierrez de Guevara, Antony Pablos, and Ferdinand Alonfo, Pilors, with 54 Soldiers. In the other Ship, with $\mathfrak{F o l n}$ de Villalobos, $F$. Clrijtoploer de Merida, of

His Voyage the faid Order of S. Francis, Ferdinand Lamero, chief Pilot of that Ship, with whom, and the Seamen and Soldiers, they made 54 ; and the whole Number in both Veffels as was faid above.

They faild from the Port of Callao, belonging to the City of Lima, and that Night came to an Anchor at the Ifland, two Leagues from Callao, in 12 Degrees and a half of South Latitude. On the firft of November they pafs'd in. Sight of thofe they call Unfortunate, in 25 Degrees, 20 Minutes, which were accidentally difcover'd by the Pilot Foln Fernandez, being bound for Chile the fecond Time, immediately after Magellan's Difcovery, fince the Year I520. They are now called, the Iflands of S. Felix, and S: Ambor. Here Sarmiento obferv ${ }^{\text {d }}$ the Difference, betwixt this Courfe, which he calls the True one, and the Imaginary. This he noted down
His Caje and Capacity. with extraordinary Curiofity, employing all the Care and Art of his Pilots, and his own, which was not inferior to theirs, nor to others in any Martial Knowledge, as will appear by his Treatifes, if publifh'd, of Navigation, cafting great Guns and. Bullets, Fortification, and Knowledge in Aftronomy, for failing in all Seas. They never quitted the Lead, the Aftrolabe, and the Charts, either in the Deep, in Ports, Bays, or amnng -54 Mountains, and Currents, which producdd a very ample Relation he fent to King Pbilip, whence we took this Abridgement. There he fets down the Points in the Heaven anfwering to the Earth, the Dangers, Iflands, Promontories and Gulphs, Geographically and Corographically. The next Sunday, Sarmiento order'd all the Men to land, in order to Sarmiento take Poffeffion, and perform'd all that is contain'd in the Authentick Inftrument of what happen'd that Day, the exprefs Words whereof are thus,

And he gave the Name of Our Lady of the Rofary to this Port, as has

And as foon as the Crofs was fet up, they worfhipp'd it a fecond Time; and they all pray'd, beleeching and intreating nur Lord $\mathcal{F} E S U S C H R I S T$, would be pleas'd that what they did might be for his Glory, and to the End that our Holy Catholick Faith might be exalted and dilated, and the. Four Days after, Sarwiento, in the Vice-Admiral's Boat, with the Pilots, Pablos and Lamero, and ten Sailors and Soldiers, with Muskets, Bucklers and Swords, and four Days Provifion, fet out of this Port to difcover the Channels they faw, that they might not endanger the Ships. Going out by the Ridges of Roeks, he run along the Gulph, clofe to the Shole, all which he obferv'd, and founded the Harbours, giving Names to them and the Mountains, according to their Shapes, fuch as SugarLoaves, Pitchers, Guinea Peppers, and the like. He obferv'd the Trees, the Plants and the Birds. At one Place on the Shore he found feveral Tracts of People, and two Poniaids or fuch Weapons made of Bone, with a. Crofs on the Handles, near a fmall Stream of frefh Water, whofe

Sands are Red, and therefore he calld it the Red River, which falls into a Harbour, and that alfo took the fame Name: They faw abundance of Finh, and among the Shells thrown up ly the Sea, vant Quantities of Oyters and Muffels, and in thofe that were left upon the Rocks above the Water, great and fmall Pearls, fome Grey, others Whise. This Sort of Fifh, at certain Times, the Shells being firft open, gape with their Mouths, and receive the pure and fubftantial Dew, which, as it were, impregnates them with Pearls, which are in Cnlour antwerable to the Nature of the Dew. If they receive it pure, they produce them white if dinfurbt, they are of a Dark, vor other Muddy Colours. Saruriento defcribes the Vexation that tormented him and his Men; for being eager to fatisfy their Hunger with Oyfters and Muffels, and they being unfit to Eat, becau'e ot the Hardnefs of thofe Pearls they found in them, they threw them awray, curfing the Inventors of putting a Value on thole Productions, or Kornyneffes of Fifhes, which Nature had trebly hid in the Waters of the Sea, in Shells, and in the Fifh it felf. They faid, that true Wealth confifted in tame Cattle, Fruit, and Corn brought up by Tillage, as they had in Spain; for that precious Obfacle to feeding, then not valu'd, depriving them of the Suftenance of the Shell-Fifh, and being forc'd to live ten Days on the Provifion they brought for four, the Faft made them all Philofophers. From this Red Harbour, he was obliged to return to the Ships left in that of the Rofary, no Day paffing without violent Storms; when they had run backward, and forward, above 70 Leagues, landing on Iflands, and taking Poffeffion of them. They were Fruitful and Habitable, but till then Untill'd and Defart. From a very high Hill, he difcover d the main Chanel, which runs out into the great Ocean, and fo many other Chan-

Here the Vice-Admiral began to caivl, 「aying, They were imbay'd, and that it was impoffible to hold on their Voyage that Way; and would have quitted his Admiral, as he did afterwards. From Red-Fort they held on their Courfe, trying thofe in other Illands. Sarmiento came to a Bay, which he calld S. Francis's, where, as they were taking their Station, a Soldier fired a Piece at fome Birds, and in Anfwer to the Gun, certain Indians, near a Mountain, on the other Side of the Bay, gave horrid Shouts. By the firt Noife, the spaniards thought it had been made by SeaWolves, till they difcover'd the naked Red Bodies. They afierwards found the Reafon of that Colour, for they daub'd themfelves ffom the Head to the Feet with a glutinous Red-Earth. Samiento took fome of This Company into a Boat, and coming to a Thicket, found them in the clofeft of the Trees, without any other Cloathing but that Clay as Red as Blood. Only one old Man, who talk'd to, and commanded, and was oley'd by them, appear'd cover'd with a Cloak of the Skins of Sea Wolves. Fifteen Youths came out upon the open Shore, near the Seaand drawing near, with peaceable Demonftrations, very eannefly pointed, miento.
lifting up their Hands towards the Place where the Ships remain'd. Th ${ }^{\mathrm{e}}$ Spaniards did the fame. The Indians came clofe, and Sarmiento giving them two Towels and a Night-cap, for he had nothing elfe then, and the Pilots fome other Trifles, they were well pleas'd. They gave them Wine, which they tafted and then threw away. They eat of the Bisket, but all this did not fatisfy them; for which Reafon, and becaufe they were on an open Shore, in Danger of lofing the Boat, they return'd to their Station, making Signs to the Indians to go to the Boat. They did fo, and Samiento pofted two Sentinels for the more Security, then forcibly feizd one of the Indians for an Interpreter, put him into his Boat, embrac'd him lovingly, cloath'd and fed him. This Place he call'd, The Point of People, as being the firt where he found any. Thence he proceeded to Three finall Iflands, lying in a Triangle, and lay there. They went on, taking Draughts of the Lands, and being before a very craggy Country, the $I_{n}$ dian who had never ceas'd fhedding Tears, throwing cff a Shirt they had put him on, leap'd over-board, and fwam away. They held on their Way, quite weary of teeing fo many Iflands, containing ftrange Productions of Nature, but without any Inhabitants. Only in one of them, which they calldd, The Cleft Rock, neara deep Cave, they found much Tract of Men's Feet, and the whole Skeleton of a Man or Woman. They went on thence. with Storms through incredible Solitudes, which it would be too much to defcribe, tho' our Defign were to treat only of this Voyage. At another Land, where they arriv'd full of Uncertainty, as it were by Accident, in the Bay they calld, Our Lady of Guadalupe, thinking to difcover whether one Channel ran to the Eaft, and another to the North; they faw a Piragua, being a Veffel made of Planks put together, without any Sides, and fometimes of Rufhes, and of Calabaßbes, and properly a Float, coming along on the Water, and in it five Indians, who getting to the Shore, left the Liragua, and ran up a Mountain in a Confternation. The Pilot went. into the Piragua, with four Soldiers, and the Boat proceeded further.
Coming to another Point, where they thought there were more People,

A Cottage and what 3n it.

- 52.2 a they only found a low round Cottage, made of Poles, and cover'd with broad Barks of Trees, and the Skins of Sea-Wolves. In it were litile Baskets, Shell-Fihh, fmall Nets, and Bones for Sticking of Fifh, like Harping Irons, and Scrips full of that Red Earth wherewith they dye their Bodies, mftead of Cloaths. This is all the Gayity and Habit they ufe, inftead of the Gold and Silks worn in the Courts of Princes. Sarmiento left the Piragua, and return'd to the Ships with only the Boat, becaufe his Provifions were fpent. In this froall Veffel, and a Brigantine, he found newly built by his Company, whilft they were viewing thofe mof defart Iflands, with the Advice of the Vice-Admiral, he went from the Red Harbour, and finding no other fafe for the Ships, return'd to the fame. Then in the Boat calld Nuefira Senora de Guia, or Our Lady of the Guide, Snow of feveral Colours. He went, away to make Tryal of the Mouth which appear'd to the Eaftward under a mighty long Ridge of Snowy Mountains, fo various, that they faw fome Tops cover'd with white, others with blew, and others with black Snow. Sarmientn calls that the Continent. There is no Num- ber of the Iflands he took Poffeffion of, and thofe he difcover'd, being inGacceffible in other Archipelagos, from the Top of a Mountain rifing above thofe about it, and coyer'd with blew Snow, which he compares to the Colour of the Turky Stones. This Height he eall'd Anno Nuevo, that is, Nem. Year, becaufe he found it on the fint Day of the Year, 1580 . He left no Saints Name, or the Refemblance of any natural Thing, but what he apply'd to diftinguifh thofe Iflands he touch'd at, ereding Croffes on them all, and writing as he did in the firf. He faw Men, only in thefe here niention'd.

He ran again in his Boat through thofe Seas, where Nature feem'd to fet up new Iflands every Day; and Anchor'd in a Harbour, where, among Sarmienother Precautions for Navigation, he drew a Meridian Line on the Earth, to's Indzoand mark'd the Magnetick Needles, refrefhing them by touching again, ftry. becaufe they had receiv'd fome Damage by the Storms and Damps. How weak a Guide have Men for mighty Enterprizes! He profecuted his Difcovery of little Iflands, and taking Poffeffion; and obferv'd an Eclipfe for the Benefit of Navigation, in the Port of Mifericordia, or Mercy, as he nam'd it. The Vice-Admiral not coming to him, he fuppos'd he was retarn'd to Lima, however he waited for himten Days, and five more in another newly difcover'd, and call'd, Nueftra Senora de la Candelaria, or Our Lady of Candlemas, three Leagues from the other. This Time having been agreed upon between them to expect one another, which when expir'd, each was to make the beft of his Way into Spain; Sarmiento being pofitive, contrary to the Opinion of the Pilots, that there was the Streight of Mogellan.

On St. Agnes's Day he Anchor'd at the Ifland which forms that Harbour, for which Reafon he gave it that Saint's Name. From the Ridge of a Hill, which hangs bending like a Bow over a River, he perceiv'd five Na tive Indians, who with Cries and Signs defired him to come to them; the Spaniards anfwering them in the fame Manner, the Indians held up a white Scarf, and our Men another. When they were come down to the Shore, they feemsd to requeft they would draw near. Sarmiento fent them bis Enfign, and the Pilot Ferdinand Alonfo, with only four Men, that they might not fear; however they durf not come near the Boat. One of our Men went ahore, and yet they would not truft him, yet drawing nearer becaufe he was alone, he gave them Chaquiras, that is, Glafs-Beads, Hawks-Bells, Combs, Eax-Rings, and Hempen-Cloth. Obferve what mighty Defigns were couch'd under thofe Childifh Gifts. Then the Enfign and Pilot came afhore, cherifning and giving them other Toys, and Thow'd them what every Thing was for, by applying it to the U'e before them. This pleas'd them extreamly, as did fome little Linnen Flags, or Bannors, our Men carry'd, made of narrow Slips of Frencl, Linnen, Canvas, and Silefia Cloth. This made Sarmiento judge that they had before feen Europeans, and they, without being ask'd, fignify'd by intelligible Tokens, that two Ships like ours had pafs'd that Way, or were ftill thereabouts, pointing to the South Eaf, and in them bearded Men, clad and arm'd after the fame Manner. This was the firft Intelligence they found of the Englifo Ships under Drake. The Indians with fmiling Countenances promis'd to come again. They went up the Land, and our Men aboard the Ship, which not being far off, Sarmiento came aftore to rake Poffeffion, with the ufual Religious and Civil Ceremony .

The next Day the Enfign and Ferdinand Alonfo were with fix Soldiers by break of Day in the Harbour, carrying a confiderable Quantity of Toys, to M 2 gain the Affections of the Natives, who came allog but would not draw near our Men. They made the fame Signs they had the Day before. The Spaniards to be beuter inform'd of what Courfe the Englifi Steerd, fan at the Indians, and took three of them, every two Soldiers holding one of them, and tho' they gave our Men many Blaws and Bangs, ftruggling to get loofe, they could not prevail, and yer were very ftrong. The spaniards put up alis that they might get them to the Ship, where Sat miento received, and treated them Courto onfy. They Eat and Drank, and Kindnefs föfar prevail'd, that they laid, afide all Fear, and Laugh'd. Being fh6w'd the narrow Slips of Limen, they pointed with their Hands to a Bay, where the Ships had Anchor'd, with the bearded People, who had Arrows, and Partefans. One of them frow'd two, and another one Wound they had receiv'd fighting againft the Men of that Fleet。

The Vice-Admiral was now gone back to Chile, and among other Accidents which happen'd in his Return, he was wont to tell, that being come to the Ifland Morha; he fent his Boat thither to ask fome fupply of Provifions, and underftanding how Friendly they behav'd, themfelves towards Drake, and that the Hatred thofe People bear the Spaniards might be an Obfacle to him, his Meffengers, by Order, conceal'd their being fuch, pretending they were LutJerans. The Iflanders gave Credit to the Fiftion, being deffrous to gain Friends, for preferving of their Liberty. Accordingly they fent them Flefh, Bread, and Fruis, with a Letter, in anfwer to theirs, the Superfeription thereof in Engli/h run thus, To the very: Magnificent Lords, the Lutherans, in the Soutb Sea. Our Men anfwertd, That face they had fupplied them with fuch plenty of Provifions, they defríd they would come and partake. About 30 of the Prime Caciques accepted of the Invitation, and camevery Joyfully, in a Canoe, to our Ship. No fooner wére they Aboard, than the Vice-Admiral, not regarding their Complaints, gave order to loofe the Sails, which were ready, and carry'd them away Prifoners to Chile. Some things that befell him, might juftify his deferting his Superior, but they muft be left to thofe who write a particular Hittory of thote Actions. To return to Sarmiento. In the aforefaid Port: of Candelaxia, or Candle$n_{2} a \int_{s}$, the Pilots prefs ${ }^{3} d$ him hard, with Intreaties and Proteftations, to do as his Vice-Admiral had done, reprefenting how much his Men were harrafs'd, and his Ship difabled, and that he had done more than all the Difcoverers before him. That they wanted Anchors, Cables, and Rigging; that the Winds oppos'd him, without which it was impoffible to proceed. This wàs a Dangerous Tryal, becaufe amidft the Complaints, and almof Threats of the Pilots, there was a mixture of Flattery, commending Him, Kle is refolute, and goes on. for that no other Difcoverer had ventur'd fo far; fo that Sarniento was no lefs mov'd by their Praifes than by their Anger. However he bore up againf both, and feverely check'd the Pilots: Who knows but he might conceal the fame Fears they urg'd? And in fhort, he appear'd fo Refolute againf all they could fay, that he brought them to his Beck. He faild thence, Keeping the Channel, and about a League to the South-Eaft,the Indians fhow'd him the way the Bearded Men took, of whom; after. killing many, they, as was afterwards known, favid one Catberine, and a Boy, both Englijn, who

Somewhat farther in another Illand, which the Indianis. faid was call'd Puchachailgua, full of extraordinary high grey Rocks; the beardedbearded Men again fought the Natives without Succefs. They went on to another Illand Nam'd Capitloilgut, on the Coaft call'd Cayrayxaxitiguat. Simmiento did not change the Ancient Names of Countries, when he could learn them. They were fufticiently difmay'd in the next they came at, thinking they were Imbay d; but prefently after they took Heart again, at the Sight of the Clanmel, which Begins at the Mouth calld Xhult egra, and it widen'd, binging them our to arnof fpacious Sea, tull of thoulands of Hands. Paftug by, in Sight of one of then, they perce iv'd high Smakes; and the Captive Indians Began to Weep, and they faw it was for Rear of the Natives, expreffing that they were Glants, and fought defperately. Our Men encourag'd them, giving them to uiderfand that they thould be able to deal with thofe People. They went afhore on that Country, which is call'd Jinquictifgua. Satmient a alrer'd it, in Honour of the Crofs he erected there, calling it, the Ifland of the Crofs. There he faw Abundance of Whales, Wolves, and other Sea-Monfters, and great Clods of Snow, on the Waves: He made ready his Camon, and fhall Ams, providing againft both Pirates and Natives, for he expected to find the Englifh poffeffed of the Land. From that Time he food uponhis Guard, 1 and no Man quitted his Atms. They went on to a third Ifland, which is the biggeft, heard Humane Voices, and faw fome Piragiuas, with the People that cry ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{d}$ out, who were croffing from one Ifland to another! Our Men drew near in the Boat to take a View, and all of them put inte al clean Harbour, whence they diccover d a Town, not Barbarous, but Decent and Lofty; like ours in Eyrope, and abunazace of People, who having funk the Piragzas, and landing on the Mountains, with theif Arm's in their Hands, calld to our Men from a Wood, to Land, as ours did them to draw near the Sea Among the Trees appear'd imany more of thofe Inlanders, with Bows and Arrows, as if they intented to fall on. This made our Men difcharge fome Muskets at them, the Noife whereot fo tervify'd the Indian Women, that they fet up hideous Shricks, and therefore the Spaniaris forbore Firing, for fear of lofing all hopes of gaining their Affections, By this time the Ship which had been Cruizing up and down, came imoithe Harbour: Sarmiento made a Gur ready, and the Brat came Aboard, Towing a Pivagua after it. Having writ the Inftrument of Poffeffion, tho' he had non inquir'd into the Government of the Irhabitants of that great Town, he Landed on the Shore, whence is difcover'd a vaft high Mountain, all white with aged Snow, and encompafs'd with Rocks. Ancient Relations call'd it Or lanro's Bell, he being one of Magellan's. Companions. He Sail'd on to 54 Degrees Inatitude, at the Point he call'd of S. Ifidorus. Near to it the Natives call'd out to him, and coming up to our Men, Embrac'd them fa- Tractable miliarly. They fat down to Converfe, by Signs, with the Enfign, the Pilot, and Eight other Chriftians, fignifying, that they were pleas'd with their Friendfhip, and thofe rich Gifts; and gave fuch confufe Tokens of the Englija having pafs'd that way, as the others had done. Then they return'd to their Huts, and the Admiral having taken Poffeffien, and found the Latitude to be 53 Degrees, and 40 Minutes, advanc'd in fight of the Coafl, which eight Leagues from thence lies flat with the Sea, and forms a Shore of whire Sand. Before he came to it he Difcover'd a prodigious high burning Mountain, cover'd with Snow; where the Fire and Sarmiento was fo well pleas'd with having thus exprefs'd his Devotion, that when he returnsd to Spain, he intreated the King, to direct that Streight to be generally fo call ${ }^{-}$d, and his Majefties Orders. The Poffeffion of this fo remarkable Place was taken with extraordinary Joy, inferting in the Inflrument the Claufe of Pope Alexander the 6th's Bull, the Title that gives the Kings of Caftile, and the Limits affigned by the Line he drew through both the Poles of the W orld, as Gods Vicar. Guadramito faid MaPs, and they all heard ic devonty, confidering it was the firft offerd up in that Place by Man to his Creator. It was intended as a Thank fgiving, and they all took Courage to undertake any difficult Enterprize. They faw the Track of Tigers, and Lions, and allo White and Grey Parrots, with Red Heads $;$ and they heard the freet Notes of Goldfinches, and other Birds. Halding on their Courfe along the Channel, with exceflive hot Weather, they came into a Bay, that was coverd with white Weeds, and Anchordd at the Point, on which a Company of Giants immediatly appear'd, who calld out to them, lifting up their Hands Unarm'd; our Men imitated their Actions, which denoted Peace on both fides. They being come to the Boat, which was Guarded by ten Musketeers, the Enfign leapsd Afhore, with tour orhers. The Giants made Signs to him to lay down his LeadingStaff, and then they withdrew, to the place where they had hid their Bows and Arrows. The Enfign did as they'directed, and then fhew'd them. the Toys and Gifts he defign'd for them. This withheld them, but ftill they were jealous, wherefore our Men fuppofing their jealoufy proceeded from what they had fuffer'd before, and guefling they had receiv'd fome dammage from the Englijh Pyrate, to be the betrer enform'd of it, ten of our Men fell upon one of the Giants, whom they took; but had enough to do to fecure him. The others running to their Arms, feturn'd fo quick upon the Spaniards, that they had fcarce time to get into their Boat. They fhot their Arrows, which flying thick, ant our Men taking care to avoid them, they dropt two Muskets. The Steward of the Ship was fhot in the Eye with an Arrow. The Indian they took was a Giant even among the other Giants, and the Relation fays, he look' d to them like one of the Cy clops. Other Relations affure us, each of thefe Giants is above three Yards high, and they are proportionably fpread and brawny. Being brought into the Ship, he was extraordinary melancholy, and tho' they offer'd him the beft they had to Eat, he would take nothing all that Day. They fet Sail, croffing Channels, and paffing by IIands, in moft of which they falued them with Smokes. In the hatroweft Patt, which they call'd of Our Lady of Grace, through which they muft pafs of Neceffity, and is

They made hafte thro' it, and again faw the Natives on another Point of Land, calling out, and faking their Cloaks, or Woolly Blankets. Sarmiento went to them with eighteen Soldiers, Only four Indians appear'd with Bows and Arrows, and making Signs of Peace with their Hands, faid, Xitoote, which, as was afterwards known, fignifies Brothers. They pofted themfelves on a rifing Ground, and when the Spanidxds were landed, made Signs to them for one of our Men to come to them. One went unarm'd, writh fome Gifts, as Glafs-Beads; Hawks-Bels andCombs, which they received pointing to him to go down again. He did fo, and the Enfign went up in his ftead, obliging them with other Prefents. They accepted of them ${ }^{2}$ and yet neither they, nor any Courtefie could difpel their Jealoufie. Sarmiento left them, to avoid provoking them, and going up the Mountain another way, to view the Ridge, Plains, and Channels, the four Archers appear'd before him, and without any Provocation receiv'd, but on the contrary after receiving the aforefaid Gifts, they furioully affaulted our Men, wounding the General with two Arrows in the Side, and betwixt his Eyes; and another Soldier had an Eye put out. The reft of the Spaniards covering themfelves. with their Bucklers ran at them, but the Giants fled up the Country fofwiftly, that a Mufket Ball would feare over-take them. This Action feems to verifie the Cowardice the Authors of Fabulous Books, commonly call'd Romances, afcribe to their Giants, Sarniento view'd the Land, call'd it Nueftra Senora del Valle, or Our Lady of the Vale, difcovering betwixt two fpacious Ridges, fome delightful Plains, numerous Towns, lofty Buildings, Towers and Pinacles, and to his Thought. fumptuous Temples of fo Majentick an Appearance, that he fcarce believ'd his own Eyes, and judg'd it an imaginary City.

And fince his coming to Ternate, oblig'd us to write all thefe Particulars, we could not, once they began to have any Place in this Relation, forbear making it perfect by delivering the Succels of them, A compleat Hiftory is the Witnefs of Times, the Light of Truth, the Life of Memoxy , and in fine the Miftirets of Life. Therefore, to peiform the Duty incumbent on it from fuch important Employments, it is not to fpare any notable Digreffions; efpecially whenthey deviate but little from the main Subject, and have fome Connexion with it. This here is die to a molt prudent Action of King Philip Md. and lis Minifters'; and Ahows his $\mathrm{C}_{2}-$ tholick Indignation 'againit Sectaries, and his Zeal for prefepving the Faithitul of his Indies untainted, and improving the Difpofition in the Souls of Idolaters, towards drawing them to the Faith. Sarmiento did not go up to the great City he difcover'd at a Diftance, becaule he would not depart from his Ship, to which he return'd, leaving us fill defirous to be throughly fatisfi'd of fo ftrange a Thing. By the Way he found two extraordinary long Cloaks, or Barbarian Blankets, made of Sheep-Skins with the Wooll on, and a pair of Shoes made of raw. Hides to bind about the Feet, which the Indians could not carry off, throf the fearful Precipitation of their Flight. They continu'd their Difcovery, and the Wind oblig'd them to ftrike over to the Southern Coaft, five Leagues diftant from Our Lady of the Vale; and tho ${ }^{6}$ the cold W inds blew, they found this Country more Temperate than the others. It is inhabited by proper People, has wild and tame Cattel, and Game, as was declared by Pbilip, fo they call'd an Indian they brought over, in Honour to King Plilip. It produces Cotton, a certain Sign of its being Temperate; and Cinnamon, by them call'd Cakea. The Air is very ferene, and the Stars appear bright, fo that they are plainly to be oblerv'd, lay'd down, and Sont/f)

Sarmiento fays it is ufeful in thofe Parts to obferve the Crozier, which is 30 Degrees above the Antartick Pole, and that he made ufe of it, for taking of Latitudes, as we do in our Hemifphere of the North Star, tho' with another Sort of Computation. And in Regard that the Crozier does not ferve all the Year, he fought out another Polari Star, nearer to the Pole, of a fhorter Computation, but general and perpetual; and he us'd fueh Induftry, that he difcover'd, and afcertain'd it by Obfervations, and Experiments of feveral clear Nights. He fettled the Stars in the Crozier, and two otherCroziers, and two other Polar Stars, which take a very fmall Corpafs; this he did for the common Benefit of curious Sailors. Notwithftanding all thefe Tokens, and the Incouragement of humane Cu riofity, no Man has ever gone to thofe Towns, which had fuch promifing Signs of Civility; tho' thofe rude Giants did not feem to contirm thole Appearances of a well-fettled Country: Sarmiento ran along the Streight, never ceafing to found, and lay it down till he came to a Cape, he caU'd, Of the Holy Ghoft, from which to that of the Virgin Mary, there are Iro Leagues from the South to the North Se.a. Here they began to order their Courfe with due Difference. They faw Whales, and on the Shores, Thickets of feveral unknown Plants. They ran thros Storms and Dangers, furprizing even to fuch experienced Sailors as they were. They all vow'd Offerings to Churches, Alms, and Pilgrimages to Places of Devotion in Spain, with orher folemn Engagements, on which fearful Mortals in Danger, devoutly ground and encourage their Hopes. The Tempeft ceastd, and on the 25 th of March, about Midnight, sarmient o faw a low white Rainbow, ofpofite to the Moon, which was moving againft it; and it was occation'd by Repercuffion of her Rays, which fell by Refraction on the nppofite Clouds. He fays, That neither he nor any other Perfon, everfaw, heard, or read of the like; but by his good Leave, in Albericus Vefpufiusts Epitome of Voyages, we read that the fame happensd in the Year 5501 , in that fame Place, where both of them taking the Sun's Altirude, they found him in 23 Degrees large, which is as good as is Leagues. This Day they were within the Tropick of Capricorn. Proceeding for ward, they loft their Reckoning, and the Hopes of recovering it, for Want of Mathematical Inftruments; bue on the firt of Aprils the Ifland Afcention.

1580, at Night, they difcover'd, ard obferv'd the Polar-Star of the Triangle in 21 Degrees; and on the 1oth of the fame Month, they faw the Ifland of the Afcention, at eight Leagues Diftance. They anchor'd there, found Water, and faw feveral Croffes, erected by fome Poxtuguefes, who in their Way to India, were caft away there by a Storm, and the Living, out of Devotion, fet them up on the Graves of thofe that $d y$ 'd. On one of them they found a Board nail'd, with this Infcription, Don John de Caftel Rodrigro, Commodore, arriv'd bere with five India Ships, on the $13 t h$ of May, i576. Near to it, Sarmiento fet up another, as a Memorial, that the firft Ship coming from Peru, touch'd there, having pals'd thro' the Sireight from the South to the North-Sea, on the King's Account, with the Occafion of his Voyage. This Ifland abounds in Sharks, which are Sea-Monfters, Fifh, and a Sort of fuch greedy and troublefome Fowl, that

He fav'd his Hat, by clapping up his Hand immediately, but loft the Letter, which they pull'd away by Force; and afreewards they faw a Fray in the Air, the others endeavouring to take it from that Harpy, which finft fnatch'd it away, This Inand lies in 7 Degrees and a half of South Latitude, and it is verxy obferveable, that thot the spaniands were very attentive to their Compals, and took fo many Precautions for their Security, yet fuch was the force of the feveral Currents, that when they thought they were 60 Leagues from Pernanbbuco Eaft and Weft, at the River of Virtues, on the Coaft of Brazil, they found themfelves 400 Leagues to the Eaft ward; fo that the Currents deceiv'd, and drove them 340 Leagues from the Point zhey had fettled by the Degree of Latitude. Sarmiento difcourfes largely upoti this Effect, charging the Sea-Charts with Falfhood, and being ignorantly laid down. Dreadful Tempeftsenfufd, till on the 28 th of $A$ pril, on the Coaft of Gainera he difcover'd Sierra Liona, abounding in Gold, and Blaeks. Then the Hlands they call of Idols, and beyond them thofe of Fragaos, inhabited by ftout Black Archers, who fhoot poifon'd Arrows, wherewith, fuch as are wounded, prefently dye raving. On the 8th of May they all fell fick on the Coaft of Guinea, of Eevers, Lamenefs, Swellings, and lmpofthunations in their Gums, which in that Country prove Mortal, by Reaforl of the Exceffive Heat, and then for Wait of Water; but Heaven reliev'd them with feafonable Rain. When they labour'd to make the Mllands of Cabo Verde for fome Reffrefhment, the Winds drove them off. They bore up without finding Land, or any Ship, till on the $22 d$ of May, being in 15 Degrees 40 Minutes of North Latitude, they defcry'd two Sail. Sarmiento believ'd they had been Portuguefes, and was defirous to snake up to hale them; but upon better Obfervation perceived, the one was a Tall Ship, the other a Sloop, both of them French, who purfurd and endeavourd to get to Windward of him. The Sloop came foremoft to view our Ship, which made good its Advantage. When theyFight with the French were come in Sight of the Ifland of Santiago, the French held up a Naked Sword, and then fir'd fome Shot. The spaniards anfwer'd with their Muskets, which was thendone by both Sides, and feveral French Men fell, tho' on our Side never a Man was kill'd, but fome wounded, and then they fled more fwiftly than they had purfu'd. Thofe on the Ifland beheld the Ingagement, and thinking it had been Counterfeit, and both the Ships French, they flirr'd not out to Succour either. When the Pirate was quite fled, a Caravel of Algarve arriv'd coming from Portugal, which difcover'd the Pirate's Name, and Strength; declaring he had 85 Men in the Ship, and 25 in the Sloop, and anong them a Portuguefe Pilot. That he had plunderd four other Ships, and the faid Caravel, at Cape Blanco, on the Coafl of A/rick; and at the Illand of May, not far from Santiago, had funk another Caravel, belonging to the Royal Navy, which was failing for Brazil, in order to People Paraguay; where the Engli/h had of late Years built Towns, intermarrying with, and being attracted by the Love, and Children they had by the Tapruer Indian. Sarmiento Landed at Cabo Verde, the Cuftom-Houfe of which City yearly is worth to the King 100000 . Ducats. There are always in it 20000 Blacks, becaufe of the fettled Trade for them. Before he Anchor'd, there came Buats from the Shore, to view his Ship, and he telling them, he came from Peru, through the Streights of Magellan, they were amaz'd. They return'd to give an Account to their Governor Gafpar de Andrade, and told him, That thofe that came in the Ship, were Men of feveral Shapes, Deform'd, and II1-look'd, and others with Jong tangled Hair and Locks. Thefe were fome Indians of Perva and Chile. As for the Reft Sarmiento has thefe Words, As to our being Ill-look'd, they did not avrong us; for befides that we bad no effeminate Countenances, the Powder and siweat of our Volleys of fmall Sbot, a little lefore, bad not fet us off to any Advantage; and, in Joort, we bad more mind to fome Water than to look like Beans. However, neither he nor his Men went A fhore, till they had fatisfy'd a Pratick Mafter that none of them were infected with the Plague. The next Day they Landed bare-Foot, in Proceffion, with Croffes, and Images, repairing to the Church of our Lady of the Rofary, where they gave Thanks, Alms, and other effects of their Vows, with extraordinary Joy; for every Storm is fo much Honour, when recounted in fa.e Harbour. They Confefs'd, and receiv'd the Bleffed Sacrament at a Mafs they had Vow'd to caufe to be faid. The Governor, Don Baytholomew Leytao, Entertain'd, and made much of them, tho' at firft he would not believe they had pass'd the Streight. The Sick were Cured, and the Ship and Boat which were much fhatter'd, re-fitted. The main Defign of this Voyage, which was to Fight Drake, and provide the proper Defence againft the Defigns of the Enemy, had not been compafs'd; and therefore Sarmiento, having fought the French Ship, and Sloop, which appear'd again, larming that Coaft,and both of them fly ing back with all fpeed, after being Shatter'd and Beaten, to the Illand Mayo, or of May, the common Shelter of Robbers; He redoubled his Watchfulnefs, and went on to get Intelligence of the Englifo, as well thofe that pafs'd the Streight with Drake, as of thofe new Planters in Brazil, or Paraguay; as alfo of the Inclination of the Subjects of the Crown of Portugal, to fubmit to King Pbility, or Don Antony. A Pilot of Algarve inform'd him, That the Year before, Letwixt Ayamonte and Tavira, two Englifh Merchants, fpeaking of the Indies, affured him, that Drake was gone thro' into the South Sent; and by the Time, the News agreed with what the Indians of the Streight bad fignify'd to him by Signs; and that he arriv'd fafe in England, kwith tura Ships franght with Gpid and Silver of that notable Robbery,

By the French the was informed, That as foon as they had brought off fome Ships with Blacks from Caftro Vedre, they would go over to the Ifland Margarita, and thence to the North-ward, from the Ifland of Santo Domingo to Iaguana, whence they came not above four Months fince, Loaded with Hides, and Sugar. They difpatch'd a Boat, with thefe Advices to the Viceroy of Peru; for Sarmiento could not return himfelf by the way of Brazil and Paraguay, becaufe the force of the Currents had drove him away into the Main Sea, Eaft-ward. In thirteen Days more he pais'd betwixt the Ifland Graciofa, one of the Azores, fmall, but fruitful, and populous, and that of E. George, in which he law prodigious high Fires. Thofe he afterwards found verified by the Bifhop, at Angra, where he refides. That on the firft of fume that fame Year, there were dreadful Earthquakes in the Ifland of $S_{0}$ George, Voices of Devils were heard,and among other wonderful Effects, the Earth open'd in three Places, whence Streams of Fire ran as far as the Sea. Thofe continu'd, and feven more broke out, cafting forth as many Rivulets of Li quid Fire; one of which ran round an Hermitage, and nine Men running to fave fome Bee-Hives from being burnt, another Mouth open'd, which fwallow'd feven of them, and fing'd the other two. Thefe Leing afk'd, What they knew of the Englifh, affur'd him, That in November laft paft there came five White Men, with fifteen Indians, who were going to lfeos, and the Portugufe Towns by Land; and going along the Shore, they on a fudden, at Rio de las Cuentas, lighted upon an Englifo Sloop. Seven of the Men were afhore drying their Sails, and as foon as they faw the Travellers they fled. The Portuguefe perfifted purfuing them; but the Englifs letting fly fome Arrows, held on their Flivht, two of them up the Mountain, and the other five along the Coaft, till they got into the Sloop. They cut ther Cables, and left behind them two large Carriages for Guns.

The Travellers defir'd them to come afhore, and offer'd them Meat, and all other Neceffaries, affuring them they meant no Harm. They anfwet'd, they would not come, and fiow'd Mufkets, Crofs-bows and Pikes, pointing a fmall Gun, to fire at them. It was then Ebb, and they departed fix Leagues from thence, to fail near the River de las Cuentas. That at the Ifland Cape, over-againft Camamu, another Portuguefe Ship, that knew nothing of this Sloop, lighted on it, when there were only three Engli/b Men left in her, the reft being kill'd afhore, with Arrows by the Natives. In fhort, the Sloop was caf a way, five Men of it being taken, who declar'd, that it came with a Sçuadron of ten Ships, in which a certain great Engliflman pafs'd the Streights of Magellan. That they return'd thence Coafting along, to plant a Colony in the moft convenient Place for their Purpofe, the Admiral having 500 Men aboard for that End. Four Hundred of them were Soldiers, the reft Seamen, and other Mechanicks. It appear'd there had been 300 Men in the Ship, and much Wealth, which was thrown into the Sea, during the Storm. That they were going to plant Colonies in India, and moft of the Men dy'd on the Coaft of Guinea; and perhaps this might be one of the nine Ships aforefaid. The People of Gualva drew out of the Sea fifteen heavy pieces of caft Iron Cannon, but could not get out feveral others: The fifteen are of an extraordiary Magnitude, as it were for fome fettled Fort. To conclude, he was inform'd, and Time has fince verified it, that they were preparing in thofe Northern Parts to rob us of the Treafure of Metals, and Spice there is in thofe Countries, and in exchange to Introduce their Sects. The final Succefs of both the Spanilh and the Englifb Admirals, was that they arriv'd fafe in their refpective Countries, forfaken by the Vice-Admirals. Drake return'd to London, with an immenfe Treafure, which the Queen feiz'd, alledging, That Don Baranrdino de Menoza, then the Spanijb Embaffador at that Court, demanded Reftitution, as belonging to his $K$. and the reft of it taken from his Subjects; but fhe adjudg'd it to her own Cofers, in Recompence for the Dammage fuffain'd, when the Spaniards fupported her Rebels in Ireland. Drake was not enrich'd by his Robberies, nor did he gain any Reputation by his Aations; but on the contrary he was flighted in England, either becaufe they knew what he did was not Honourable, or that generally a Man's own Country is ungrateful to him. They carry'd Tools, Arms, Infructions, and all Neceffaries to fortifie the narrow Parts of it. Sarmiento went as Chief, and Governour of thofe Dominions. This Projeet prov'd unfuccefsful, and in the general Opinion of all Men, it was through the Fault of the General Sanclio Flores. Afterwards Sarmiento was taken, and fet at Liberty in England where he had Conferences with the Queen and Drake upon this Subject, whence he drew Information for the Execution of greater Defigns, with their true Prince, whom the Portuguefe is wont to Love, as a Father, rather than as a King. However there were fome Troubles, and Commotions. Private Difcord is an infeparable incident to all Governments, and that draws the Thoughts of Men after it, and is often the Original of general Calamities, tho it be moderated, or juntify'd Dy a fincere Zeal.

King Philip enter'd Lisbon fupporting his Right by his Power, and whilf the other Provinces, which compofe that Monarclay in Spain, Africk, Afia, and the Eaft-Indies fubmitied to him, he beftow'd Favours, gave Laws, confirm'd the Old, ratified Priviledges, and gain'd Affections by his Prefence, and a General Pardon, which he extended to thofe who had offended him. On the 15 th of November 1582, he fwore to obferve thofe Laws effablifh'd by his Predeceffors, and particularly by King Emamuel, as then next Heir to the Crowns of Spain, for himfelf and his Son, Prince Michael, whom God took to a better Kingdom in his Infancy. Thofe Laws were afterwards fworn to by King Sebaftian, and all of them imported, that all Honours, Employments, Benefices, and the Management of the Revenue of the Crown, with all other Commands by Sea and Land, in Poritygal, Africk, India, the Iflands and all other Parts already conquered, or to be concuer'd-by that Crown, fhall be in the Hands of Natural born Pontuguefes. And by the 24 th Chapter of thefe Laws, it was eftablifh'd, that in firting out Fleets for India, or otherwife for Defence of the Kingdom, or fuppreffing of Pyrates, the King fhould take the neceffary Meafures with the Kingdom of Portugal, though he fhould ufe the Affiftance of his Majefties other Dominions. They were fenfible that this favourable Law, without infringing the Antient Laws, made way for employing the Forces of the Crown of Caftile, in the Recovery, or Prefervation of the Kingdoms of the Eaftern Archipelago, where at that Time the Chriftians fuffer'd Martyrdom, without any Oppofition. And the King for the Recovery of Termate, efpecialIy confider'd the Conveniency of the Philippine Iflands; which lie more opportune than India; the Juftnefs of which Reflection has been confirm'd by the Event.

India at this Time was govern ${ }^{4 d}$ by the Viceroy Fernan Tellez, to whom King Philip the fecond Writ, reprefenting how favourable an Opportunity he had to do God good Service, to fecure the Tranquility of Chriftendom, and fettle Peace, which ineftimable Advantages would be owing to his Fidelity and Care, if through them thofe Provinces flould be united to the Monarchy, without any Trouble, by continuing Loyal, and providing that the Tributary Kings fhould do the fame. He put him in Mind that Services become the more valuable by the furmounting of the greateft Difficulties, and gave him good Hopes of a Reward, which would have been fulfilld, had he come home to fee the Efects of them and his Services. But Fernan Tellez had no need of any fuch Promifes, or of the Perfwafions which are as good as Commands, contain'd in Letters from Minifters of State, and fent with the King's Letter. Thefe being fent over Land, came to his Hands in fix Months, and he either preferving, or gaining their Affections had fo much Forecaft as to confirm the King, Princes, and Sangiacks, who, in thofe remote Parts, pay fubjection to the Crown of Portugal; before he knew any thing of the Orders fent him, or of the additional Eftate the King was pleas'd to confer-on him.  Tydores and Termates.dilappointed fome Projects of Confederacies, fet a foot for the recovering of their Former Liberty, hoping by the Exainple of the King of Ternate, that the Revolutions in Europe might turn to their Advantage. But in defpight of thefe Contradictions and Changes, Fernan Tellez fo far prevailed, as that the Religious Mendicants, and the Fefuits, continu'd the preaching of the Gofpel, with fuch Fervour, that they defy'd even Tyranny it felf. The Converfions of Idolater Princes are truly and elegantly related in the Writings and Books of the Miffions of the Society, and other Eccleffaftical Hiftories ; fo that they excite, and inflame Devotion in the Breafts of fuch as read them. There may be feen, how the Truth was embractd, with all poffible Affection; how haftily, and eagerly they learn'd the Catechifm; what Rejoycings the Catechumens made on the Day they were baptiz'd; Queens, and Princeffes worhipping the Images of Saints; and fweeping the new Churches, and Chappels with their own Hands; with what Attention, and Exactnefs they honour'd the Ceremonies of the Church, and lafly, how they frequented the Sacraments, and improvid in Chriftanity.

All this was Perfecuted, and Extirpated by the King of Ternate; who was now fo far from enduring any neighbouring Empire, that he ftruck a Dread into the remotefl ; infomuch, that tho' they were all fenfible they ought in all good Policy to fupport the Kingdoms of Ty dove and Bacbian, yet they became lookers on, as it were on a Stage, to behold the Affaults given, and the Cruelties acted at the Sieges. And in the latter of them, whilft throughout India the Standards were difplay'd in fubmiffion to Spain, the King of Ternate enter ${ }^{\text {d }}$ Baclian, and prefs'd on fo vigorounly, that he took the Forts by main Force, and made the principal Sangiacks Prifoners. At the Taking of the City of Bacliain, the King of the Ifland was flain in Fight, with all the Portuguefes that affifted him; and the Prince, his Son, taken, who was then a Chriftian, but foon after, having taken an Oath of Fealty to the Conquerer, and Apoflatiz'd from the True Religion, he was miferably Reftor'd to his Kingdom, exchanging the Hopes of his Souls Salvation, for the Pernicious Fables of the Alcoran, to which he has adheartd till this time; tho' in Temporals he now owns the fovereign Dominion of our King. The War with the Tydores lafed longer, the two Navies fighting with indiffrent Succefs, and Victory changing fides, according to various Accidents. Thefe Princes method of making War depends on Ambufhes, and Stratagems, where Subtilty fupplies the place of Strength. It is rare that either fide is much weakned; becaufe as foon as fenfible of the others Advantage, the Weaker flyes, and referves himfelf for better Fortune; nor do they look upon it as Difhonourable to fly, for in thofe Parts they have but rude Notions of the Laws of Honour. The laft Action, after they had fuftain'd the Siege with extraordinary Magnanimity, was a Sally made by the Portuguefe and Tydores from the Fort, with much Order and Cunduct, Artacking the Enemies Camp with fuch Bravery, that tho' they were much fuperior in number, they could not ffand the Fury of the King of Tydore. Tha Ternates being put to Flight, imbarked after a great Slaughter of their Men, and never loppsd till they came to Talan game, fo they call the Harbour of Ternate on that fide. ready in that Place, which Addition made them renew the Fight with frefh Vigour, and wreft the Victory which then inclin'd to the Tydores. Thefe without breaking their Order, retio'd and imbark'd; and hafting back in their Carcoas came to Tydore, where they fortify'd themfelves againft what might happen. The King of Ternate return'd to this City in Triumphant Manner, making a Show of fome Prifoners.

The News of the Union of Portugal to Cafile, was now known throughout all thofe Eaftern Parts, and fo well receiv'd, that inftead of offering at any Oppofition, they all joyfully fulmitted, hoping they fhould be protected by a more powerful Arm, than they had been before. Nof were they deceiv'd in their Expectation, for, purfuant to what the King had fworn at Lisbon, concerning the Fleets, for fuppreffing of Pyrates, and Garrifoning the Coafts of Africk, he granted his Royal Order, for all the Governours of the Pbilippine Iflands to take Care to relieve the Moluccos, and all other the Dominions in India, belonging to the Crown of Portugal, making ufe of New Spcin, and all other Kingdoms fubject to the Crown of Caftile, there being more conveniency for fupplying them from thence, than even from India.

The King of Teinate, being fenfible of the Change of Times, and how much greater Forces threatned him than before; and that he fhould not be fufferd to reign, without fubmitting to a Superior, he grew better advis'd, and fent an Ambaffador to Lisbon. The Ambaffador was Cachil Nayque, well known for the Anticuity of his Family, and brave Actions. Nayque fignifies a Tribune, or Commander. He enibark${ }^{\text {®d }}$ with much Wealth of thofe Parts, as Porcelane, Clinefe Silks, Calico's and Muflins, Spice, Fruit, Aromatick Woods and Barks, and Preferves of the fame; and paffing between the Iflands of Pangicaz and Manado, near to that of Celebes, keeping off from the Equinoctial, coafted it and crofssd the Line again, till he came to Borneo. There he vifited the King, who was at Taycopurra, and deliverd him Letters from his Mafter, attempting by Word of Mouth, to unite him to the Molucco Nation againft the Crown of spain. Contenting himfelf with the firft Hopes, he pals'd on betwixt Cremato and Surato, and crofs'd the Iflands Pulo and Linga, in fight of the greater Fava, thence thro the Streight of Malaca, by the great Ones of Banca and Bintan, in the Port whereof were then the 20 Ships, which are fent from Sumatra every Year, loaded with Pepper. He barterd away much of what he had in his own Ship, and propos'd a general Revolt to all Nations. There are two Streights there ; the one of Sincapura, fo call'd from that Ciry built on the Coatt of Malaca; and the other of Sabao, from an Illand of thet Name, and this leads to Sumatra. Nayque feer'd this Courfe, and foon put into the Harbour which lies going out of the Channel.

This great Ifland, oppofite to Malaca, and divided from it by a Bay full of Ridges, of Rocks and Shoals, and above a thoufand fmaller Iflands, was formerly a Peninjula, and contiguous to Malaca, as Sicily is faid to have been to Italy. He had afterwards private Conferences with him at Court, and in a few Days brought him over to his Party, with his Wealth, as if he had been a poor Man. After delivering his Mafter's Letters, he rold him, that before he went over into Europe, whether he was fent to difcover the Power of Spain in its Origin, or Source, at a Time when it was diftracted by fuch Revolutions, it was convenient that moft wealthy Part of Afia flould be reffor'd to its former Condition, a Matter of no Difficulty, if they were firmly united among themfelves. Nayque went up the Country to vifit, and found him in a populous City, where he was loading Pepper, which is excellent in Jave, with that King's Leave, he being a Friend to the Englifb, who had already fettled a Factory. Among other Things he prefented him a Pavillion, artificially wove all with fweet feented Cloves, and not black, which was not only fit to keep out the exceffive Cold of England, but even to dry up over moif Bodies that flept under it. There is daily Experience of its atractive Virtue at Ternate, by placing great Veffels full of Water in the middle of the Rooms where the Cloves are kept, and in the Moraing they find the Heaps of Cloves damp, and the Veffels empty and dry. The fame Effential Heat is in the Skeins of China Silk, which therefore thofe who deal in it keep at a fmall Diftance from the Water, yet they fuck it, without touching, and by this Fraud they weigh the heavier. Captain folm Lopez de Ribera carry ${ }^{\text {h }}$ fuch a Pavillion of Cloves, as is above mention'd, and prefented it to the Earl of Cornsa, who was then Viceroy. Nayque, like a Flafh of Lightning which burns all that ftands in its way, endeavour'd to ftir up thofe who before were kept peaceable by the Valour of Fernan Tellez, and to encourage the Turbulent, but without flaying to fee the effect of his Negociation, he made directly towards the Cape of Good-Hope, yet it is more likely, and even pofitive, that he went firft to Malaca, and thence in the India Ships to Spain.

Whilft Nayque was at Sea, the Marques te Santa Cruz had in the Ocean fought the Fleet Commanded by Philip Strozzi, in which was Antony Antony the Baftard, Pretender to the Crown of Portugal, and deftroy'd it, theBaftard Chaftizing the French, who with real, or counterfeit Commiffions from Defeated. their King, had oppos'd King Philip's juft Poffeffion. He arrived victoriaus at the Illand of $S$. Micbael, cut off the Heads of the Frencl) Gentlemen, and condemn'd the Ref to the Galleys. Strozzi dy'd oi his Wounds, and Don Antonio efcap'd in a Boat, and return'd to Zealand, to folicite frefh Succours in England and France. In the mean while, the King of Achemz perform'd his Promife. His Kingdom lies next the firft Promontory of the King don Ifland, ins four Degrees and a half of North Latitude, and confequently his of Achem; Shiys eafily made themfelves Mafters of all the Streight between Sumatya and $A c h e m$, which they fo entiely poffefs'd, that they fuffer'd none of the Ships to pafs to Malaca, which brought Merchandize and Provifions from Clina, Japan, Camboxa, nor even from the Mohuccos, obligiag them tor

Moft of them fled to Malaca, and tho' Fernan Tellez was then upon his Departure, he gave the neceffary Orders at Goa for their Relief. He funk fome of the Enemies Ships, and took one loaded with Daggers, they call Crizes, made at Menancabo, and a numerous Artillery, a Thing well known, and caft in Somatra, many Years before the Europeans brought them into thofe Parts. This appears by the Victory the Portuguefes obtain'd over that. Nation, during the Blockade of Malaca.
The King of Aoben fending a Daughter to be Married to the King of Zor, not far from Malaca, in the Country of Sian, among other rich Gifts, by way of Portion, prefented him a Brafs Cannon of fuch a bignefs, that the like had never been feen in Europe. This prodigious Gun, and the Princefs that was to be Queen of Zor, fell into the Hands of the Portugzuefes. The taking of this Prize, and fome others, clear'd the Sea of that Fleet; and that extraordinary piece of Cannon, which ferv'd to Ballaft a Ship, was brought as a Prefent to the King of Spain, for its Monfrous Size, but a Storm oblig'd them to leave it in the Ifland Tercera, where it is now feen and admir'd. The City Zor was allo Taken by the Portuguefes, and

The Molucen Embaffador. being come to Lisbon, obtain'd Audience of the King ; who, tho' he was fully inform'd of the Embaffadors Falfhood, and the Practices of his Nation, yet gave him a favourable Hearing, after he had fhew'd his Credentials to the Minifers of State. He in a long Speech recounted, from its Original, the conftant Fidelity of the Moluceo Kings, and how particularly Remarkable it had been in Sultan Aevio, and that the wicked Commander in Chief in putting him to Death, had equally wrong'd the Crown of Por$t_{\text {rigal. }}$ That fince the Murderer was not punifh'd, to fatisfy the dead Man‘s Children and Kingdoms, it might well be concluded, that fo Cruel and Undeferv'd an Execution had been by the Direction of fome higher Power than the Governor Mefquita, and that even in cafe the Crime had been Notorious it had been more Prudence to charge it upon fome private Perfon.

 That King Cacbil Babu intreated his Majefty to punifh the Offender in fuch manner as might give Satisfaction, and be an Example and Security to all the Aflatick Kings, that own the Dominion of Spain. In Return for that Favour, and Juntice, he promifed to Reftore the Fort of Ternate, and his other Kingdoms, which were Alienated, and that they would return to their former Subjection, as they had promis'd to the Governor Pereyra de la Cevda; fo remarkably correct their Behaviour, that there fhould be uifible Effects of a Royal, and Humble Gratitude, borh in refpect to his Majefties fervice, and the fecurity of the Garrifons, and to the Advantage of the neighbouring Provinces, belonging to other Kings, who were his Subjects, about Malaca, the Pbilippine Iflands, and Parts Adjacent. He alfo ingaged to Reftore the Churches, and Chriftian Religion, and much more than had been agreed upon with Pereyra. The King having heard bis Requeft, as if he were ignorant that the Ternates did not deferve the fatisfaction they requir'd, fince they had taken it themfelves fo fully, that itexceeded even the bounds and examples of Revenge, he Anfwer'd, That all the Acceffaries to that Fact thould be found out, it being prov'd that the Principal was already Dead, and none of them fhould efcape Inpunifh'd, as would have been done by King relaftian, had he Liv'd. That Cacljil Babu muft prepare to Reftore all Things into the fame Pofture they were in before, it he intended to partake of the general Amnefty, which blotted out all paft Offences throughout the Dominions of that Crown. Nayque had fome private Audiences, and fome Minifters of State had Conferences with him, with a Defign to find out how the People of India were difpos'd.

At this fame Time Don Gonzalo Ronquillo, purfuant to the Orders he had receiv'd from Spain, fent the Enfign, Francis de Duenas, from the Plilippine Iflands, where he was Governor, to the Moluccos, to pry into the Inclinations of the Kings, and People, Governors, and other Portuguefes at Ternate, Tydore, and Bacljian, as to fubmitting to the King of Spain. He fet out in the Habit of a Cbinefe, and was much affffted by his Knowledge of thofe Countries, and their Languages, and much more by his bold Spirit, fufficiently try'd in thofe Wars. He artfully Learnt what Hopes there might be of the Recovery of Ternate, and how firm the People of Tydore food. He firft inquired what Leagues were carrying on in the $A r$ chipelago, what Intelligence they had with, and expected from the Northern Fleets, with whom they had now familiar Correfpondence. He Travell'd about the Iflands, like a Sangley, or Clinefe, in the Fanguas, or Trading Veffels of the Malay, and Ihilippine Merchants, and had the Opportunity of viewing them all, fo far as to take the Dimenfions of ftrong Places, compute what Stores and Ammunition the Barbarians had, and difcover the Humours and Inclinations of the Portuguefes who Traded, or Govern'd there; and returning to the Plilitppine Iflands, his Account, and Relation, firft Encourag'd and gave Hopes that more Advantagious Enterprizes might be undertaken in thole Parts, than about Malaca, tho' it were but only Supporting the Portuguefes and Tydores, then hard prefs'd by the King of Ternate. King Philip receiv'd this Intelligence at Lisbon, whence the Molucco Embaffador was then gone, ill fatisfy'd with the Anfwer he had; but Sultan Babu, on whom the Word of fo great a Monarch, and the Authority of his Promife might perhaps have had great Effect, $d y^{\text {cd }}$ long before the faid Embaffador could come to his Prefence. The fmall Remains of Chriftianity fill left in his Kingdom, took a little Heart, and had our Arms but appearerd upon the Revolution caus'd by his Death, the only Noife of them might have gain'd the Victory, It is Reported that furious King Babu dy'd by the excefs of his Love, or rather of his inordinate Luff, in the Arms of one of his Miffreffes. Some fay fhe kill'd him with Charms, or Poifon, which is the Ty rant-Slayer among thofe Nations, impatient of one Mans long Rule. He was Succeeded by his Btother, who was Illegitimate, as we are told by Cacloil Tuld, in the Letter, which, as we Thall fee hereafter, he writ to the Governor of the Pbilippine Iflands. The new King took the Name of Cacbil Sultan Nait Dini Baraca Xa, betore whom Cachil Madraca ought to have been preferr d, as being Son to the principal Queen. Nait fu:ceds. King of Tydore, paid him a vifit. He was received with publick Rejoycings in one of the greateft Squares of Ternate, and attended to a mighty 'lofty Arbour, provided to offer Sacrifize in, a (Chappel fuitable to the Priefthood) and there to decide Controverfies, and give Audience to his Subjects. When the firf Complements were over, and the King of Tydore Aurders the King of Tydore. leaft fufpected any thing, the Ternate Guards, hearing the Signal given by their K. drew their Campilanes, or Cymiters, and without allowing the Gueft time to cry out, fell upon, and cut him in Pieces; tho' he was the Man thro' whofe Means the K. of Ternate had the Crown given him, contrary to the Opinion, and Defigns of his Unkles. But whenfoever great Returns are due to a Favour receiv'd, Ungrateful Souls convert the Obligation into Hatred, and nothing can occur to them more odious than the Sight of the Benefactor. Next he turn'd his Fury againft that murder'd Princes Family, and fuch of his Servants as could not make their Efcape to Tydove, were either Kill'd, or remain'd Prifoners at Ternate, or abfconded wherefoever Fortune, and their own Confufion lead them. This cruel Fact, which fome affigntd to his Father, Cachil Babu, ReconciFd the Murderer and his Unkles. But he immdeiatly acquainted them, how he expected to be In vaded on two Sides; that it was of the utmof Confequence, that Subjects fhould own their Sovereign, and fortify his Illands, efpecially all the upper Parts; and that fince he had fuch Powerful Unkles, it was Reafonable, and Convenient, the People fhould be acquainted how firmly they were United to their Nephew. Then extolling their Valour, he with the Iweetnefs of their Commendations fo blinded and amufed them, that they could not perceive the profound Jealoufie he fhrouded under them. Thus he divided them, that they might attend the Fortifications in diftant Places; whilft New King he in Perfon carry?d on the War againft the Tydores. They prefently fet of Tydore. up a Brother of their late King in his Stead; who, thot he govern'd with Bravery, ard ftuck clofe to the Portuguefes, yet had fome ftrong Places taken from him by the King of Ternate, which were afterwards reftord, in our Kings Name, by Dem Pedro de Acuna to the King now reigning. This Prince lived but a fhort Time, yet fo llong that Cachil Mole, who was a Child when the King his Father was murder'd, grew up, and in. frim the Revenge of the Injury receiv'd. He never thought, or talk'd of any other Thing, till be brought it to Execution.
In the mean while the new King of Tydore, affifted by the Spaniards be had in his Forts, provided to oppofe, and attack his Enemy. They all expected Succours from India, where it was certain they muft think it neceffary to fupport Tydore, in order to recover Ternate. Their Behaviour was fo brave, as to defend themfelves, tho' ill furnifh'd with Arms and Provifions againft thofe who attack'd them with Plenty of all Things, Ae istaken Hector Brito was come with a Galleon from India to their Affiftance, and 3y bim of it being known at Tydore that a Storm had oblig'd him to itay on the farTernate. ther Coaft of Bornen, the King fitted out four Carcoas, and went to meet him, but was forced back to his Ifand by contrary Winds. He of Ternate watch'd to improve all Oppurtunities againt his Enemy, and therefore would not let this Slip, noritruft to any other; but Man'd out nine Carcoas, and going in Perfon fell upon him. The Tydores wanted not Courage to defend themfelves, and the Fight began with that Fury, which always arms thofe two Nations againft one enother; but tho' the Tydore fought defperately defperately, he was taken, and his Men either kill'd, or dangeroufly wounded. This Misortone griev'd the Portrguefes no lefs than the Indians, becaufe they all lov'd him. For this realon they gather'd the Remains of that Difanter, and all the other Forces they could make, offering their Service to Cacbil Aleazen, Brother to the Captive King, a very hopeful Youth. Fidelity of He thank'd them, and was fo dexterous in gaining the Affections, and con- the Tydofirming the Fidelity of the Suljecks, that thtough his Care, no Man was res. wanting to his Duty. This Induftry was of gocd Ufe, for the Conqueror did not return immediately to Ternate; but went alout to his Enemies Hlands, perfwading the People in each of them to take an Oath of Allegiance to him, fhowing them their Captive King, whofe Life was at his difpofal; but the Tydore Towns, being furnifh'd with all Neceffaries, and believing they might with Safety practice that Hatred and Rage Nature has fill'd them with, would not give Ear to his Propofals, though they were mix'd with Intreaties, and Threats, and on the contrary difmifs'd him with their ufual Fiercenefs. He perceiving that the Oftentation of his Victory, and the Sight of the Captive King availed him but little, Sail'd away for Ternate. At his Arrival, he was received with Trumpets, KettleDrums, and Bafons they beat on, and with Songs they make for fuch like Occafions. The Heads and Limbs of the Tydores flain in Battel, were fix ${ }^{6} \mathrm{~d}$ upon the Spears they have advanctd in the Carcoas on the Pcops and Prows, and other high Places of them, and particularly the Kings. This is their way of erecting Trophies. Of the Skulls they make Cups to drink out of; like the Scithians, who, according to Herodotus, practife the fame; or like the Germans, as Tacitus tells us, of the Heads of the Uri they flew, and that was a Token of Nobility. He would not truft the keeping of the King in any of his Forts; but turn'd a ftrong Houfe into a Goal, and appointed him a Guard of Gilolo Iflanders, well arm'd. Sometimes he fhow'd Severity, and otherwhiles Tendernefs; but all Men knowing his Difpofition, expected the End of the Captive King; tho' at the fame time they believ'd, he would mitigate his Revenge out of Refpect to his Sifter, the Princefs of Tydore. He Zor Brito, Commander of a Galeon, came now to Tydore; but his Arrival did not much mend the Pofture of Affairs, tho' thofe in the Fort were Encourag'd to hold out, and at leaft he added fome Reputation to the Caufe, and inclin'd the Ternates to liften to fome Overtures. However what could not be compafstd by force of Arms nor Treaty, was effected by the Refolution of an Amorous Soul.

The Princefs Quifayra, Sifter to King Gapabaguna, that was the Prifoner's Name, had fo great an Opinion of herfelf, as to hope that her Beauty would prevail to bring about that good End, which was then of Confequence to all Parties, on feveral Accounts. She knew the was belov'd by the King of Bachian, by him of Sian, a brave Youth, by him of Tervate her Enemy, and by other prime Sangiacks of his Kingdom, and his Kinfmen, who all publickly vyd in doing her Honour. She was difcreet enough dexteroufly to feed them all with fuch Hopes, as lay no $\mathrm{Ob}-$ ligation on the Party that gives them, and yet encourage, thofe wha value them. She gave out that the would marry none but the Man that should fet her Brother at Liberty, and deliver him to her alive, or dead. This Part of the Declaration, tended to the Promoting of her Defign.

The Promife work'd upon all her Admirers; tho' it was moft certain, that her naming herfelf as a Reward of the Enterprize, proceeded from the Affection lie bore Ruy Diaz d' Acunba, a Portuguefe Gentleman, and Commander in Chief of the Fort of Tydore. She thought he would at-

It was known, that they had difcours'd together feveral Times in the Houfe of Quinchana, a great Lady, Aunt to 2uifayra, whether Ruy Diaz was, wont to go frequently ; and that with her Interpofition the Matter had leen fo far concerted, that the Princefs promis'd fhe would embrace Chinifianity to marry him. This made not his Rivals difmay, and the King of Tornute, upon thefe profer'd Hopes, ofier'd to give her Brother his Liberty. However he was not regarded, becaufe 2 uijayra was as averfe to be beholding to him, as fhe was defirous to be oblig'd by Ruy Diaz. This powerful Paffion informs barbarous Minds. Her Difdain caus'd the King of Tydore tobe more clofe confin'd, and his Body to be loaded with heavy Chains, being more narrowly obferv'd than before.
Cachil Salama, a Subject and near-Kinfman of his, well known for his Valour in the Wars, was more deep in Love with 2 uifayra than all the Reff, and liften'd to all the Reports of their endeavouring to comply with her Expectation. He entirely keeping his own Council, a Thing rare in Lovers, to be fecret without Affectation, that no Notice might be taken of him, one Night fitted out a Baroto, So they call a Sort of fmall Boat, putting intoit five Tydore Soldiers, he could confide in. Thus he crofs'd over the Channel to the Leeward, and landed on Ternate; where he left the Boat ready, but hid on the Shore. Then Cachil Salamia, conceald among the Croud of trading People in the City, went to the chief Part they call Limathas, and fet Fire to a Houfe in that Ward he thought food moft convenient for his Purpofe. The Flame, which had taken hold of the Roof gathering Strength, threatned a greater Conflayration, Having done this Mifchief, whilit the People flock'd together, and endeavour'd to put a Stop to it with Water, and other means, Cachil return'd to his Boat, on the Infide the Ridge of Rocks there is about the Ifland, and went a way to the other Side of the Fort, where he began to beat an Alarm, to caufe the greater Confufion, This done he went afhore again, with only his Campilan, or Cimiter, ordering three of his Men to follow him at fome fimall Diftance. He found the King's Prifon almoft abandon'd, the Guards being gone to help at the Houfe that was a Fire. He went in boldly, He refcues breaking open Doors, and Bolts, till he came to the Prifoners Chamber, the King of Tydure. he lcakce believing what he faw, ask'd him, with much Amazement, how he came thither, and whether the Fort of Tydore was loft? Cachill antwer'd, he muft be quick, and go along with him, and fhould afterwards be fatisfy'd as to his Queftions; for if he refus'd he would frike of his Head. Then laying hold of the end of the Chain, and the other three Tydores being now come up to them, they forctd their Paffage out of the Houfe, making way with their Swords and killing fuch as offertd to ofpofe them. 45 The fame Vala ir and good Fortune carry'd them through the Streets, to -705. the Port, and leaping into their little Boat, put all their Hands to the Oars. In thofe Illands it is ufual for Kings to row, without beng compell'd to it by Neceflity; for as in Spain the Nobility learn to ride, fo the Ifland Princes in all thofe Eaftern Parts value themfelves upon handling the Oars, and Sails. They crofs'd over the Streight, and being purfu'd too late, by the light Veffels of Ternate, amriv'd unexpected at Tydore. The Fame of his arrival was foon fpread abroad, and when certainly known, the Cannon was fir'd, the flat Drums in the Temples were beaten, and the Bells rung, the Sound whereof ufes to draw the People of the Moluccos together, and in fhort thiere was a general Rejoycing, without quitting their Arms. All Men cry'd up Cachil Stlama to the Skies, calling him the Deliverer of Tydore, and Neza Maluco, Neka fignifies a Spear, and Maluco a Kingdom, and both together the Spear, that is, the Defence of the Kingdom.

Only Quifayra was troubled at this Event, becaufe the general Promife Quifayra She had made of marrying, whofoever pertorm'd it, was only defign'd for contrives Ruy Diaz de Acunba. She was not able to conceal this Truth; efpecially; to murder when Cackil Salama boldly prefs'd the Performance of the Promife, the Cachil SaKing himfelf feconding him. She delay'd him, alledging fome fpecious Pretences to yain Time. She would willingly have made her Complaint to Ruy Diaz himfelf, either to fhame, or provoke him to Paffion, She eafily compafs'd to meet him at her Aunts, where, as foon as fhe began to Difcourfe, there was nothing but Tears, Complaints, Excufes, and Contrivances to murder Salama, to conclude a Reconciliation. Rocque Pinheyro the Commander's Nephew, and a Soldier of reputed Valour, was prefent at this Difcourfe. Quifayra trufting him with her fecret Thoughts, he Pinheyro boldly, and with Art, gave her to underfland that his Unkle was as flack as' undertakes before; and fince he had been fo in the other Affair, what could be ex- to murder pected from him in what he now promis'd. He faid, if fhe could prevail bin and his upon her felf to be fenfible of the Ingratitude of Ruy Diaz, and to fubfti- own Unkle. tute him in his Place, he would not only murder Cachil, but his own Unkle: too. That out of the Refpect due to her high Qualities, he had not till then prefum'd to let her know how deeply he was in Love with her Beauty ; but that he now thought himfelf abiolv'd from all human Tyes, and wholly confin'd by that. Pinbeyro had a full hearing, an Advantage: not far remote from being admitted; and tho he was not commanded to murder his Unkle, yet he perceiv'd he had not left him fo well in the Princefles Efteem as he was before.

In the mean while, Cachil Salama was not idle,preffing the Bufinefs hafti- Salama Jy, and having got fome Inkling, or fufpecting the Caule of the Delay, like convey ${ }^{\text {did }}$ a true Lover who is feldom deceiv'd in this Sort of Jealoufy, he found out into Qui-s the Trutb. By the Contrivance of one of 2 nifayra's Women, he durft fayra's prefumie to hide himfelf in her Bedchainber; and in the dead of the Night, Bed Cbamhe fuddenly appear'd before her, Hhis Fiercnels being overcome by a Superi- ber. or Power. The Princefs was furpriz'd, but diffembled it, and prepard to defend herfelf in Cafe Violence were offerd. She threatned to cry out; utter'd Complaints with Tears, and bewail'd the lofs of her Reputation, faying, how could they think her Innocent, who faw him either come in, or go out. Salama all the while in humble Pofture, and on his Knees, affur'd her he had no other Defign, than to put her in Mind of the Obligatien fhe lay under, and that fince it was known he was to be her Hufband, his being feen was of no Confequence. That her Reputation fuffer'd more, by the delaying of the marriage; and that to convince her of his Affection, he would be gone as obediently as he had always done. He went

She was fo taken with this Courteous Action, that revolving it in her Mind, it wrought fo much, as to fettle her Affection on Salama; fo that fhe would have marry'd him, tho' he had not oblig'd her before.

At this time Pinbeyro, who was already engaged in her Love, either to obtain its Reward, or becaufe his Unkle did not Favour him as he' expected, or for both Reafons, contriv'd his Death. As he was going one Day to the Palace, to acquaint 2 uifayra that the Murder was already committed, Cachil happened than to come from a Fort to fee his Miftrefs. He feeing Pinheyra coming out of her Apartment, drew his Campilan, or Cymiter, and tho' the Youth fought Manfully, and like a Lover, yet Caccloil, who had the fame Qualifications, and was Jealous over and above, at the firft onfet clove his Head, fo furioully, that he dropt down dead of the Wound. Then proceeding as he had begun, he went in where 2niJayra was, whom he eafily perfwaded to be gon wirh him, and leaving the Patace full of Confufion, they Imbark'd in the Baroto, or fmall Boat that brought him. They Marry'd with the good liking of the King and Kingdome, and the Lofs of thofe two. Gentlemen's Lives. And fince among the Portugruefe Nation, as much Account is made of Honour gain'd, or lof in Love Affairs, as was formerly of Victories obtain'd in Greece, at the Olympick Games, the Vindication of thefe Lovers ffall be left to the Management of thofe who are well skil'd in that Matter, to whom we refer our felves.
The Portugguefes were much griev'd at this Difafter, as being Publick, and the King was fo incens'd, that one of them having accidentally kill'd a Horfe he had a great Value for, he caus'd him to be Hang'd, without hearkning to any thing thar could be faid for him. This gain'd Cachil Mole fo generally the Affections of all Men, that tho' Cacloil Cota was Blder, and Son to the principal Queen, by them calld Putriz, under colour that the latter was a Friend to the King of Ternate, and about to contract Affinity with him, the other gain'd the greater Party, which advane'd him to Succeed in the Throne of Tydore, as we fhall foon fee.

The Portuguefe Galeons arrived at Malaca, and in them Cachil Naique returning from Spain, and having ftay'd there fome Months for the Monfons, he had a good Voyage, and arrived fafe at Ternate, when he had by the way follicited the favanefes, and the People of LAchem and Borned, not to admit of the Spani/h Domination. He brought no acceptable. Anfwer from King Pbilip, and found the King who had employ'd him Dead, and in his Place another, fo different from the Former, that he entettain'd no Thoughts of reftoring the Forts to the Portuguefes, but on the contrary, aim'd at caffing off all Obedience, and obliterating their Name. To this effect he Confederated with the Englijh, who, with other Northern Englifh at Ternate. Nations, Lorded it in the Illand. Five Leagues from it lay at Anchor an Englifo Ship, waiting for two others that came out with her. They An- chord in the Port, and went afhore, as if they had been in London, being well receiv'd by the Sultan, with whofe Leave they fettled a Factory in the City, where they lefr Officers, who under the name of Trade, were more abfolute Mafters of it than the Natives. They differs'd to gather in the Clove for the Goods they brought to Barter; and on the 21 ff . of Auguff difpatch'd their Ships, loaded with that Spice, and with thofe Nuts they call of Molucco, and excellent Preferves of them both. In thefe Ships went Embaffadors to Queen Elizabeth, and to the Prince of Orange, carrying Prefents fuitable to thofe Perfons, of the moft valuable Things in India. They were order'd to offer the Queen his Kingdome in Vaffalage, and his Friendflip to the Prince of Orangee The Advantage of thefe Embaffies afterwards appeard ; yet he did not on that Account give any hopes of Reftoring Chrifianity; for befides that the Perfecution grew more violent, he had at that time brought over into his Kingdome, a great number of Arabian and Perfian falfe Prophets, all of them Malomet's Prients and Minifters, to ftrengthen that Sect. Befides, being inform'd by his Spies, That it was given out in the Pbilipipine Inlands, That they would make War on him that way, and that in Spain the King promis'd the Union of the two Crowns thould produce the Conjunction of their Power and Arms, for the punifhing of difobedient Tyrants, he flighted no Alliance, not contemn'd the Weakeft Enemy. For this Reafon, he gave Entertainment, and allow'd the planting of Colonies to Europeans, and Leagued with Idolaters and Mabomet ans, who hate Spain, as their common Enemy. The Englijh Ships now frequented India, facilitating the Paflage, and fhewing an Example to the French and Dutchy which encourag'd them all to venture out far from their Countries, and feek for Treafure in ftrange ones.
Sultan Capabaguna did not long enjoy his Liberty at Tydore. He was King of taken ill at an Entertainment. Some believe he had a flow Poifongiven Ternate him; becaufe he was very moderate in Eating, and thofe motions of his dies. Arms, the gnafhing of his Teeth, and lofing of his Senfes, which attend the Falling-Sicknefs, and are Simptoms of Apoplexies, could not naturally proceed from his Temperate way of Living; but are always caufed by much Excefs, which Occafions this violent Diftemper. He came to himfelf after that firft Fit, but his Vigour wafted, and he linger'd on to the end of his Life. Cachil Cotta fhould have Succeeded him, but they were fufpicious of his Correfpondence with the Ternates; and they all fo openly favour'd his Brother Cachil Mole, that there was nor the leaff Difficulty inade about the Succeffion: He often remember'd his Fathers unfortunate Death, and in Regard that this raging Defire of Revenge, might $p$ ove infitumental for the Recovery of Ternate; as foon as his Unkle Dy'd, which wiwas on the 24th of April 1509, the Portuguefe Commander in Chief, Ruy Gonzalez de Sequeyrao repair'd to his Palace, and by Means of the Partu - Cachil guefe Power and Arms, caufed Cachit Mole to be fworn King, as being a Mole King mof faithfal Friend to his Nation, and no lers an Enemy to the Ternates. of Tydore. This was not remedy'd by the Unimn of the Crowns of Spain and Portugal; on the contrary, the great Succefs of the Adelantado, or Lord Lieutenant Legafpe, in the Iilands Luzones, which he call'd Ptilippines, being known in Spain, King Philip the IId. thought fit as we fhall foon fee, that the Molucco Iflands, and Parts adjacent, whither he was Zealous to fend Evangelical Preachers, fhould be fenfible of the Advantage of his Neighbourivg Empire. This was fpeedily order'd, and tho' the Effects were not futable, by Reafon of the many Accidents great Undertakings are liable to, yet Time has flown how convenient it was to fix that Refolution. For the better underffanding of the Reafons on which it was grounded; fince one of them proceeded from the various Difpofition, Qualities, and Interefts of the Aations throughout thofe Seas and Lands; it wiH be abfolutely neceffary in this Place to make them known, before we come to Particulars,The Country of the Sina, whom we call Chinefes, is the uttermoft of the Continent of Afia. On the Eaft and South it is encompals'd by the Ocean, which the Ancients call'd Sericus. On the Weft, it reaches to the Borders of the farther India; and on the North to thofe of the Mafagezes and Scyiljians. Their Ancient Annals, Writings and Traditions informs us, that the Cbinefes extended their Empire much further. This is verify'd by the Remains of fumptuous Structures; and not only in Ruins, wherein their former Magnificence is fill apparent, but even in Cities, which Time has preferv'd, tho' not inhabited, and yet to be feen in the Provinces they have excluded their Limits. There are many which take there Denomination, and own their Original from Cbina. For that immenfe Empire finding it felf labouring under its own Power, and overburden'd with its Magnitude, like a judicious Patient, to prevent more Harm, it breath'd the Veins, and brought down the Redundancy of the Body. The fame we read the CartlJagenians did, when in the like Condition, and for the fame Reafons. It confin'd it felf to a narrower Compafs, proportionable to the Extent of humane Providence, that fo their Prince's Light might reach to fhine over, and be communicated to them ; which cannot be, when the Circumference is too great for the Darting of the Beams. They publifh'd indifpenfable Decrees againft fuch as go out of China, without leave from the Magiftrates. They abandon'd vaft Provinces, which being left expos'd to Tyranny, and Infidelity, after tedious: Wars, fubmitted to the moft Potent. Hence the Kings of India took their Original, being oblig'd never tolay down their Arms, nor. keep any Faith, fo to fupport themfelves one againft another, till a greater Power fubdues them.

In Clina they reckon is maritime Kingdoms, or Provinces of an extraordinary Extent, with each its Metropolis; or Capital; the reft are up the

There is a perpetual Abundance of Parture, Fruits, Flowers, and all the Products of Gardens. What they draw out of the Bowels of the Mines, they conceal as carefully as if it were ftill in them; and even that they bring from remote Provinces, they heap up, and bury. Their. publick and private Structures would make up a Narration of extraordinary Length. We are told of 200 Cities of an extraordinary Mägnitude, and many more of inferior Degree, befides Towns, Caftle, and Villages, contaiving above $\mathbf{3 0 0 0}$ Families each, built of Bricks made of the fame Clay as our Purcelane, or China Ware, and thefe encompafs'd with continu'd Woods, Springs and Rivers. In all thefe there are Towers. with flately Pinnacles, Pleafure-Houfes, and Temples, tho ${ }^{6}$ hideoufly painted, yet coflly, with Variety of deform'd Images, through which the Devils give their Anfwers. That afterwards the Ufe of Reafon provided for Neceflity, and Pleafure; inventing the Ways of drefling, andr feafoning Meat at the Fire, in Veffels and other Utennils. The fame, theyfay, happen'd in Regard to Man's Nakednefs. So that Man is indebted to himfelt a one for what he enjoys, and therefore whofoever lay'd on him the Burden of Religion, and the owning of a Canfe Superior to Nature, only aim'd at the dejecting him, and exercifing a Tyranny over his Liberty.: With thefe impious Notions, and defructive Atbeifm, they oppofe their Eternal Salvation, which our Arms, and our Preachers invite them to. They only regard Generation; but nor without Diftinction. Lawful Matrimony entitles Women to be Miftreffes of their Families. The Matrons value themfelves upon being highly Chaf. Concubines are kept in Houfes apart. They do not want for Plays, and fuch Reprefentations; and they delight in feeing their Traditions, whether true or fabulous, acted on the Stage. They ufe Entertainments, and bave Tables and Chairs of Ebony, and other precious Materials; as alfo Shipping, Shows, Carts, HorfeLitters, and the Exercile of $\mathrm{Arms}_{3}$, and Riding.
It were no difficult Matter to give an Account here of their private ners. faid of the Publick and Political, for the better Underfanding of fome Things that happen'd in the Philippine Illands, from whence the Recovery of the Moluccos, in our Times, had its Beginning. They call their great Government. Men Loyties, from anong whom the King chufes his Judges and Counfellors. There is almoft an infinite Number of inferiour Magiftrates, who exercife the Regel Power and Authority, even in the moft inconfiderable Cafes. Inevery Town there are five, that have the greatef Power, and thefe are Strangers in the Place, that they may be free from Partiality.
Tutan a Viceroy. The Head of them all, is call'd Tutan, being the fame as a Viceroy it Europe. The next in Dignity is the Poncafio, who has Charge of the King's Poncafio. Taxes, and Royal Trealure, with a great Number of Clerks, and other Officers; and he pays all Salaries and Penfions. Next follows the Ancafio, Ancafio. who is chief Juftice, in Criminal Cafes of Confequence. The Aitav has Aitan. Luitifio. miny pafs into the Inland Country. The Luitifia is next to the Aitan in Ships, and his principal Duty is to obferve the Guards, that no Stranger Dignity, and is to be expert in War, in which he is employ'd by the Aitan. Iknow there are other Magiltrates, and their Names and Dignities, which I mul pals over in Silence. All of them except the Livitifio, keep great State. There are ten chofen Penfons of the Council, tho not equat in Autharity. Five of them fit on the Right, the others on the Left. The King often thrufts in among the Judges and Parties in Difguize, to pry into the Caufes, and their Decifions, and be certainly inform'd of both. When he thinks fit, he fometimes makes himfelf known-; and the Moment hedifcovers himfelf, they all fland Mute, full of Re? fpect and Aftonifhment, Jiftening to what he fhall command. Then he commends or reprowes either Party, and rewards, or punifhes before he departs the Coprt. His Mandarines, and Prime Minifters are fo highly refpected, that no Man dares look them in the Face, and they always look fo Stern, that it would be thought agreat Diforder to qofe the leaft of their Gravity, tho ${ }^{6}$ it were but with a modeft Smile. This they oblerve, when they pals thre the Streets, in'Sight of the People. TrcThe greateft Honour among them is to wear a Cymiter with a gold fommel, and a yellow Hat.

When the Prefident of the Gouncil Dies, the eldeft fudge fucceeds him. Thefe go Circuits thro the Provinces, and feform Abufes, and all of them weat the King's Badge on their Shoulders, afd Breafts, being a Golden Dragon wove in the Cloth. When they go thefe Progreffes, they fave, or leffen the Oharge by circumfcribitg the State. When firf elected, at their taking Poffeffion of their Pofts; they generally go out attended by Troops of Horfe and Foot, with all Sorts of Mufick, and Splendour. Their Pomp appears in the Hanging, and other Ornaments of the Streets and Houfes. All the expence of Law Suits, Courts, and other Perquifites is allow'd out of the King's Exchequer. The Mandarines are Governors, and Viceroys. In Cbina there are no Dukes, Marqueffes, or Earls, nor do they own any Dighity, Dut what is deriv'd from the King's Authority. Though in the Parts next to ScytVia, or Tartary, fome People are Malbometans; yet in all others, they are either Idolaters, or look upon the Notion of a God as a meer Jeif. They believe the Life and Death of Men and Beafts are alike. There is nothing they are more attentive to, than the obfructing of any foreign Religion, and this under the politick Pretence, that they are jealous of Innovation. But above all they oppofe the true Religion, hating that they know nothing of ; and are as much afraid of it, as if its Minifters went arm'd to preach it, and with the Noife of Drums, and Trumpets, and regular Armies. They are frighted at a few bare-foot, and almoft naked Men who profefs Poverty, and preach up Morality, and fupêrnatural Virtues, grounded on Humility and Peace. They have fuch an Averfion for them, that were it proper to our Subject, or were there not printed Relations thereof already, we would recount feveral Inftances, to thow their unreafonable Hatred. Hence may be inferr'd, how much more Need of the fpecial Grace of Heaven thefe Nations ftand in, with thofe in the Neighbourhood, which are expos'd to the Infection and Danger of their Obftinacy. The Reader ought alfo to confider, that tho fometines, the Avarice, and other Crimes of our Commanders, and Soldiers interfere with the Preaching of the Gofpel, yet their Offences do not leffen the Iuftice of the Caufe. He is alfo to reflect, that, allowing his Majefty, for weighty Reafons of State fhould, as we have faid was propos'd, refolve to abandon thofe Parts of Afia, as the Clinefes did, and circumfcribe the Compafs of his Monarchy ; yet the Caufe of Religiom would not permit it: Oar Kings are its Minifters, and Sons of the Catholick Church, and any War made for the Propagation of the Gofpel, is of the greateft Confequence, and highly gainful, tho' it be to acquire, or recover defert Provinces. Befides that the Pbilippine Iftands have fhown us how tractable their Natives are, and how much they improve with the Example, and Society of the Spaniards, and how affectionately they have imbrac'd the Faith, and affift the Religious Men, who dilate, and carry it over into China, Japan, Camboxa, Mindanao, the Moluccos, and other Iflands, where flill Idolatry continues, or the Friendfhip with the Devils left them by their antient Mafters, when they excluded them their Dominions, or elfe the Mabometan Fictions, which they have fine imbračd.
This is the Principal End of keeping thole Provinces; and the Revenues and Wealth which is confum'd upon them, and feveral others, are laid out upon the Forces, and Preparations Spain makes for the Preaching and Security of the Minifters of the Church. Befides, that as Times have alter'd, fo they have often in China chang'd their Opinion, and fhow'd they repanted their having diminiffed their Empire. No Year paffes over with out Threats of Cbinefe Armies; of their Linting Men; of building Ships; of their folemn confecrating, or dedicating them to their carv'd Gods, or to the Sun, Moon, and Stars, which are ador'd in forme Parts, begging Suecefs in their vain Prayers againft the Spaniards, who are poffefs ${ }^{\bullet d}$ of thole Countries they abandon'd, thro' their own Indifcretion. This fort Account of the Cbinefes, or Sangleys, is here inferted, for the better underfanding of thole Actions we fall con treat of. They not only oppofe the Truth; but the' they are wholly addicted to their Intereft, and Slaves to Gain, and tho' it be fo abfolutely requifite for the attaining of thofe Ends through their Induftry and Trade, to maintain Amity with their Neigh bourg, yet there is nothing lefs to be reliy'd on than their Faith, or so give it a more proper Name, their Diffimulation. Happy thole People, if when Ching withdrew its Dominion, it had alfo with drawn the Errors of its Worbip.

THE Illands Luzones, or Manilas, which are both of them antient Names, having been difcover'd by Magellan; after his Death, and various Accidents befallen his Companions, Sebaftian Cano return'd to Spain in that renowned Ship, call'd the Viftory, as it were to exprefs her Voyage, which is not folikely as true. Sebaflian Eano, was born in the Town of Guetaria, on the Pyienean Mountains, as we are told by Maffrus, in his Latin Hiftory, where he extols Cano's mighty Refolution, and skill in the Art of Navigation. He tells us with what Refpect and Admiration all Men look'd on him, as the firft that went round this Globe, which is the Habitation of Mortals. And in Truth what value fhall we henceforward put upon the Fabulous Argonauts, Tiplys, Fafon, and all other Sailers, fo much celebrated by the Greek Eloquence, or Vanity, if compartd with our Cano? He was the firf Witnefs of the Communication of the two Seas, to whom Nature difclos'd what fhe had till then referv'd for his Difcovery, fuffering herfelf to be entirely lay'd open, as a Beginning of fuch BoldEnterprizes of that Law which ferves, and renders us Immortal.

Magellan being dead, the Iflands Lufones, which ought to have inherited his Name for being his Place of Burial, as the Streight did for his difcovering and pafling it, in the year 1565 , chang'd theirs for that of Pbilippines, tho thofe of that Eaftern Archipelago bear the fame. The Adelant tado, or Lord Lieutenant Michasel de Legafpe, fent from New-Spain, by the Viceroy Don Lewis de Velafco, with a Spanif万. Fleet arriv'd at thefe Iflands. He firft conquerd that of $Z e b u$, and its Neighbours, where he fent fix Years. Thefe Iflands, as there are feveral Names given to divers of thofe Parts, are calld Pintados, becaufe then the Indians went naked, and their Bodies wrought and painted of feveral Colours. He Jfland fubfought the Barbarians, who after the fifft Surprize, caus'd by our Arms, ${ }^{\prime}{ }^{\prime}{ }^{\prime} d$. which at firft is narrow and fharp, prefently widens, becaufe the Sea-coaft runs away to the South South-Epft, and the River Weft, leaving 'a moft fpacious Spot for the City, which is all encompals'd with Water, except that part which lyes to the South-Weft. Legafpe then built it of Wood, whereof there is great plenty in thofe parts. The Roofs he cover'd, or Thatch'd with the Leaves of Nippa, which is like our Sedge, or SwordGrafs, and a fufficient Fence againnt the Rains ; but a Combuftible Matter, and the occafion of Great Conflagrations, which have often hapned.

Luzon is more Populous than any of the other Iflands, which in Ho nour of King Pbilip the Second, were call'd Phillippines, and which fome affirm are in Number 13000. The Compafs of Luzon is 350 Leagues. It runs without the Bay 100 Leagues to the Northward, as far as Nen Segovia; and from where this Province commences, which is at Cape Bojador, and 70 Leagues from it, turns to the Eaftward, to the Promontory Tel Enganno; from thence along the Coaft to the South, 80 Leagues; then turning again to that they call Enbbocadero, or the Mouth, being the ${ }^{2}$ Streight againf the Mand Tandaya, 40 Leagues, and this is 80 from the Bay. So that it bears the fhape of a Square, and in it feveral Bays, and few good Harbours. It lyes in 160 Degzees Longitude, reckoned from the Canaries, the Southermoft Part in 14 Degrees of North Latitude, and the Northermof in ig. On that Side of it lyes Clind, feparated from it by the Sea 60 Leagues over; and the Illands of $7 a p a n, 250$ Leagues difant. On the Eaft is the Vaft Ocean; on the South is the greateft of all the Archipelagos, divided into five, and thofe again rent into fo many Iflands, Kingdoms, and Provinces, as if Nature had refolv'd that Man thould never determine their Number. The moft known are the two favas, our Moluccos, Bornee, and New Guinea. On the Weft of Luzon, at 300 Leagues, and greater Diftances, lye Malaca, Siam, Patan, Camboxa, GocJin-china, and feveral other Provinces on the Continent of AFa. The Cbinefes forfook their Habitations in our Ppilippine Iflands, but not the Trade. Neither did the Worfhip they had introduc'd ceafe, nor their FerProduct, and Traide. tility. They produce plenty of Corn, and other neceffary Grain; Deer, Cows, Buffaloes, Goats, and Wild Boars ; Fruit, and Sweets; and if any be wanting the Cliinclieo Cbinefes bring it, as they do Porcelane, and Silks. The Wine they ufe, and always drank, is drawn from the Palm, or rather Coco Trees, cutting off the Clufers of the Fruit they produce, when Green, and taking of the Nipples of them, they gather the Water that runs from them, and Boil it in Jars, till it becomes fo frong, that it makes Men drunk, in the fame manner as the firongeft Spanifo Wine. Of its Natural Growth, the Ifland has Oranges, Lemmons, and mont delicious Citrons; of Spani/b Fruit, Figs, and Pears. There are Numerous Breeds of Spar row-Hawks, Birds like fmall Herons, and Eagles, befides fundry Sorts of Parrots, and other large and finall fowl. In the River's atid Lakes the fe are many Monftrous Crocodils, or Alligators。 Thefe eafly $k$ kll the Indians; and efpedially Boys, who happen unadvifedy to come where they are, and the Cattle that goes into the Water to drink It often liappens, they lay hold of theit Snouts, or Nofes, and draw them under Water, where they are drown'd without being able to defend themfelves; then they drag the Carcafs to the Shore, and devour it. An Alligator being kill d a whole Buffaloes Head has been found fonse times in the Belly, and yet in that Country they are as big as the largeft Ox in Spain. The Alligators lay Eggs as the Tortoifes do, about the bignefs of Goofe-Eggs, and fo hard that they will fcarce break, tho freck againf a Stone with main Force. They are Hatch'd by burying in the Sand, neat the edge of the Wa ter; the moifture whereof, with the Heat of the Sturforms the young Ones. There are fome Indians fo brave, that as fietce ts thefe Creatures are, they kill them with their Hands. They atm whe left up to the Arm with a Glove of Buffalo's Hide. They hold in it-a Stick, or finall Stake, fome what above a Foot long, and as thick as a Man's Wrift, and ftharpned at both Ends, with which they go into the Water up to the Wafte: The Crocodile makes up to the Indian, gaping to fwallow him, and he holding out his Arm that is arm'd, and the Fand with the Stake in it, for the Monfter to bite at, claps it aerofs his Mouth, fo that he cannct Shut it, of make ufe of his Teeth to hurt him. The Alligator feeling the hurt of the fharp pointed Stick, is fo difnayed that he neither makes refiftance, nor offends, nor dares fo much as move, becaufe the leaft ftrugling gauls him. Then the Indian holding fan the Stake, with a Ponyard he has in his other Hand, Wounds the Creature fo often abour the Gills, till it bleeds to Death. Then he drags it afhore with Ropes and Noozes, many Indians joyning to draw, and there is need of many, confidering the Bulk of thofe Crocodiles. They are thap 'd like Eizards, but arm'd with fuchftrong Shells, that a Musket-fhot malkes-little Impreffion on them, and they are fcarce to be hurt, but only about the Gills, and under their fhort Legs, where Nature has plac'd a fort of fweet Odour, which the Indians make their Advantage of. Thefe Iflands, befides the Cattel, produce all that is found in-Africk, as Tygers, Lions, Bears, Foxes, Monkeys, Apes, Squirrels, and fome of them Abundance of Civet-Cats, which are much Hunted, in order to be fent into feveral Cotutries, with other Commudities of China; Callicoes, Silks, Porcelane, Iren, Copper, Stee, Quickfiver, and many more Yearly Tranfportea from thofe Countries. The Religion and Government is now the fame as in Spain; but in thofe which are not yet fubdud, they follow an Extravagant Idolatry; believing the Soul Immortal, but wandering from one Body to another, according to that ridiculuas Tranfinigration invented or publiph' by Pythagoras, They are much addifed to Trade, and forwarded in it by whe Commerce

Don Ronquillo de Penyalofa was then Governour there; and tho' he had receiv'd fome Intelligence brought him thence by Spies and Traders, yet not fatisfyd with it, he fent thither another Soldier. He difguifed himfelf, and being like the Natives in Countenance, and fieaking their Language to Perfection, got to Tydore. He found our People very earnef to forward that Enterprize, and that King ready to fupport it with all his Power. Thence he pafs'd bver to Ternate, among Merchants, where he view'd the Forts, the Shoals of the Harbours; obferv'd their Correfpondence with the Englifh, and took notice how they Landed, and Traded in all Safety, or rather with Authou rity. Nor was he unacquainted with the Numbers of conceal'd Chriftians, who would take up Arms when a feafonable Opportunity was offer'd, or any other Particular, which belong'd to a Judicious Spy to enquire int to. Hereupon Ronquillo gather'd about 300 Spaniards, and above 1500 Na tives of the Philippines, with Ammunition, Provifions, and Seamen, and at the proper Seafon fent them for the Mohuccos in three Great Ships, and a confiderable Number of Small Ones. Peter Sarniento, a brave and experienc'd Officer, ftill living in thofe Iflands, when this was writ, went as General. He had Courage, and Force to deftroy any of the Enemies that th n frequented thofe Seas. His Majefty had fome time before befow'd the Government of Ternate, if it were Conquer'd, on Paul de Lima; and allow'd his Brother Francis de Lima to make two Voyages to the Moluccos, in Conifideration of their Services, and thofe of Henry their Father. Paul was Marry'd to a Chriftian, and devout Lady, thot a Kinfwoman to the King of Ternate, who was not fo. The Enterprize was farther Authoriz'd by the Prefence of Don folm Ronquillo, the Governour's Nephew, who had equal Power with Sarmiento, both by Sea and Land. If any thing was wanting, they thought the Defect would eafily be fupily'd by the Valour of the Soldiers, the Celerity of the Pafo fage, and thie Enemies Surprize ; but the divided Command was an Obflacle to their Hopes.
The Weather prov'd not very crols, yet neither was it fo favourable, as that they could come diredty to anchor at Ternate, as would have been moff convenient to deceive the Watchfulnefs of the Enemy. They artiv'd at Moutil, and fought a Parcel of Janguas in Sight of Land; which were taken, and the Chriftians in them fet at Liberty., Paul de Lima being well acquainted with the Bays, and there being no fufficiemt Force in the Ifland to withfland a Fleet, it eafily fubmitted, when attack'd in feveral Parts. The Natives came out with Palm, Cirron, and Clove-Tree Branches, in Token of Peace, and to beg Pardon. Both were granted, and Paul de Lima appointed their Lord, tho his New Dominion turn'd to little Account, for within a few Days, all the People Alipp'd away, either becaufe they thought themfelves fafer at Ternate, or to meet the Enemy, who of Neceffity muf carry the War over into that Ifland, as it happen'd. Here Sarmiensa refitted the Ships, and being over-joy'd with this Succefs, obtain'd without the Lofs of Jone Mdan, arriv'd at Talang ame, paffing amidft the Enemies Carcoas, which they bad fitted out in a Hurry. The King expected him long before in the Fort, well furnifh'd with our Cannon, particularly the Baftion they had enlarg'd, and call'd Cachil Tulo, from the King's Uncle, who made it, and thefe Preparations feem'd to threaten any Difanter. Our Men landed on that Side, and were oppos'd by the Ternates; but Night put an End to the Fight, and both Parties retiring to their Faftneffes, our Cannon was tanded, and plaited in the Place, and after fuch Manner as Paul de Lima directed, and ever fince he commanded it in the Fort of Tydore. The King of this Inand was willing to joyn our Camp, as had appear'd by fome of his Actions, and his Promifes to the Enfign Duennas; but he miffufted the Fortune of the Spaniards, as if he had not had fufficient Experience of it. The Opportunity and Fidelity now invited him, and yet he forbore; his Doubtfulnefs is thought to have been prejudicial to the Succefs: Sarmienta having planted his Cannon, intrench'd himfelf, and taking fome Prifoners, of whom he learn'd what Provifions and Amunition the Befieged had, began to prefs on, and batter them furioully; yet they were not difcourag'd, but anfwer'd boldly. It was found convenient to foffefs the upper Grounds, which over-looking the Place, tho' they have been fince levell'd, our Men ruch incommoded the Enemy, and had they continu'd it, that would have put an End to the War. However there was fo much Sicknefs in the Camp, that no Remedy was found againt it, but going off fo to fave themfelves for a more favourable Seafon. The Succours which came as. Duties from Tydore, were very inconfiderable; the Allies were cold, and all Things weak; what other Caufes there were Heaven knows. It is likely there were fome of more Moment, for in fhort the Army broke up, and reimbark'd for Mani$l a$, without doing any thing but adding to the Enemies Refolution.
At that Time, only the Englifp Nation difturb'd the Spani/b Sovereignty in thofe Eaftern Parts; for this Reafon, King Pbilip was defirous, not only for the prefent to curb them by Force of Arms, but to make them an Example to all other Nations, that they might not fpread themfelves abroad to attempt fuch Invafions, as we are Eye-Witneffes to. This Work was undertaken in the Year 1588 , but firft happen'd what we are now to relate. Queen Etizabeth of England, after a tedious Imprifonment, beheaded Mary Stuart, Queen of Scotland, for fome Politick Reafons, or Fictions. The then King of Scotland, and fince of England alfo, Son to the Martyr, arm'd his People, ftrengthen'd his Garrifons, and invaded the Dominions of the Enemy, who had caus'd him to be Motherlefs; and more

And Army agaim/t England. fprung froma He gather'd, for the Conqueft of England, the mightieft Fleet that has been feen on the Ocean in our Days. Twenty Thoufand fighting Men were put aboard tall Ships, befides 9000 Sailors, with 1730 Pieces of Cannon, Abundance of Ammunition, and Pikes and Fire-Arms for the Catholicks, who it was hop'd, as foon as they faw the spanifh Colours, would joyn our Army. Dan Alonfo Derez de Guzman, Duke of Medina Sidonia commanded inChief, and was to joyn the Prince of Parma, then Governour of Elanders, who had Commiffion to raife another Army of 30000 Horfe and Foot, with the Neceffary Provifions and Ammunitipri, which he was to tranfport at a fit Seafon to that Point of England, where the Thames falls into the Sea, to march thence to London, and there Arm the Catholicks. Bux it was firft requifite to beat the Englijh at Sea, where they were then powerful, and well acquainted with the proper Times to fail and keep at Home. At the leaft they were to be terrify'd, that they might not dare to obftuct the Paffage of the Froops, the Prince of Parna had in seadinefs at Dunkirk and Newport, or hinder their embarking, when the Spanifik Fleet Thould come thither to waft them over. shis Fleet fail'd from Lishon on the 2 gth of May, 1588 , and as foon as out fuffer'd much by the Weather, fo that three Gallies were caft away, on the Coant of Bsyonme. Abundance of the Powder blew ups and the Genefal wasoblig'd to return to Cormmn,s, to refit; whence be could nor get out till the 2 d of $\mathfrak{F} u l y$.

Being come into 48 Degrees of Latiude, he fent away Don Lesois de Guaman to give Advice to the Prineero? Payint, and on thellaft of the fame Month arriv'd hinfelf at the Lifzard, in Cofpapall, where he lay by, and 4terintic was certainly inform²d, that all the Enemy's Ships, being fifty in number,

There Don Pedro de Valdes, a Spanilh Commander of known Valour, and then Lieutenant General, was made Prifoner, with whom they fent to Plymowth, a great Quantity of Crown Pieces, and fifty Great Guns. Abour 4co Spaniards were kill ${ }^{\prime} d$, and taken. On the $2 d$ and $4 t / 5$ of Auguff, the Lord Howard, and Drake joynsd their Squadrons, fome write they had an hundred Sail, all well Mann'd, and light, with which they infefted ours, which were heavy, and encumber'd, particularly the Portuguefe Galleon, calls the $\mathbb{S}$. Fohn, being the greateft in the Fleet, and in it were John Martinez de Recalde, the Count de Paredes, the Marques do la Favara, and other Commanders of Note. However they got to the Ifle of $W$ ig $\bar{b} t$, whence the Duke fent away two Meffengers to the Prince of Parma, who was then at Bruffels, defiring he would furnifh him with Powder and Ball, for the Defence of the Fleet, and imbark what Troops he had ready. But he, either prevented by invincible Obfacles, or for other Reafons, which have left that Princes Reputation exposid to Cenfures, mov fo flowly, that what had been fo maturely con- certed took no Effect. The Enemy boafing, that the Sea and Winds had of toinent fought againft us, in Vindication, as they faid of their Caufe, made publick Rejoycings, firing their Camon; and foon after the Queen put forth a Proclamation to the fame Effect, againft which a certain Englifh Religious Man writ learnedly, by the Name of Andrew Plilopator.

The Dutch who were in Confederacy with Queen Elizabeth, feeing this Succefs, were encourag${ }^{\bullet d}$ to alpire to greater Matters, renouncing their Religion, and their Sovereign, actempting to ufurp the Treafures of the Eact, Mines, Spice, Drugs, and Silks, as appear's by their bold Voyages, wherein

The Dutchaafpire。 they have endeavour ${ }^{\text {d }}$ to follow the frefh Examples of the Engli/l, and the ancient fet them by Columbus, Albuquerque, Magellan, Gama, and Cortes, as we fhall fee hereafter. But, both they and the Engli/h, if they try the Jurtice of their Caufe Dy the Succefs of that Fleer, muft be oblig'd to prefer the Caufe of the Gentiles, when God for his Secret Judgments permit ted his own chofen People to be over-thrown. Deftruction is more glorious than Profperity; and a religious Soul will rather chufe to be caft down than Victorious, if an angry God is to give it the Victory.

After this Santiago de Vera govern'd the Philippine Iflands, and by fecial Order, arm'd againft Ternate, where the Englijh from that Time traded with all poffible Security, All Nations had fettled Factories except the Favanefes and Lafcarines. Above 2500 Mabometans from Mecca preach'd their Abominations. They fear'd nothing from Portug al, all their Apprehenfion was from the Spaniards, who were newly ingag'd to feek Revenge. The King of Ternate well knew that Sarmiento and Ronquillo. would have taken it, had not Difeafes prevented them. When the News of frefh Preparations came to Tydore, it was carry'd over by Spies to Termate. That King prefently call'd together his Subjects, efpecially the Iflanders of Maclian and Homer, who came in 40 Carcoas, becaule their Iflands were very populous. The Number had been greater, but that the King would not fuffer more to be fitted out than he demanded, for he could Ternate yot conceal his Fear that- they would rebel, thofe Parts being full of Chri- prepares.

ftians, and the Taxes he laid on the People intolerable. Santiago de Vera appointed Fobn Morones General, who wanted not for Conduct, nor his Men for Valour, nor the Fleet for Camon and Ammunition. But whether Na tural Ambition, or any other Accident was the Occafion of it, there were fuch Divifions among them, that they had fufficient Grounds to miftruft the Event, before they left Manila. They fet fail with fair Weather, and pafs'd the greateft Dangers of the Sea, and when they thought themfelves fafeft, all the Elements feem'd to confpire againft the Fleet. They loft the Light, and their Reckning, the Veffels were fhatter'd, and the greateft of

For all this, they infifted upon proceeding, and the King of Bachian affifted them with what Forces he had rais'd, under Colour of clearing the Sea of fome Enemies; and being a Chrintian baptiz d, lamented his departing from our holy Faith, on Account of Perfecution, and promis'd the Reftitution of his Soul.

The Weather growing calm, when they were in Sight of Ternate, the Carcoas durft not fland them, but fled at the firf Difcharges, which they Spanifh General refufes the beft Advice can do without receiving any Damage. Therefore the two Kings, and Paul de Limta, advis'd to fall on in feveral Places. Ferdinand Boto Machado, Captain of a Galleon, was of the fame Opinion; but the General fufpecting the former, on Account of his Affinity, and the latter for the Friendfhip he had lately contracted with the King of Tydore, whom he was not well. fatisfy'd with, would not follow their Advice; alledging, That it was not convenient, by dividing the Forces, to weaken them more than the Storm had done. He laid Siege, to the Fort, but the Befieged being acquainted with the Condition of our Troops, oppos'd all their Affaults courageoufly, $f$ and fcoff'd and laugh'd at the infignificant Batteries. However our Men, whom the Storms had depriv'd of Neceffaries for that Work, vented their Spleen upon the favanefe. Thefe valu'd themfelves upon fallying out to Skirmift, being diftinguifhable by their Arms, and manner of drawing up. The Spaniards handled them fo roughly, that they did little more during the War. Some Months were fpent in Fruitlefs Attempts, and if they had attack'd the Country, but a Culverine-Shot fhort of the Fort, at the Bay of Limatbao, and march'd thence 10 attack the Fort behind, as the moft underftanding defir'd, it had been of good Confequence. But the General Morones, putting all upon Experience without Forecaft, was fatisfy'd with fronting next the Sea, doing much Harm, which was caus'd by that firf, and obrinate manner of attacking; and that gave Way for Succours to go into the Natives, at other landing Places, tho' thirty Men at a fmall Difance might have prevented it. This both the Kings maintain'd, whofe Valour, which ought to be commended even in Enemies, if our General had pleas'd, might have given Succefs to this Undertaking. Befides that experience has fhown that fifty Spaniards have done as much upon Occafion, as whole Roman Legions well arm'd and difciplin'd.

Morones now perceiving that neither his Arms, nor his Propofals had

Hill. On the Land Side of it is the Mountain, and on the Back a Lake, and is of norufe, becaufe it does not defend the Ciry, which is open, and is ravanefe only regarded for being near the ald Fort. Our Men went an chearfully, Slipsburnt and the Defendants receiv'd them as we'l fining their Cannon, which gave a Check to the Spanifh Fury. Thole in the other Fort, tho' they made little ufe of Fire-Arms, being compell'd by Neceflity, ventur'd to faliy out to the Shore. To draw shem to this Refolution, fome of out Men on a fudden fet Fire to the Junks, in which a great Namber of Javanefe Indians had come thither. The Veffels, which were old blaz'd up, wichout any Obftruction from thole who guarded them, but they referr'd the Remedy ito their Weapons. They were in all about 3000 fighting Men, 1000 of them had Muskets, whereof 200 were expert at them; the refl neither Pikes, nor Lances, wor any other long fort of Arms, but only thofe they call Toranas, about a Fathom in Length, like Darts, and fome like Arrows, which they caft by main Strength, with Canes and Stritigs, wherewith they unexpectedly wound unarm'd Men in Fight; becaufe they fly not out of a Bow, but are thrown ftrait forward, or over their Heads. Others had only their Campilaves, of Cymiters, and Shields. Manly of them foughe the more obftinately, confideng in their Coats of Mail, and Head-Pitces, bought of the Portuguefes; but as foon as they clos'd with our Men, they broke their Order, and lof Courage. This Accident proved a very great Obflacle, becaufe it diverted our Men from their dauble Defign of preffing both Forts at the fame Time, fo that the very Commanders were forctdro ingage. Moronos knew how to behaveinimfelf uponlal Occafions, and the Bloody Spaniards made fuch a Slaughter, that almót all the Favariefes lay upon Victory the Spot. Thofe in the Forts had notthe Courage to fall in upon the Rear, gaiw'd by thos they pourd a Volley upon the Forces of Tydore and Bacbiar, but with the Spanilittle Harm. This Vietory was not gain'd without Effufion of Blood, yet ards. they took Heart to hope for one more compleat, at the Arrival of the Gasleon from India, and believ'd that Additionof Strength would make amends for what they loft in the Storm.

The Galeon arriv'd at Tydere, better provided to carry on the Trade, Tlie Siege then the War. For this Redion, and becaile many of our MenwereSick, or 'rais'd. Wounded, Morones was oblig'd to raife the Siege, and difmift thofe Kings, th whom he afterwards fent Prefents of spmi/b Commodities, fome. Horfes and Silks. It was fince known that tho the Ternater will endure much Hardfin, they were then fo near prefs'd, that Hunger muft have fuldu'd them, could our Men have flay'd a little longer. They embarksd in Sight of the Enerny, who prefently appeard in the Field rejoycing, with Mufick, and other Tokens of Victony. The Afatick Traders reforted to their Ports, and others from Earope, butparticularly their new Friends the Englifb, with whom they communicated the Joy of their Succefs.

They never hade agood ufe of Peace and Quiernefs at Ternate, as foon as Notakle in that was now reftord, the king was again at Varianoe with his Unkles; Practices. which Fortune fo mproved as to fumifh an Opportunity that might have been advantageous to our Defigns, had not the thwarted it. Cachil Marilra$w$ was the mobleft of Suttan Rexioss Sons, as bupn of the Queen they call Putriz, whichis the Chiefo IHis Father would have had him fucceed in the Throne, butwas difented bit a Boldnefs which does not ufe to be mif-

The Father one Day found them talking together, in the Apartment referv'd only for himfelf; and tho' he was fatisfied their Converfation was within the Bounds of Decency, took fueh an Averfion, that he deprivid him of the Succeffion. He call'd Caclijl Mandraxa to him, and repeating all paft Diftates,told him, how defirous he was to remove all manner of Jealoufies by a perfect Reconciliation, which he thought might be done by ineans of the Princefs Filola, and fince there was fuch a good Correfpondence between them, all the Reft would be eafie. However before he gave her to him to Wife, he muft reflect that the was promis'd to the King of Tydore, to whom he was not willing to adminifer frefh Caufes of War, or to be the Occafion of interrupting that fhort Tranquility they enjoy'd. That fince all they difcours'd there would remain in their Breafts, he would have him to take his Advice. Mandraxa was befide himfelf, with that unexpected Satisfaction, and yet had he been truly Mafter of himfelf, he might eafily have feen thro' the Fraud of that plea-

He thank'd him for the Favour, and putting his whole Dependance on the Words of his Mouth, defir'd he would give him the Advice he fpoke of. The King anfwer'd, $\bar{I}$ Bave contriv'd a Way, which will fatisfie you, and the King of Tydore will NW bave no Caufe to complain. For the attaining of both theje Ends, I -asqu will keep Council, as is requifite, and do you any Night fleal away the Princefs, the Way you fall beft like, fo it be with Regard to my Reputation, and in all Refpects giving fuch outward Tokens, that all Men may believe it was open Violence, aud no Contrivance, or at leaft known to me. For why Jhould I, Unkle, wilh for the Felicities of this World, but to make them common to our, Family? I will retain the Cares of the Crown, and do you enjoy the Sat isfadion the Kingdom affords. Mandraxa could not forbear Weeping for Foy, he fell down at his Nephew's Feet and kifs'd them, without difguizing any thing of his Paffion, yet fuppreffing the Joy of his new Hopes, the beft he could, he found Means to acquaint the Princefs, and to appoint the Hour, Place, and Confidents for expofing herfelf to be folen away.Cachal

To this Purpofe they pitch'd upon a Garden, which looks out upon the Sea, adorn'd with its Natural Trees, whence the Ships are feen, and among them, on the Day prefix'd they fpy'da Carcon, with all the Men that Row'd curioufly drefs'd and they and the Soldiers wearing Garlands, plainly fhow'd the Defign of their Voyage, tho' they row'd without the Mufick they ufe to have at other Times. Mradraxa and a fmall but brave Number of his Friends landed as filently, and they after the manner of Talafio, and the ancient Romons, when they forc'd away the Sabine Women, laid Hold of Filola and the Ref, and run them aboard with all poffible Speed, conveying them to a frong Place in the Ifland, where having fortify'd himfelf, like a Soldier, Mandraxa devote himfelf to Love. Fame the utter Enemy to. Secrecy divulg'd the Fact, and convey'd it over to the King of Tydore's Ears, with the King of Ternate's Complaints. He magnify 'd the Afront, and every Man fpoke of it, according to his own Notion. The King who had contrivid it,and by whole Breath all the Machines of that Tragedy were mov'd affembled the prime Men of his Kingdom, moft of them Enemies to the deluded Mandraxa, and affrd their Afliftance and Advice in fo notorious a Bafe falfeViolence, and pretending extraordinary Concern. They all Voted to a Man, bood of the that it was abfolutely neceffary to make fuch an example as might deter others from the like. When the Confultation was over, the King difpatch'd Meffengers to his Unkle, intreating him to repair to Court to fop ill Mouths by fair Means, and appeafe the Neighbouring Princes. Cacbil Mandraxa made no difficuly to obey, as well knowing that none of his Actions had been contrary to the King's Orders. Only the Princefs advis'd the Contrary; for tho' young, as little above 20 years of Age, fhe was better acquainted with her Brother, and well knew he never kepr his Faith, particularly with his own Family, and that he could not have any Kindnefs for them as being jealous of the Crown. Mandraxa made no Account of all that, but went to Court, and enter'd the Palace attended by his Family, and relying on the King's Promife, but more efpecially on the fecret My ftery of that Affair, known only to them two, Unkle and Nephew. When he came to kifs the King's Hand, he looking as fern as if he had not advis'd the ftealing of the Princefs, faid he knew not what Courfe take upon fo notorious an Affront offerd to his Crown and Palace, but to cut of his Head. Mandraxa thinking at firf that had been all Counterfeit, and according to what had been agreed bet ween them, when he perceivcd it was barefacrd falfehood, would have fpoke loud inDefence of his Innocence; but was not permitted, and the King making a Sign to a Sturdy Black he had prepar'd for that Action, he drew his Cymiter, and hew'd him down barbaroufly. The poor Prince fell, without being reliev'd by any Man; for at that Time his Brothers Cacbil Tulo, and Cacbil Sufur were not at Ter2ate, the former being Governor, the latter Admiral. Nor did they come to Ternate in a long Time after, tho they took Care to protect the Widdow Princefs, who was left with Child, and afterwards brought forth Cacliz Amida, who dy'd Young.

The whole Truth of this Matter was foon known, with all its Particulars, and Circumfances; and the Cachiles conferring ogether, Tulo refolv'd to go over to the Service of King Pbilip, to which Purpofe, when Duarte Pereyva was Commander in Chief at Tydore, he went thither to treat with him, and with Antony de Matos, who went firft for the fame End to Bachian; but forafinuch as what was concerted ameng them, will better appear by the Letier Cachil Tulo fent from Tydore to the Governour Santiago de Vera, we will here infert it, tranflatad from the Malaye Language, by the King's Naguatatos, fo they there call the Interpreters.

He commends the King of Baclian, and fays he in private lives like a Chiftian. Among thefe Things he intermixes many more, alh of them tending to perfwade the Expedition of Ternate, to blot out the laft Difgrace, without any Expence to the King, through Cablil Tuslo's Contrivance,

The Governour receiv'd this Difpatch, and he would willingly have put it in Execution immediately; but as it went on flowly, and the Death of Cachil Tulo happened in the meanwhile, it was requifite to delay the Dei fign, and attend to the Prefervation of the Pbilippine Illands, againet the Machinations of the Clsinefes and Faponefes, againk whofe Robberies and Burnings they are never fecure. Each off thefe Artempts harafs'd the Province with the Expence of Treafure, and Powver, fo that there was a neeeflity of breathing to recover both. It was thought the moft proper Adन vice to joyn from, the Pljilippines and Malaca, with equal Force, coming from both Partsito Arm in the Moluccos, which was the Boundary of both Provinces. This took Effect fome Jears aftem, Captain, Andketp Firis, tado coming from Mataca, of whofe Actions ie will be propento begin to. fpeak to give a Reputation to his Perfon. 11 brumots of ancals Andrew Funtado de Mendoza might have Innobled this Family yade it Andrew not been of antieno Quality: He was the Terror of thofer Baftern Parts; Furtado where he fery'd the King ever fince the Year 1576 , fubduing Barbarous his davions Nations, In the Year 1587 he was Governour of the Fort of Raclool, till he came to have that of Malaca. Whilft he was in the firft, fome Villa-1 ges of Gentiles rofe up againft the Miniffers of the Church, difurbing: Chrifianity with Warlike Drforders. Fuiztado pacify'd them with Severt rity, and his:Authority. In 1501 Euxtado was Commander of the Portuguefe Soldiery in that Archipelagn, and was very earnief to emplay them: in the Recovery of Ternate; but was hinider'd by other Wars," which he concluded Victorioully. In duguft that fame Yeaz, he was inform'd thats Eighteen Galeons had put out of Cunnal, Commanded by Cutumaza, affitted by Raju, with a Defign to Befiege the Fort of Ceylon. Furtado went out in Search of the Enemies Fleet, and by the way reliev'd the Fort of Ceylon; and on the Coaft of Malabar he met three Ships Bound from Mecea for Cunnal. He fought them, and Sunk two, the Sea running fo high, that the Veffels which Row'd could not attack them. The other after a long Difpute yielded to him. This Victory was a fufficient Revenge for the Burning of our Ships. Continual War is maintain'd in thele Parts, which Neighbour upon Malaca; and that in Ceylon never ceafes, contrary to the Advice of Perfons that are well acquainted with India; becaufe the beft Product of that Ifland being the Cinnamon, a Commodity of lefs Durance than the Mace, Clove and Pepper, they look upon almof all the expence laid upon Ceylon, as good as thrown away. Befides that the greateft Commanders are employ'd in fuppreffing the continual Rebellions of thofe moft inconftant People, without ftretching out, at leaft as far as the Moluccos, by their Abfence encouraging their Tyranny, and giving Opportunity to Nations that are our Enemies to fix themfelves in our Forts.
Ceylon $d e f c r i b^{2} d$.

Ceylon is one of the moft Remarkable Iflands in the World, and the mon fruitful. It lies oppofite to Cape Comorin, Nobly Inhabited, and cultivated. In it grow all Plants, known in all other Parts of the World, Nutmegs, Pepper, Cinnamon, and the moft Excellent call'd Mofyllion grows in this Hland. Here is Wild and Garden Fruit, Spanifb Figs, and Grapes, and the beft Oranges in all Afia. There are whole Woods of mighty Palm-Trees. The Variety of Flowers, would take up much Time to defcribe it ; as alfo of Grain known to us, Wheat, Rice, and Flax, of which and their Cotton, they make wonderful Webs. It has all forts of Precious Stones, Gold, Silver, Steel, Tin, Iron, and Seed Pearl. Seve-

Product. ral Chriftaline Rivers, and Fountains moiften it, with delightful and Medicinal Waters, of Excellent Qualities. And among the reft there are Springs of Liquid Bitumen, thicker than our Oyl, and fome of pure Balfam. There are Burning Mountains continually blazing, and cafting out Clods of Brimftone among the Crags of the Hills; where there are Groves

Birds. of Tall Trees, on whofe Branches are to be feen all forts of Birds that fly in other Parts of the World, and among them our Turkys, Wild Hens, and Pidgeons. It abounds in Deer, Wild-Boars, TYgers, Lions, and Elephants of fo Noble a Kind, that all others fubmit to them. Thofe that are bred in this Ifland have fuch an Extraordinary Natural Inftinet, that it verifies what Ariftotle, Plutarch, Atbencus, Dlian, Pliny, and others, who have Writ Natural Hiftory teftifie, and is, that whether it proceeds from Knowledge, or Habit, they partake of the Wit, Senfe, and even of the Prudence of Men. We are told they have fo much Senfe of Honour, that they will not go Aboard a Ship, if they inagine they are carry'd to ferve Princes in ftrange Countries, and that they obey, if their Owners fwear they will bring them back to their own. That they are concern'd at abufive Words given them. That they pay a fort of Religious Refpect to the Sun and Moon. That they remember fuch Things as they conceive ; and Gellius perfwades us we may believe, that at Night they bewail their Servitude with doleful Complaints ; and if any Man happens to come near in the Height of their Lamentation, they with fhame fupprefs their Sighs; inatila and in fhort, they feem fenfible of the Iniquity of their Fate. In this Country it is their Part to load and unload Ships, the Weight of Commerce, whether Arms, Metals, Provifions, or other Commodities whatfoever hanging on their Teeth, or lying on their Necks. They are more willing to carry Arm'd Men on their Backs, in great Caftles built to that purpote. They ferve the Cbingalas, not as they did in Rome at publick Shows, but in Battel, as they did the Cartbaginians, and afterwards the Romans. The People of Ceylon believe their Country is the Terreftrial Paradife. They call the 1 op of a certain Mountain Adam's Point, and on it, they fay, is to be feen the Print of his Foot, and that there he did Pennnance. Upon this Belief, the Fogues, who are penitent Pilgrims, vifit that Point, where they affirm there grows a thick Tree, of an indifferent Strange Height, with fmall rough Leaves, of a dufy Colour, the Bark Afh-co- Tree. lour'd, which in the Night fhines, and difpells Darknefs. Under Colour of this Superftition, all the Gangs of ftrowling Players or Actors, come Players. out of this Ifland, and travel throughout all India, reprefenting their Fables, with odd Geftures, and Dancing to little Flat Tabors, Bag-pipes, and Rattles of fmall Bells. Abundance of Pearls are found about it. The Gold and other Metals are kept untouch'd in the Mines, by publick Law, and yet notwithftanding this Precaution, they are not free from War and Oppreffion. The Natives are call'd Clingalas, and refemble the Malabars in Cuftoms and Countenances. They have broad Nofes, but are not fo King's ex black, and go naked, but not to immodefty. Formerly they had but one King, who was difpoffefs ${ }^{2} d$ by Force, and Treachery, and the Kingdom divided among many. Divifion having thus weaken'd them, a Barbarian, call'd $R a j u$, ty rannically expell'd the King's the Ifland; one of whom was by the Magnificence of the Kings of Portugal bred at Goa.

Raju was a fubtle Soldier, and jealous even of thofe that fupported him. He had fome Years before, befiey'd the Fort of Columbo, with a great Body of Foot, Elephants and Horfe. Andrew Furtado being in fearch of the Enemies Fleet, in Profecution of his Revenge for the Ships loft, to relieve the Fort of Columbo, doubled Cape Comorin, thro' the Streight of Colues Ceylon, at the Time when it is ufually mont difficult and dangerous for Tali Ships, much more for fuch Veffels as ufe Oars. He came to the Fort fo opportunely, that had he ftay'd never fo little longer it had been lof, for moft of the Garrifon had mutiny'd againft their Commander in Chief Simon de Brito who was wounded by them with two Musket Balls. He quell'd the Mutiny, punifh'd the Ring-leaders, fatisfy'd fuch as had juft Caufe of Complaint or had been wronged, and with all poffible Speed went out to find Cunale's Fleet. Nor was he difappointed, for the Enemy did not offer to fly, but met him, with his Ships drawn up in good Order, and after Cannonading, they laidone another aboard, where there was an obftinate Fight on both Sides, till Cunnale's Navy was defeated. Nor long after, Firtado was informed by his Spyes, that the King of Fafanapatan had conchaded a League with Raju, prefling him to revarn to the Siege of Columbo, whilft he did the fame to Mana! That bis Prefumption might not want fuch Punifhment, as became the Honour of the Grown of Portugal, and the Repuration of its Grandeur, which is more prevalent in thole Parts than Force, Furtaidogathering what Power he could, with all poffible Celerity attack'd that Kiog. He was not urprovided, but-drawing Routs Jinn, up without the WWalls of that City, offer'd him Battel, his Men, Elephants and Fubti and Horfes covering fpacious Eields. Thefe and other no lefs notable Actions, he perform'd in the fpace of four Furtado ill Months; but as Envy feldom fails to oppole Valour, when he came to us'd would Coclin, and was there ready to fet out for the Conqueft of the Moluccos, depirt Inand particularly of Ternate, he received Letters from the Viceroy, Matthias dia. he Albuquerque commanding him to deliver up the Fleet to Numno Vello Pereyra. He obey'd, and when he came to Goa, was Imprifoned, and put to Trouble. As foon as it was in his Power, he refolved to depart India, and remove himfelf from the ill-will of thofe he thought were nut his Friends; but the City of Goa conjur'd him not to forfake it, and in vain endeavourd to procure a Reconciliation betwixt thofe Commanders. This happened in the Year 1592 , when, and fome Years after, Ternate might have been reJiev'd, as Furtado defir'd, had not the Animofities reigning obftructed it. However they were fo far from employing him, that, tho' Furtado feveral times Offer'd himfelf, with his own Ships, and at his proper Coff, where there was fuch Neceflity of fuppreffing Cunnale, yet he was as often Rejected, and that Victory envy'd him, which afterwards he had granted by Heaven, as we thall fee in its Place.

At this Time Santiago de Vera was difcharged of his Command of the Pailippine Iflands. He had fignified his Intentions to Andrew Furtado, and received his Anfwer, That he would comply with his Defires; but Fortune difappointed thefe good Beginnings, embroiling Firrtado with thofe who did not love him, and removing Santiago from his Government. His Succeffor was Gomez Perez de las Marinnas, Knight of the Order of Santiago, or St. Fames the Apoflle, a Perfon of high Reputation, born at Betanzos, in the Kingdom of Galicia. He arriv'd at the philippines in the Year 1590, and brought with him his Son Don Lewis, Knight of the Order of Alcantara: The new Governor found Manila open, without any Form of a City, and without Wealth to Improve it. Above 200000 Pieces of Eight were wanting for this Purpofe; yet he compafstd the Work by Projects, and Contrivance without any Dammage to the Publick, or to private Perfons. He Monopoliz'd the Cards; he laid Penalties on exceffive Gaming, and puniffid fuch as Forefakd the Markets, and on Victuallers, and other Retailers of that Sort that were guilty of Frauds; with thefe Fines he buile the Walls of Manila, which are 12849 Geometrical Foot in Compafs, each Foot being the third part of a Y ard. He apply'd himfelf diligently to this Work, and the Inhabitants attended it, being willing to forward it on Account of the Intreaties and Esample of their Chief. The City had but one Fort, and that ill built, wherefore he Erected another at the Mouth of the River, calling it Santiago, and enclofed the old one. He finift'd the Cathedral, and built from the Ground the Church of St, Potenciana, Patro nefs of the Ifland, for Wamen that have retir'd from the World. Then he apply'd himfelf to cafting, and brought able Artifts, who furnifh'd the Place with heavy and finall Cannon; built Galleys to Cruize and Trade, whereone depends the Welfare of thofe Countries; and purfuant to what he had promis'd in Spain, bent his Thoughts towards Termate, and all the Maluccos; reflected on the Difreputation of the unfortunate Expeditions of his Prede ceffors, who attempted the Conquef of that flourifhing Kingdom, and how he might puniff thofe who Fyrannizid in it.

He imparted his Thoughts by Word of Mouth, and by Letters to Zealous

Letter, of the State of the Moluccos. and a grave and active Man, whofe Experience and Doctrine had been very Advantageous in thofe Parts. This Religious Man furnifh'd him with Inone of whom was Brother Gafpar Gomez, a Spaniard, and Lay-Brother of the faid Society. Among the many Conferences there were to this Effect, I find an Exhortation of $\underset{F}{ }$. Antony Marta, in a Letter he writ to the Governor from Tydore, which, becaufe it is an Original, and conducing for the better Underftanding of this Affair, I will here infert, tranflated out of the Portuguefe. Grant me this Liberty, fince the Speeches which are generally Fabulous, pretended to be made by Generals and Confuls, in the Greek and Latin Hiftories, are allow'd of. F. Antony Marta fays thus; bave a Spacious Field for dilating the Glory of God very much, and rendering your Name famous to Perpetuity. By it your Lordfhip will acquire to his Majefty a moft Large and Wealthy Kingdcm, fince all this Archipelago of the Moluccos and Amboina, as far as Banda, which is above 130 Leagues in Length, and 70 in Breadth, is an inexbauftible Source of Clowe, Nutmeg, and Mace, which will afford bis Majefty a Yearly Income of 200000 Crufados, which is about 27000 Pounds Sterling, then a confiderable Sum, in India slone; befides that of other Iflands, whlich produce no Clove. Nor will it require any Expence, becaufe the Country it felf will freely afford it en its wery Mountains; and what is yet much more, your Lordfbifo will gain above 200000 Souls to God, all which, in a Bort time, after fubduing the Kingdom, will become Chriftians, without any, or with very little Oppofition; zohereby your Lordfhip will bave a burning Flambeau in this World, to lighot and conduct you to Heaven. Befides, you will magnify and perpetuate your Name, with a Title nothing inferion to thofe of the ancient Roman Generals, fucls as thofe of Germanicus, Africanus, and the like. It is not now requifite to toucls upon the Metbod your Lordfipip is to obferve for compsfling zhis Enterprize, to your eternal Praife; for, as we underfand, theire is no. zont of Experience with you for Warlike Affairs; Yet if your Lor dßip bould be any way Dubious, Jerome de Azevedo is able to inform you of fucb things

Zengue of the Mahometans. as you Sball defire to know. He is well acquainted with the Streng th of the Moluecos, and of their Enemies. However I would Jave your Lor djhip look upon this War as confiderable and difficult, becaufe it is very convenient to come well Provided, and Refolv'd. You are not to Fight with, the Ternates alone, but with all the Moors of this Archipelago. Hitherto the Fort of Amboina load to do with, the Ternates, that are at Veranula, and tbis of Tydore with thofe in the Iland Ternate; but now of late we are to fight avith thofe of the Iflands of Banda and of Seram. All the Moors in thafe Parts Affembled laft year, and Refolv ${ }^{\text {d }}$, That for the future the War jould: " Ze carry'd on under the Name of their Religion. And for the more Security, and better Eftablifhing of this Point, they choole tho fe of Banda for Cbiefs of their Law; and took an Oath to lay down their Eives, ox expell the Porcuguefes. Accordingly the laft Year, thofe of Banda came mith the Ternates Fort of of Veranula, with, a great number of Carcoas, to Befeige the Fort of AmAmboyna boyna; and in the Engagement they bad with us, took one of the two Ga Befeig'd. Jiots we brought from Goa, tho? it was not their Valour, but our Negligence that occafion'd the making of that Prize. It plainly appear'd, that our Lord did it to punifh our Pride. This fo far Encouraged them, that they durfs afterwards daily Cruize in fight of the Fort, took the Fijbermen that went out in the Morning to follow their Trade, and laid a Ground fome Carcoas on the Shore. They erected a Mofque oppofite to the Fort, as in a fafe Place, and thus they kept the Fort Befieged with Contempt, for the Space of a Month. At the end thereof, the Galley going out, with one Galiot we bad left, made them fy, every one to his own Country, giving out, and threatning, That they would Rerurn the next Year with a greater Fleet, zvbich will be about September. We are certainly aflured that the People of Banda, left so of their prime Men at Amboyna, as Hoftages for the performance of their Engagement. This is alfo known by a Man of our own, who fied from Banda, baving been carry'd thither Prifoner from Amboyna. We are informed, that 25 Carcoas would fet out, fo many being Launclrd, and they were to Sail after their Lent, which is at the End of this Month of July, and to goyn the Seyrves, and the reft of the Confederates, in order to return again before the Fort of Amboyna. If they come with fuch a Force, I am very fufpitious that the Fort will be loft; becaufe the Enemies method is to take in all the Towns that are Subjed to it; and when this is left alone, wanting the Support of its Neigbbours, it muft of necellity Sutrender. Antony Perez, the Governor of that Fort, is a Man of Courage, and well Fortified; and yet there are Circumflances to be confiderd, fome of them very Difficult; as that the Enemies are Numerous, and there will come fome Confederates with them, who are fit for any piece of Treachery; befides, that they cannot be Relievdd from any Part whatfoever, for the full Space of five Months, that is till the beginning of January next. We cannot but apprebend fome great Mifchief will lappen; for fuppofing they do not take the Fort, Atill this War is Dangerous, as being Univerfal, with all the Moors; Atirr'd up by menns of the Caciques; Concerted under folemn Oaths; and Declard to be Religious, with full Remifion of Sins to all that Die in it. There is no want of Fomenters, and thofe Caciques of Note, and great Autbority among the Moors, in Banda, Amboyna, Ternate, and Tydore. Thefe Men urge their Religion, and the Honour of Mahomet, and by that means manage the People as they pleafe; as I have found by Experience this rear, and in this War we lad at Amboyna, in whbich I was. Therefore all Delays, in this Affair, will be very dangerous; becaufe we are Inferior to the Moors, and muft of Necefity Fight them, fince it is for Religion, and Honour, on koth which Accounts they are become our mortal Enemies. By this your and may compute bow many are to draw their Swords againft you, fince they are all our Enemies ingeneral, and bave Confpirsd againft us. However, it will be Difcretion firft to Diffemble with the Tydores, that they may not joyn the Ternates, and by that means render the War more tedious and dificult. Ido not speak to all the reft in particulis, according to my Notion, becaufe Irefer it to Jerome de Azevedo, who will give a very good Account. But let this be Effablijbed as a Maxim, That your Lordfbip bas a. mighty Enterprize in Hand; and I truft in God be will give you Wifdom, and Strength to go through it with Eafe; fince you come to Revenge the Injuries formerly, and now offered by theje Barbarians, to God and lis: Irreveren-Saints. Your Lordfhip came to Spread the Catholick Faith, and that you may the better conceive what Jerome de Azevedo will fay to you toucbing this Affair, I Send you by Dim a Draught of all this Archipelago, as well of the Moluccos, as of Amboyna, and Banda. Here is aljo Thomas de Soufa, Commander of Molucco, and of moft Soutbern Parts, a Man expert in Martial Affairs. In Tydore and Amboyna, you will alfo find brave Soldiers, and there will not want to Pay them, for the Riches of the Country will be fufficent for that, and to fat isfy them with Gold, precious Stones, and other Booty; befides yons will find many forts of Arms. The Governour receiv'd this Letter; which, with the Difcourfe he had more at large with Jerome de Azewedo, made him put the lait Hand to a Work of fo much Importance to the Service of the Chriftian Commonwealth, which had been neglected in thofe Parts.Gafpar Gomez had conferr'd with him long before, and by his Means, and the Accounts of other knowing Perfons, the Governor was fo well acquainted with the Kingdoms, and Seas, the Seafons and Dangers of the Undertaking, that he had no great need of $E$.

He gave him particular Inftructions, with which, and his own Experience, he wander'd about the Archipelago, and learnt as much as was convenient. He vifited Ternate, Tydore, Mindanao, both the Favas, and fearce omitted any Place, as far as the Point of Malica, but what he took a View of.

In the Year 1593, King Pbilip the 2 d beflow'd the Government of Cartagena, in Anerica, upon Don Pedro Bravo de Acunna. To take this Employ, he quitted that he had in the Spani/h Galleys; he was Captain of the Admiral Galley, and Vice-Admiral of them all, under the Adelant ado, or Lord Lieutenant of Caftile, his Kinfman. He had ferv'd his Majefty many Years by Sea and Land, in the Mediterranean. No Action of Note was perform'd without him, fince the Expedition of Navarino againf the Turks, and the others that enfu'd in thofe Parts, in Naples, in Portugal, and all thofe that occur'd before, till his Majefty was put in Poffeffion of that Crown. Lafly, When he commanded the Spanifh Galleys he fought thofe of the Moorsland Turks, with the Galiots, and Brigantines of the Levant, and Englifb Ships, and took and funk feveral of both Sorts. He took agreat Number ofSlaves in Barbary; particularly at Zangazon, Benegicar, and Alcazar. He defended Cadiz from the Invafion, and Rapine of Drake, the Englijo Admiral, who attempted it with a mighty fleet. This was done by only four Galleys, but two of which were clean, yet the Bravery of the Commander made amends for all. How great an Action this was, and what Reputation Don Pedro gain'd by it, appear'd afterwards, when the Englt $/ \sqrt{3}$ again poffefs'd themfelves of Cadiz, at the Time that all the Galleys in Spain were in the Bay, and the Fleet then preparing to fail to the Indies. In each of thefe Actions, moft whereof were victorious, there are many remarkable Particulars, and they all deferve large Encomiums; but fince they do not belong to the Subject of this Hiftory, it would be blameable to infert them here:

The King for thefe Reafons conftituted Don Pedro de Acunna, his Captain General, in the Province of Cartigena and Tierra Firme, and Commander of the Galleys on that Coaft; which Commiffions had never before been united in that Government. He gave him a Galley, and Orders to receive the Royal Fifths of the Pearl-Fifhery ${ }_{6}$ at the Ifland Margarita. He fet out from the Port of Sanlucar, on the 27 th of September, in a Pink, with 12 Soldiers, fome Religious Men, and his Servants, the Galley, and another Ship following. The Winds foon rofe, and the Sea fwell'd, and the Veffels were difpers'd. In one of them there were 20 Soldiers, and 40 Slaves at the Oar, this was fo far drove away, that they faw it no more, till five Days after they came to Cartagena. The Storm ceas'd, and Don Pedro arriv'd at Gran Canaria, but would not go into the City. He took in two hundred Cask of Water. The Governour Don Lewis de la Cueva was not in the Ifland; but it being known in his Family that Don Pedro was come, they fent to welcome him. The Vifit was follow'd by fome Horfes loaded with Abundance of Fowl, Game, Sheep, Wine, Pears, and moft ftately Quinces, befides Abundance of other Provifions. Many Days after, when they had loft their reckning, they arriv'd at the Illand Metalinon, inhabited by unconquered Indians, where they took in Water without Oppofition, for the Reff of the Voyage. Thence he had fair Weather to the Iland Margarita. As foon as he landed in the Harbour, Don Folm Sarmiento de Villandr ando, the Governour of the Ifland came to meet him, having hourly expected him, fince he knew he was to come. The rejoycing, and Entertainment was fuch as became Friends, and Friends of that Quality.

An Engli/h Ship of above four hundred Tun Burthen, with thirty Pieces of Cannon of five thoufand Weight each, and Abundance of Men, had been 30 days ina Harbour but two Leagues from the Ifland Margarita. Don Fobn Sarmiento telling Don Pedro, what Infolences that Ship committed, and how much to hisDifreputation fhe opprefs ${ }^{2} d$ the Iflanders under his Government, defircd he might attack her with his Galley. Don Pedro perfwaded him to defift from that Enterprize, fince it did not belong to him, and it was an unpardonable Fault to attack her, without an equal Force. Don $\mathrm{Fol}_{\mathrm{l}} n$ perfifted fo long, that he carry ${ }^{8} \mathrm{~d}$ it againft Don Pedro's Opinion. They made to the Place where the Ship lay, paffing by dangerous Rocks, and being come in Sight of it, perceivd it was ftronger, and better provided than they had been told. Our Men, in Order to fight, turn'd out all the Women, moft of them Wives to thofe that came in the Galleys. Twenty Soldiers came from the Mland Margarita, by their Governours Order, who being fhip'd they appeartd by Break of Day in Sight of the Enemy. The Wind then

This Opinion being bandy'd about with Obftinacy, came to be Pofitivene ${ }^{s}$ in Don Fobn. Don Pedro looking upon it as fuch, and concerned to fee his Friend engag'd in fuch a Piece of Madnefs, with thofe Hot, but unexperienc'd Men, faid to them, By my long Experience in feveral Seas, I know it is the worf of Conduct to attack a Ship, when fhe has the Wind; but let us fall on; that the People of the Ifland Margarita may not have it to fay that I defert'd engaging out of Fear, and not out of Ditcretion. This faid, he order'd his Galley to weigh Anchor. He arm'd himfelf, and Don Fohn, and juft as the Sun appear'd they attack'd the Ship

The Wind was fair and foon fill'd them. The Men were brisk and ply`d their Camon without ceafing. Our Galley did the fame, and fir'd five Shot, before it receiv'd any Harm. Then fhe ran her Beak againt the Poop of the Ship, but could not grapple, nor board. Some Men went down to the Boats which were tow'd by the Ship, and cur the Ropes, The Ship, and Galley fell a fixing agair, withour Intermiffon.

Don Pedro receiv'd a Mufquet Shot on his Target, which glancing off broke in Pieces a Board of the Stern Lockers, and wounded thofe that were next it. A Cannon Ball took of the Head of one of our Slaves, and fcatter'd his Brains in Don Pedro's Face; but another Ball touch'd him nearer, when it threw Don foln Sarmiento into the Sea, who being funk by the Weight of his Armour, was never feen again. Fourteen Soldiers of the Inand Margarita, and nine Spaniards were kill'd, and many wounded, of all whom Don Pedro took Care, without neglecting the other Duties of a Commander. Some Perfons of Note were allo kill'd, as Alonfo de Anduxar, a Youth about twenty Years of Age, of the Order of Chrift, and Antonio Santijo, who had been a Captain in Flanders. The Ship holding on her Courfe, made the beft of the fair Wind, and was feen to fly, as if fhe had been viftorious; tho' fhe threw many dead Bodies over Beard, in Sight of our Men. Don Pedro returnd to the Ifland Margarita, lamenting the Death of his Friend, and his Wifes Widow-Hood, amidtt the Tears of other Widows, and Fathers left Childlefs. He comforted the afflicted the beft he could, received the King's Boxes of Peals, and went on much griev'd at the Event, and to fee how little his Precaution had avail'd.

Don Pedro had a profperous Paffage thence, to the Ifland Curazao, to Rio de la Hacha, and fo in Sight of Cartagena. Being defcry'd from the City the Galleys went out to meet him, whofe Mufick and Guns, with thofe of the Fort made a Mixture of Harmony and Noife. He enter'd upon the Government and immediately took a View of the Galleys, Warlike Prepations being of the greateft Confequence in thofe Parts. He found them fhatterd, and almot gone to Ruin, refitted one, and furnifhtd another with Slaves, and all other Neceffaries. All things were before in fuch Diforder, and Confufion, that it was hard to diftinguifh betwixt the Galley Slaves and the Soldiers, the former going about as free, and gay as the latter. He blamd this Liberty, and orderdd the Heads and Beards of the Slaves to be fhav'd, and that they fhould be chain'd. Next he took in hand the Divifions, Manners, and civil Government of the City, and there was foon a Reformation of Abufes,and publick. C.rimes, all this he perforin'd by his Valour, and Example. He alfo review ${ }^{6}$ d the Horle and Foot; repair'd the Fortifications; attended all Martial Affairs; had his Gates always open to decide Controverfies, without Diftinction of Perfons; and tho' he had here confiderable Opportunities offerd him, and much Matter to difcover his Capacity, and the Greatnefs of his Soul, yet he found in himfelf greater Hopes and Defires, above what was prefent, and exceiting him

BOOK. VI.

IN the mean while Gomez Perez, fill carrying on his Preparations, conceal'd the Defign, without Sparing auy charge for Shipping, Provifions, or Men, Among other Neceffaries, he built four choice Galleys, and for the manning of them, took a Method which was look'd upon as fevere. He Oyder'd, That as many Indians who were Slaves to other Indians of Quality, as would ferve to Man the Galleys, fhould be bought $\mu p_{3}$ and Paid for by the Spaniards, who were Proprietors, out of theirnwn Money, fetting the Price of each Slaye at two Taes in Gold, each Tae being little above an Ounce, which was the Price Slaves had in former Times been valu'd at among them. He promis'd, that the Proprietors Should afterwards be Refunded what they laid out, from the Kings Revenue. Yet this did not feem to mollify the Rigour of the Order; becaufe he inproperly calld thofe Indians Slaves, for their Lords ufe and love them like Children, fet them at their own Tables, and Marry them to their Daughters; befides that, Slaves then were worth more Money. The Concern of thofe that were to be Sold, was attended by that of the Proprietors, who were to contribute out of their Eftates, to defray Charges they lookid upon as not very Neceffary, and ro Difguft their Vaftals, by taking them zway forcibly, being never likely to recover the Money they laid down, which they were well aflurd of, The Governour gave out, That thofe Gateys were to fecure the Country, and defend it from the Danger that threatned; becaule he knew the Emperor of fopan was coming to Invade it, with a nu* merous. Fleet; and that it could not be Defended withouk Galleys, and therefore it was abfolutely Neceffary to Man tham with Slaves, fince they had no gthers to Row. That thefe were not to be Fetter'd in the Galleys, nor Treated like Slaves, but fo kindly uled, that they themfelves fhould prefer their Entertainnent, before that of their Lords, whom they look'd upan as Parents, or Fathers-in-Law.

Thefe Allegations, and the abfolute Neceflity of defending themfelves, filencdd both Parties; Dut could not flop the Mouth of Fame, for it was already known, what Engagements he made before he came from Spaing to the King, the Minifters, the Kindred, and Fomenters of the Expedition of Ternate, fo that whatioever he conceal'd, was divulg'd by uncertain Authors. However fome advisd him not to rely on the Chinefes, or Sangleyes for the Defence of the Plijlippines: becaufe no natural or civil Tye had ever gain'd, or attracted their Affection towards them. That he ought to remember the frehl Infance of what they did, when his Predeceffor employ'd them, and confequently flould be watchlul over them, That he fending a Supply of Men, Ammunitions and Provifions to the Fort and Town of Cagayan, which is on the Coaft of that Ifland of $L_{u}$ : zon, 80 Leagues from the City Manila, and there being then no Ship to fend it in, Neceffity preffing, he thought he might relieve that Want, by making ufe of one of the Chinefe Ships that were then at Anchor in the Harbour, and cleard in Order to return to China. He commanded the Supply to be put aboard her, and the Clinefes to canyy, and in the Way, to land it where he directed, fince it was no let to their Voyage; promifing to requite and gratify them for that Service. They undertook it with extraordinary Tokens of gnod Will; but their Artifice appear'd by the Event, and fhow'd how Men that are uponthe Watch, improve Opportunities. The Cbinefes fet fail, and the fecond Day after, when the Spanit ards were afleep, as believing themfetves fafe among trufty Friends, they fell upon them fo unexpectedly, that they had not Time to fand upon their Guard, but were all murder'd and caft into the Sea. They plunderid all they carry'd, and dividing the Spoil, faild for their own Country. They only fav'd one unhappy Spanijh Woman, that went with our Men, and took her along with them. They fpardd her Life, but after having infor lently abustd her, they fet her afhore, in a Sea-Port Town of the firft Part of Clina they made. She prefently had Recourfe to the Magifisates, whom fhe acquainted with the Villany thofe Men had committed, and the Wrongs they had done her ; but tho favourably heard by thofe Judges, the had no Satisfaction for her Wrongs, nor could fhe obtain Juftice. However they appointed Officers to carry her up the Country, remitting her to other Supream Magiftrates. In this Journey, which was many Leagues, she endur'd more than fhe had done before, till fome of the Governours taking Compaffion on her and her Tears, cany'd her to the City of Macao, where the Portuguefes sefide, and fet her at Liberty. Thus the whole Matter came to be known, and it was at Manila in the Mouths of all Men, who now magnify'd it, upon Occafion of the New Enterprize。

In fhort, all the Slaves demanded by the Governour Gomez Perez, were raifed with much Trouble and Opprefion, aud in the fame Manner they were put into the Galleys, where they continu'd fome Time before they departed, and many of them dy'd, as not being us'd to that fort of Life. All thofe Slaves were not fufficient to Man xhe Galleys, and the Admiral Galley remain'd without Rowers. This, and the Neceffity of finifhing the Work produc'd a more rigorous. Prattice than the former. The Gowernour order'd that 2 sol of the Cbinefos, who refort to the Philippines to Trade, fhould be taken to Man the Admiral Galley, and each of them to be allow'd two Pieces of Eight a Month, out of the King's Revenue. He affur'd them, they fhould not be chain'd, but at Liberty, and with their Arms, to ferve as Soldiers; and that they fould only row in the Galleys when there was any Calm, and to weather fome Capes. The Cbinefes being acquainted by their Clinefe Governour with this Refolution, pofitively refus'd it, as an intolerable Burden. But our Governour preffing to bring about his Defign, the Clinefe affembled his People, to treat about the Atfair, and contrive how 250 might be chofen out from among them all, threatning that he would take every Tenth Man out of their Houfes. Thefe Words provok'd them to fuch a Degree, that the next Day they thut up the very Windows of their Houfes, and the Traders their Shops, and ftopp'd the Provifions which run through their Hands. Our Governour feeing this Proceeding, and alledging that they mutiny'd, caus'd about so of thofe that came next to hand, to be feiz'd, and put to the Oar in the Galley. The others terrify'd by this Action, met, and drew from among them all, the 250 , and becaufe no Man would be of that Number, they divided 20000 Pieces of Eight among thofe that would comply, and gave every Chinefe that would go in the Galley 8oPieces of Eight, befides the King's Pay. By Means of this good Encouragement, there was no Want of Cbinefes that lifted themfelves to row, but the 20000 Pieces of Eight were confum'd among them, or rather among the Officers: Thefe 250 Cbinefes were form'd into five Companies, under five Cbinefe Chriftian Captains, who pafs ${ }^{6} \mathrm{~d}$ Mutters and Reviews, with Pikes and Catanes, which differ little from Cymiters, and exprefs'd Joy and Satisfaction.

Whilft thefe Things were in Agitation, Brother Gafpar Gomez came a enate. to Manila, full of Intelligence, whereof he gave the Governour an Account, at feveral private Conferences. He faid, the King of Ternate's Affairs were in no ill Pofture; tho' fomewhat weak'ned, by not agreeing with the Prime Men of his Kingdom ; and that many of them threatned, they would Rebel, on Account of his Tyranny, and becaufe he rais'd intolerable Taxes. That then, neither the favanefes, nor the Lafcarines, nor the Moors of Mecca frequented Ternate, as they had done at the Time when Captain Morones arriv'd there, under the Government of Santingo de Vera. He gave very particular Information concerning the two Forts of Talangame. That the King of Ternate had then about 3000 commow Soldiers, 1000 Mufquetiers, and a great Number from his other Kingdoms. That they fought with Darts, Campilanes, or Cymiters, and Shields; and others had Coats of Mail, and Head-Pieces they got from the Portuguefes, in exchange for Spice. That they had Abundance of Ammunition, all of their own making, of the Materials the Javanefes brought to barter for Clove. That the Principal Place was the City Ternate, where the King and all his Court refide, and therefore it is beft fecur'd, and frem thence all others are fupply'd, fupported, and encourag'd. How to be He advis'd that our Men fhould affault it before Break of Day; becaufe all attack ${ }^{6}$ d. Attacks made upon thofe People in the Morning Watch had been fuccefsful. That, if our Fleet came unexpected, it would certainly fucceed; but that the faid King had his Spies fpread abroad in almoft all thofe Iflands, as far as thofe of Canela, Sarrangan and Mindanio. That a good Number of Brals Sakers, and other great Guns might be brought in the Carcoas, from the Fort of Amboyna, and the Kings of Sian, and Tydore. That the People of Amboyna would fend them upon Command, thofe of Sian and Tydore, upon very fmall Intreaty; becaufe befides their owning the Crown of Spain, they are Enemies to Ternate. That the neceffary Preparation for finifhing the War, even in cafe the King of Ty dore fhould fail, and it might be fufpected he would not willingly fee his Enemy utterly deftroy'd, confifted in Artillery and Shipping, which was ready, and above 1200 Soldiers well arm'd, with their Coats of Mail and Head-Pieces, till they went over to the Ifland of Banda, to put in the neceffary Garrifon there. That there fhould be a Number of Light Veffels to take the Enemy flying; for by that Means the War would be quite concluded in a fhort Time, and without Bloodfhed. That even the Malecontent Ternates declar'd, and publif'd as much, and own'd, that if a confiderable Number of Fighting Men fhould come into their Country, they would all come in and fubmit without ftriking Stroke. Hence he inferr'd, that there were conceal'd Chriftians in the Molucco Iflands. That the Conqueft of the whole Ifland of Banda, was very advantageous and profitable, and not hazardous, and that the Neighbourhood of Amboyna, which was ours, would be of great Confequence for maintaining it. He further affirm'd, That the Partugieefes very much facilitated the Enterprize, and magnify'd the great Benefit it would be to his Majerty; and that F. Antony Marta, of whom the Governour had fo great a Conceit, was of the fame Opinion. Brother Gafpar Gomez added fo many Circumflances to thefe particular Accounts, that he wholiy inflam'd the Governour's Heart.

At this Time, Landara, King of Camboxa, fent the Governour an Embaffy by two Spanifh Commanders, attended by many of his Subjects, with fuch Splendor as the Occafion of it requir'd. That barbarous King thought fit his Embaffadors fhould not be natural born Subjects, becaufe of the Occafion his People had given him to fufpect their Fidelity. He chofe them of Different Conditions, to the End that fuch Variety, the Diverfity of Inclinations, and Oppofition, might produce the better Effect. The one of them was a Portuguefe, his Name Fames Velofo, the other a spaniard, Blas Ruyz de Fernan Gonzalez. They brought Gomez Perez a Magnificent Prefent, a great Quantity of Ivory, Benjamin, Clina Ware, Pieces of Silk and Cotton, and an Elephant of a generous Temper, as afterwards appear'd by Experience. They deliver'd their Embaffy, the Purport whereof was, to defire Succour againit the King of Sian, who was marching againft him of Camboxa, with a numerous Army; offering in Return for his Affifance to become fubject to Spain, and embrace Chriftianity. That the King concluded, that fo brave and gallant a Geotleman as Gomez Perez, would not on Account of any other Diverfion refufe to perform an Action, which muft redound fo much to the Glory of God, and the Advantage of the Crown of Spain. The Governour receiv'd the Prefent, making a Return with another of fome Enropean Curiofities; and by way of Anfwer, thank'd that King for the Confidence he had feem'd to place of Ternate, and recover that Kingdom, and the reft of the Moluccos, which hiad Rebell'd, fo much to the Difhonour of the Spanil/ Nation. That his Highnefs frould place his Confidence in the Goodnefs of Gcd, and perfevere in the Defign of ferving him in his Holy and Irue Religion, and as foon as the Expedition of Ternate was over, he would convert his Forces to the Relief of Camboxa, The Embaffadors were difinifsed with thefe Hopes, which the Governours Son, Don Lawis de las Marinas, afterwards made good; and to give them entire Satisfaction, and juftify the Delay, it was found neceffary to make Publick the true Defign of that Fleet, which till then had been kept fecret.

Miglity
The Governour, in fine, refolv'd to fet forward, and endeavour 'd totake along with him all the Men he could get. All were lifted that could Preparati-be prevail'd upon either by Force or Intreaties. The Proprietors and ons againft Soldiers were extravagantly expenfive, upon the Ships, Provifions, and Ternate. Gallantry; and the Philipines being well furnifh'd with all Things, they did more than had been imagin'd, or could be in the Governour's Power. He fent his Son Don Lowis, withall the Soldiers that were in Pay, to the Mand of Zebu, whexe the Fleet was to rendevous, and there he continued fix Manths, waiting for new Orders. Gonez Perez ftay'd at Manila, ordering Matters of great Moment. Two Days before his Departure, being invited by, and fupping in the Houfe of Peter de Rojas, his Lieutenant, Predittion of ill Sucse/s. where diverting himfelf with Gaming, and much Pleafure, he grew fo merry, contrary to his Cuftom, and the Harfhnefs of his Temper, that many interpreted it as a good Omen of his Succers. He faid in Difcourfe, that F. Vincent, of the Order of St. Francis, had told him, the Enterprize could not fucceed, becaufe the Army was made up of Men that were carry'd away by Force, and particularly the marry'd Men were fo. He departed Manila on the ITth of Qatober, with fix Royal Galleys, one Galleon, one fmall Veffel call'd a Foift, one little Frigot, and feveralother Exigots, Carcoas, and Bireyes, which are another Sort of The Fleet fets out. Veffels of the Natives; all which, being part the Kings, and part belonging to Subjects, who offer'd to ferve him with their Lives and Fortunes, amounted to an hundred. There were a Thoufand spaniards well arm'd; above four hundred Mufquetioss of the Territory of Manila; ${ }^{2}$ thoufand more of thofe they call Vifaios, Men armd with Lances, Shields, Bows and Arrows, and above four hundred Cbinefes, of thofe that dwele in the Ifland, befides a good Number of thofe that came to Trade taken into Pay ; but many more Compell'd than Voluntiers. The Galleys carsy'd Abundance of Provifions for the Army, over which he appointed his Son Don Lemis Perez, his Lieutenant, and fent him before, as has been faid, withOrders to make for the Ifland of Zebw. He embark'd himfelf aboard the Admiral-Galley, which had twenty eight Benches for the Men to row, and was mann'd with the 250 Clainefes for the Oar. Eighty Spaniarids were put aboard it ; they touch'd at Cabite, failsd thence on the roth, and with them fome Veffels, in which there were private Perfons, who follow'd at their own Expence, coafting the Tfland of Manila as far as Balajan. They parted, becaufe the Veffels kept in Sight of Land, and the Governour put out to Sea. On the $z$ eth he came alone to pals the Night, at the Point calld de Azufre, or of Brimftone, in the Ifland of Manila, oppofite to that of Caza, wherethe Currem, and the Drift of the Water from the Land run frong, and the Breezes then blowing, the Galley could not weather it. He anchor'd under the Shelter of it, and yet dragg'd a little with the Force of the Current. They made the Clinefes row exceffive ha:d, to bring her up again under the Land. In fhort, they row'd very faintly, either becaufe they were nor $1 s^{\prime} d$ to that Labour, and forced to the Oar, or Lecaufe they were then tir'd, and incens'd with the Command. Other contrary Winds ftarted Up, which again obftructed their Voyage, and to weather fome Points of Land, it was neceffary to ply the Oars, and to vex the Crew; with the ufual Severity and Punifhment commonly inflicted aboard the Galleys. They thought this hard, and contrary to what the Governour had affur'd them, which was, that they fhould be kindly treated; but neither the Lafh, nor the Threats, nor the ftemming of the Currents, with the Vigour and Sweat of their Bodies, feem'd fo intollerable, and injurious to them, as to hear the angry and ftern Govenour himfelf bid them row manfully, for if they did not, he would put them in Chains, and cut off their Hair. This to the CDinefes is an Affront that deferves Death, for they place their Honour in their Hair,

The Governour threatens them. which they cherifh and preferve very fair, and value themfelves upon it, as the Ladies in Europe us'd to do, all their Delight and Reputation being in keeping it curioufly comb'd. Hereupon they refolv'd to mutiny, to prevent fuch an Affront and Contempt. The next Night, which was the 25 th of O&tober, being appointed for the Execution, when the tir'd Spaniards laid themfelves down upon the Benches, and other convenient Places in the Veffel, the Cbinefes did fo too, but cunningly dividing themfelves, every one lay down by a Spaniard, pretending to be afleep. In the dead of the laft Watch, which they thought the propereft and fafeft Time, feeing the Spaniards found afleep, the CFinefes, upon hearing of a fhrill Whifle, which was the Signal agreed upon between them, ftarted up all together, and every Man with wonderful Celerity put on a white Veft, or Shirt, that they might know one another in the Height of their Fury, and the Darknefs of the Night, and fo diftinguifh where to make the Slaughter, tho' for the more Security, they alfo lighted abundance of WaxCandles, which they had conceal'd wrap'd up in thofe white Vefts. Then they drew their Catanas, which are keener, and more crooked than our Cymiters, and began without any Noife every Man to hew his next Spaniard; fo proceeding in their Fury, and killing all thofe that flept. Above 60 Perfons had imbark'd in the Admiral-Galley, fome of them being the Governour's Servants, and other old Soldiers, who fuffer'd Inconveniencies to oblige and divert him. They had play'd all the Night, and being? tir'd, and the Heat very violent, they lay naked, fome on the Gang-Way in the middle of the Galley, others on the Benches, and the greateft Favourites, who had more Room allow'd them, in the Poop, and to that Purpofe the Governour retired into the Cabin. The Cljinefes continu'd the Execution, on thofe who flept, without any Miftruft, which was done foexpeditioully, that when come of thofe who flept in the Poop awak'd, the other Spaniards were all kill'd. The Watch heard nothing of it, tho their could be no Excufe for that Neglect, becaufe there had been Infances and Warnings enough before. Others awak'd, and feeling themfelves

The Clbinefes now growñ bold, drew eut the Pikes they had hid under the Benches, and finifh'd their Treacherous Work with Noife. The Governor, who was under Deck, Sleeping, with a Candle and Lanthorn by him, Awak'd; and that he might do fo, they made the greater Noife; and the Chinefes themfelves cry'd out to him, defiring he would come up to pacify a Quarrel there was among the Cafillas, fo they call the Spaniards. He, for this Reafon, or believing the Galley dragg'd, as it had done at other times, getting up in his Shirt, and opening the Scuttle, look'd out, lifting half his Body above it: At the fame time the Chinefes tell upon him with their Cymiters, and wounded him Mortally, clutting his Head, and running him through with their Pikes in more than barbarous manner. Seeing his Death near he drew back, and took up the Prayer Book of his Order, which he always carry'd about him, and an Image of our Bleffed Lady, and ended his Life between thofe two Advocates, which wére afterwards feen bathed in his Blood: Yet he dy'd not prefently, for they afterwards found him in his Bed, inubracing the Image, where he Bled to Death, and about him the Bodies of Daniel Gomez de Leon, his Valet de Chamber, Pantaleon de Brito, Suero Diaz, Fohn íe Cbavez, Peter Mafeda, Fobon de S. Fuan, Carrion Ponce, and Francis Caftillo, all of them his Servants, and four brave Slaves, who had the fame End. This was not known till it was Day; becaufe none of the Chinefes durft go down where the Governor was that Night, fearing leait fome of the 80 Spaniards that were in the Gallcy, had

Then they afterwards fet Afhore, on the Coaft of Ilocos, in the fame Ifland of Luzon, that the Natives might fuffer them to Water; and becaufe the Frier and the Secretary had Capitulated, having their promile that they would do them no hurt, before they furrendered. The Cbinefes being fatisfy'd that there were no more ancient Chriftians left, began to Shout and Roar for Joy that they had gone through with their Work, and had no Man more to fland in Awe of.
The Spaniards, who were in the other Veffels, near the Shore, tho they faw the Lights, and heard a confus'd Noife aboard the Admiral, thought it might be on account of fome Work belonging to the Galley, or the like. When, a long time after, they underftood how matters went, from thofe who fav'd themfelves by Swimming, they lay ftill, not being able to redrefs it. They were but few; had not Strength enough; and the Mifchief was done. They ftay'd till Morning, and when Day appear'd, perceivd that the Gailey had fet her Shoulder-of-Mutton-Sail, and was ffanding for Clina, but they could nor follow her: The Wind favouring, fhe faild all along the Coaft of the Ifland, till they got clear of it, the Cliniefes all the way Gelebrating their Victory.

The Frier and the Secretary, who were amiong them, being fully perIwaded they would foon kill them, and fearing it would be after fome of their cruel Methods, holding up their Hands, begg'd they would allow them fome Time to make their Peace with God; and in cafe they would put them to Death, that it might be by Beheading, and not any other lnhuman Way. One of the Clinefes bid them not Fear, for they fhould not Dye. They all lay'd down their bloody Weapons, and proftrating themfelves, returnd Thanks to Heaven in moft humble manner, beating Drums, and ringing Bells they carry'd, according to their Cuftom. The two Chri-

The two Prifoners beg an eafy Death, and are promis'd their Lives. fians being then bolted to a Bench in the Galley, during 15 Days their Captivity lafted, were fed with a fmall Proportion of Rice, boild in Water, without Salt, continually looking upon the Blood of their Companions that had been fiilt, wherewith all the Deck was Stain'd. They fhed Abundance of Tears on it, befides thofe they hourly let fall with the Apprehenfion of Death, thofe Clixiefes, like faithlefs falle Men, defigning to take away their Lives, in fome ftrange manner. They weightd, and failed between the Iflands of Mindanao and Lubian, towards China, and Coafting along Manila towards Cagayan, fome contrary Winds happening to blow, and Calms fucceeding, they were much concern'd, fearing, that if the News of their Treachery reach'd the-Pbilippines, they would fend after and overtake then. This Dread made thein have recourfe to their Gods, and call upon them, offering feveral forts of Sacrifices, Perfumes, and Prayers, which the Devil often anfwer'd in formal Words, by the Mouths of fuch as were Poffeffed, whom he Enter'd to that Purpofe, for there never wanted two or three fuch, all the timie thofe Chriftians were in the Galley. What they faw was, that when leait they thought of it, and on a fudden, the Perfon poffeffed began to quake, from Head to Foot. The others feeing him in that Condition, faid, some God was coming to Speak to them. Then coming up to him, with Takens of Refpect, they unty'd, and fpread abroad his Hair; and ftripping him quite naked fet him on his Feet, and he prefently fell a Dancing to the Noife of fome Drum, or Bell, they beat or rung. They put a Cymiter, or Spear into his Hand, and as he danc'd he brandifh'd it over all their Heads, with no fmall danger of hurting them, which they were not the leaft apprehenfive of; alledging, that their God, tho' he did fo, would never hurt them, without they were guilty of fome Sin againft him.

Before the Devil had poffers'd any in the Galley, the Clinefes were concerting to murder the Chriftians, believing they were the Occafion, why God did not give them a fair Wind for their Voyage; but that watchful fovereign Providence, without whofe Direction the leaft Accident does not happen, making Ufe of the Devil himfelf as an Inftrument, prevented it by Means of thofe very Perfons who offended it. The Perfon poffefs'd ask'd for Ink and Paper, which being prefently brought him, he made certain Characters and confus'd Scrawls, which being expounded by the others in the Galley, they found fignify'd, that thofe two Men were harm lefs, therefore they fhould not kill them, which was no finall Incouragement to the Prifoners. However this lafted not long, for fome others who were poffers'd after the firft, tormented them cruelly, efpecially one of them, who was the maddeft. He told the Clinefes, that if he fhould happen to hurt thofe Men, as he brandinh'd the Weapon he had in his Hand over them, making Ellays, as if he cut and flafid, then they muft kill them im mediately; becaute it would be a certain Sign, that their Gods requir'd it, and that their being in the Ship was the Occafion, why they gave them not a fair Cale. All the Men in the Galley affembled, to behold that Spectacle, and the Perfon poffefs'd having for a confiderable Space walk'd about the Gang-Way, with extravagant Geftures, went then to the Place where the Religious Man and his Companion were ; there growing hellimly inrag'd, he cormmanded all the reft to ftand afide, and being left with only Hoyred practices upon the Pifoners. the two Prifoners, began to inake hideous Faces and. Grimaces at them, when getting upon the Table in the mid Part of the Galley, he thence threw his Cymiter at them, with fuch Fury, that it fuck in the Deck, between their Feet. Seeing he had not hurt nor touch'd them, he ask'd for it again to make a fecond and third Tryal, fticking it every Time fo deep, that the others could fcarce draw it out from the Planks. This done, he bid them give him a Partefan, with which he hack'd, hew'd, and thurft, in fuch frightiul and dangerous Manner, that the Chinefes themfelves were afoniff'd. He kept them above an hour in that Dread and Affliction, withnut daring to ftir, or beg for Mercy; believing it would not avail them, Vut that on the contrary, whatfoever they could fay might be prejudicial. Thus haWho ving plac'd all their Hopes, and Confidence on that fovereign Lord, who even when he delays does not fail to give Affiffance, they call'd upon him, and offer ${ }^{2} d$ themfelves up to him in fervent Prayers; particularly the Religious Man, repeating fome Pfalms and Verfes, which his former Devotion, excited by the prefent Danger, brought into liis Mind, and were fuitable to that Occafion, and fuch like Exigencies; by which, as he afterwards faid, he receiv'd great Comfort, and Addition of Courage. This fort of miferable Life, and thefe Torments lafted all or moft Days during therein Captivity.

At length, the Clinefes perceiving they could not poffibly ferform the The Chi- Voyage they defir'd, by Reafon the Wind was contrary; they refolv ${ }^{6} d$ to nefes land, land on the Ifland of Ilocos, not far from Luzon, at the Port they call Sizay. 820 of They being there aftore to Water, the Natives knowing they had murder'd them are kill'd.

They fed them to put into that Pert, they refolvid to feize and pur drown one to Death. They did as had been refolv'd, and at Night, by unanimou Coaft. There the Devil eutering into one of them, as he us'd to do, commanded them immedjately to return to the Port, where they had fuftain'd thatLoIs of their Friends and Companions, and that they fhould not depart thence, till they had facrific'd a Man to him, without appointing which he would have. They immediately obey'd the Command, one of the Chief-Chinefes making Choice of one of the Chriftian Indians of the Plilip-
pines they had Prifoners, to be Sacrifiz'd, and ty'd his Hands and Feet, ftretching them on a Crofs, which they rais'd up, and the Chriftian being bound againft the fore-Mant, one of thofe poffef $\mathrm{g}^{\prime} \mathrm{d}$ by the Devil came up to him in Sight of them all, and playing the part of an Executioner, ripp'd up his Breaft, with one of thofe Daggers they ufe, making a wound fo large, that he thuit in his Hand with cafe, and pluck'd out part of his Entrals, An Indian cinelly Sa= ivifiz'd. whereof, with horrid Fury, he bit a Mouthful, and cafting the reft up into the Air, eat what he had in his Mouth, and lick'd his Hands, pleafing hinfelf with the Blood that fuck to them.

Having commicted the Murder, they took the Crofs, and him that was on They caft it, and caft it and the Martyr into the Sea, which receiv'd that Bociy, bim into offer'd in Sacrifize to the Devil, then to be eloath'd in Glory, by him that the Sea. has provided it for thofe who fuffer for the Confeffion of the Faith. This dreadful Spectacle ftruck Horror, and rais'd Emulation in the two Chriftians, who beheld it with Zeal, and had expected as much before. The Inhuman Sacrifice being uver, they put out of the Harbour, and having for fome days Coafted the Ifland with Difficulty; one of them, by command of the Poffefs'd Perfon, who had order'd the Sacrifize, with the cone fent of them all, fet at liberty the Religious Man, the Secretary, and all the Indians they had Prifoners, putting them afhore in the Boat, and then the Clinefes food out to Sea, They Endeavour'd to make over to China, but not being able, put into CocJinc7ina, where the King of Funquin took all they had, and among the reft two heavy Pieces of Cannon, that had been put aboard for the Expedition of the Moluccos, the King's Standard, and all the Jewels, Goods, and Money. He fuffer'd the Galley to perift on the Coaft, and the Clinefes difpers'd, flying into feveral Provinces. Others affirm, that King leiz'd and punifh'd them.

The spaniads that efcap'd, went to carry the News to Munila, where fome griev'd, and others, who hated the Governour for his Severity, rejoyced; but that ill Will foon vanifh'd, and all generally lamented him; more efpecially when fome of the Bodies were found and brought in. A-Manila. mong them were thofe of the Enfign, Fohn Diaz Guerrero, an old Soldier, and Governour of Cebu; of the Enfign Penalofa, Proprietor of Pila; the great Soldiet Sabagun, whofe Wife ran roaring about the City of Captain Caftano, newly come over from Spainz; of Francis Rodriguez Bodies Perulera; of Captain Peter Neyla; of Foln de Sotomayor; of Simon Fer-found. nandez; that of his Sergeant ; of Guzman; of the Enfign and Sergeant of the Company brought by Don Philip de Samano, who being fick transferr'd it to Captain John Xuares Gallinato; and thofe of Sobaftian Ruis and Lewis Velez, thefe two Merchants, all the ref old Soldiers; whofe Funerals renew'd the Sorrow for that difmall Accident.

This News being brought to Manila, and no Papers of the Governour's appearing, wherein he nam'd, who was to fucceed him, tho ${ }^{6}$ it was known he had the King's Order fo to do, believing it might be loff in the Galley, among much of the Kings, his own, and private Perfons Goods, the City therefore chofe the Licentiate Rojas for their Governour, and he was fo forty Days.

Mandarines wijit DonLewis pedition to the Moluccos, and to this End F. Antony. Fernandez came from Tydore ; but he fucceeded not. The Fleet was difmirs'd, and it was a fingulaz Providence for the Security of the Pbilippine Iflands; for prefently after, at the Beginring of the Year 1594 , there came thither a great Number of Ships from Clina, loaded only with Men and Arms, and brining no Merchandize, as they are wont to do. Thofe Ships brought feven Mandarines, being fome of the chief Viceroys and Governours of the Provinces. It was believ'd, and prov'd certainly true, that they knowing Gomez Perez went upon that Expedition, to which he took with him all the Spaniards, concluded the Country was left defencelefs, and therefore catne with a Defign to Conquer, or plunder it, which would have been very eafy, had they found it as they ex pected. They went out of their Ships but twice to vifit Don Lewis, with great State, and much Attendance. He receiv'd them affectionately, and prefented every Mandarine with a gold Chain. They told him, they came by their King's Order, to pick up the Cbinefes, who wander'd about thofe Iflands without his Leave; but this was look'd upon as a meer Pretence; becaufe there was no Need, for that Effect, of fo many Mandarines, nor fuch a Number of Veffels arm'd and furnifh'd for War. The Clinefes who murder'd Gomez Perez, were of Cbincbeo, and therefore Don Lewis, as knowing the certain Criminals, fent his Kinfman Don Ferdinand de Caffro, in a Ship, to give the King of Cbina an Account of that Treachery; but his Voyage mifcarry'd, and all was left in Sufpence.

At this Tine Langara, King of Camboxa made Inflance for the Suc cours, and requir'd Don Lewis to perform his Fathers Promife made to him not long before. He therefore, in Purfuance to it, and to the End that thofe Forces, or fome Part of them, might continue in the Church's Service, fince they were provided for that End, in the Defign of Ternate, refolv'd to fupport that King with them.

Camboxa is one of the moft fertile of the Indian Regions. It fends Abundance of Provifions to other Parts, for which Reafon it is frequented by Spaniards, Perfians, Arabs, and Armenians. The King is a Mabometan; but his Subjects the Gufarats and Banians, follow the Precepts of Pythagoras, perhaps without any Knowledge of him. They are all sharp witted, and reputed the cunningeft Merchants in India. However they are of Opinion, that after Death, Men, Brute Beafts, and all Creatures, receive either Punifhment, or Reward; fo confus'd a Notion have they of Immortality. The City Gamboxa, which gives its Name to all the Country, is alfo calld

Champo,

Champa, abounding in the Odoriferous Calambuco Wood, whofe Tree call'd Calamba, grows in unknown Regions, and therefore has not been feen ftanding. The Floods upon thofe great Rivers bring down Trunks of it, and Lignums this is the precious Lignum Aloes. Camboxa produces Corn, Rice, Peafe, Aloes. Butter, and Oyl. There are made in it various Sorts of Cotton Webs; Muflins, Buckrams, Calicoes, white and painted, Dimities, and other curious Pieces exceeding the fineft in Holland. They alfo adorn their Rooms with Carpets; tho' they are not like thofe brought out of Perfia to Ormuz. They weave others for the common Sort, which they call Bancales, not unlike the Scotch Plads. Nor do they want the Art of Silk-Weaving, for they both weave, and work with the Needle, rich Hangings, Coverings for the low Chairs us'd by the Women of Quality, and for the Indian Litters, or Palanquines, which are made of Ivory, and Tortoife-Shell, and of the fame they make Chefs-Boards, and Tables to Play, Seal-Rings, and other portable Things. In the Mountains there is found a fort of Chriftal, ex- Produ&. traordinary tranfparent, whereof they make Beads, little Idols, Bracelets, Necklaces, and other Toys. It abounds in Amethifts, Garnets, the Sort of Saphirs call'd Hyacinths, Spinets, Cornelians, Chryfolites, Cats Eyes, properly call'd Acates, all of them precious Stones; There are alfo thofe they call Milk, and Blood Stones, pleafant, and medicinal Fruits, Opium, Bangue, Sanders, Alom and Sugar. Indigo is incomparably prepar'd in Camboxn, and thence fent to feveral Provinces. The living Creatures are the fame Afia affords in thofe Parts, Elephants, Lions, Horfes, wild Boars, and other fierce Beafts. It is in Ten Degrees of North Latitude. The River Mecon waters all the Kingdom, and in it falls into the Sea; being look'd upon as the greateft in Indin, carrying fo much water in Summer, that it floods, and covers the Fields, like the Nile in Egypt. It joyns another of lefs Stock, at the Place call'd Cbordemuco. This River, for fix Months runs backward. The Reafon of it is the Extent and Plainnefs of the Country it runs along. The Southern Breezes choak up the Bar with Sand. The Currents thus dammd up, fwell and rife together, after much Struggling one againft the other. The Bar looks to the South-ward, both Waters at firft Form a deep Bay, and finding no free Paffage out, but being drove by the mighty Violence of the Winds, are forctd to fubmit and bend their Courfe the wrong Way, till a more favourable Seafon reftores them to their natural Courfe. We fee fome fuch like Effects in Spain, where the Tagus falls into the Sea of Portugal, and the Guadalquivir into that of Andaluzia, oppos'd by the fuperior Force of the Sea Waves, and of the Winds.

About this Time, in the remoteft Part of this Country, beyond impenetrable Woods, not far from the Kingdom of the Laos, was difcover'd a City, of above fix thoufand Houfes, now call'd Angon. The Structures, and Streets, all of maffy Marble Stones, artificially wrought, and as entire, as if they had been modern Works. The Wall ftrong; with a Scarp, or Slope within, in fuch Manner, that they can go up to the Battlements every where. Thofe Battlements all differ one from another, reprefenting fundry Creatures, one reprefents the Head of an Elephant, another of a Lion, a third of a Tiger, and fo proceed. in continual Variety. The Ditch, which is alfo of hew'd Stones, is capable of receiving Ships. Over it is a magnificent Bridge, the Arches of it being fupported by fone

Giants of a procigious Heisht. The Aqueducts, tho' dif, fhow no lefs Grandeur. There are Remains of Gardens, and delightful Places, where the Acueducts terminate. On one Side of the Town is a Lake above thirty Leagues in Compafs. There are Epitaphs, Inferiptions, and Characters not underftood. Many Buildings are more fumptuous than the reft, moft ot them of Alabafter, and Jafper Stone. In all this City, when firft difcoverred by the Natives, they found no People, nor Beafts, nor any living Creatures, e cept fuch as Natuie produces out of the Breaches of Ruins. I own I was unwilling to write this, and that I have look'd upon it as an imaginary City of Plaro's Atlantis, and of that his Common-Wealth; but there is no wonderful Thing, or Accident, that is not fubject to much Doubt. It is now Inhabited, and our Religious Men, of the Order of S.. Auguffin and St. Dominick, who have Preach'd in thofe Parts, do teftify the Truth of it. A Perfon of Reputation tor his Learning, conjectures it was the Work of the Emperor Traian; but tho' he extended the Enpire more than his Predeceffors, I have not ever Read that he reach'd as far as Camboxa. Were the Hiftories of the Chinefes as well known as ours, they would inform us, why they abandon'd fo great a Part of the World ; they would explain the Inferiptions on the Buildings, and all the reft that is unknown to the Natives themfelves. I know not what to fay of fo Beautiful a City's being buried in Oblivion, or not known. It is rather a Subject of Admiration than Reflection.

Three Spa-

 nifh Ships fent to ibe Relief of Camboxa.
King of

 Camboxa routed by bim of Siam.
Defign to murder the Spaniards.Don Lewis being zealous to bring thofe Nations into the Bofom of the Church, and their Wealth, and Kings under the Subjection of the Crown of Spain, fitted out three Ships, under the Command of Fohn Xuarez Gallinato, born at Tenerife, one of the Canary Iflands, with 120 Spaniards, and fome, Philippines. They Saild from Cebu, but there rofe a Storm immediately, which difpers'd the Ships. Gallinato drove on by the Fury of the Winds, arriv'd at Malaca, and the other two at Camboxa. Going up the River, they were Inform'd, That the King of Sian had defeated him of Camboxa, his Neighbour; who, with the wretched Remains of his Army, fled into the Kingdom of the Laos, a Neighbouring but Inhumane Nation; and that, whilft he was begging Compaffion among thofe obdurate Hearts, the King of Sian had fer up Prauncar, Nick-nam'd; Wry Mouth the Traytor, Brother to the vanqufh'd Monarch, for King of Camboxa. This Accident did not obftruct the Succours which the Spaniards carry'd under Colour of an Embafly. They came to the City Chordumulo, 80 Leagues diftant from the Bar, and leaving 40 Spaniards in the Ships, 40 others went to the Country where the new King was. They made Application to vifit him prefently, but he would not be feen that Day, tho' he order'd they fhould have good Quarters, and be told, he would give them Audience three Days after. But Fames Velofo. and Blafe Ruyz, either that they were formerly acquainted with the Country, or fome new Subtilty occurring, looking on that delay as fufpicious, vifiting a beauriful Indian Woman, of the King's Family, fhe told them in private, That being admitted into that Tyrants Secrets, he being fond of her, fhe knew he intended to Murder them all; and that during thofe three Days he had affign'd them, as it were to Reft, after their Journey, the Men and Means for Executing that Defign were to be provided. The spaniards return'd Thanks for the Intelligence, not without promife of Reward.

They were not difmay d at the Danger; but repeating their Thanks to Defperat the Indian Woman, for her Intelligence, came to this magnanimous, if it may Bravery of not be termd a rafh Refolution. They agreed to attack the King's Palace the Spanthat fame Night, and to withfand the whole A.rmy, if Need were. They iards. prepar'd themfelves for that Enterprize, which was above human Strength, let Fire to the Houle where the Powder lay, and the People running to help, or to fee the Mifchief, the Spaniards,during the Confufion, enter'd the Palace, and being acquainted with the loyal Apartments, made through them, till they came to the King's Perfon, whom they run thro', and kill'd after cutting his Guards in Pieces. He defended himfelf, calling out for Help, but thofe who came to his Affiftance found him bloodlefs. The Report of this Action alarm'd the other Guards, and then all the City,

They killthe King of Cambuxa. which contains above thirty thoufand Inhabitants, who where all ruming to Arms; above r 4000 Men took up fuch as Occafion offer'd, and came upon the Spaniards with many war-like Elephants. Our two Commanders drew up their little Body, and retired in great Order, always fighting and killing great numbers of their Enemies. The Fight lafted all the Night, with wonderful Bravery, the next Day they got to their Ships, and inibark'd, leaving that Kingdom full of new Divifions.

The fecond Day after, Gallinaro came in, with his Ship. He Janded, having been before inform'd of what had happen'd, and thinking he did not perform his Duty, unlefs he fuccour'd the Spaniards, when he heard the Drums and Bells, and faw the Streets and Port full of trading Peiple, now in Arms. He gave frict Orders to thofe that attended him, to behave them/elves ve-sy modefly, fo as to conceal their own Concern, and deceive the People of Camboxas both by their Looks; and the Sedatenefs of their Words. The principal Men of Camboxa vifited him, in peaceable Manner; whom he rreated very courteoufly. He might have perform'd fome great Exploit, but finding his Strength too fmall for fuch an Enterprize, and that now Affairs had taken another Turn, and were in a different Poffure, he thought fit to be gone. Mof of thofe great Men oppos'd it, promifing him the Crown, as being well affected to the Spaniards, and a foreign Government. Hence came the idle Report, that Gallinato was King of Camboxa, which was believ'd by many in Spain, and acted on the Stage with. Applaufe, and good Liking. And it was the Opinion of Perfons well acquainted with thofe Countries, that had Gallinato laid hold of the Opportunity offer'd him, he might then have pofiefs d himfelf of Camboxa, and united it to the Crown of Caftile.
I have feen Letters of V ello $J_{o}$, and Blafe Ruiz, to the Council at Manila, after this Action, wherein they fpeak to this Effect, and complain that Gallinaio fhould blame what they did. But Gallinato, whofe Judgment, and Valour, had been try'd in the greatent Dangers of thofe Eaftern Parts, and many Years before in Flanders, would not fuffer himfelf to be eafily led away by popular Affection, and honourably rejecting that Opportunity, faild towards Manila. He took in fome Refrefhment in Cochinchina. Blaje Ruiz and Fames Vellofo had landed there before, and went alone by Land to the Kingdom of the Laos, which lies Weft of Coclininclina, to feek out the depos'd King Langara, and reflore him to his Throne. They found he was dead, but had a Son living, who being told how they had kill'd the Ufurper, his Uncle and Enemy; he fet forward immediately for his Kingdom with Vellofo and Ruiz, and 10000 Men, the King of the Lass,contrary to all Expectation furnifh'd him. He attack'd Camboxa, where Ruiz and Vellofo faithfolly ftuck to him during the War, and afterwards in his Government. Then he fent another Embaffy to the Pbilippine Ifland, asking Supplies of Men to quell the Troubles in his Country, and that he and his Subjects might receive the Faith of $\mathcal{F} E S U S$ CHRIST; promifing a confiderable Part of his Dominions to the Spaniards, to fubfitt them. This Embaffy came to Manila, when Don Lewis had quirted the Government, and refign'd it up to Don Francis Tello, which gave Occafion to Ternate to grow more fettled in its Tyranny.

D. Pedro de Acunna fortifies Carthagena.

56 Englifh Sail Jent to rob the Weft-Indies.

Drake's AEtions there.

Don Pedro de Acunna, who govern'd Caytbagena in the Wef-Indies, in this Year I595, either becaufe it was his natural Inclination, or the Neceffity of the Times requiring it, fortify'd the Place with Fafcines, Planks, Piles, and Ditches, working at it himelf in Perfon. Thus he oblig'd the Bifhop, Clergy and Religious Men, to put their Hands to the. Work; the very Ladies of Quality, their Daughters and Maids, did not refufe to follow fuch an Example. It was wonderful to fee with what Expedition and Zeal the Work was brought to Perfection, of fuch Force is a good Example. Soon after came to Puerio Rico, the Ship call'd Pandorga, or Borgonna, that was Admiral of Tierra Firme, and New Spain, with three Millions in her. The whole under the Care of the General Sancho Pardo.
At this Time there came into the Weft-Indies a Fleet of 56 Sail, fent by the Queen of England to plunder them, under the Command of Folm Hawkins and Francis Drake. Captain Peter Tello defended the three Millions fo bravely with the Spanifh Frigots, that he fav' the Prize. Hawkins was wounded in the Fight, and dy'd of it before he could come to the Firm Land. Drake, with that Fleet, enter'd Rio de la Hacha and Santa Marta; and being one Night in Sight of Carthagena, took a Frigate belonging to that Coaft, by which he was inform'd, how well the Governour had fortifid it; therefore making a Compliment of Neceffity, he fent Don Pedro a Meffage by the Men of the Frigot, whom he therefore fet at Liberty, faying, He did not attack his Works and City out of Refpect to him, and becaufe he honour'd his Valour. The Truth of the Matter was, That Drake call'd together his Captains to confult what was to be done, and they all advised him to attack the City, promifing to do their utmoft, and be anfwerable for the Succefs; alledging it ought to be attempted, for being a Place of vaft Wealth and Confequence. Only Drake oppos'd it, frength'ning his Opinion by faying, His Mind did not give him, that the Enterprize could have the Succels they would affure him, becaufe they were to have to do with a Knight of Malta, a Batcheler, nothing weakned with Womanifh Affection, or the Care of Children; but watchful, and intent upon defending the Place, and fo Refolute, that he would dye on the Spot before he would lole it. This Opinion prevail'd, and the Fnglifh ftanding in Awe of Don Pedro's Reputation, went away to the Town of Nombre de Dios, and took it. Drake afterwards defigning to do the fame at Panama, was difappointed, meeting Oppofition by the Way, which had been provided upon the Advice fent by Don Pedro, that the Englifh were moving againn that City.

But let us return into Afia. Still the People of Camboxa perfifted to ask Succours at the Pbilipine Iflands, upon the ufual Promife of Converficn and D. I ewis Vaffalage. Don Lewis de las Marinhas undertook the Enterprize in Per- de las fon, and at his own Coft. He fet out from Manila with Dem James for-Marinhas dan, an Italian, Don Pedro de Figueroa, Peter Villefil, and Ferdinand de goes to relos Rios Coronel, Spani/b Commanders, the laft of them then a Prieft, who lieve Camhad alfo been in the firtt War of Camboxa. A Storm took them out at Sea, boxa. which lafted three Days, with the ufual Fury. The Shipwrack was miferable, two Ships were flav'd in Pieces, and the Sea fwallow'd up all the Men, Provifions and Ammunition. Of all the Soldiers and Seamen on Board the Vice-Admiral, only five fwam afhore on the Coaft of Cbina. Some Soldiers were alfo fav'd out of the Admiral, and among them Captain Ferdinand de los Rios, the Veffel remaining founder'd under the Waves. The other Ship got to Camboxa almoft flatterd to Pieces after many Dangers. She found in the River of Camboxa, eight Juncks of Malayes, and the Spaniards feeing they defign'd to carry away fome Slaves of the King of Camboxa, to whofe Affiftance they came, inconfiderately boarded the Malayes, who being well furnifh'd with more than ordinary Fire-works, foon burnt our Ship, and moft of the Spaniards perifh'd in the Spanifh Flames or Smoke. Blaze Ruiz, nor Vellofo were not there at that Time, Ships but foon after in the Country, where they were attending the King, being burnto. befet in the Houfe where they lodg'd, were barbaroully murder'd. Thofe few Spaniards that efcap'd, got into the Kingdom of Sian, and thence to Manila. Heaven was pleas'd this fhould be the End of all thofe mighty Preparations made for the Recovery of Ternate, and the other Molucco. Illands, whole Tyrant triumph'd at the News, concluding it was the Effect of his good Fortune, and looking on it as a Teftimony of the Jußice of his Caufe, and accordingly he confederated a new with our Enemies.
Don Francifco Tello, a Gentleman of Andaluzia, fucceeded Gomez Perez D. Fran. in the Government of the Plilippine Inlands, and came to Minnila in the Tello GoYear 1596. His firft Care was to inform himfelf of the Condition his vernor of Predeceffor had left them in, and to fupply the Garrifons; becaufe the the Phil. Emperor of Fapan, having in the Year 1595, executed thofe glorious Martyrdoms, the Memory whereof is ftill frefh, on the Religious Men of the Order of $S$. Francis, it gave him Jealoufy, that he might have a Defign againft the Pbilippine Iflands.

The Natives of the Iflands of Mindanao, hate our Nation as much as People of thofe of Ternate, and upon any Occafion take Arms againft it, as they Mindanao did in the laft, at the faid Ifland of Ternate. For this Reafon, Stephen Rodriguez he Figueroa enter'd into Articles with the new Governour, Don Francifco Tello, by Virtue whereof he made War on the People of Mindanao and Ternate, at his own Expence. Steplien Rodriguez was fo rich, that he might fafely undertake this Affair. He livid at Arevalo, a Town on the Illand Panaz, one of the Philippines, and fet out with fome Galleys, Frigots, Champanes, and one Ship, in which there were fome Spaniards, and above I 500 of the Painted Natives, call'd Pintados, who were to ferve as Pioneers. Hearriv'd at the River of Mindanao, on the 20th of April, $\times 596$. and as foon as the Inhabitants of the Town, peculiarly call'd Mindanao, faw fucha fightly Company, they fled up the Side of Moft of them reforted to the Town of Ruyaben, then the Refidence of-Raxamura, King of Mindanao, who being under Age, had yet no Charge of the Gcvernment, which was wholly in the Hands nt Silong $a$, a Soldier, and Commander of Reputation. Our Men following up the River, came to Tampacan, five Leagues from the firft, That Place was govern'd by Din milibot, Uncle to Monao, the true Proprietor, who was then alfo young.

 as foon as they difcover'd their Arms, came out, in peaceable Manner, to meet, and offer them their Affiftance. They inform'd them, that the Enemies, for they were fo to thofe of Buyaben, had retir'd into the Fort they had there. Stepben Rodriguez hearing the News, and having made mich of thofe Princes, order'd the Fleet to weigh Anchor, and continue the Purfuit, four Leagues faither, fill along the River, to Buyaben. Being come thither, he landed his Men on S. Mark's Day; which was done by the Col. Folm de Xaya, but without any Order, becaufe having had no Engagement at Mindanao, they thought they fhould have little to do there; as if this, or any other Pretence ought to be an Excufe for not obferving Martial Difcipline,Stephen Rodriguez would land ro rectify that Diforder by his Prefence. He went ont in fuch Armour of Proof, that a Shot of a fmall Drake would fearce pierce it. Only his Head unarm'd, but cover'd with a Cap and Feather, a black carrying his Helmet, and five Soldiers well arm'd attending him. He had fcarce march'd fifty Paces, before an Indian, whufe Name was Ubal, fuddenly rufhd out of a clofe and topping Thicket, ard. running at him, with his Campilan, or Cymiter, clove his Head. Ubal was Brother to Silonga, and Owner of one only Cow there was in all that Country, He kill'd her three Days before this Accident, and inviting his Friends ro her, promis'd in that War to kill the moft noted Man among the spaniards. He was as good as his Word, for Stephen Rodriguez dropt down of the Wound, and dy'd three Days after, without anfwering one Word to the Queftions that were made him, tho he did it by Signs. The five Spaniards, feeing their Commander fo fuddenly wounded, that the Slayer, appeared, and the Stroke was heard the fame Moment, fell upon Ulal and cut$A$ Fort

They acquainted Colanel Xara with their General's Death; and he fupprefling his Concern, drew back the Men, and threw up a Fortification in the moff convenient Place, near the River, where he orderly founded his Colony, to be inhabited by our Men. He appointed Aldermen, and Magiftrates, calling it New Murcia, in Honour of the old one in Spain, where he was born. Afrerwards, defigning to marry Dosna Ana de Ofeguera, Widow to Stephen Rodriguez, he left Things unfettled, and arriv'd at the Ifland Luzon about the Beginning of J̛une.

The Governor Don Francis Tello, who was then at the Place call'd El Embocadero, an hundred Leagues from Manila, being inform'd of what had happen'd, and rold upon what defign the Colonel Xara came, feiz'd him immediately, fending Captain Torihio de Miranda, to the War in Mindasao. He found his Men were retird to the Port de la Caldera, in the fame Ifland but 36 Leagues from the Mouth of the River. There he maintaind himfelf, till about Auguf: Don Erancis Tello appointed Don Gobn Ronquillo, who was Commander of the Galleys, to fueceed in that Poft. He alfe commiffion'd Peter Arceo Covarrubias, and others, as Captains, to go with him; Fanes Chaves Cannizares, Collonel; Garcia Guerrero, Major; and Chrijlopher Villagra and Cervan Gutiervez, Captains of Foot. Don Jolin Ronquillo came with his Recruit to prefs upon the Enemy, and did it fo effectually, that being diffrefs ${ }^{〔} \mathrm{~d}$, they crav'd Aid of the King of Ternate, to whom the People of Mindarao pay an Acknowledgement, which is little lefs, or the fame as Tribute. Buizan, Brother to Silonga, went on this Embaffy; and fucceeded fo well, that the King of Ternate fent with him feven Carcoas, x heavy Pieces of Cannon, two fimaller, Fome kalconets, and fix hundred Men. They failing up the River of Mindanao, defign'd to pafs on as far as Buyahen; but met with great Difficulties at the Reaches; becaufe at one of them they were threatned by the Spaniards chief Fort, the Galleys, and other Veffels; and the other was a narrow Channel, with a Point running out into it, on which was erected a Baftion, defended by forty Men. From thence our Men had artificially laid 2 frong wooden Bridge over to the other Side of the River, clofe to which a Galliot ply'd up and down.
The Teraates feeing both Sides fo well Guarded, reiolv'd to fortify themfelves at the Mouth of the River. They accordingly erected a finall They build Fort, and put themfelves into it, with an equal Number of Mindanao Sol- a Fort on diers. The News hereof mov'd the General Renguillo to diflodge them; the River. and in Order to it, came down with the Galleys and other Veffels, and 140 Men well appointed. He landed with Ir 6 , and the Captains Ruy Gomez Avellano, Garcia Guervero, Cbriftopher Villagra, and Alonfo de Palma, facing the Enemy, at about eighty Paces Diftance, on the Bank of the River. The Ternates and Mindanaos had levell'd all the Front of their Fort, and de fignedly left a Spot of Bufhes and Brambles on one Side, where 300 Ternazes lay in Ambuth, the reft being in the Fort. Both their Parties perceiving how few of our Men came to attack them, were afham'd to be fhut up within Fortifications, and lye in Ambufh, and accordingly making Show of haughty Threats, came out and met the Spaniards. They found fuch Oppofition, that without the Help of any Stratagem, or other Caufe but their natural Valour, at the very firft onfer, almoot all the Ternates were kill'd, and the reft fled. Our Men follow'd the Chace, till they made an End of them. The people of Tampaca, who till then had been Neuters, to fee which Side Fortune would tavour, perceiving the declar'd for us, took up Arms for our Part. Only feventy feven elcap'd dangeroufly wounded, whereof fifty were drown'd in the River leaping, into it in Defpair: Of Only three the other twenty feven, only three furviv'd, who carry'd the News to their efcape. King. The Spaniards poffefs'd themlelves of the Shipping, Cannon, and Plunder of the vancuift'd, and were encourag'd to profecute the War.

Don Fyancis Tello did not neglect other Affais of this Nature. He underftood by his Spyes, and it was bruited abroad, that the Emperor of Fapan Warlike was gathering a mighty Army, and fitted out a Fleet for it, with Arms preparaand Provifions. It was alfo known, that he was in Treaty to fecure him-tions in felf againf the Chinefes, of whom the Japonefes are naturally Jealous. Japan. Hence it was inferrd, that he arm'd to carry the War out of his own Dominions. He had already enter'd into Allyance with the King of Ternate, and other Neighbours, who were Enemies to the Crown of Spain. All

The Embaffador fet out for Fapan in Y̌uly, and at the lame Time Don Francifoo difpatch'd the Galeon S. PJilip forNew spain, with Advice of thofe Reports. Thefe two Ships, viz, that Alderete went in, and the S. Pbilip, were together in $\mathcal{F a p a n}$, which the Natiyes were jealous of. Alderete got full Information of the Strength and Defigns of the Faponefes, and his Induftry was of Ufe, for the taking of right Meafures in Manila, and to prevent their fearing without Caufe. He brought back another noble Prefent to the Governour ; and both Sides flood upon their Guard, to be ready upon all Occafions.
In the Year 1598, the fovereign Court.was again erected at Manila, King Pbilip prudently conferring Dignity on that Province. It was compos'd of the Iudges Zambrano, Mezcoa, Tellez de Almazan, and the Kings Attorney Ferome Salazar, y Salcedo. That great King never allow'd of any Intermififon in his weighty Cares, which extended to all the known Parts of the World; having a watchful Eye upon the Defigns of other Princes, whether well, or ill affected to the Propagation of the Gofpel, which was his main Defign, Therefore, about this Time, he made Hafte to rid himfelf of his neighbouring Enemies, that he might have Leafure to attend the remoteft Rebels againft the Church and his Monarchy. And in Refpect that as Age came on, its Diftempers grew heavier, he concluded a Peace with France, which was proclaim'd at Madrid, with Martial Solemnity, after he had withdrawn himfelf to the Monaftery of S. Laurence, at the Efcurial, a W ork of his Piety and Magnificence, where he dy'd on the thirteenth of September 1598, with fingular Tokens of Sanctity. He frequented the Sacrament of Confeffion, receiv'd the divine Viaticum, and extreme Unction, the laft Remedy for temporal, and eternal Health. His Death was in all Refpects anfwerable to the wonderful Courfe of his Life.

King Pbilip the Third, our fovereign Lord, fucceeded him, having been before fworn in all his Kingoms, who, amidft the Tears and Funeral Solemnities, Commanded the Will to be open'd, and what his Father had order'd to be fulfill'd. His Infructions, and the Myfteries of State, whereof he was fo great a Mafer, and which he communicated to his Son till the laft Gafp, produc'd the Peace which attended his moft happy Succeffion, which was his Due by Natural Right, the Law of Nations, and his own innate Virtues; the general Submiffion of his Subjects, and the Fidelity of the Armies that ferv'd in the Northern Provinces in Itaiy, Africk, Afia, the Indies, and in Garrifons, were a Curb to other Nations. Many of them prefented the new King with Proteflations of Loyalty, before they had receiv'd Letters and Advice of his being upon the Throne. A nd tho' the Spanifb Monarchy is of fo great an Extent, that it borders on the unknown World, and it is never Night in all Parts of it, becaufe theSun encompaffes and coutinually difplays his Light over it, yet it obey'd without any Commotion, or rather with Pride, as if it knew and were fenfible of the new Hand that took up the Reins of Gcvernment: Excellent Princes have feldom fail'd to employ extraordinary Minifters about their Perfons, to manage and fuftain the Burden their Fortune lays upon their Shoulders; fo Alexander the Grear had Hepheftion; the two Scipios, the two Letij; Auguffus Cafar, Marcus Agrippa; the Princes of the Auguft Houfe of Auffria, other Perfons of fingular Virtue; for all moral Wifdom, and Experience it felf teaches us, that the Difficulties of weighty Affairs are, not to be duly manag'd, and furmounted, by any but Perfons of a more than ordinary Capacity; becaufe Nature has not left any of its Works defliute of a proportionable Minifiry. And confidering, that it is of great Importance to the publick Welfare, to contrive, that what is neceffary for the Ufe and Commerce of Mankind may appear eminent in Dignity, for the frengthning of the common Advantage with Authority: The King, I fay, following thofe ancient Examples, made Choice of Don Francifco de Rojas y Sandoval, then Marques of Denia, and fince firft Duke of Lerma, a moft able Minifter, privately to confult with him about fundamental Matters and Concerns, for which he had been prepar'd with fingular Affection in thofe Times: Befides the great Antiquity of his Family, which has ally'd him to all the nobleft of the Grandees of Spain, all Men own him endow'd with the neceffary Virtues, that belong to a Perfon in fo great a Poff; which fhine through that pleafing Gravity of his Countenance, with a flay'd Gayity that teflifies his Capacity, and provokes Refpect at the fame Time that it gains Affections. He conftituted him the firft of his Council of State, and all the Ordersfor Peace and War began to run through his Hands. All the Opinions of Councels, which he found feal'd, for King Pbilip the 2 d to give his Decifion thereupon, he reftor'd, without opening them, to the Prefidents of the faid Councels they came from, being, perhaps, calculated out of Refpect, that they might again debate upon them with more Liberty, and fend them back enlarg'd or reform${ }^{〔} \mathrm{~d}$.

BOOK. VII.

THE Governour Don Francis Tello, to attend other Neighbouring Provinces, where reater Commotions were threatned, turn'd his Arms that Way; fending fome incongiderable Part, at feveral Times to the Moluccos; for he never went ferioufly about recovering thofe lflands, either becaufe he apprehended; or had Intelligence of Dangers threatned by the haughry faponefes, Mindanos and Chinefes, or that he would not tread in the Track of thofe who ruin'd themfelves in the Expeditions againf Ternate. Yet our Men fought that Nation in other Parts; for being the moft Warlike, and averfe to the very Name of Spaniards, it never let pafs any Opportunity of doing them Harm.

We have already mention'd the firft coming of the Engli/h into thofe Seas, and the Care that was taken to obliterate the Example fet by their Voyage, by fortifying the Streights of Magellan. It could not be effected, nor did our Fleet fucceed in punifhing, as was intended, thofe who had the Boldnefs to attempt that unthought-of Paffage. Since then, the Hollanders and Zealanders, fupported by Rebellion and Difobedience, have fail'd into India, poffefs'd themfelves of frong Hoids, and erected Factories, tranfporting the Drugs, Precious Stones and Silks of $A F i a$; and what is worfe, poffefling themfelves of feveral Places, and rending the Spanill Monarchy. Account of Holland.

The Pholippine Iflands were now appointed for the Place of Arms, confidering the great Delays Experience had fhofn there were towards Recovering of the Molucco llands. In the mean while, notwithfanding that Don Francis Tello was warn'd, how pernicious Inhabirants he was like to have in the Sangleyes, or Climefes, by whom the Iflands of his Province began to be much peopled and filld, yet he allow'd them greater Libirty than was convenient; and the Municipal Laws which provided againft this Ditorder being forgaten or contemn'd, in a very flort Time there were additional Towns of Chinefes, Clincheos, and other fuch like Monfters, who were no better than Pyrates, or Incendiaries in that Country, which ought to have taken fufficient Warning by, and been well provided on Account of paft Accidents, to fhut up all Paflages againft fuch Enemy Nations. Don Francifco excus'd their Refort, alledging, That they imported Abundance of Provifions and Merchandife, which is what ufualiy enriches all Places; That no Men have fuch a confummate Mechanick Genius as they ; That they are more affiduous and conftant at the Works and Buildings than the Natives of the Philippines. He faid, That all the Jealoufy generally conceivd of them vanifhes, if the Governour adminiffers Juttice impartially, and permits no private Cabals. All thefe are, or appear'd to be frivolous Reafons, without any Force; and the admitting of fuch an Inundation of thofe People, prov'd very dangerous, as may be feen in the Sequel of this Work, by what happen'd to the Governour Gomez Perez. It was a particular Providence of Heaven, that other Nations did not go about to League with this, or the Dutcb, who have fo ftrongly fix'd themfelves in the Archipelago; for they might, without much Difficulty, have given us more Trouble than has been occafion'd by the Rebellion of the Kings of the Moluccos ; to whofe Country, and all others in India, great Fleets of Dutch relort, ever fince the Year 1585, whereof Dutch Writers give an Account, and lay down in Cuts, even the fmalleft Plants they produce.
It does not belong to us to give an Account of the Englif, Dutch, or other Nations of India and Ajia, or their Expeditions and Voyages ; but only fuch as relate to the Conqueft of Ternate and the Molucco Iflands, or may have fome Dependance on this Subject; but be it known, once for all, that every Year, fome Northern Fleets appear'd, coming either thro ${ }^{3}$ New Streights, fill unknown to our Difcoverers, or thofe before frequented and laid down. Bur before we enter upon this Relation, it feems requifite to fay fomething of Holland, the Head of the Neighbouring Ifland, as that which is become mont outrageous in India, and nhoof covets the Moluccos. The Province of Holland is almof on all Sides encompa/s'd by the Sea, and the Ports of the Maefe and Rhine, for about 60 Leagues in Compafs. Within it are contain'd 29 wall'd Towns, whofe Names and Situation does not belong to us to fpeak of, nor of thofe of Zealand, or the other Provinces fubject to them. The Curious may read Lambert, Horten.us, and Montefortizs. The Natives are defcended from the Ancient Catti; and forafinuch as Erafmus of Rotterdam, which is in Holland, detcribes it in his Chiliades, we will abridge what he there delivers at large, out of Affection to his Countiy. The Leapleu, lay he, agre, and it is a probable Conjecture, that the Ifland Tacius mentions, Hins from Tacitus the Rbine to the Ocean, is that we call Holland; which I am oblig'd to l. 20. Honour, as owing my firft Breath to it; and would to God we could honour it as it deferves. Martial charges it with being rude, or unpolifhed; and Lucan with Cruelty. Either thefe Things do not belong to us, but to our Anceftors, or we may value our felves upon them both. What Nation is now known, whofe firft Fathers were not more uncouth than their Pofterity ? Or when was Rome more highly commended, than when its People knew no other Arts but Tillage and Warfare? Erafmus feends Time in proving, that it is the Nature of Holland, not to relifh Martial's Wit; and that this is not the Effect of Rudenefs, but a Gravity worthy Imitation. Then he makes an Exclamation, laying, Would to God all Chriftians had Dutch Ears! And that if fill any one fhall contend, the Nation is in the Wrong, in having fopp'd theirs to all Poetical Delights and Allurements, and arm'd it felf againft them; the Dutch valu'd themfelves upon being comprehended in that Reflection, which did not difpleafe the Ancient Sabines, the Perfect Lacedemonians, and the Severe Catos. Lucan call'd the Batavi, that is the Dutch, Cruel, as Virgil did the Romans, Vehement. Erafmus adds, That the Cuftoms of thefe Na- Erafinus tions are Familiar, inclining to Meeknefs and Benignity, and not to Fierce- of the nefs; becaufe Nature endow'd them with a fincere Difpofition, free from Manners Fraud and Double-Dealing, and did not make them fubject to extraordinary of HoilanVices, except the Love of Pleafure, and Excefs in Entertainments. This ders. is caus $d$ by the Multitude of Beauties, which are Incentives, by the feveral Sea-Forts on the Ocean, the Mouths of the two Rivers, RlJine and Maefe; the perpetual Felicity of the Soil, waterd by other Navigable Rivers; and the Fifh and Foul in the Ponds and Woods. No Province of fo fmalla Compafs, contains fo many Cities of a confiderable Magnitude, and fo Populons, excellently govern'd; fo full of Commodities, Arts and Trade. It abounds in Men indifferently learn'd. Erafmus himfelf, in Conclufion, owns that none of them arrives to fingular Erudition. This Account, which in all that is natural muft be own'd not to exceed, affords Arguments to condemir and convince the Author of it, and the Nation it felf. All that Part of the World where Religion and Politenels flourifh, is acquainted with the Diverfity of Opinions all thofe Nations efpoufe, of Proteftants, Puritans, Calvinifts, thefe the mont Numerous; Huguenots, Lutherans, and all other Sorts, too long to enumerate, and not to our Purpofe. Since Erafmus confeffes that his Country does not produce any, Perfons of eminent Learning, why do they take upon them to decide Controverfies in Religion? Why do they incroach upon Councils? If they are of fuch an excellent Difpofition, and have fuch a modeft Genius, Why do they caft off that Piety, whereof there are fuch ancient Teftimonies in our firft Fathers, fo much honour'd by the primitive Charity of the true Church? It is true, as Erafmus fays, that they are of a kind Tem-

Wherein does this differ from Atheifin? It is pofitive Atheifm. This Divifion, unworthy of wild Beants, is the Occafion, and a Sort of Mathematical Neceffity, that thefe People cannot be united among themfelves in true Peace. For thofe Things are the fame to one

Let no Man believe, that becaufe they are not at War among themfelves, it is Love that is the Occafion of it. The Ground of their falfe Tranquility is to be call'd a Ceffation, and not Peace. Thefe are the People who have unhing'd Loyalty and the Chriftian Religion, before fettled in the Iflands, and remoteft Parts of Afia, making Excurfions from their own Country, as far as C7ina, their raging Avarice being grounded on the Advice given them by the Queen of England, and on Malice, becaufe King Pbilip the IId had fhut up the other Ports of his Kingdoms againft them ; fo to endeavour to reduce them to to the Truth and Submiffion, by taking from them the Advantages of Trade.

Some prime Men, for the fail to the Sake of their Country, as they faid, and to gain Reputation, met in HolMoluccos. land and Zealand, and fitted out fix Ships and two Brigantines, to fail into India. On the firft of June they took a Sea Tortoife which weigh'd 143 Pounds. On the 1 sth of the fame Month, Gerrit. Fans, either provok'd by Wine or a worfe Spirit, caft himfelf into the Sea, trom the higheft Part of the greater Brigantine. The next Day, aboard the Ship Guelder, in which the new baptifed Men were, they law a large flying-Fifh, which clapping too its Wings, fell into the faid Ship; but they faw the fame Sort of Fifhes fall upon their Veffels at other Times. On the Eighth they crofs'd the Line, and began to diftribute a Pot of Wine to every fix Men; but on the 2 sth of the fame Month, for Joy of having pafs d d the Ridges of Rocks before Brazil, which run to the Southward in 18 Degrees of South Latitude, they allow'd three Pots to every feven Men. Such a thick Fog fell that they lof Sight of the fmaller Brigantine; the Zealand foon found her again, and difcover'd many Cranes ftanding on the Tops of the Reeds, or Canes, thatt grew out Tall and of an equal Height above the Water. On the 24th of Fnly, they came to an Anchor at the Cape of Good Hope, whence they fail'd again on the 15 th of $\Delta u g u f / t$ with Stormy Weather, all the eight Veffels together, the Sea there boiling up as a Pot does upon the Fire. This Motion, like boiling, was feen for about a Mufket Shot in Length, and the Breadth of a Ship, and all this Space was cover'd thick with Weeds, which they pals'd over by main Force, without any Danger.
On the 24th they reach'd the Illand of Madagafocar, or of S. Laurence, and faw abundance of Whales. Here the plentiful Diftribution of Wine ceas'd, and it began to be given out more fparingly, to lament by this Ab-

On the 4th of September, it was debated whether they hould make for the Ifland of Banda, or put into the Bay of Anton Gill. They came to no Refolution at that Time, tho' they afterwards arriv'd feparately at Banda, and at \(\mathrm{fe}=\) veral Times. On the 17 th they difcover \({ }^{6}\) d, at a great Diftance, the Ifland of Cerne, by others calld the Ife of Svans, which is high and mountainous, and-for Joy of the Water they expected to take in there, they gave every Man three Cups of Wine. Before that, the Vice-Admiral went aftore with five Men, in another little Ifland, and taking a View of it, found a Noble Spacious Harbour, well land-lock'd, into which a Rivulet of frefh Water fell. They put in and refitted their fhatter'd Veffels, finding 14 in a lind Fathom Water. They had not Landed in four Months, and therefore in I/f nuals Thankfgiving, and becaufe it was then Fair Time in Holland, they made a Sort of Chappel, on the Bodies of Trees, and covering it with Leaves, preach'd there twice a Day, in Honour of the Fair. They eat Abundance of Fowl, which they could almoft take with their 'Hands, and drank Wine more plentifully. A Native of Madagafoar, who came along with them, and bad been taken in a former Voyage, was, by the Infruction of thole Sermons, made a Chriftian, and baptizdd, taking the Name of Lazrence. Here a Storm feparated the Ships; the Maurice, which was Admiral, by them in Latinz. call'd Pretoria, the Holland and the Overiffel, tho' they endeavcur'd to five to the Illand Cerne, of of Swans, leaving fix other finaller on the Right Hand. They enter'd the Port with ten Fathom Water, between two Mountains, which contract the Mouth of it . The Situation of it is in \(21 \mathrm{De-}\) grees of South Latitude, and is five Leagues in Compafs. The Port is Spacious enough to contain so Ships, and ffelter'd againft all Winds. They were fo well pleas'd with the Ifland, that they chang'd its ancient Name of Cerne, or of Swans, for that of Mayrice, in Honour of Count Matrice of Naffau, Baftard Son to the Prince of Orange, fo well known in our Days. Difcoverers were fent about it, and return'd without finding any humane Track, nor Signs of any Habitation. They had a doubtful Proof hereof in the Birds and Bearts; for they ran into their Hands and their having never feen Men, or being grown very familiar with frem Among the reft, there are Bats, which have Heads as big, and like Apss, and thefe leep confiderable Numbers of them together, and hanging on the Trees, with their Legs and Wings extended. The Air and Soil are fo healthy and fit to be inhabited, that as foon as the Sick were landed, they recovered. The Land is high and mountainous, full of Woods, and. not being inhabited, there are no Tracts or Paths through them. There Parrots, that they might have loaded their Ships with them. Indian Crows, twice as big as the European, of three feveral colour'd Feathers.

They erected Forges, drefs'd all their Tools, and built another Veffel, to fupply the Place of the Utrecbt, which with the other two, had directect her Courfe for Madagafoar. They again took a View of their Maurica Hfland, and towards the Inland Part of it, tho there were no Signs of any humane Habitation, found about rhree hundred Pounds weight of Wax, on Which there were plain Grcek Letters and Charaters. They alfo faw Oars, Nets, and Pieces of Timber, being the Wreck of Ships. The Vice-Admiral, providing providing a fmooth dquare Board, carv'don it the Arms of Holland, Zealand, and Ayfferdam, and nail'd it on the Top of a Tree, as a Memorial of his being there, and giving the Name of MAURICE to the Ifland, with this Infeription, which being in Epanilb, denotes their Hatred to the Ancient Faith of our Nation, and being couch'd in one Line cver their Arms, was, THE REFORM'D CHRISTIANS. Then they plow'd upa large Field, and fow'd it with Wheat, and other Europenn Grain ; turing lofe fome Hens, to fee what Improvement they fhould find an ther Time. They again, for fome Days, vifited the Hills and Plains, and found no Track of Man.

Whilf thefe refrefh'd themfelves at the Ifland Cerne, or of Surans, being fourteen Days, the other three Ships arriv'd at \(S\). Mary's, a barren Ifland, tho' forne Orange and Lemon Trees grow in it, as alfo Sugar Cane", and there are Hens. About it, and in Sight of Land, there are monitrous Whales. They landed, but not without Oppofition from the Natives, with whom they fonght, and took their King; but he was eafily ranfom'd, a Cow and a Calf being given them in Exchange for him. They faw the Manner of the Whale Fifhery, which is very eafy there. The Indianis make up clofe to them in their Canoes, and fick them with a HarpingIron they dart, being ty'd to Ropes made of the Barks of Trees. They flor'd their Ship with their Flefh and Oil, and fome Oranges, and went over to the Bay of Anton Gil, where the Madagafcar Indian, would not fay, as he had defired before, being now well affected to the Habit and Drunkennefs of his Companions. They were tofs'd backwards and forwards for five: Days, between certain Iflands, deftitute of Provifions, and unfafe, by Reafon they were in War amoing themfelves.

They fet forward with a fair Gale towards \(\mathcal{F a v a}\), and on the 26 th of December, 1598 , arriv'd at Banda, which is eight Leagues from Anthoina. Fhis Ifland is fhaptd like a Horfe-fhooe, and lies in four Degrees of South Latitude. It is moft fruifful, with little or no Improvement, in Nutmegs, and their precious Mace; as alfo Provifions and Medicines for Men, beyond all other Parts of the known World. It is divided into three Parts, each of them three Leagues in Compafs. The Capital City is called Nera. As foon as they arriv'd, they contraated Friendflip with the Iflanders; tho' a foreign Ship, to fecure the Trade to herfelf, gave them to underffand, that the Ditols wrere cerrain Pirates who fled the Year before, and had lain conceal'd at Sea, to cone again and rob the Ifland, and therefore they did not fully credit them. This Notion was Dack'd by Trading Portuguefes, and others fetted there; but the Dutsh fending thoir Abdol, that is the Indian Inteipreter, with fome Soldiers, and Gifis to prefent the King, according to the Cuftom of Merchants that come into his Country, they before him clearxd that Imputation, and defended their Innocence. The King was an Infant, and govern'd by his Cephates, that is his Vice-Roy, Tutor, or Protector, who fet all right. They gave the King the Prefent before him, which he receiv'd very gracioully. It confinted of certain valuable gilt Veffels, adminably ingray'd, Chriftal Glaffes, Looking-Glaffes in gilt Frames, and Pieces of Velvet and Taffety. They deliverdd him Letters and Commifions of the States of Holland Zeinland, and Count Maurice, with their Seals hanging to them in Form. All was accepted, and they lay down flat on the Ground to receive and read the Letters, with profound Reverence. The King promis'd to anfwer them, as he did, and immediately gave leave to Trade; whereupon the Dutch built Factories in the Ifland. They then expos'd in publick Shops great Store of Arms, Silks, Linnen and Cloth; as did the Natives their Spice, Cbina Ware, and Pearls, and other Commodities the Neighbouring Iflan-

Five Weeks after, the other three Ships arriv'd, and the People of the City hearing the Difcharges of the Cannon, and feeing the Auncients fpread abroad, for Joy of the Ships meeting again, came down to the Port, and encompais'd the Ships in Boats, offering them Plenty of Fowl, Eggs, Coco Nuts, Bananas, Sugar-Canes, and Cakes made of Rice-Flower. This dainty Feeding continu'd every Day, and they gave them a Weeks Provifion for a Dutcb. Man for one Pewter Spoon. However they rais'd the. Price of Pepper; but they pay'd for all with Pins and Needles, Knives, Spoons, Looking-Glaffes, and little Tabors; and with thofe fame Commodities, they purchas'd more valuable Goods at Sumatra, as alfo Provifions; when four of thefe eight Ships return'd Homewards, the others failing for Ternate and the Moluccos.

The greateft Quantity, and beft Commodity they took in here, was of

The Nutmeg Tree. Nutmeg.

Tirtues of Nutmeg.
Oil of Mace, Nutmegs grow alfo in Ternate and the adjacent Iflands, but they are few and weak; but in Randa there is a plentiful Crop, and they have much more Virtue. Nature has cloath'd its Mountains and Plains, with Woods and Groves of thefe Plants. They are like the European PearTrees, and their Fruit refembles Pairs, or rather in Roundnefs the Melocotones. When the Nutmegs blofom, they fpread a cordial Fragrancy; by degrees they lofe their Native Green, which is original in all Vegetables; and then fucceeds a Blew, intermix'd with Grey, Cherry-Cclour, and a pale Gold Colour, as we fee in the Rainbow, tho' not in that regular Divifion, but in Spots like the Jafpar Stone. Infinite Numbers of Parrots, and other Birds of various Plumage, moft delightful to behold, come to fit upon the Branches, attracted by the fweet Odour. The Nuts, when dry, caf off the Shell it grows cover'd with, and is the Mace, within which is a white Kernel, not fo fharp in Tafte as the Nut, and when dry is converted into its Subftance. Of this Mace, which is hot and dry in the fecond Degree, and within the third, the Bandefes make a moft precious Oil to cure all Diftempers in the Nerves, and Aches caus'd by cold. Of thefe Nuts they choofe the frefheft, weightieft, fatteft, juicieft, and without any Hole. With them they cure, or correct ftinking Breath, clear the Eyes, comfort the Stomach, Liver, and Spleen, and digeft Meat. They are a Remedy againnt many other Diftempers, and ferve to add outward Luftre to the Face. The Bandefes call the Mace of their Aromatick Nuts, Buna Pala. It was not known to the Greeks nor to Pliny, according to Averrois; tho' Serapion, whether the true, or the fuppofitious, when he defcribes it, alledges Gallen's Authority. It is true the Clrifabolans he treated of, agree well enough with the Nutmegs in Colour and Shape.

The Favanefes, Clinefes, and Natives of the Mcluccos refort to the City Mera, to barter for this precious Fruit, and load their Ships with it; and this is the Trade of that People, as is that of Clove to Ternate, Tydore, and the other Moluccos. The Merchants arriving in this Ifland, many of them contribute to make up a Sum, wherewith they purchafe a Woman, to drefs their Meat, and attend them. The Dutch did fo from this firf Time. When they go away the is left free, till they return the next Year; fo that her Slavery commences with the Return of her Mafters, and their Abfence gives it an Intermiffion. Some of the Natives are Idolaters ; but the great ter Part Mabometans, and fo fuperfitious, that the very Soldiers do not mount the Guard, till they have pray'd in the Mofques, fo loud, that all the Neighbourhood can hear them. Nor mult any Man go into them without wafhing his Feet, in great Veffels of Water, provided at the Door, by the publick. Their Prayers confift in thefe Words, Eftagfer \(\mathrm{Al}^{[ } / \mathrm{la} / \mathrm{b}\) Eftagfer Al'lah, Afgiv'd Al'labe, Afgiv'd Al'lahe, La Il'labe Inla Ai'lab, Mubamed reful At lahi. When they utter thefe laft Words, they froke their Faces with their Hands, a Ceremony denoting much Devotion. The Words in Englifh are, Pardon O God, Pardon O God. I proftrate my felf to God. I proftrate my ielf to Cod.There is no other God but God, and Mahomet his Meffenger: By thofe Words, There is ne other God but God,they deny the enefiable My ftery of the moff blefied Trinity. Then they proceed to feveral Blafphemie. They fay orher Prayers, at which they fcarce move their Lifs; when they do this they ftand three and three upon a Mat, lifting up their Eyes o. Heaven three Times, and bowing down their Heads to the Ground. The Dutch Author, who gives this Account, does not menion any othe Religion in this Ifland, nor in any of the others their Fleets touch'd at ; tho' it is fo well known, that the Catholick Faith of our Lord Jefus Chrift has been preach'd many Years before, throughout them all, with the Giory o Martyrdom ; but thofe People conceal it, to what Intent is well known.

The Bandefes affemble in the Streets, and publick Places, where they feaft themfelves. It is requent among them to eat in the Temples and Woods, an hundred in a Parcel; efpecially when they confult together about the publick Weal, or any Danger. There are feven Cities in the Ifland, which are Enemies to one another. Nera is averfe to the Lambetbans, Combers and Veier ans, and maintains Friendfhip with the Inhabitants of Lontoor, which is on the other Side of the fland, and thofe of two other little Cities calld Poleruija and Poeloay. When they are to fight,they always repair firft to Ner \(a\), to concert Affairs. Banda provides their Entertainments on the Ground, in the Streets. The Difhes are made of the Trunks and Leaves of Bauanas, and other Plants. Every one has a Piece of Saguc brought him on them, and a Plate of Rice boild in the Broth of Flefh. This they devour, carrying it to their Mouths with both Hands, and eat it with fuch a Relifh, as if they had Fove's Brains drefssd fet before them; fo the Dutch Relation of Paludamus and Hugo expreffes it. Whilit the Meat lafts, till the Multitude are fatisfy‘d, the Nobles by two and two, take up their Cymiters and Shields, and fight to the found of Bells, and the Clattering of their Bafons. When weary of this Exercife, they deliver the Weapons to others, which continue it. The Caufe of their Wars, is for that the Iohabitants of Labetaca, many Years fince, fet fome Plants in the Territory of Neva. The People of this City affonted at this Prefumption, made the firit War upon them; which is as bloodily profecuted, as if their Religion, or Honour, depended on it. They attack one another by Day and Night in their Territories, and by Sea in their Carcoas.

They exercife all thefe Weapons from their Child-hond, as they do in cafting a fort of Hooks with fharp Points and Edges, which they dart at the Enemies Bodies, and then draw back the Lines they are made faft to. Their Heads they arm with Helmets; and on their Crefts wear Birds of Paradife, both for Ornament, and a fuperftitious Defence. They have Breaft and Back Pieces, and call'd them as we did Corfelets. When they are to fight at Sea, as foon as the War-like Inftruments begin to found, the Soldiers fall a leaping, and fkipping on the Benches, which run round the Oars like Carcoas from Stem to Stern. They are fo revengeful, that having been in thofe Days vanquiff'd on Land by the Labotans, many of them being killd and wounded, thofe of Nera affembled the next Day in five Carcoas, and attacking the little Ifland Bayjer, the Natives whereof had affifted the Labetans they flew all they found, without fparing any but a few Women, whom they carry'd Captives to Nera, with the Heads of their Bnemies before them on Spears; and for four Days, to the Amazement of Forxeigners, and patticularly the Dutch, they fhow'd their Cymiters embrew'd in Gore, about the Streets. They are great Obfervers, that the Funerals of Men frould go before thofe of Women; place Lamps over the Graves of all, and by their Light pray for them. They cry our furioully, calling the Dead, as if they hop'd they flould come to Life at their Call; and perceiving they do not rife again, the Kindred and Friends meet about

So that the Want of the true Light of Faith, does not hinder them from feeing; how much Mankind fuffers from the fivt Moment of his Life, till the laft; but it is sather to be concluded, that they look upon it as a Mifforture to have been born. The Dutch having loaded with Spice, Purcelane, and fome Rubies, and fettled Factories, and Amity, faild from Banda, on the 14 th of \(\mathcal{F u l y}\), with great firing of Cannon. They ftood towards the Ifland Noefelau, the Natives whereof are Antbropophagi, fo the Greeks call Man-Eaters. They proceeded towards that of Aimboyna, whofe Weftern Point they difcover'd, yet did not touch at it then, but went on to the greater Fava, notwithftanding their Admiral was at Amboyna. They arriv'd at Fava and the City Tuban, fent two Boats thither to Difcover, and know whither they might be allow'd to take in Provifions. Thofe who return'd with the Anfwer, brought along with them a Portuguefe, who, at the Perfwation of the Natives, had renounc'd the Faith of fefius Chrif, as was known, and call'd ameng them by the name of the Renegado, as a proper Appellative, and not difhonourable. The Trade being fetted, they west up to the City, where they faw feveral Horfemen, well Arm'd, Hoffes well Aecouter'd, on which they value themfelves very much, Shops well for'd, and a free Trade for all Nations. Tuban

Tuban Capital of Java. IAand, encompafs'd with a high Wall, divided by feveral Gates with Towers on them, contains flately Structures, and Squares appointed for the publick Refort of Traders, the King is extraordinary rich, and in a few Hours can gather a great Number of Horfe and Foot. His Palace is truly Royal, his Family confifts of the Prime Nobility, and he is very powerful at Sea. They call their Ships Juncks; which being loaded with Pepper, and other Product of the Country, as Silks and Cloths, the Manufactures of his People, are fent to Balim; where bartering them for cloaths, they tranfport thofe to other Kingdoms, as thofe of Banda, the Moluccoos, and Plizippines. Whence, and from other Iflands, having improv'd their Commodities, they bring Maftick, Nutmegs, Cloves, and other Spice. All the Country abounds in Cattle, which graze all Day in the Woods, and are hous'd at Night. Their Habit is the fame as at Banda, and covers their Bodies from the Wafte downwards, the reft upwards remaining naked. They all wear Daggers, call'd Crifes, and the Nobles ftately long Vefts, the Fullnefs whereof waves in the Air magnificently. None of them goes abroad attended by lefs than ten or twelve Servants, one of which always carries for his Mafter a little Bafket full of the Leaves of a certain Plant they call Betele, which they chew with green Nuts, and a little Lime. This Compofition they call Ledon; in chewing, it yields a Juice, which they fwallow, and then fpit out the green Subftance, after the Virtue has

To his Belt bung a Cymiter, in a Scabard adorn'd with precious Stones ; the Hilt of beaten Gold, with a Devils Head form'd on it. On his Turbant he had abundance of Feathers. All the Nobility follow'd him, Drefs'd much after the fame manner, mounted on fately prancing Horfes, but fimaller than ours, with rich Furnitures of Spanifa Leather, nudded, and plated with Gold, and Figures of Serpents; and in fome of the Bridles they had Stones, fo white that they look'd like Alabafter. Sometimes they ran Areight forwards, and fometimes in a Ring, cafting their Darts. When the Sport was over, they attended the King, by whofe Orders they carry'd aboard the Ships, and to the Dutch Men's Lodgings, a great quantity of Rice, Sheep, Goats, Hens, Eggs, Fifh, and Fruit, as Coco-Nuts, Mangos, Lemons, and delicious Bananas. Then they fell to treating of Trade, and Amity, and thought every Thing cheap except the Pepper, for they not liking the Commodities the Dutch offer'd in Exchange for it, liftiug up their Hands cry'd, Lima, which, in their Tongue, fignifies five Pieces of Eight. So much they demanded for a Meafure of theirs. They were well receiv'd in all Refpects, except in Relation to admirting of their Sect.

They had deliver'd Letters to the King from Count Maurice, which he

Paffing by the Ifland Sidago, they anchor'd between Fava and Madura; founded the Depth, and notwithftanding the Current, and that the Ground was a fliff Muddy Hill, they vifited Madura, landing on the Eall-fide; but remov'd prefently to the City Arosbay, on the Weft, and afterwards thence to Forta, to get Guides, or Pilots to conduct them to the reft of the Moluccos. They fent to Compliment the King of Madura, who prefently atter the Audience, fent the Vice-Admiral a Sheep, with which went the Reniegado, who had brought him a Dagger, they call Criz, from the King of Tuban, richly adornd with Gold and precious Stones, and the King's Head engrav'd on the Pomme!. They found a German fettled in the Country, rich in Spice, and underffood by him, that at Arosbay they had feic'd 40 of their Companions. Few Ships come to it, by reafon of its inacceffible Shoales. They have the fame common ufe of Weapons, Elephants, Horfes, Spears, Campilanes, or Cymiters, and Shields. The Crizes, or Daggers, worn by the King's Guards are of Silver. The City Arosbay is Populous, and well Wall'd. The Hollan 'ers main Defign in coming to it, was, as has been faid, to take in Pilots, and other Neceflaries to proceed to the Molucco Iflands; to which Purpofe, and to avoid the Shoals lying letwixt Fava and Madura, they divided their Ships. The Vice-Admiral, with the Guelder and Zealand, pafs'd the Chanels of Madura, in order to joyn, at Gorta, the Junks that fail for Ternate, and thence to the other Molucco Iflands.
The Admiral Sticht Utrecht, running along the length of Madura, came to an Anchor before Arosbay. He fent out a Number of his Men in the Boat, to bring Rice, and other Provifions from Shore. No fooner were they landed, then feiz'd, difarm'd, ftrifp'd, and carry'd before the King. Thofe flaying long, another Boat was fent with only three Men, and the fame befell them. The Prifoners intreated the King to give leave, that thofe three, or any others, might go to give the Admiral an Account. He granted it, but upon Condition, That as foon as they had deliver'd the Meffage, they fhould return to Prifon. They gave Notice of their Misfortune, and the Admiral lent away a Boat to carry immediate Advice to his Countiymen at the City Forta, writing feveral Letters to procuie the Prifoners Liberty. The Vice-Admiral came with his Ships, and joyn'd thofe at drosbay. The King demanded the two biggeft Brafs Guns aboard the Admiral, many Pieces of Silk, and one thouland Pieces of Eight for the Ranfom of the Prifoners. The Admiral anfwer'd, That the Cannon was not his own, but belong'd to all his Nation, and therefore he defir'd him to moderate the Ranfom, and turn it into Money, or take it out in fuch Commodities as he brought: Six Days were fpent in Treating, and the Delay made the Conclufion more Difficult; and therefore the Admiral believing, that his Men were kept Prifoners in their own Boats, or near the Sea, without any confiderable Guard, he order'd all his Men to land at once, and to Refcue them by Force. An hundred and fifty Dutchmen attempted it, but faw a great Number of People gathering on the Shore, led by the Portuguefes, who carry'd white Colours, in token of Peace, giving out tha: they came to treat of an Accommodation, which, as Hugo affirms, was a Stratagem to gain Fom by Time for the Citizens to Arm. The Dutch faw into the Policy, and were fenfible of the Danger, and therefore fent two other Boats to guard the Port. This Precaution was the faving of their Lives; but they could not efcape a Shower of Arrows, wherewith the Arosbayans thought to fubdue them, not fo much by their Force, and the Harm receiv'd, as by keeping the Enemy in Play, that fo they might fpend their Powder, and be oblig'd to retire to their Ships. Thefe kneeling down, to move Compaffion, with their difmal Looks, and Tears, the Conquerors laid a Handful of Earth on their Heads, a Ceremony they ufe tewards the vanquif'd, whofe Lives they grant. Perhaps they themfelves know not the Reaion, and Original of this Cuftom. Five and Twenty were lof in this Encounter, fifteen of the Admirals, one of Fobn Marts, and nine of the Zealand. The Prifoners were carry'd to a Country Cottage; three Men dangeroufly wounded, one Trumpeter, and a Herald put into Chains, the others only their Hands bound. The reft were carry'd far from thefe, and put into a deep Cellar. The Herald being brought into the King's Prefence, he afk'd him, whether he would flay in his Country, promifing, among other Favours, that he would marry him to two of his own Wives. The Dutchman anfwer'd, returning Thanks, but with Freedom in his Looks, That with his good leave he had rather resurn to his Companions. He was therefore carry'd, with the Trumpeter, about the City, and at his going out at the Gate faw all the Prifoners, being fifty one, who were conducting, under a Guard, to another Iflanid.
Pifoners Ranfom'd.

In fine, the Agreement was concluded, and the King difcharg'd them for 2000 Florines. So they return'd to their Ships, except two, who hid themfelves, taking a liking to that barbarous Way of living. The Governour Facok Marts Dy'd,his Body was caft into the Sea, and the reft failing tothe Northward, directed their Courfe for the IAand of Celebes. There fell mighty Rains, and they ffeer'd North Eaft for the Illand of Amboyna, and in fight of Boora. A Boy dy'd aboard the Zealand; another falling of a Yard, into the Sea, held a Rope's End in his Mouth, that his Arms might be at Liberty to fwim, and quitted it not, till he had Help, and was fav'd. The next Day they lay by, and their Preacher made a long Spiritual Difcourfe upon the Sacraments,to celebrate the folemnity of Baptizing two Boys, whom he had already Catechis'd. At both of them hang Standards of feveral Sorts of Silk, and Colours, which are born up by the Wind, when they do not reach to the Water. The Admiral of Amboyna came with three of thefe Veffels full of arm'd Men, to fee the Dutch, with a Noife of Kittle-Drums, and Brafs Bafons hanging on the Mufitian's LeftShoulder, and friking them with the Right-Hand, as they do the Tabors in Spain. They fang their fet Airs, underftood by none but the Native Amboynefes, tho'attentively liften'd to by the Dutch, for their Strangenels. The Slaves alfo fang to the Noife of their Oars. The Antboy nefe Admiral went aboard the Ships again, was pleas'd to fee the great Guns, and the Variety and Plenty of Merchandife. The Prince of Teraate did the fame, and both of them at their coming and going were faluted by the Cannon. They had private Conferences with him, and other Noblemen of the Moluccos, who attended him. They erected Fattories in feveral Parts of Amboyna, and agreed that the two Ships, Guelder and Zealnnd, Should Sail for Banda, whilft the other two lay two Months to load and reft at Amboyna. Therefore Sailors, when they pals in Sight it which feldom happens without Storms, male all the Sail they can to it, far off, from the very Wind that blows on it. The Dutch chief Pilot knowing fo much, furioully took fuch faft hold of the Helm, that all the reft could not put him from it; He drew it to him violently, thinking that Force drove on the Ship; his Face grew fiery, and his Breaft not being able to contain his Wind, he breath'd faft, and groan'd, till being paft the Ifland, the grew merry, and whiflling loud, fcoff'd at the Devil, becaufe he could not caft away the Ship; yet foon after he was in Diforder again, and dropt the Helm; they recover"d him, and made all fail to go forward. They arrivid at Banda, near the River, on the fifteenth of the Notth. Several Bandefe Boats came out, offering their Spice. The Dutch landed, carrying with them fundry Commodities, which they expos \({ }^{\text {b }}\), in Shops. A rich Turk, who was in Efteem, entertain'd them. They built Houfes on the Ifland, and a few Days after hear'd News of their Admiral, Ly fome Chinefe Ships, that came from Amboyna; and were inform'd, that the Portzguefes were already at War with the Natives, for entertaining and allowing them Factories.

On the fourth of \(7 u l y\), having fettled Trade at Banda, they fail'd thence towards Noe felau, along the Channels of Zeru, without regarding their Adnii.al, who was promoting, and fomenting the War at \(A m^{h}\) oyna. They fail'd in Sight of Routon, which is in five Degrees of South Latitude, and of the Ifland Cobayna. On the twelfth they pafs'd the Coaft of Celebes, and on the feventeenth, by that of \(M a d u r a\), and again difcover \({ }^{〔} \mathrm{~d} A\) Arosbay, where the Misfortune we have fpoken of befel them. They ian along the Coaft of Java, and in the Evening came to Iacatra, where they caft A nchor, Sent to vifit the King, and their Compliment was return'd by him with a Prefent of Rice, Fowl, and Coco-Nuts, and a Buffalo for the Vice-Admiral. The Zealandeys, who had been left at Banda in their Houfes and Factories, in the Cities of Montelongo, and Soleparvo, by Letters of the firft of Auguff, acquainted them, how the new Friendfhip was eftablifh \({ }^{\mathrm{d}}\). From this Time the Dutch, began, without any Opp fition, to poffefs themfelves of the Provinces belonging to the Crown of Spain in Alaa.

They took Leave of that King, and return'd to Banda, with the Natives

At their Ar ival the Governour came out to meet them, with 400 Men , inviting them to take forne Refrefhment afhore, which they refus'd, but made prefents to each oiner, and drank out great Veffels of Wine made of Kice, which is a powerful and ftrong Licuor. Continuing their Voyage on the renth of Septemter, towards the South Weft, they thought they were under the Tropick of Capricorn. On the thirtieth, they were : 28 Degrees, with the Wind at Weft, fomewhat Northerly, and ran thirty Leagues beyond Cape \(S\). Romar, after they had been tofs \({ }^{\text {c }} \mathrm{d}\) among many Iflands, in thirty two Degrees and a half South. Next they difcover'd Cape Plocmera; of the S uthern Etbiopia, or Land of the Cafres, A Storm difpers'd the Ships, but they met again when it ceas'd, at Cape Anquillos. On the feventh of September they arrived at the Ifland \(S\). Helena; the Mafter went afhore, kill'd many wild Beafts; and furnifh'd the Ships with Fruit, there being Plenty of both. The Sick recover'd there: They went into the folitary Church, and on the firft of Fautivy, 1600 , they fail'd thence, and being come into five Degrees of North Latitude, on the : hirtieth of the fame Month, obfeiv'd an Eclypfe. Then they began to difcover the North Pole, which had been out of their Sight fo long. On the thirteenth of February they had Sight of the Ifland Mayo, or May, one of thofe of Cabo Verde, and abuut the End of March difeovered the Englifb Hills. In fine, they arriv'd at the Texel, and thence to Amflerdam, where they unladed that fpicy Wealth, the like, for Quality and Newnefs, had never yet been brought to Lisbon; at leaft Hugo's Relations tell ius, there might have been as precious Oyl drawn from thefe, as when they were juft gather'd.

Whilf thefe two Ships, Zealand and Guelder, were failing Home, the The otber other two, Amferdam and Utretcht, being almoft naturaliz'd at Ambo, na, departed thence for Ternate, on the eigth of March, 1599, in the Company of three Funks, full of Favanefe Soldiers, well arm'd, and hir'd to attack a Fort that was defended by Portuguefes. Before their Departute, fome of them went afhore, and among other Game, took Abundance of green Pigeons, as bis as our Ducks. They loaded with Clove, becaufe it is fold in that Ifland for thirty five Royals a Bar, which is there 150 Pcunds. They were inform'd, that the Dutcb, who had been left at Bandn, would foon come to joyn them. The Por'uguefes attacking a Fort with ill Suecefs, the Dutch, who were before agreed with the Prince of Ternate, arm \({ }^{6} \mathrm{~d}\), and mixd with his Men. This was the firft Time they ever fought with the Subjects of Spain, in thofe Parts; and the Dutch Author, who gives an Account of this Action, fays, the Illanders look \({ }^{2} d\) upon it as a Prodigy.

Having fettled Commerce at Ankoyna, they fail'd away for the Iflands of Zernate, taking for their Guide, a Captain, who pretended to them, that he was Brother to the King of an Ifland; and to maznify his Grand-

The King no other but himfelf to obferve what Dangers may threaten, went inta goes to view the Sb ps. his own Carcoa, attended by many others, on the 28 th of May, and fail'd to the Place, where the Dutch lay at Anchor. He drew near and inclos'd the Ships, call'd to the Admiral, and afk'd him, who he was, whence his Ships, and other Particulars. Thefe Queftions and Anfwers held fome Hours, by Means of the Naguatato's who interpreted the Difcourfe. The Admiral intreated the King that he would pleafe to come aboard his Ship. He excus'd himfelf, firft aliedging, that he did not like thole Ladders they fhow'd him to go up to them, tho they had purpolely cover'd them with fine Cloth; and afterwards, that the Sun was fetting, and it was Time for him to repair to his Devotions. Having made this godly Excufe, he fail'd towards the City, the Air refounding with the Noife of his Brals Bafons, Flat Tabors, Guns, Shouts, and Perfany Songś.

The 29 th he drew near to the new Comers again, with 23 Carcoas; in He re- which he had 100 Brafs Guns for his Defence, and firing them all at once, turns. to the clattering of Bells, made fhow of his Warlike Preparation. The Confufion of it being over, tho \({ }^{6}\) they fang Verfes, as they do to denote Peace, in the Malay Tongue, fo they call the Lanyuage of Malaca, whence it was convey'd to the Moluccos; yet the Dutcl made ready their great Guns, Murkets, and half Pikes. They plac'd fome arm'd Men out of Sight in every Ship, as alfo where they might be taken Notice of, Ahowing, or at leaft not concealing their Jealoufy, that fo no fudden Surprize might find them unprovided. The King's Carcoa drew near alone, and thofe who were in it fpoke to the Dutah Admiral, by Means of the Naguatato, without fhowing themfelves.

The King was fatisfy'd with only talking to them, and withdrew; after Noon he return'd with only two Carcoas, one of which tow'd a Boat after Talks with her. Being come up to the Dutch, he began to talk to the Vice-Admiral; the Dutch. enquir'd after their Guns, and order'd the other Carcoa to fland further off, and the Captain going too far, the Boat, either accidentally, or by Defign, broke loofe from the Stern, and was over-fet by the Waves; the King then defired the Admiral to fire at it with a Ball, that he might fee whether they could hit or fink it. They fir'd immediately, the King being well pleas'd to fee that the Shot had ftav'd the Boat in Pieces. The Admiral laying hold of this Opportunity, took Care, whilft they were commending the Shot, which ferv'd to difguife the Threat, to let him know that he could with as much Eafe fink the Carcons. This Tryal fatisfy'd the King, who fuon after gave leave for that Nation to Trade in his Domi-
Givestiom nions, and barter Cloves, Spice, precious Stones, and Pearls, all which seave to Trade. is there to be found, by reafon of the Refort of the Faponefe, Camboxa and Clinefe Ships. Of thefe laft they then faw fome all made of Wood alone, even to their Anchors, and the Sails of Cane. They came to an Anchor at Tornate, where the firft Thing they did, was burying of Reynart Reynarts, a Dutch Soldier, fcarce worthy of that Buryal, Idolaters and Mabometans reforting to the Funeral. The King the next Day fent a Carcoa to acquaint the Dutch, that he would go aboard their Ships, and a Boat came came to the Admiral's Side, with only four Terna es in a private Habir, who, by their Queftions, Curiofity, and Solicitude, feem to be Spyes, as they did by all their Difcourfe, which was on undry Subjects, and very full of folid Reflection; which was held on, and liften'd to, with A tention and Diffinulation.

When the Dutch expected the King would come, they underfood he was one of the four then talking to them from the Boat. They figni \(y^{\text {t }} \mathrm{d}\) to him that they knew him, and he did not deny it. They pay'd him the Refpect due to a King; but then he refusd to return to the Ship. Notwithifanding thefe Jealoufies, he approved of the Behaviour of that People. On the fecond of fune Embaffadors went affore, who carry'd the King a

They return'd, full of Admiration of the infinite Quantity of Cloves, and the wonderful Woods of them; and bringing the News, that the Ternates would foon come to view and buy the Dutch Commedities.
The next Day they came in grear Numbers, Sangiacks, Cacbiles, and Commons, Barbarian Ladies, and all Sorts of Women, with Variety of Attendance. The Shores were cover'd with fundry Sorts of People; dif- of People fering in Habit, Colour, and great Diverfity of Feathers; among them to the many naked, and of various Countenances, for all flock'd out, as if it had Dutch.. been fome publick Feftival. Tho \({ }^{6}\) they admird the Wealth of the Ships, yet they rais'd the Price of the Bars of Clove fo high, that they could not come to any Agreement, becaufe that was to be their main Loading. They went afhore on the roth and inth, to fee whether they abated any Thing of the Price, and to fome other Purpofes, which do not concern \(u s\), tha' they might be fome Ornament, but fhall be left in the Originals wherethey were writ. Thiey could nut conclude any Thing with the King, or his Subjects, becaule they were celebrating a Feffival, and the Dutch were prefent at the Shows.

A Sort of Comba: ants, like the Roman Pugiles, and Gladiators, tho' differing in fome Refpects, fought in a large fpacious Square. Thefe Ternates did not move from one Place to another, nor hurt one another, but flood continually upon one Foot, without changing or eafing it, on any Account; but the Foot that was lifted up, mov'd about and ftretch'd in the Air, without being put to the Ground. Their Miftreffes, Wives, or Sifters attended in the Field, with Branches of Flowers, and Cbina Difhes full of dromatick Liquors, to refrefh thofe that were tyrds but moft of them attended the Conqueror. The Sport being ended, the next Day the King repair'd to the Ships, but went not aboard. Difcourfing with the Admiral, he ask'd him for a gilt Musket, which he prefented him, and the Kingdid not think fit to receive Gratis, becaufe he had ask'd for it; he theretore order'd, that when the Dutcc paid the Tithe of the Spice, which is the Duty he has from Merchants, they fhould have two Bars and a half difcounted for the Price of the Musket, and that they fhould be furnifh'd with every Thing they had Occafion for befides. He was well pleas'd Severe Punoe Day, that the Dutcl fnould fee how a Boy of eleven Years of Age, was nifloment of led about the Streets, with his Hands bound, becaufe he had folen a Kubac, petty Larthat is, a Leaf of a Frail, with as many Cloves as it would carry; be- ceny. caufe this was an Inflance of their Severity in punifhing that Offence. Among them was a brave Youth, 21 Years of Age, who was a Sangiack of Note, and Kinfman to the King of Tydore; as alfo a very beautiful Fortuguefe Lady, wife to a Cap:ain in that Fort. They walk \({ }^{\text {d }}\) about the City, with all this State and Plunder, till they came to the King's Palace; there the Captives were facrific'd, and the Portuguefe Lady fold for a Slave, a rare Piece of Mercy, and purchas'd by her 'ears. The King of Ternate honour'd the Chief of the Tydores, fmiling and lovingly encouraging him, as Kinfmanto a King. The Youth excufing himfelf, and pleading Innocence, to gain the Victor's Favour, he return'd 2 favourable Anfwer, and bid him wath himfelf. Sweet Water was brought to wafh their Hands, and it was poured over the King's Hands and his, at the fame Time, out of one Ewer. Then the Captive thus affur'd, letting fall his Hands with the Water, which, perhaps, is a Ceremony to denote Peace, and bowing his Head by way of Civility, a Soldier ftruck him on the Neck with a fharp Campilme, or Cymiter, fo furioully, that the Head dropt at fome Diftance from the Body half alive ; then they cut both the Head and Body into fmall Fieces, all which, to exercife their urmoft Rage, they put into a Prau, which is a little Boat, and then funk all together in the Sea.

Four Days after another Parcel of Ternates came with feveral Tydore Prifoners, whofe Heads they cut off in the Port, as they did that of a Stranger, who came peaceably to the Illand with Merchandize. All thefe Spetacles the Dutchb beheld. Such good Ufe do thofe Barbarians make of Victory. Friendfhip being now effablifh'd with the Dutch, and the King well affur'd of it, he refolv'd to go aboard their Ships. He went aboard the Admiral on the 25 th of \(\mathcal{f u l y}\), with all his Guard, where nothing efcap'd being narrowly view'd and obferv'd by him, with a feeming willingnefs to buy it. He defired the Adminal to leave fome of his Men at Ternate, which was refus'd at that Time. He view'd the Ship over again, and going into the Cook-Room, very much admir'da Pair of Bellows, wherew ith they kindled the Fire in his Prefence, and feeing the Ufe they were put to, took them into his oven Hands, and was a confiderable Time opening and fhutting of them ; then biting and preffing the Nozle with his Lips,

He begg'd thofe Bellow's, and being prefented with them, was highly please. He returnd feveral Times after to the Ships, with a greater Defign in h's Head, which was to try whether he could by any Means contrive to feize them. He was pleastd to fee how affectionatefy his Subjects traded and trufted them with their Spice. At length they prevaild upon the Admiral to leave fome of his Men, with a good Sum of Money, to buy up Cloves the next gathering. The firft Dutch Factors left at Ternate, Dutch Pawere Francis Verdoes, Father to William; Diricht Floris, Facol Laniberts, Zory at Fohn Fans, of Grol; Cornelins Adrians, and a Boy of dufferdan, whoie Ternate. Thefe laid the Ground for the fecond Enmity, with the firf Rebells of that Nation, who corfpir'd with the Ternates, and were afterwards the Occafion of other Fleets and Succours coming into thofe Parts, againft their Natural Sovereign.
Thefe Men being left at Ternate, and having receiv'd Intelligence that the-Briganines were returning from the Ifland of Banda, the Ships fail'd from Ternate, on the 10th of Auguf, pafing by the Iflond Maca, among the other Moluccos, and that of Oba, to the Northward. Then in two Degrees and 3 half Latitude, they difcover'd fo many Iflands, that they could

Among them was that of Banquore, and its Neighbour Sabobe, whofe King refides in that of Mitard, and has 30 more within a very fmall Compafs. He furnifh'd them with Provifions, and gave Norice of Dangerous Ridges of Rocks; to avoid which, they return'd the fame Way they came, in Sight of Amboyna and Celebes. On the rith of November, they were inform'd at faquetra, that the ViceAdmiral was already gone from Bavida; and had there a great Quantity of Rice, brought but juft before by Chinefe. Veffels.
On the 17th they came to Banda, where at Montelongo, and Soleparvo, they found the two Zealand Ships, which having traded about eight Months with little Profit, defign'd to return. On the 1 sth of Famuary 16oo, the Admiral made the Governour of Bandy fome Etroptesn Prefents, and among them a fmall Boat, all cover'd with fine Scarlet. All the Merchants met and fet fail for Holland, on the 2ith of the fame Month, and fail'd all February, with ftormy Winds, and lofs of fome of their Men, till the Weather mended on the third of March. On the 13th of April, in the Latitude of 34 Degrees and a half, they found themfelves fomewhat above 20 Leagues from the Cape of Good Hope. On the 1 toth of May, they reach'd the Ifland of St. Helent, where, at fome Diftance, they difco? ver'd other Ships. Some Men landed, and admir'd its frange Fertility among thofe Mountains. They fatw another Ifland, whofe bare Rocks, Hope! \(\ddagger, \pi\) without Trees or Grafs, look as if they were made of Coals; and among them are Abundance of monftrous wild Boars, yet nothing could be'feen to grow, or any living Creatures they could feed upon. There were alfo large Tortoifes, fome of them weishing 400 Weight. On the laft of Defart May they made for the Sexel, and thence to Amferdan, where they were IJand. receiv'd with publick Rejoycing, and they again prepar'd to return to India, and continuing their Trade with thofe barbarous Kings, who are Mafters of the Spice, Metals, precions Stones, Pearls, and other foreign Wealth, have at length converted the Friendthip they kindly offer'd at, firt, into Stavery, and Subjection to the Tyranny of Holland and Zealand. And in the Year 1600 , with more Expedition, they faild into Guinea, and to S. The fame Year, being in fearch of the North-Paffage, in 80 Degrees of Latitude, they dilcover'd Nova Zembla, where they found nothing but monfrous white and grey Bears, which did not run, but rather took little Notice of the Noile of Cannon, and devour'd Men ; there were alfo white Crows, no lefs undaunted; and in fhort, moft of that Part of the World was defart, and they found not the Paflage they expected into the South-Sea. Yet they now fail'd all thofe Southern Parts, at all Seafons, making a Jeft of the Monfons, the Portuguefes fo mightily obferve, as if they had them fhnt up. in Skins, like the Fable in Uby/es. Perhaps they buy fair and formy Winds, as is faid to be done in Lapland, at fettled Rates, of Wiiches that deal in them.

The King of Ternatic was fo puff'd up with the Friendifip, and Support

Vanity of the King of Ternate. of the Notthern Nations, that he durft boldly flatter himfelf with the Hope of becoming abfolute Mafter of Tydore. Accordingly he ftreightned that King, and the Portuzuefe Garrifon, without allowing, them the leatt Refpite. Other Dutch Ships had come fince the former to that Ifland, on Account of Trade, Dy the Way of India, with Arms and feveral Commodities. The Ternate Embaffadors were treating in Engtand and Holland, for fettling of perpetual Peace and Commerce. The King had already received Anfwers to thefe Embaffies, and very fpeedily expected an Englifh Eleet, and many Dutch, Ships, with whofe Affifance he promis'd himfelf to deffroy Tydore, and thence to ftretch out to the Pbilippines. In the mean while, fome Dutch and Engli/h remain'd at his Court, like Hoftages, with a Factor, whofe Bufinets was tn attend the Bartering, or buying up of Spice; to purchafe which they brought him Abundance of zalcz de Sequeyra, Commander of the Fort, who every Year writ to the Governour of the Plilispines alout it; they now fent a particular Embaffy to Don Francifoo Tello, giving him an Account of the Condition of thofe Places; of the Fort; of the Succours, and how vain it was to expect them from India. That an Affair of fuch Confequence might fort the defired Event, they appointed Cachil Cota, the King of Tydore's Brother, a notable Soldier, and moft renowned Commander of the Moluccos, to go Enbaffador. He came to Manila, well attended, with Letters from the King, and the Commander in Chief. Thofe, and he, in a fet Speech, (for the People of the Moluccos do not want Rhetorick to rerfwade) return'd the Governour Thanks for the Supplies he had at feveral Times fent them of Provifions, and Ammunition. But what we come to defire, faid Cachil Cota, is that this Work be now effectually taken in Hand, beforo the Englifh and Dutch with their Fleets flrengtben Ternate, and ren er it impregnable. We cannot hut admire, that whereas the Portuguefe Arms obtain fuclu fignal Viffories, as are thofe of Calicut; over the Turks, at Diu; over the Egyptians; over the People of Cananor, of Ceylon, the Javas, Sumatra, and other Nations on that Sile ; and the Sraniards on this, againfe thofe of Camboxa, Mindanao, Japan, Cochinchina, and China, yet only we of the Moluccos, who lie amidflt the Dowinions of one only Monarch, Jhould be left expos'd to the utmoft Fury of a Parcel of Rebellions Ilands. If the King of S pain allows, or rather commands, we flould be reliev'd ly the Way of the Rhilippine Illauds, Why is be not obey'd? What does it avail to carry on a cool War, againft a bot and watcblful Enemy? The Governour anfwer'd to every Point, and having entertain'd him, and given Hopes of greater Supplies, when he could be fecure againft the mighty Preparations then making at \(\mathfrak{F a p a n}\), he difinifs'd him, with a confiderable Recruit of Airtillery and Ammunition, and fome experienced Soldiers, However thefe Succours being fo much interior to the Power of the Enemy, and their own Fear, which made them expect much greater, they could not put them out of Care. This made them fend Captain Marcos Dias de Febra, their laft Embaffador to the Philippines, during the Government of Don Francis Tello. He carry'd Letters from the King and Ruy Gonzalez, to the Governour and Council, which being almon all of them much of the fame Purport, we will here infert one of them, directed to Doctor Antony Morga, one of that Council, writ with the King's own Hand, and in the Portuguefe Language.

I was wonderfully pleas'd with your Letter of the 8th of November laft, becaufe by it I underflood how very fincere you were in remembring of me; God reward you for it with, mueb Profperity in this Life, that you may do Service to the King, my Sovereign, for I underftand you are by bis Order in thofe Ifands, and defirous to improve them; which I am not ignorant will be nolefs Advantageous to this Fort and Ifland of Tydore. I write to the Governour, and to that Council, concerning the Succours I defire, and bave ask'd So often, the Neceflity of it being great, to prevent thofe Mifoliefs which may afterwards put my Sovereign, the King, to much Trouble and Cbarge. God grant you long Life. From this Illand of Tydore, March the 8th 1601. The King of Tydore, in Arabick Charatiers; and then what follows in Portuguefe. The Bearer is Marcos Diaz, be will deliver you a Powder Flask, with a Charger of fine Moorifh Brafs. I fend it you, that you may remember this F; iend.

The Embaffador return'd to Tydore with the firn Monfon, at the Beginning of the Year 1Koz, well pleas'd with the Anfwer he brought, the Supplies of Provifions and Ammunition he had demanded, and fome Soldiers ; but much better fatisfy'd with the Hopes given him, that as foon as an Opportunity offer'd, that Expedition thould be undertaken from \(M a-\) nila for Ternate, with the neceffary Preparations, and Force to fecure the Succefs.
At this Time King Fames of England, writ to Sultan Zayde, of Ternate, defiring him to continue his former Friendfhip, and that the Engligh might build Colonies and Factories in the Molucco Iflands. The sultan would not grant it, and complain'd in harfh Terms, that England had never affifted him againft Portugal; and that fo little Account fhould be there made of the firft Alliance concluded by Means of Sir Francis Drake, when King Babu fent the Queen of England a Ring in Token of Confederacy, by the faid Drake. He faid, he could not admit the Englifh, contrary to the folemn Engagement he had made to Prince Muurice and the Dutch Nation, to whom he had made a Promife, that none but they fhould buy up and lade the Product of his Country. All this appears by the Capy of a Letter in the Portuguefe Tongue, found among the King of Tergate's Papers, when our Men poffers'd themfelves of his. Palace. Where we may obferve the perfect Hatred he thows for the Portuguefe Government, fince he never Names thofe People without adding the Epithet of Mortal Enemies ; and in fjeaking of the Dutch, My Friends and Deliverers; adding, That he expects their Fleets with great Satisfaction. This Anfwer he fent King Fames by Henry Middleton, then Admiral of the Engligh Fleet, on the eighteenth of \(\mathfrak{F u l y}\), 1605 . The Truth of the Fact is, that this King admitted, and invited to his Dominions, and the Product of them, all other Nations, to arm againft the Spaniards, and oprofe Chriftianity ; and tho' he then boafted of the Succours he receiv'd, and expected from the Dutch, had he feen the Power of their Fleets and Arms decline, he would have excluded them the Trade. All his Religion and Hopes were fubfervient to the prefent Circumftances of Times, and his Faith depended on the Advantages he could make.

\section*{BOOK.VII.}

ALL the Contents of the Letters, and other Papers, that came from the Molucco Iflands to India and the Pbilippines, for the following Years, amount to nothing but Complaints, afking Relief, and giving Intelligence, not altogether below the Dignity of Hiftory, were we not come fo near the laft Period of it. Partioularly there are Letters of the Commander of Tydore, Ruy Gontalez de Sequeyna, to the Governor of the Prilippine Iflands, wherein he complains, Complaints That whereas he had fent 400 Men , Ships, and Warlike Stores to Gamboant, from Tywhere his Majefty had nothing to Recover, tre had furnifh'd him with only dore, and twenty Soldiers. He reprefents to him many preffing Wants, without any Hopes of Relief from the Viceroy, by the way of Malaca; urging the fcarcity of Provifions, Arms, and allother Necellaries. He iwforms him, That through his Means Cachil Molo had been fwom King of Tyforeyuand how. faithful a Friend he approves himfelf to the Crown of Sipro, and an Enemy. to the Temates, and that he is always follicitous for recovering of that Fort. He deffes him to fend the Kingla Prefent of great Guns, and other Gifts, and to do the fame by the King of Sian, who is a Chriftian, and our Friend. He acquaints him how frequently the Eyglifh and. Dutch Ships refort to thofe Seas, and that he had taken fome of tizem.

The Bargain made, and the Bribe receiv'd, they who had cut the Cables leap'd over-board, and immediately the King's Officers appear'd, whe feiz'd all the Ioading, the Ship being beaten to pieces, to no purpofe. He affures him, That the Enterjrize on Ternate might be effected with 400 Spaniards; and promiles to fend him a great piece of Amber, as an extraordinary Rarity, from the Mles of Mava, which are 60 Leagues from the Moluccos. He again gives Advice of Northern Galeons, and that one of them, in four Hours, had batter'd that Fort, fhot into it 261 Bullets; one of which he fent him; and that they had beaten down a large Curtin of the Wall, which was then Repairiug.

In the mean while England infefted the Wef-Maics; where the Towns and Ships fuffer \({ }^{\text {b }}\) by their Invafions, Robberies, and Burnings. Only that Part, which was the Diftrict belonging to Don Fedro de Acunna, defended it felf, through the Bravery of its Governor, and for the fame Keafon the Enemy had Regard to it. William Park, the Engli/h Adaniral, appear'dipon the ftrong and garrifontd Coaits of America, in the Year 1 Cor. They defended themfelves well, yee he prevait in fome Places. On the Coaft of Cartagena he took one \(\mathfrak{F}\) ulio, a Fifherman, whom he aftewards fet at Liberty, that he might carry the following Letter, writ in broken Spani/b to Don Pedro.

Being inform'd by Fane, with, bow much Generofity and Kinanefs your Lordfhip entertams Strangers, efpecially thof of my Nation, I would not for bear exprefing the Gratitude due to your Lordhip for that Magnifcence, on my own Part, and returning Thanks, wifning you as long a Life, and as muchb Health, as to iny felf. I would not omit writing thefe few Lines to youm Lordflip, not only on the aforefaid Account, lut to acquaint you with what bas bappen'd to me during this Expedition. It pleas'd God to make me Mafter of one of the Kings Ports, calld Porto Kelo, which, I was poffefstd of a whole Day and Part of the Nig7t, where I found fome Gentlemen, particularly Captains Melendez, and fome other Soldiers of the Garrifon; and plundering the Place had very little Booty, The faid Captain Melendez, fought like a refolute Soldier, and faitbful Servant of his King, and therefore I order'd bim to le drefs d by my Surgeon, and to be carys'd out of the Howfe where he was wounded, baving laid Wood in all the Houfes to fire them, and confune the Town. I do affure your Lordjbit, and declare on the Word of a Soldier, that being informis of your Valour and Renown, by certain Prifoners I took, as Captain Rolon, and feveral otljers, and at Porto Belo by the King's Factor, Funes, and other Soldiers, that were ny Prifoners, and aboayd my Slip, Igave theme all their Liberty, and forbore fiving the Eity, only on Account of your Reputation, and the Fame of your good Ufage to fuch Prijoners as fall into your Hands. So that thofe I fet at Liberty, as alfo the Town, may be thankful to your Lord/bis for fo great an Obligation, as is the Value of the faid Town, and their Lives. The Caftle, and the Fort at the Mouth of the Harbour, and the Port it felf, fo well fortify'd and furnibs d with Artillery, and all other Neceffaries, did not deter, fright, or daunt nue, for I went out with fix Ships, and the Caffles did me no Harm. Really the Commanders and Guners were very boneft Men. I give your Lordfoip Notice of twa Englifh Men, wilio landed at Santa Marta, near ten Menths fince, their Names are Abraham Collins, and Thomas Hall. Thefe ave both Spies upon Cartagena. I like the Treafon, but drown the Traitor; I fend you fome poor Men afhore, whom I took upon this Coaft, Jour Lordfhip will favour them as is due, and according to your Cuftom. And baving Nothing elfe, at prefent, to acquaint your Lordinip avith, pray to God to lengthen your Life, with much, Health, and Profperily, and to give me good Luck, as is in Jis divine Power, is convenient for us, and I wijh. From ahoard my Slip, February the twenty eigth, 1601, our Stite. Your LordBips, William Park.

Don Pedro anfwer'd in few Words, yet fo as his Brevity might not exclude Civility, and the Pyrate being fatisfy'd, proceeded on his Voyage, The King had at this Time appointed Don Pedro to fucceed Don Francis Tello in the Government of the Pbilippine Iflands, defigning him for thofe Enteprizes he afterwards perform'd. This his Majenty judg'd a proper Relolution, and fafe in the Execution; for what Perfon is fit to be pitch'd upon to Govern the utmon Limits of fo far extended a Dominion, but fuch a one as is endu'd with both Valons and Loyalty, two necefiary Qualifications to fecure the Refpect and Submiffion due to an ablent Prince; a Matter of much Difficulty in remote Governments ?

Since this Gentleman's own Actions, and the great Opinion his very Enemies had conceiv'd of them, are fufficient Teftimonies of his Valour, let us proceed to fay fomething of his Quality. Don Pedro had the Surname of Bravo, as being Son to Don Lewis Brava, who ferving under the Emperor Charles the fifth, on the Day the Prince of Orange dy'd, afk'd Leave to affault S. Defir, a frong Tuwn in the Low Countries, on the Banks of the River Matrone. The Hiftory of that War informs us, that } Don Pedro appointed Gnvernor of the Philippines. fome Friends of his Father's, hearing of it, endeavour'd to obftruct it, either by diffwading the Son, or prevailing with the Emperor not to grant him Leave. His Father was Sanclo Bravo de Lagunas, a Gentleman of Quality by Birth, and no lefs by his own Actions, at that Time Infpector General of the Emperor's Forces by Sea and Land, and one of his Council of War. All Men honour'd, and loved him entirely. They confider'd he had no other Son but Don Lewis, and the manifeft Danger he expos'd himfelf to; Dut he perceiving what his Fathers Friends were contriving, took upon him to lead the \(V\) an, before they could have Time to prevent his gaining the Honour he expected; and affaulted the Place with Succefs, tho' not without fome Imputation of Rafhnefs. His Son Don Pedro did not degenerate, for the Brave are the Off-fpring of the Brave, and the Eagle does not breed Doves.

\footnotetext{

The Name of Acunna he took from his Mother, according to the Cuftom of the Kingdoms of Cafitle, where noble Families, to keep up the Honour of the Quality they accuire by Matrimony, ufe to revive the His MoNames of their Progenitors even in the Grand-Children. Don Lewis ther. Bravo, marry'd Donna Ifabel de Acumna, Daughter to Don Pedro de Acunna, call'd in thofe Days ef Cabezudo, fignifying, either the Head-ftrong, or Great-Headed, great Grand Son to the firf Earl of Buendia, a Family of known Antiquity. Among his Sons, Don Suncho Bravo, the eldeft, is Having perform'd this good Work, in twenty fix Days he caine to the Mourh of the Streight of the Plilippines, and anchor'd at Cabite, three Don Pedro &t Manila. Leagues from Matila, where he was receivd with incredible, and univerfal Joy. His firft Care was to be inform'd of the Condition his Predeceffor lefe the Government in. He view'd every Part, and can off the Sangleys, or Clinefos, as thinking they exceeded the large Number allowed bf by the King's Order. Some interpreted the Exclufion of thofe People, was nnly to condemin the extravagant Liberties they took; but Tine foion fhow'd, that there were other great Advantages reap'd by it in Don Pedro all Men believ'd the Security of the Philippine flands was eonhe; for the Governour's keputation was equal to the Neceffities of his Province; which reeurrd the Government of an experienced Conmana der; of great Name, and fo vigilant as he was.

Don Francis Tello refign'd up the Power into his Hands, and flaying there to give an Account of his Adminiftration, dyed in April, the follow- Don Franing Vear. The new Governour was much concern'd to find the King's cis Tello Treafury empty, and himfelt under an Obligation of fupporting the King's dyes. and his own Credit. To this Confideration belonged the Moluccos, the reducing whereof he had in Charge. However he took Courage, believing hemight with Induftry and Labour, make amends for the Want of Cafh. He attended all the Works in Perfon, as he had been wont to do, both at Mimila and in the Country about, building Galleys, and other Veffels, whereof there was then a great Want, to fecure the Sea, at that Time infefed by the Neighbouring Pirates and Enemies, efpecially thofe of Mindanao. Next he vifited the Provinces of the Pinsados, and fupply'd the Wants he found in thofe Parts. In thefe Paffages betwixt the Iflands, befides the Storms, his little Veffel, which had only three Soldiers in it, efcap'd, he fell into another notable Danger. Two and twenty Englifh Veffels enrich'd with the Booty they had taken in the Iflands belonging to that Government, attempted to inclofe and take him, but the Tide failing them, they ftuek on Ground, and could not get off. Don Pedro faw them throw over-board above 2000 Spaniards, and Natives they had made Prifoners, to lighten their Veffels. They alfo caft into the Sea a beautiful Spanifh Maid, about 17 Years of Age. Afterwards the Fleet from Manila fail'd in queft of them, and chaftis'd fome, tho' the Punimment was inferior to their Cruelty.

Don Pedro would fain have remov'd all Obftacles that lay in the Way to the Enterprize he had in Hand; but was oblig'd to put off for fome Months that which he was moft intent upon, and to difpatch the Affairs of Xolo and Japan. Cliquiro, a Fuponefe Embaffador, was newly arriv'd at Maxila, with a Prefent of the Product and Manufactures of that Ifland, and orders to treat with the Governour, and fettle Amity and Commerce, DonPedra vijits bis Government.

Cruelty of Englifh. between the Subjects of the Emperor of Fapan, whofe Name was Dayfufama, and the Philippines and New-Spain. The Neighbourhood of thole Provinces, the Power of the \(\mathfrak{F}\) aponefe Kings, their natural Difpofition, and other Confiderations, which Experience had fhown to be of great Moment, made againft refufing of that Commerce; and yet there were Opinions to the contrary, for thofe very Reafons. However that barbarous Prince having once efpous'd that Affair, it was not eafy to find out an Expedient to fettle it, without any Jealoufy or Difguft. Dayfufama demanded, that the Spaniards fhould trade to Quanto, a Port in one of his Provinces, and that fuch Friendfhip might be eftablifi'd, that the faponefes might go over to New-Spain. That the Governour fhould fend him Shipwrights, and Workmen to build Ships in Japan, for performing of that Voyage, upon which Dayfufana was very intent, being perfwaded to it by a Religious Man of ours, of the Order of St. Francis, whofe Name was \(F\). fexoms of \(\mathcal{F} E S U S\), and for whom that Monarch had a great Efteem.

This was a Matter of great Weight, and on feveral Accounts moft pre judicial to the Pbilippine Iflands, whofe greateft Security for fo many Years, has confifted in the Japonefe's wanting of Ships and Pilots, and be-Oljections ing ignorant in the Art of Navigation. Men of Experience obferv'd, that to them.
whenfuever the faid haughty barbarous Prince has attempted to arm againft Manila, he has ftill been obftructed by this Want. They faid, that to fend him Ship-Wrights, and Men to build him Ships after the Spanifo Manner, would be no other than arming him againft the Spanzards themfelves; and that their Voyages would be deftructive to the Ploilippines and New-Spain; for that the making the Faponefes capable of Trading far off, was not only inconvenient, but unfafe. The Governour Don Pedro de Acunna ferioufly weighing all thefe Reafons, orderd the Embaffador Cbiquiro to be magnificently entertain'd, made him fome Prefents for his King and for himfelf, and fent a Ship with another moderate Prefent, left it fhould be interpreted to proceed from Fear, if it had been too confideraHe. This Ship fail'd with Dayfufana and his Embaffador, both of them loaded with Commodities to barter. Don. Pedro's Letters contain'd many. Compliments, and Thanks for the good Will he flow'd towards eftablifhing more folid Friendfhip; but that, tho he had ample Commiffon for all Things relating to the Government of the Pbilitpine Iflands, yet he could not fatisfy that Part of his Embafly, which concerifd the furnifhing of him with Sailors and Workmen to build Spanifo Ships, without acquainting the Viceroy of New-Spain, nor could the Viceroy do it, without fpecial Orders from the King of Spain. That he promis'd to write to them about it, for promoting the Aocomplifhment of his reafonable Demands; but that he muft confider, it would be above three Years before they had an Anfwer, becaufe of the great Length, and many Accidents of fuch Voyages. It was orderd that the aforefaid \(F\). ferome hould hinfelf deliver thefe Letters, to Dayfufawa. The Fryar himfelf had a private Letter fent him with a Reproof for what he had done, and Inftructions how to mend it; and that he fhould fignifyto the Faponefe Monarch, how highly the Governour valu'd the Inclinationi he flow'd to fettle Peace and Commerce with the Spaniards, and his Kindnefs to them; and at the fame Time perfurade him to continue that good Correfpondence, which the Governour would inviolably obferve; but that he fhould endeavour to divert the King's Thoughts from fuch Defigns, and never go about to facilitate the Execution of them \(\xi\) becaufe, tho perhaps the Emperor then feigning entertain'd no firfifer Meaning, mor had any farther Thoughe than promoting a fincere Friendflip, yet that might be very prejudicial in the Days of a more mifchievous Succefior; who might make an ill Ufe of his Skill in Navigation, and improve it againft the Perfons that taught it him. The Governour promis \({ }^{〔}\) d he would foon fend another Ship with Commodities tobarter; and he might put the King in Hopes it would carry over fome Spanifb Ship-Carpenters to build Ships after their Manner. That he fhould defire Dayfufona to wait with Patience, and confider how heinoufly he would be offended himfelf, if any of his Governours fhould prefume to make any new Settlements in Trade without his Privity or Order:

Chiquir o return'd for fapan with this Anfwer; but when he was off the.
Japonefe Embaffador cajb away. Head of the Ifland Formofa, fuch a dreadful Storm overtook him, that he was fwallow'd up, and beither Men, Goods, nor Arms fav'd; and this happentd in fo remote a Place, that it was not known till many Days after. Day fiffama, at the Requeft of \(F\). Ferome, had granted Leave for Preaching of the Colpel, throughour his Dominions, building of Churehes, and fuch as swould profefling Chriftianity by publick Authority. Don Pedro the Governour took the neceffary Mealures, that fo favourable an Indulgence might not be loft, and that not only barefoot Fwoucifcans, but alfo Religious Men of other Orders fhould go over thither. They made ufe of the Frponefe Captaius and Ships, newly come to Manila with Meal. The Dominicans fent over to the Kingdom of Zazuina four Fryars, and F. Francis de Morales, Prior of Manila for their Superior, faying the King of that Province fent for them, being the only one, who had not yet fubmitted to Dayfufama. The Order of \(S\). Augufinn fent two Religious Mer, and \(F\). Fames de Guevara, Prior alfo of Manila for their Superior, and thefe went to the Kingdom of Firando. Thofe of the Order of S. Francis, fent F. Auguffin Rodriguez, who had been Witnefs to the Martyrdom of his Companions in Fapan, to Nangafaqui, for him to go thence with a Lay-Brother to Miaco, and bear \(F\). Jercme of Fefus Company. Many perfwaded Don Pedro, not to fend away thefe Religious Men; but thd' thofe Perfwafions were well grounded, and fome Difficulties occur'd againft their Departure, he refolv'd to difmifs' them. The Zeal of true Glory overcomes all Oppofition. Thefe Religious Men found no Signs of thofe Defires that had been fignify'd to them in the Provinces they went to. Very few 'Faponefes were converted, and there was lefs Dilpofition to advance, becaufe the Kings, and Tonos, which are Princes had no Affection for our Religion, nor were any Way difgufted with their Idols. They only afpir'd to fettle Commerce, and to trade with the Spaniards, for their private Intereft.

Don Pedro fent the Ship he had promis'd to Fapan, well for'd with Cannon, and call'd it \(S\). Fames the Lefs. The Captain, Officers, and Sailors were all Men of Experience; and fhe was laden with Commodities to barter, Red-Wood, Deer's-Skins, raw Silk, and feveral other Sorts. The Govenour order'd them to difpofe of what they carry'd at the Port of Quan:o, and to furnifh the Religious Men they found there, and then return with the Produce and Dayfufama's Leave. Thus Provifion was made for all the Affairs of Fapan, according to the prefent Exigences. The Ship-Wrack of the Embaffador Cliquiro was known, and by the good Management of \(F\). Ferone, Dayfufama was acquainted with the Anfwer he carry'd, and refted fatisfy'd ; fo that the preaching of the Golpel went on in his Dominions.
Don Pedro's Thoughts were all bent upon Recovering of the Molucco Furtado's Illands, and his other Bufinefs did not make him neglect that Enterprize. Andrew Furtado de Mendoza, Admiral of thofe Seas for the Crown of Portugal had writ him Word, that he had Orders from his Majefy to repair to Ternate ; but that he did not expect the Viecroy would fet him out, as was requifite for that Expedition. Don Pedro anfwer'd him, to his Content, with Affurance, that he fhould be fupported. Thefe Letters came to the Hands of the Portuguefe Admiral at Malaed, when he was ready to fet out. He prefently anfwer'd both thofe of the 22 d of September, and the 22 d of December, fignifying how acceptable they were to him. Becaufe, fays he, I love your Lordffip entively, tho' I bave never feen you, on Account of your being a brave Commander, and fo zealous for bis Majefty's Service; not to mention other Reafons for whicl I am yours. I was much troubled for. the Lofs of the Ship, sud the ill Fortune of the other, for the want you will find of the Return you expected by them: But it is to be fuppos'd, that the Viceroy of New-Spain, feeing how long thofe Ships were mifing, would impute it to fome very confiderable Caufes, and therefore will Afift you Powerfully, for nothing lefs can be expected from fucb a liceroy, \(w^{2} / \mathrm{l}, I\) am told, is a very worthy Gentleman. I am experimentally fenfible of what your Lordfbip writes to me; for after being in thofe Parts five Years, without receiving any Succours from India, when I expected thefe Diforders foould end, and confiderable Supplies would be fent me, the Viceroy furnifh'd me fo poorly, as will appear to your Lordfhip by the Lift of what be fends, and thence you may infer, bow bis Majefty is ferv'd in thofe Parts, that your Lordjaip may acquaint lim with it, and we may joyntly fo order it, that all this may not be overtbrown in one Hour.

Then he complains, That they have not fent him his-Majefty's Letter, nor the Archbifhop of Goa had not receiv'd his; and fays, He bad rather be at Plow in Old Caftile, than a Witnefs to the ill Dipofition of what is the Letter. committed to his Charge: And proceeding, fays thus, Your Lor dhbip tells me, That as foon as I draw near the Moluccos, you will do me the favour to bave in readine \(\rho s\) for me 300 Soldiers, with, Captain Gallinato, and another Captain, and two Galleys, four Brigantines, and all the Carcoas that Jhall be requifite. I know not what bis Majefly appoints for me; but, for the Sins of thefe Dominions, Time bas put Tlings into fucb a Pofture, that I muft be forc'd to repair to the Moluccos, as well to recover what is Loft, as to fave whlat is Gain'd, which cannot be done, unlefs both Powers, from lence and thence, be United. Twelve Dutch Ships ancbor'd this Year at the Bar of Coa: They took the Viceroy fo unprovided, that they lay at Ancloor a Montl) at tipe faid Bar, without any Attempt nitade to remove them. They made great Han vock amonglt the Merchants Ships on the Coaft of India, without any Oppofition. They came from the other Sea, by the Back of Sumatra, to the Streight of Sunda. Seven of them arriv'd at Amboyna, the others being nay make an Example of bim. I loave already fecur'd Jome of the Maryy'd Men that came bither, being fully convinc'd that the Governor and they are Enemies and Traytors. When the Dutch were poffefs \(d\) d of the Fort, they put more Connon into it, with a Garrifon of 140 Men, and Provifions for two Xears. I bave alfo recoived Intelligence, That they fent five Ships againft Tydore, and I am very jealous of that Place, becaufe of the Divifions there; woljerefore I immediately fent awpay two Galiots, well Man'd, Arm'd, and Provided. God grant they find that Fort in the King's Poffeffion. Taus, if bis Majefty well fend bither the Galeons be writes of, and comanands me io ferve bim in thefe Soutbern Parts, I muft of neceffity go over that way; for fince Amboyna is in the Poffefion of the Dutch, we may conclude Tydore will foon follow. If they extend their Dominion, from that Port, which God avert, they will thence put an End to the Affairs of the Moluccos, and of China, and with the Ahiftance of the Ternates muft of necefinty Infeff thore Parts about Manila; and therefore we are all oblig'd, as Chriffians, and bis Alajefty's Subjects, 10 Oppofe fuch a mighty Misfortune. And fince the Lot bas fallen between your Lovdpip, and this Soldier of yours, we feem to be in fame meafure both of us under an Obligation to ßare no Pains for the Recovering: of thofe Parts of the Molucco Iflands. For my part I will labour for the Succefs, tho' I were to lofe ten Lives, if I had fo many. But becaufe I foall not bave an Opportunity to fend your Lordfbip Intelligence, till a Year bence, I now intreat you to bave what Soldiers you can in Readinefs, and the greateft Number of Natives, that we may not fall foort when-the work is balf done, and be forced, for want of them, to put our felves into the Hands, and expect the Afiftance of Traytors. The fame 1 beg, as to Provifons; for there are none where I am at prefent. But fince Captain Gallinato bar feen all, and knows what is Neceffary in thofe Parts, whereof he bas before now given your LordJoip ample Information, it will be needlefs to repeat it in this, heing your Lordbip tells me in yours, you do me the Favour to appoint binu for my Companion; and he is fo able a Commander, that when your Lordfaip orders bim to prepare for this Expedition, be will take with bim all be thinks proper for it. Tho' lois Majefty fould fend Several Galeons, and many Men, I faill not be able to do any thing with, them in thofe Parts, becaufe the main Thing there, is to bave Veffels that Row, and Men that bave Served, whereof I am very deffitute. From India none can come, tho' the Viceroy were never fo willing to furnifh me. However, confiding in your Lordfoips Worth, and in what you have lignify'd to me by Letter, I will undertake this Expedition, believing I foall find all Tlings in fuch Readine \(\sqrt{s}\), that they will fet out from thence the Moment your Lord/hip receives Advice from me. I am told your Lord/hip expets a Gentleman in thofe Parts, who comes to Conquer Camboxa. If be bappens to come, I muft put your Lor dfhip in Mind, that the beft Conqueft is that of the Moluccos, where bis Majefty's Forts will be reftor'd, and there the faid Gentleman may Bew lis Valour, and merit a confiderable Reward from the King. Before the Dutch came to Amboyna, two Englifh Ebips paffed by that Illand, which fent a Letter to the Governor of the Fort, to acquaint bim, that the Dutch were coming after them, with a Defign to pofiefs themfelves of the faid Fort, and therefore they advijed bimu to bebave himfelf well, becaufe the Dutch they Spoke of, were a poor faint-bearted People. That, if they had Occafion for Powder, Bail, and all other Neceflaries, they weere ready to fupply bim, becaufe they were then at Peace with Spain, and the Conftable of Caftile was already fent into England, by lis Majefty, to Ratify it: And the Poft-Mafter-General was Emhaffador in Ordinary. This Intelligence leaves the Rebets no pretence to any Excufe. Furtado's Letter goes on, to other Particulars, recommending Religious Men, and Commanders and he concludes with Abundance of Compliments, and Courteous Expreffions.

Don Pedro having receiv'd thefe Letters, order'd and haften'd all neceffary Preparations, with the utmon Diligence, preffing the Bufinefs in spain, and with the Viceroy at Mexico, and thought all Delays tedious; but the to come from a Center fo remote, and where there lay an Obligation of being no lefs attentive to all Parts of the Circumterence, the Expedition could Brother Gifpar Gomezz, whofe Intelligence in this Affair, was always very material, had prefently Intimartion of what had been refolv'd on, by Letters from Don Pedro; and he was fo diligent in promoting it, that to advance this Caufe, he crofs'd the greateft Oceans as readily, as if they had been the Narrow-Seas, which part thofe Illands; having folicited the Viceroy at Mexico, and then the Counfellors, and Minifters of State in Spain. His Arguments and Motives were the fame we have feveral Times mention'd in this Work. Dividing the Wealth of the South into three fixt Kinds, precious Stones, and Pearls, Metals, and Spice, and Drugs ; all which were diflributed among Enemies, Englijh and Dutch. That the King had no Spice left, but only that of Tydore, which muft be loft, unlefs fpeedily and powertilly fupported, and the fame Forces would recover Ternate, Banda, Amhoyna, and what had been held in Celeles, Batochina, and the Places, wrefted by the Tyrants of Sumatra. All this the Jefuit made out by Demonftration, for he grounded not the leaft Information upon any thing lefs than Experience.

He was heard in the Council of the Indies, and the Council of State for the Crown of Portugal, and difpatch'd for the Philippines, by the way of New-Spain. By the other Way, the King order'd, that the Captain General Furtado, taking with him the neceffary Fleet from Goa, fhould fail for the Moluccos, by fpecial Commiffion, by Virtue whereof he afterward fent to afk Affinance at the Philippine Iflands, as we have feen, and fuch Supplies were to be furnift'd on both Sides, as being united, might fecure the Conqueft of the Moluccos. However the Event muft of Neceffity be tedious, the Dutch being already poffefs'd of all the King's Forts in the dichim pelago; and their numerous Eleets of all the Ports, Fairs, and Trade, with F'actories conveniently fettled for their Intercourfe between India and their own Country. We fhall not enter upon the Account of thofe Affairs, becaufe no more of them than have been already mention'd, as yet related to the Moluccos. Much Time, and many Precautions were requifite, for thefe two Commanders to joyn, amida fo many Obftacles: They fent freguent Advice backward and forward, and neither Part was idle in the mean while.

At length, notwithfanding all Difficulties, Furtado failcd from Goa with fix Galeons, eighteen Galiots, and one Galley, with the King's Orders, and in his Name thofe of the Viceroy Arias de Saldania, to fight the Dutch, and any other Enemy, and to proceed to Sunda, to chaftize that King, and the Rebels in Fava. He was directed to place Garrifons there, and having fettled the Affairs of India, to proceed to the Moluccos. They went out with good Hearts to undertake that Work, but were hinder'd by Storms and Tempeffs. In the Gulph of Ceylon, he loft the Galley, and feventeen Galiots that were under the Conduct of Francis de Soufa, and Andrew Roiz, and in them the greaten Strength he had to compafs his Defigns. He was three whole Years without any Succours to proceed on his Enterprize. At Malaca he recruited the beft he could; and in December, 1601, Steering his Courfe for Sunda, relying on the Succours be expected from the King of Palimbam, in Java, fuppos'd to be our Friend and Contederate; but he was deceived, for that Infidel was fo far from efpoufing our Party, that he had taken up-with the King of Sunda, whom he intended, and afterwards actually did fuccour with 30000 Men. This did not difmay Furtado, but he fail'd on towards Sunda, referring the Puniffiment of the King of Palimbam

However the Galeon Commanded by Thomas de Soufa Aronches, fought five of them, killing many Dutch, without lofing one Man; but her Rigging was torn, and fhe could not board the Enemy, who fled, drawing our Ships after them in fuch manner, that Furtado could not poffibly recover the Bar, tho he anchorsd in a Road, from whence he might have return'd to the Port.

This was a fpecial Providence, for the Enemy did not feem difpos'd to Arrives at fand, and they had already been upon both Bars; and therefore reflecting Amboy na. on the Tears, and Groans of the Commanders, and Chriftians at Amboyna, he directed his Cou:fe towards thofe Iflands, where he arriv'd on the Ioth of Febritay without being detain'd by fome Vittories he gain'd ia his Way. The Natives and thofe in the Fort were alarn'd, believing they had been Enemies, but the Admiral giving a Signal, they knew the Chriftian Fleet. The loy pread abroad, and the Shore was cover'd with People expreffing it. Furtado firf apply'd himfelf to repair the Fort, and refit the Ships. He alfo built four Ships, two Galiots, and twelve Carcoas. Then he fet out, without lofing Time, to make War on the Itos, and other Towns that had rebell'd againf the Fort, feiding Fofepl) Pinto, with 200 Portur guefes by Land. The'Fleet fail'd round the Iland, and lay a Month in the Bay calld Bacacio. atexeyra, Commander in Chief of the Fort, went before, with a good Number of Carcois, to reduce fome rebellious Towns, efpecially thofe which are on the Mountains call'd Gunos, where there áre excellent fweet Waters, and large Woods of Orange Trees. Thefe Towns acknowledge their Faylt, and came to make their Submiffion. Seven or Eight of the principal Men came from each Town. Every Town brought a Flag, and three large valuable Bafons of bright Meral, and in them a little Earth, with Branches of Clove-Trees in Bloffom, in Token that they deliver'd up the Land, with the moff precious of its Product. Some brought Goats, and Hens, and fuch Fruit as their Country afforded to denote the fame.

Furtado knew there was a private Alliance between the Rebels of Amb- Ten Dutch boyna and the Dutch, and thar ten Ships were to coine to take that Fort, ships at and the other we had left us at Amboyna, They were fo deeply engag'd in Amboyna, this Contrach, that thofe at Sunda, Reeing Fuwtado fet fail towards thofe Parts, they did the fame, and on the Foth of Maich, the ten Ships apjear'd in Sight of the Illands, three of them coming on and treating with the Natives; yet for fear of us, they flood off to the Ifland Rurro, and the other feven to Banda, to fail over to the Moluccos. All this was known to Furtado by good Intelligence, befides that he receiv'd from \(F\). Lewis Fernandez, Rector of the Siciety of \(\mathcal{F} E S U S\), who was newly come from Tydore, with Letters from that King, and the Chriftians refiding there, bidding him welcome, and prefling that he would come to their Affiffance;

Furtado follow'd that in Anboyna, daily reducing fome Towns that had revolred. The Inhabitants of Rofatelo, built on an Eminence, and well fortify'd difcovering our Ships, and Carcoas, fet fire to all their Goods, and then to their Houfes, and fled to - high Mountain, where their Wives and Children were before. Yet our Men making their Way thro' Clefts, attain'd the Top two days after. The Rebels perceiving they were loft, came to receive the Conquerors with white Flags, but the King, not daring to truft to that Security, fled to remoter Parts.

The Infidels of IIO, puff'd up with the Dutcls Supplies they expected, made no Doubt of routing the Chriftians, as foon as they landed; but perceiving they were difappointed of the Succour of the ten Ships, which fail'd by without ftaying, and that Rofatelo was reduc'd; yet they were not quite dejected, but committed their Safety to the Strength and Tops of the Mountains. They abandon'd their chief City, properly call'd Iio. and the Fort there erected by the Dutch, retiring with all their Families to the higheft and mof impregnable Part of the Country calld Nao and Bemnao, being two Rocks, one above another, like the Round-Tops in a Ship one over the other; whence the Shore appears near at Hand tho

There are three Ways to get up to it, but all of them fo difficult, that the very Lizards can fearce elimb it. On thefe three Paffes they threw up double Trenches, with frong Ramparts, and a good Number of Brafs Sakers, and Demy-Falconets to fecure them. At each of them was a confiderable Number of Men, with their Colours flying, and all Sorts of offenfive and defenfive Arms, wherewith the Dutch have furnifh'd thofe Southern Seas. The greateft Danger threatned was fiom a great Number of mighty Stones, or Pieses of Rocks, which being roul'd down from fuch a Height can bear down and deftioy an Army. All the Enemy's Power was now reduc'd to this fingle Place, and the Town ftanding on the firt of the two Rocks, being built on a large round Spot it forms, like an European City with good large Houles, after their Manner. The General came to this Place on Palm-Sunday, order'd a Trench to be caft up, and Tents to be pitch'd, for a Defence againft the Sun, and the Furtado Rain, which fometimes falls unexpected. He commanded an Enemy Am-encamps at boynefe, that had fallen into his Hands, attended by fome Chriftians, to go Bemnao. enquire into the Defigns of the People of Ito, and to guide the Way. When they were come within hearing, and had deliver'd their Meffage, the Infidels anfwer'd, That they pere the King of Ternate's Subjects, and own'd none but Jim. That they would trade with the Dutch, and all other Nations they thought fit. That they would alfo fell Clove to the Spaniards; but that the King of Spain bad a very long Neck. Having return'd this Anfwer, they began to fire the Cannon. Our Men were forc'd to put up the Affront, and pafs by their Fury; but the General regarding neither, order'd a Captain, on Monday, to view the Situation of the Place; becaufe his Soldiers had gone up diforderly to their Trenches, and been repuls'd with Shot, and throwing of Stones, which made them retire down the Mountain with many wounded. The next Night he fent 200 Men, to poffefs themfelves of a Mount that overlook'd the Enemies Trenches. They did fo, and as foon as the Day appear'd, our Muketiers pour'd in their Volleys of Shot, firing at the fame Time with two Drakes, they had carry'd up with a Defign to cat up another Trench, and thus they put the Enemy to Rout. The Trench was thrown up, and the next Night they remoy'd the Drakes to it, drawing nearer, to make the greater Slaughter. Gonzalo Vaz de Caftello-Branco commanded at this Pafs. The Men here that Night talk'd with the befieg'd, and affur'd them, they would take their Fort the next Night, as they actually did.

On Wednefday. Morning the General order'd the Drums to beat to Arms, to go up himfelf to the Hill where his Men were, leaving Trajano Ruiz de Caffello-Branco below, with 50 Men, to guard the Camp; but without any Defign of attacking the Fort that Day; but only to order the Men, and affign them their Pofts. Whilf he was concerting this Affair with his Officers, Gonzalo Vaz came to them with a dangerous Shot in one of the Calves of his Legs, and five other Wounds running Blood. The Soldiers were incens'd, at the Sight of him, and fignify'd they would fall on. It was given out, where the General was, that the Victorious Enemy was falling upon our Drakes, and Ports; and he improving Neceffi\(t y\), cry'd out, with a loud Voice, Santiago, that is, \(S\). Jamer, the Cry given by the Spariayds when they fall on. The Soldiers were fo encourag'd by this Cry, that they immediately gave the Affault, with much Fury and Alacrity, climbing thofe fmootl Rocks, upon their Hands and Feet: The Barbarians Drums and Bag-Pipes rattled in their Ears, and the Noife of their Cannon and fmall Shot ecchotd among all the Rocks. The Enemy threw Stones, which wounded, and knock'd down our Men, and many tumbled, without being able to help themfelves: Some fingle Stones carry'd two or three Men down the Side of a Hill, till they fopp'd' at fome Tree. A Captain was funn'd with a Pebble, tho' he receiv'd it on a Steel Buckler; but he foon recover'd, and was feen upon the Enemies Works. The Cries and Shouts rent the Air. Many tumbling down forc'd out the Tharp Pointed Stakes that were drove into the Ground; and prefently after, as if they had fown, were feen Fighting above. Thofe who were left to guard

A brave Chriftian, who carry'd the foremoft of our Cotours, was laid hold of by an Axbboynefe, yet he, tho' thot thro' the Body with a Mufket-Ball, whereof he foon after Dy'd, defended them bravely. However, notwithfanding his Refiftance, and that his Captain came to his Succour, the Infidel carry \({ }^{\text {b }} \mathrm{d}\) off a Part of the Staff, which was recover'd when the Victory was gain'd. The Amboynefes, feeing their Works taken, and their Colours dragg'd about, withdrew to the upper-Part, leaving only three Men behind them, who dy'd Fighting, with honourable Obftinacy. They did not fortifie themfelves in that Place, but abandoning their Town and Goods, and flipping down Precipices, and upright Heights with Ropes, made their Efcapes; and though they bunnt fome of their Goods, yet many of value remain'd. The General gave Order for curing of the wounded Men, which were above 200 , befides thofe sun through by the fharp Stakes pitch'd all about the Field.

The gaining of this Victory did fo difcourage all the Iflanders, that they refus'd to take up Arms, or hazard an Engagement. Nine Towns fubmitted at once, the next day, and the Territory about diat the fame. The General came down Victorious, and erected Arbours in thofe Delightful Woods, with an Altar, on which Mafs was fung on Eafter-Day, and aH the Office of the Church, with much Solemnity, in Thankfiving, affigning the Sovereignty to that Lord, whogrants, or takes away Victory, ac-

The King of Ito came and fubmitted himfelf; his Name, whilft an Idolater, was Talere, afterwards Don Melchior, for he was a Renegado Chriftian, and fled at the taking of Rofatelo. He deliver'd himfelf up, as alfo a famous Caziz he brought with him, who was a Man of much Reputation among them.

To this Vidtory Furiado refolv'd to add thofe he expected at Veranula,

He fail'd from Amboyna with all the Fleet, and arriv'd at Veranuld, and the City of the fame Name, which is populous, and its Territory the mof fuitful in Clove of any in thole Parts. It is built along the fhore on a high and upright Rock, which look'd like a Wall, with Towers, and Stories. The Houfes are high Roof 'd, with Galleries. There is a Mofque that has three Lles, with a ffately Room to read the Alcoran in. Within the City was the Dutch Fort, conveniently feated, built of Stone, round, and cover \({ }^{\text {d }}\). Beyond that was alfo another Stone Fort, with feveral falliant Angles, Ravelins, and Guerites. This belong'd to the King of Ternate, who was Tyrant of that Part of Veranula. As foon as our Fleet anchor'd before the City, the Prime Men of it came to acquaint the General, That they were willing to fubmit, but knew not how to do it, for Fear of the Ternates; and therefore defir'd he would let them affemble their Council, and they would return the next Day with their Anfwer. Furtado granted their Requent, fending two Ant-boynefes of Note along with them. They return'd no Antwer, but fled, not daring to ftand the Fury of thofe who came Vittorious. They fird a Gun for a Signal of what they were doing, and the General being affurd of their Flight, order'd the Mer to land and plunder the City. The Inhabitants had before fecur'd the beft of their Effects, and yet in fome Houles they found above the value of 30000 Crowns, and in others lefs, befides many Gnods of value; abundance of Brafs Drakes and Mufkets; China Ware, and Silks; Dutcb Glaffes, and great Store of Royal-Cloves, Veranula After plundering the City, they fee fire to it, and it burnt for fome Days. plunder'd The Dutch and Ternatefe Forts were raz'd. The General wasinform'd by and burnt. fome Prifoners, that the People of Ver anula, had expected mighty Sucecurs againft him from the Dutcb Ships that were feen; and that there were aboard 100 Men to Gartifon Viranula, and 100 more for the Fort he had demolifh‘d at Ito. Some of our Men purfu'd the Ternates as far as Lacidecavello, a Town where they imbark'd on many Veffels, for theit own Ifland.

After this, the City Mamala fent to make its Submifion, and many Mamala others follow'd its Example. Furtado having concluded this Affair, re- City fubfolv'd to return to Amboynd, and being upon his Departure, Francis de mits with. Soufa Teve came to him, with ten Portuguefes, who had been, not long before, taken by the Dutclj Ships: He had met at Banda the five Ships Furtado found at Sunda, and here gave him fome important Intelligence, fhowing how much he would fird the Seas, in his Way to the Moluccos, infefted by thofe Northern Sailers. The Commander in Chief of the Dutch, made very much of Francis de Soufa; difmiffing him with Arms and Provifions for his Voyage, but at the Price of 500 Crowns, paid for him and his Companions, by forre Heathen Towns in the Illand; to whom Furtado, without any Delay, made good the whole Sum. The Dutcl General writ very civilly to Furtado, defiring he would ufe his Men well, as he would do by the Spaniards he met with. Fuvtado return'd an Anfwer, no lefs Courteous, and fent him a Dutch Youth, whio had been Prifoner at Ternate.

Having rednc'd thefe Iflands, Furtdido appointed a Day for the Governors The conof them to come and fwear Fealty to our King, that he might fave Time, quer'd and follow the Courfe of his Viftories. They came with much State, and Jubmit, Submifion; and to fecure their tuture Behavicur, and their new promis'd and give Fidelity, delivei'd to the General a confiderable Number of Youths, being Hoftages. the Sons of the Prime Men, as Hoftages. Peace, and the general Pardon, were celebrated with Rejoycings. The Preaching of the Gofpel was again exercis'd with entire Liberty, and many Idolaters, and Mabometans were converted. Other Provinces came to acknowledge the Conqueror; without expecting the Chance of War. Furtado at Amboyna prepar'd for the Expedition againft the Moluccos.

Thofe who fled to Ternate, gave an Account of the Lofs of the King of Towns and Forts that King had been poffefs'd of at Amboyna; and Ternaters. that the General Fuvtado openly declatd he was making Prepara-Preparatitions againft thofe IAlands, and grew fronger upon his Succefs. The ons, King flighted not this Intelligence, but immediately frengthened his Fleet, and his Forts, and calld in the favapefes and Mindanaos, ro be in readinefs upon any Attack. Amidft the Noife of War, and his Treaties with the Dutch for maintaining of it, he found Leafure to feek his Satisfaction; concluding a Match with his Queen Celicaya, who follow'd him in all his Troubles, even when he laft fled from his Kingdom. She was very Young, and fo Beautiful, that all the Indian Kings courted her for their Wife, and fent to demand her of the Sangiack of Motiel, her Father; who gave her to him of Ternate, as the greateft, moft fotent, and refpected.

Amboyna is 200 Leagues from the nearef of them, and that 200 more from Manila, he fent thither F. Andrew Pereyxc, a Jefuit, and Captain Antony Brito Fogaza, in May I60z. They arriv'd at Cebu on the 25 th of Fuly, fail'd thence for Manila, on the 6th of Auguft, and came to that City on the sth of September. Don Pedrode Acunna was well pleasd to fee them, afking particularly concerning all the Proceedings of the \(\mathrm{Ge}-\) neral Fuvtado, wherein he was very curious, or rather generoully emulous, and he having in his Letters referrd himfelf to their Relation, they gave it him at large, and perform'd the Duty of their Embaffy, each acenrding to his Profeffion. Don Pedro did not delay their Bufinefs; but call'd a Council of War, wherein it was refolv'd, that the Succours he defir'd fhould be fent Furrado, tho they were forctd to comply with the Difficulties the Country then labourd under. Upon this Determination he fent away to the Provinces of the Pintados, ordering Capt. As fon as the General Furtado had fent away for Succours to Manila, after chaftifing and garrifoning of V'eranula and Amboyna, he fet fail for the Molucco Iflands, with five Galeons, four Galliots, and 12 Carcoas, carrying his Viftorious Men ; but in thofe Seas Difafters are fo frequent, that neither the Joy of their late Succefies, nor the Refrefmment receiv'd atter their Victories, appear'd in their Countenances. He arriv'd at Ternate with this Fleet, on the roth of Augu \(f t\); but he only look'd on that Ifland, and proceeded to Tydore : There he view'd the Fort, encourag'd the Soldiers in it, and made ufe of that King's Perfon and Intereft, as Pru dence directed ; for that Prince, tho' he labours by Words to couvince us of his Friendfhip and Fidelity, does not confirm it by his Actions ; but rather leaves us dubious, when he moft endeavours to perfwade.
Furtado left the Galeons at Tydore, and with the other Veffels that row'd, went fix Leagues thence, to the Inland of Machian, then Subject to the King of Ternate, but fo weary of that Vaffalage, that as foon as our Fleet appear'd, the Governours flock'd down to the Port, attended by the Natives, with their Wives and Children, and fuch Gifts as came next to Hand, as alfo fome Colours, which they laid at Fuxtado's Feet, fubmitting themfelves, and delivering up their Country. The Men landed in peaceable Manner, amidA the ufual Noife of Bagpipes and Bafons; and the Portuguefes. having in vain fought after fome Dutch, Men, who chofe zather to lecure themfelves by Flighr, than to truft tothe General's good Nature, were inform'd that they were gone over to Ternate. A view having been taken of the Illand, Furtado exected a Fort with all poffible Expedition, in the moft couvenient Place. When finifh'd according to the Rules of Fortification, he put into it a Captain with 50 Men, whom he left well arm'd and provided, and with them a light Veffel, call'd a Gali\(z a b r a\). Then he return'd himfelf, with the Reft of the Fleet, to Tydore, where he joyn'd all his Ships, repair'd them, and fet out for Ternate to the Fort of Talangame, where he anchor'd, and lay from the End of Odober to the middle of February, when the Succours from Manila came.
Some accule him of lying fill very long without attempting any thing; faying, he let fip the Opportunities, without cutting off the Enemies Provifions, or ravaging their Country, when he might have fubdu'd them by that Meansalone, without firing a Shot. However, when we have before us the Actions of fuch great Commanders, it is fafer to judge they had fome fufficient unknown Reafon for what they did, than to attribute it to their Fault. Moft certain it is, That being inform'd of a Fleet of the Enemies of 22 Carcoas, which was not far from the Ifland Machian, he loft no Time, but putting 172 Portuguefes, of the chofen Men of his Fleet, into 18 Carcoas, under an able Commander, he fent them to find out the Infidels. But tho the Soldiers were fo haughty, that every one undertook to fight fix Carcoas, yet every Officer was for commanding all the Reft, and thus Thant of Difcipline fnatch'd the Victory out of their Hands. The Enemy pafs'd by, and they look'd on, without firing a Gun. The Barba-

This occafion'd the General's erecting the Fort at Macbian; whilft the King of Teinate ftrengthen'd his, with the Affifance of 20 flollanders, making good Ufe of the Leifure of eight Months given him by Furtado. He then caft up Works, and provided Ena gines, as he did afterwards in the Sight of our Camp.

When the Fleet was all affembled at the Philippine Iffands, the Ammunition and Provifions were deliver'd to Gallinato, by the Judges and King's Attorney of the Sovereign Court, being ioco Bufhels of clean Rice, 300 Bullocks for Flefh; 200 Jars of Wine; 80 Quintals, or hundred Weight of Nails, Hooks, Hinges, and other Iron Work; 40 of Powder; 300 Ilocos Blankets; 700 Yards of Spani/h Woollen Cloth; 100 Needles for Sails; 30 Jars of Oil ; and for the Complement of Men, 200 Soldiers, 165 of thein heavy Harquebufiers, and the other, 35 light Mufquetiers; 22 Seamen; fome Pilots; one Mafter; three Gunners of S. Potenciana, and 20 Grummets. The whole Expence hereof amounting to 22260 . Pieces of Eight a Month. The Governour and Sovereign Court having done thus much, they requir'd F. Andrew Pereyra, and Captain Brito, to go with that Supply, which wasthen in readinefs, under Gallinato, with the Colours, and Captains Cluriftopher Villagra, and foln Fernandes de Torres. The Company belonging to Captain Den Thomas Bravo, the Governour's Nephew, and Son to his Brother Don Garcia, ftaid behind, but the Captain went himfelf, and ferv'd honourably in the Expedition. The Foot embark'd on the Ship S. Potenciana, atid the Frigats S. Antony, S. Sebaftian, S. Bonaventure, and \(S\). Francis. They fet fail from the Port of rtoilo, on the zoth of Fanuary, 1603 , and arriv'd at that of Caldera, in Mindanao, on the 2 sth; where receiving fome Intelligence of the Enemy, they continu'd till the 28th. Then they faild towards the Moluccos, and on the 9 th of February S. Antony defcry'd the Ifland of Siao, and the next Morning, by Break of Day, that Frigat caft away.

GalTinato took Care to fave the Men. He fent Captain Villagra, who brought them off, with the Arms and Guns; the reft was fwallowed by the Sea.

They held on their Voyage, and on the 13 th of February difcoverdd the Ifland of Ternate. On the i th they arriv'd at Tydore, where they were inform'd of the coming of Andrew Furtado; and therefore fay'd but a Thort Time to refreft themfelves, being earneft to joyn him. Setting forward with a fair Wind, they came to Ternate, and enter'd the Port of Tatang anne, a League from the Fort, on the 16 th of the aforefaid Month. The Fleets faluted one another in friendly Manner, and the Generals did the like, giving one another an Account of their Strength, Tranfactions, and alf other Particulars till that Time. The Difcourfe falling out of one Thing into another, came to contefling; for Gallinato affirmed, That the Enemies Provifions ought to have been cut off, by ordering our Carcoas to fail round the Mland, which was in great Want of them, and could be reliev'd by the Opportunity he had given. Fiwtido alledg'd other Reafons. to defend himfelf. It was thought convenient before they landed, to take a View of the Enemies Fort, to which Purpofe, the Captains, Chriftopher Villagra, and Gonzalo Sequeyra were appointed to make up to it in a Carcon, witha white Flag, as it were to fpeak with the King, and prcpofe Peace and Conditions.

Thofe two Officers drew near, the Enemy met them, and underftanding what they came about, fent to acquaint the King. He anfwer'd he could not give them Audience that Day, but they might return the next. They seturning accordingly, the Inhabitants of the City came out to meet them, and among them Cacbil Sugui, Cachil Gogo, and Cachil Quipate, the King's Uncles, who went back to tell him, that thofe Captains were come by his Highnefs's Command. This Meffage was brought him at Nine a Clock in the Morning, and tho' he was clofe by the City, the Anfwer came not till four in the Afrernoon, and was, That unlefs Furtado, or Gallinato came, he would not fpeak with any other; but that the Captainsthat were come might treat witn his Officers, and he would fand by, and ratily what they fhould conclude. The Spaniards having receiv'd this Anfwer, and their Defign being to view the Fort, Captain Villagwa fet his Refolution, and pretending fome Occafion, went into the Thicket, whence he obferved all that could be feen on that Side, more nicely than could have been expected in fo fhort a Time. They return'd to the Fleet, and gave the General an Account of all they knew.

In fine, they landed, and then again Gallixato intreated Furtado, to fend out the light Veffels a cruifing, to cut off the Enemies Supplies; and thofe which went out upon his Requeft, fped fo well, that they met a pleat, it was not reafonable to lofe Time. Gallinato anfwer'd, reprefenting the Greatnefs of the Enterprize, and that they had provided no Neceffaries to begin the Work, hinting at fome Home Particulars, which were fignify'd to him by the Portugaefe Commanders. The Votes being taken, it was finally refolv'd to land, becaufe all Things were in readinefs; perhaps they conceited that the Enemies Power was inaginary, and that they would fubmit at the Sight of our Army. Gallinato was always of the Gallinato againgt it. contrary Opinion ; becaufe that Weaknels he was an Eye-witnels to, could not deceive him; and therefore that notbing might be wanting on his Part, tho' he was under Command, but much refpefted, he writ a Role of the Things neceffary for the Defign in Hand, fetting down in it even the Hand-Spikes for moving of the Artillery, which had not been provided in all that Time. By which may be feen, faid Gallinato, how great a Defect there had been in the Reft. When the Council broke up, Furtado told Gallinato, he had order'd, that as foon as they landed, 200 Portuguefes fhould mount the Guard, with one Company of Spaniards. Gallinato begg'd he would give him leave to lead the Van, faying, he would not go as Chief, but only as a Soldier, as being proud of ferving under him. Thishe requefted very earnefly; but Furtado, who knew how to value fuch Requefts, anfwer'd, That if he went he muft accept of his

what it is. Company. Gallinato yeply d, That he fhould take the Poft due to his Perfon, fince it was of fueh Confequence, and do him the Favour to grant him the Van. He would not grant it at that Time, but the next Day, he and his Admiral fpoke to him, faying, He aflign'd him the Van, by the Advice of his Admiral, and therefore defired he would be content it might confif of the Number of Men he had appointed. Gallinato accepted the Command, and valu'd it as was due. They landed on the 3 d of March, and as they were drawing up, Furtado would needs place two of his CoJours, and one of the SFanikh in the Van, with 300 Men; the other three in the Rear; and the Royal Standard, and himfelf to be in the main Body; Gallinato was of Opinion, that all the Colours fhould march with the main Body, but the General follow'd his own Way.
In this Order they began to move towards the Enemy, Captain Dors Thomas marching by Gallinato, who afterwards, in a Letter to Don Pedro, faid, He this Day, and upon other Occafions, gave good Proof, that be wass the Son of fucbia Fatber, and the fe giey Hairs of nine were fufficiently bonour'd with the Afjifance of fuch a Hand, and I was well defended and fecure. The Enemy being above goo, kept in a frong and fafe Poft, the Shore on which our Men march'd, being little or nothing, by Reafon it was High-Water, and that on the Land Side there was a very high Bank, and above it a rifing and clofe Zacatal, which could not be broke through. - Zacatal is a Field overgrown with fuch deep Grafs or Weeds, that many -Men, and much Catele may be hid among them. Thefe are much thicker than, the Fieids of Sedge, or Sheer-Grafs in Spain. They cell it Zacatal, from the Word Zacate, fignifying that Sort of Grafs or Weed, which grows up almoft as thick as a Reed. Along this narrow Slip of Shore, which was full of Rocks, and uneven, only three Men could march abreaft, he that was next the Sea, being partly in the Water. The Enemy was poffers'd of this clofe Pafs, and a greas Tree cyt down for that Pur-pofe, and lying acrofs the Place, ferved them inftead of a Trench. Behind it, and upon the Bank, between it, and the Zacatal, appear'd all their Men, with Mufkets, Fire-Locks, Campilanss, or Cymiters, Bacacaes, or burnt the Staves, Darts, Hand Granadoes, and Stones which did not do us the leaft nates. Harm. They had alfo five Drakes in this Poft, wherewith, upon fome fhort Attacks, they kill'd five Spaniards; and afterwards, as the Action grew hotter, wounded ten Portuguefes, in fuch Sort that they dy'd in a few Days. Gallinato owns he was this Day in Danger of lofing his Honour ; becaufe the Colours, and all the Reft was in the utmoft Peril.

The Enemy fought in Safety, and did our Men fo much Harm, that the firf Charge Gallinato gave, the Ternates fell on fo furioufly, as to drive us from the Ground we had gain'd. Gallinato look'd behind him to fee the Colours he had brought with him in the Van, with the 300 Men, and found them at his Back very thinly Guarded. Thus the fecond Time the Shout was given to fall on, and he again oblig'd to retire, becaufe he had fewer Men every time, and the laft they were fcarce twenty. At length fhaming thofe that lagg'd, and as it were infpiring new Vigour into them, he fell on fo fiercely, that he gain'd the Poft, and the five Drakes. The Ternates loft all, or moft of their beft Men. Gallinato follow'd the Chace till he difcover'd the Fort, then he halted, and order'd our Camp to be Intrenched. The work was begun, and the Enemy obftructed it twice, fending out Parties to prevent planting the Gabions, and divert the Workmen; but they retir'd both times with lofs. When the Trench was finifhed, Gallinato fent to the General to come to it. He came and took up his Quarters, with all his Men, bringing the Royal Standard, and all the Colours.

The next. Day he judg'd it convenient to carry the Lodgment for ward. Gallinato undertook it, and with his Men finifh'd the Trench, within 200 Paces of the Enemies Fort. There they continutd fome Days; and it being Gallinato's Part only to obey, he fometimes gave his Opinion, and always did what he was commanded. He did fo, when the General told them it would be convenient to carry on a Trench farther, to plant the Cannon. On the Ninth of the fame Month, before the Fort had been well view'd, he went to open the Trench, with his own Mell, and yoo Portuguefes, a little above 100 Paces from the Walls, which being fo near they all foon perceiv'd the danger of the Undertaking. It was the worfe for the Confufion and Noife in flling the Gabions. The next Day the Cannon was brought thither, being four Guns, two thirteen, and two fixteen founders. Thefe fixteen Pounders, which the Portuguefe Soldiers call Camels, are fhort Pieces, unfit for Battery; befides that the Bullets were made of Stone; and broke as foon as they touch'd the Wall; being only fit to fire at the Houfes. Gallinato feeing this, told the General that fince before they landed he faid, he had Cannon, he fhould order it to be brought on, and planted in Battery, now he faw how jneffectual that they had proved. He anfwerd, that there was all he had, having left the beft in fome Places he recover'd the foregoing Year; and could not bring any more fuch, by Reafon of the foriny Weather.

This being mounted, the Battery began; but being fo improper for this The EnePurpofe, it was canonading the Air; for the Enemy overlook'd, and was mies ftrengthen'd by a Stone Cavalier, which is that of Our Lady, next the Strength.

Sea. Under it was a Ravelin, with feven heavy Pieces of Canorin which did, and threatned greater Harm to our Camp. The Cavalier was all Rampard, four Fathom high, and a Fathom and a half broad; all which had been performdd, and rais'd with Efpauls, by the Contrivance of the Dutch, who forwarded it, ever fince they traded with that Tyrant. On the Land Side ran the Curtin of the Wall, as fat as the Stone Bullwark, call'd Cachil Tulo, fortify'd outwards with Maffy Timbers, on which there were three large Guns, and two on the Wall from this Bullwark to that of our Lady. All thefe Works look'd towards that Part, where our Men had taken up their Quarters. Thefe Forts had alfo a great Number of Falconets, and Drakes; and the Cavalier that was batter'd being the ftrongef Part, where there was more Noife than Effect, the General orderd the Battery to ceafe.
They Sally.
On Sunday the fixteenth, between four ard five in the Evening, the Enemy fally‘d out of their Fort, with moft of their Men to attack, and gain the Trench, where our Cannon was planted. They affaulted it in three Places, dividing their Men, next the Mountain in Front, and towards the Shore. From the Mountainward came above 800 Ternates, with Campilanes, or Cymiters, in the Van of them almoft as many favanefes, with Pikes 25 Spans long, all in chofe Order. The Leader of them was a

Four hundred attack'd in Front, and many more next the Sea, each Body under its own Commander; who all fell on together with fuch Vigour, that had not they who defended it been in great Readinefs, the Enemy could not mifs of being Mafter of it. The Captains: Pinto and Villagra commanded in it, who defended it bravely, but Emamuel Andres, Sergeant to Villagra, Alonfo Roldnn, a Corporal, and anather Portuguefe, who behav'd himfelf gallantly, dy'd fighting, being all run

The Advantage foon appeard on the Spani/b Side, which the Enemy perceiving, they turn'd their Backs, leaving the Commanders their King had the greateft Value for, dead in the Field, and retired to the Fort. This Succefs gave Occafion to draw another Trench nearer the Fort, to batter the Ravelin, whence they did us Harm, with feven Pieces, notwithftanding our Work, which was carry'd on by the Captains Villagya, and Sebaftian Suarez. On Tburfday the Trench was almoft finifhod, and being near, made them fo uneafy, that the Befieged began to batter it, with all their Cannon, but ineffectually, becaufe the Gabions, andRampart on the Infide, could bear much more. However, by this they perceiv'd the Power and Strength of the Enemy, and the Difficulty of the Undertaking.
Council of On the twenty firf of March, the General came to the Trench, and War held. calling together the Captains, Gallinato, Villagra, Antony Andrea, Folnn Fernandzz de Torres, Gonzalo de Sequeyra, Sehaftian Suarez de Alberguevia, Stepben Texeira, Gafpar. there propofe to them, and what fhould be refolv'd upon it, till effected. They all fwore, and then he propos'd the Matter thus.

I bave call'd you together, Gentlemen, to acquaint you with the Condi- Furtado's tion I am in at Prefent, and this Siege bas brought me to. It is two Speecb 10 rears fince I came from Goa, and during my Voyage, bave fpent a great the Coun2rantity of Ammunition, upon feveral Occafions; fo that when we lan-cil. ded the other Day we bad only ten Pipes of Powder, and 29 Barrels fent me from Manila. Since I landed, fo mucb bas been confumb d, as is vifible, in Ski mißpes, and Battery, that I 万ave now much lefs than balf that Quantity. The Dead, Wounded and Sick, of our Foot, now wanting in the Camp, are 130 ; and the reft, as daily Experience hoows, fall Sick very faft of the Diftemper call'd Berber. Our Provilions, tho' we took the Rice the Frigate: brought from Manila, are fo floort, that they can not laft beyond the beginning of June. The Ships and other Veffels of the Fleet, in the Opinion of the Pilots, run a great Hazard, where they now lie at Ancloor; becaufe, when this Moon is out, there can be no Safety for it, by reafon of the bigh, Winds and Storms, unlefs they remove to another Place, and there is no other bu: Tydore. We fee bow refolute, and well fortify'd the Enemy is, fince all our Battery bas produc'd fo little Effect, and if they receive any Dam mage, it is foon made up by the Multitude of Peotle. The Friendhbip the King of Tydore promis'd for advancing of bis Majefty's Service, bas prov'd fo falle, that he has perform'd nothing of what was concerted with him, t/o' fo reafonable, and beneficial to bimfelf, baving only been free in Words, but bis Adtions bave not yet been feen. I bave bad fufficient Tryal of bim. He has no other Defign, but to deceive, and amufe us, that our Men may be deft oy \(d\) by Derrees, and fo Time may confume us if the Enewy cannot. When I prefs'd him to do fomething, to foow at this Time that be was a Friend, and bis Majefty's Subject, be anfwer'd, be would; but that we muft furnifh Piouifions for all bis Men, becanfe be bad none. They demand Powder and Ball, for every trivial Undertaking, that fo they may confume the little we bave left; and when there is any Work to be done, there are no Men for it. Of the few Amboynefes I brought with me, for this Purpofe, their Labour being great, fome are return'd bome, otlers gone to the Enemy. Thofe that remain are not fufficient, and moft of what bas been bitherto done is owing to the Infantry; which is fo barrafs'd, that it can do no Service. The Enemy expeats Dutch Slips, and knows they are now at Banda. I bave Intelligence that they bave fent for them, and if they come they will be a great Obftacle to our Defigns. Confidering what I bave difcours'd of, I defire you, Gentlemen, and every one of you, fill under the Obligation of the Oath, to give me your Opinions, that according to them I may refolve what to do, in purfuance of the great Duty incumbent on me.

Upon the Requeft of the Captains, the General Furtado gave in thefe Propofals in writing, tho \({ }^{6}\) he oppos'd it at firft. In fhort they were written, as were the Opinions of the Councellors, among whom the greater Part, even of the Portuiguefes oppos'd the General; and tho' I ought to give fome Account of their Votes, becaufe they had all different Views, yet, in Regard that moft of them affented to Gallinato's Opinion, it will fuffice to fet down his Anfwer.

Jobr Xuarez Gallinato, Commander of the Provinces of the Pintados, and the Officers attending me, do anfwer to the Propofal made by your Lordfhit, as follows. That as to the want of Powder you reprefent, we look upon it as effential, fince we can not figlst without it, and if that fails, our Cannon and fmall Fire-Arms, are rather Encumbrances, than Weapons, and therefore it is requifite to refolve and agree, where and when to employ, and bow mucho of what we bave may be fpent, fo as our Enterprize may fucceed, fince we fee bow ineffectual that bitherto fpent bas been; confidering, at the fame Time, that a great Quantity is to be referv'd, to fight five Dutch Galeons we expect; which, if they come, part of our Fleet muft of neceffity go out and ingage. For, if this be not done they will put Succours into the Place, which tho, never fo inconfiderable, as hut of 100 Mufkets, would be very prejudicial to us; befides that, it will he a great Difreputation, not to meet thens. out at Sea.

As to the Mensfickning, heing kill'd and wounded, we fay, thofe are wiffortunes always attending War; and that we are fenfikle bow faft the Army grows weak, for which. Reafon, it will be neceffary to be the more expeditious in the Work we bave in Hand; yet fo that neither too much Precipitation may expofe it to Hazards, nor Delay give Time for all the Army to fall Sick. As for the Scarcity of Provifions, our Opinion is, itsat an Account be taken of what we bave, bow mucls is confum'd in a Month, and thus the neceflary Diftribution may be made in Time; for otherwife we Shall fall joort, when we leaft expeat it; and Htunger will do us more Harm than the Enemy.

To the Danger of the Ships threatned by the Pilots, and their Adoice ta go over to Tydore, we anfiver. That if the Fleet quits the Station where it is, it will he a manifeft Detriment to the Army, which is fupply'd from it with, all it Wants, and muft want every Tbing upon its Abfence. Befides, that if the Enemy fee it once gone, they will take frefh Courage; and if the Dutch come and find the Harhour empty, it is plain they will pollefs themfelves of it. Again, if the Fleet makes off, muft not a confiderable Number of the Soldiers go for its Security? Now how can it be proper to divide our Forces; efpecially confidering they are fo fmall, and the Men fo fickly? Befides that liere is no Place to lay up the Prozifions, for the Waters defroy them by Day and Night. Whilft aboard the Fleet, the Soldiers bave it daily brought frefh and wholefome. Farther, the Pilots, and Natives of Tydure, fay the Ships are fafe in the Harbour till afier the Middle of April.

We bave Jad Tryal of the Enemies Power, and believe they Jave Men, Ainmunition, and Cannon to Spare, confidering our Condition; and the Commanders, and Deferters fram them confirm it. But neither can it be deny'd, that the very firft Day we insag'd, as we bave been told by Prifoners, and wounded Men, 1000 of the beft Men they bad in Ternate came out to fop our Paffage with five Pieces of Cannon, and so pofted, that only two of our Men could come up a Breaft to charge them; and yet they with all thefe Odds, were beaten off with the Lofs of many Men, as appear'd by the dead. Bodies, fcatter'd along the Shore, where they alfo loft their Artillery. The fame Day we faw them fally upon the Fort of Santiago, where Captain Villagra commanded, and tho' our Men were furpriz'd, yet they repuls'd Whem and jlew the Flomer of their Commanders; fo that they were ceitainly much weakned; and ftreigbined by Hunger-and Sicknefs. And tho' with the Help of the Dutch, and their own Hardinefs they repair the Breaches, and fortify themfelves with. Artillery, Means may be found to furmount thefe Dificulties, for if there were none, it would be no War we are ingag'd in.

We are fenfible of the King of Tydore's TVant of Faith; but what difcreet Commander bas not made the beft of fuch docidents, and wink'd at dilloyal, and unfteady Perfons till a more favourable Opportunity; Befides, before we landed, Notice was taken of this Princes Indiferency, and that bis Defign is to protract the War, rather in Hatred to Ternate, than out of any Love to our Nation. We our felves will make amends for the Want of Labourers; we will be both Soldiers and Pioniers, as we bave hitherto been; for the Sword and the Spade are equally bonourable in fo juft a War; and we again offer our felves, and our Soldiers, to perform whatfoever thall be for the Service of God and the King.
It is therefore our Opinion, that the Galeons remove immediately; that two of them Ancbor between our Ladies Cavalier, and S. Paul, and batter the infide of the Cavalier, and the other two, the Houfe of S. Paul, the Fort, and the Town. Then of Necefity the Defendants within muft fy, fince the Defence of the Stone Parapet, is but a meer Sbow, except only where it looks upon the open Country. As foon as the Galeons begin to batter, we will aljo batter the Ravelin before the Cavalier, where the feven Pieces of Cannon are, which will certainly be ruind in two Hours, becaufe our Fort of S. Chriftopher commands them, and the Thicknefs is not above a Fathom.' To conclude, My Lord, the Want of Provifions, and of Health, the coming of the Dutch, tho Refolution of the Befieged, of all other Dificulties will be firmounted by Celerity. We are ready to perform all Tlings on our Part; it belongs to your Lordfloip to make Tryal of our Promife. It will not be reaFonable immediately to abandon the fmall Remains of Chrijfianity in the Moluccos, and the Hopes of regaining what bas been loft, in vain ney, fo many Lives, and the Honour of European Nations,ky turning our Baupon fo boly an Undertaking.
This Anfwer was fent in a Paper figned by the Captains, to fatisfy all his Doubts, for they anfwer'd others by Word of Mouth, which were flarted by the Portuguefe Commanders to perfwade drawing off; but the General Thanking both Parties for their Zeal in Advifigg, broke up the Council; and on Saturday the 22d, came to a Refolution, which he left to be put in Execution the next Day. That Night he drew off the Cannon; and on Sunday Night, at the fecond Watch, the Forces began to March towards the Shore, where the Ships lay to take in the Men. The Admiral, Thomas de Souffa, led the Van; the General and his Officers, the Main Body; and Fobn Xuarez Gallinato, with the Captains Don Thomas Bravo, foln Fernandez de Towes, and Clrijfopher Villagra, and the Mufketiers, brought up the Rear. In this Order the Foot were Shipp'd off, and got all aboard by the Morning. At the fame time two Dutch Men, of thofe that were in the Fort with the Enemy, fled from it, and came to the Ships. Among other Intelligence, they told the Spamiards how flrong the Enemy were in Men and Cannon: That they had 36 heavy Pieces mounted on the Ravelin near our Ladies; feven on Cachil Tulo's Bafion; three between them; and two on the Cavalier; three at S. Paul's; eight in the Main Fort; three at Linatao; three more on that Baftion, and four more near it.

This Day Furtado propos'd to fail away with the Fleet to wards Amboyna, but wanting Water, put it off for four Days, and during that ime Gallinato had leafure to Difcourfe him, fince he was going away, about providing the Fort of Tydore, which could not be Maintain'd without Supplies. He Anfwer'd, He was very willing to do it, but could not; and therefore would fend Succours from Amboyna. Application was made to him to provide for other Wants, which concern'd his Majefties Service, to which he return'd the fame Anfwer. He prefs'd him to confider, in what Condition the left the Fort of Macbian, whereto particular Regard ought to be had, becaufe there were 50 Men and a Captain, with the fmall Veffel, call'd a Fortraz'd, already fent to Deftroy it, and did believe it was then Raz'd.

Having taken this Order, and Leave of the Commanders, he fet fail on Thurfay the 27 th of March, fending a Letter to Don Pedro de Acunna, the Governour of the Pbilippine Mlands, with an Account of the Particulars of this Enterprize: A fmall Part of it will fuffice to exprefs the Thoughts and Intention of fo Difcreet a Commander as he has been prov'd by his former and later Actions; for it is not to be believ'd that he would quit the Attempt upon Ternate, without fubftantial Reafons: The Succours your Lord-

By what has bappen d in this Expedition, lis Majehly will underfland bow mucb be is bebolding to your LordBip, and bow little to the Commander of Malaca; fince it is lis Fault, that bis Majefty was not fervid. When the Succours your Lordlaip fent we arriv'd, this Fleet bad no Ammunition, as baving been two Years out from Goa, and baving Ipent it as Occafion offer'd. Wherefore, that it miglte not le thought I Obftructed bis Majefties Service, I landed; and did it with the Lofs of many of the Enemies. I carrysd up my laft Trencljes within 100 Paces of the Enemies Works, planted five heavy Battering-Pieses; and in ten Days Battery a great part of a Raftion, wherein the Enemies main Strength conffted, was ruin'd. Dutring that Time all :the Powder the Fleet had was fpent, without leaving enough for one Charge of the Guns, and if it hould bappen, as I do not queftion it will, that I meet any Equadron of Dutch, I muft of Nece fity figlot them, this being my principal Motive for raijng of the Siege, when the Enemy was reduc'd to great Streigbts, both by Want, and for that many of their beft Commanders had been kill'd during the Siege. By this your Lordfhip may guefs at the Condition I am in. This Letter dilates upon the Coaplaints againft the Governours of India. He promifes Don Pedro, that if he meets with any Succours at Amboyna, and is not oblig'd to go relieve the fouthern Parts, he will return to the Moluccos, tho' he be forc'd to go refit as far as Malaca. He praifes and recommends the Captains Gallinato, Don Thomas, Villagra, and their fellow Soldiers, and So concludes the Letter.
Gallinato went to Tydore, where he was inform \({ }^{6} \mathrm{~d}\), that tho the Fort of Machian

Macbian was abandond, only one Banian of it was difmantled; fo that if the Enemy would pofers themfelves of it, they might do it with Eare, and were actually about it. Hereupon he fpoke to the King of Tydore, and the Portrguefe Commander in Chief, recommending to them, that they would either take Care to maintain, or elfe quite raze that Fort. They commiffion'd a Captain to do the latter, who going to perform it, loaded the Veffel, calld Galizabiva with 200 Quintals, or a hundred Weight of Clove, and return'd to Tydore, to the great Satisfaction of the Portuguefes of that Ifand. At this Time the King of Ternate was repairing the Breaches in his Fortifications, and rais'd new Defences, providing againf Dangers he knew Nothing of yet. His Subjects are Warlike, with whom, and the Affiftance of the Dutol, he thought his Kingdome invincible. Great Matters might have been expected could any Confidence be repossd in the King of Tydore; but our Commanders fay his People, and thofe of Ternate underffand one another.
On the 17 th of April, the King of Tydore acquainted Gallinato, that with his Leave he defign'd to make Peace with the King of Ternate. He anfwer'd, He would do well to confider what was expedient for his own Dominions, without Detriment to his Majefty's Service. The fame Day the Sangiack of Nua, in the Kingdom of-Bachian, came to Tydore. He was a Chriftian, and laying hold of the Opportunity of ferving his Majefty in the lan Expedition, vifited the Queen of Tydore, a beautiful young Lady, Daughter to the King of Bachian, who liv'd difcontented; becaufe the King her Hushand was more fond of another ancient Woman, and not fo, well born. The Sangiack had Commiffion and Strength to Iteal her away, and conduct her to her Father, fince neither Complaints, Intreaties, nor any other Methods had been of Force to reclaim the King. On the 4 th of May, came a Sifter of the King's, on the fame Pretence of vifiting her Neice, and reconciling her to the King. The Sangiack and fhe having concerted thofe Affairs, the young Queen going abroad: with them to an Entertainment, and all Things being provided, they embark'd, and fail'd away towards Bachian. The King of Tydore was enraged, out of Patience, and apprehenfive of a new War; tho' afterwards this Difference was amicably adjufted, by the Interpofition of Cachil Malua, a principal Perfon of Baclian.
On the 22d of May News was brought to Tydore, that the King of Ternate, had fitted out 50 Carcoas in his Harbour, and expected the Dutcb Ships. He, at the fame Time, made Rejoycings, in a triumphant Manner for the Departure of the Spaniards. It was requifite to leave fome Men Fort of and Provifions in the Fort of Tydore, which being done, Gallinato, who Tydore had before writ by an Advice-Boat, to the General and Governour of the \(\sqrt{ } u p p l y{ }^{〔} d\) 。 Philippine Inlands, left the Moluccos, and fail'd himfelf that Way. This was the Event of that fo long intended and threatned Undertaking, which I have deliver'd impartially, having fearch'd after, and even guefs'd at fome Excufes to juftify the Behaviour of fo great a Commander as Andrew Furtado; enquiring of thofe very Officers who were prefent at the Attacks, and iat the Councils. Neither by them, nor by the General's own Me-Impaytiamorials and Papers, can be found or made out any more than what ap- lity of thes pears by thofe which have been here inferted; but to judge of thefe Affairs Autbor. is not the-Part of an Hiforian.

Earl of Lemos Prefident of the Council of the In dies

This was sprit when be was living.

This fame Year, about the beginning of April, the Prefidentfhip of the Council of the Indies was conferr'd on Don Pedro Fernandez de Caftro, Eat of Lemos and Andrade, Marquefs de Sarvin, Chief of his Family, whofe Royal Antiquity is well known, Nephew and Son-in-law to the Duke of Lerma. In his Youth he gave fuch Hopes, as were after wards fulfill'd by his Actions. He was then Gentleman of the Bed-Camber to our King. The World made the fame Judgment of him, that the Senate of Rome had in his Time of Scipio, afterwards call'd Africinus, when it made a Scruple of entrufting him with Matters of great Difficulty, becaufe he was to young. But Experience foon made appear in the Earl, as well as in Scipio, that Prudence, which regulates all other Virtues, often anticipates grey Hairs. It is no Merit of the Off-fpring to be defcended from Noble, or Rlebeyan Families; but fuch was the Vivacity of this great Man's Spirit, and Judgment, that had he been born Mean, he might by his own natural Parts have made his Fortune. No Man can fay he wanted publick or private Accomplifhment. In him appears a fettled Magnanimity ; with a courteous Sincerity ; yet temper'd with that Juftice we extol in the fevere Aufterenefs of fome of the Ancients. Thefe Virtues are interwoven with Religion, a Zeal for its Propagation, and the univerfal Agreement, which is the Product of publick Tranquility. Thus he fervdd his King, with Care and Solicitude; without Intermiffion, or feeking himfelf and his Advantage. It will be'requifite to be brief in this Particular, becaufe his fingular Modefty is not pleas'd, with the Soothings of Commendation; but is as averfe to Flattery, as remote from fanding in need of it.

The Earl found the Council fill'd with zealous and grave Men; the Lords Benediá Rodriguez Valtodano, Peter Bravo de Sotomayor, Alonfo Molina de Medrano, Knight of the Order of Santiago, or S. Fames the Aportle, Fames de Armenteros, Gonzalo de Aponte, Don Thomas Ximenes Ortis, Don Fran \(\rightarrow\) cifco Arias Maldonado, Benavente de Benavides, Joln de Villagutierre, Lewis de salcedo, and Ferdinand de Villagomez; all of them çualify'd by Extraction, noted for Learning, and having taken the higheft Degrees in it. Thefe were Counfellors, and the laft of them Solicitor General of that Affembly, To which alfo belong'd Jobn de Ybarta, Knight of the Order of Calatrava, and Commendary of Moratalaz, and Peter de Ledefma, the King's Secretaries. In the Places of the Licenciates, Molina de Medrano, and Gonzalo de Aponte, whom his Majefy afterwards employ'd in his Royal Council of Caffile, and in thofe of fome who dy'd, his Majefty, at Ceveral Times put in the Licenciates, Lewis de Salcedo, Gudiel, and Dont Francis de Texada y de Mendoza, Doctor Bernard de Olmedilla, and Fohn de rbarra, &ec. All thefe amidft that Multitude of Bufinefs they dexteroufly difpatch'd, laid all their main Defigns, for the reftoring his Majefty's Monarchy to its Fulnefs, in thofe utmoft Limits of it ; a Project fuitable to the Genius of the new Prefident. He enquiring into the general and particular Pofture of all Things then depending, met with that of the Mohucco Iflands, and finding it of Confequence, and almoft forgotten, inclin'd to give it a helping Hand.

Much about this Time, Brother Gafpar Gomez came into Spain, being fent by Don Pedro de Acunna, to folicite that Enterprize. The Brother at feveral tedious Audiences, gave the Prefident full Information of all that concern'd concern'd the Molucco Iflands, their Wealth, the great Treafure Spain has expended in Attempts to recover them, to reffore perfecuted Chriffianity, where it had been fo much receiv'd ; and what Confecuence it was, that this fhould be done by Way of the Pbilippine Illands. The Earl undertook that Caufe, as fuch ought to be fupported, and confulted about it with the Council, with the Dake of Lerma, and moft particularly with the King's Confeffor. He never deffifed, till it was brought to bear, and in fuch a Forwardnefs, that it might be effectually difpatch'd. The Members of the fupream Council, with the fame Zeal, and confidering the repeated Difappointments of this Enterprize, forwarded the Expedition, and all of them agreed that Don Pedro de Acumna fhould undertake it in Perfon. This favourable Difpofition of theirs, was fully confirm \({ }^{\star d}\), by the News brought a Year after, of the ill Succefs of the united Forces of India under Furfado, and thofe of the Philippine Iflands, under Gallinato. It was writ by Don Pedro de Acunna, defcribing it to the Life, with Duplicates for his Majefty, and the prime Minifters, and though he left much to Brother Gafpar Goniez, he was very particular himfelf.

He complain'd that they had leet llip fuch an Opportunity of Recovering Ternate, and chaftifing the Dutch, who refort thither to the Trade of Clove, Mace, and other Spice, and Drugs. He reprefented the Danger the Pbilippine Iflands were in, after that Neighbouring Tyrant's Victory; and that having more particularly weigh'd the Circunm ances of that Affair, befides the Neceflity of regaining the Reputation loft there, he found that whatfoever has been yet faid, was fhort. For not to mention the principal End, which was the Propagation of the Faith, but ouly with Regard to the King's Revenue, he fhow'd, That Ternate being reductd it would be eafie to fubdue the Iflands of Banda, which are above thirty, lying about a hundred Leagues from the Moluccos, full of valuable Mace, and poffefs'd by an unwar-like People, would add that Income to Spain, and take it from the Dutch, who carry all away, with little or no Oppofition. He promis‘d the fame as to the Iflands Papuas, which are many, not far diftant from Ternate, fome of them Subjects to that King, and yeilding him a confiderable Quantity of Gold, Amber, and other valuable Tribute. Then he extended to the Great Batochina, or Gilolo, deferibing its Fertility, and how that Tyrannical King opprefs'd it. Thofe of Celebes 45 Leagues from Ternate, where he had ftrong Garrifons. The Greater and Leffer Favas, whofe Kings would again fubmit to Spain, as foon as the Moluccos were brought under. He earnefly recommended Secrefie and Expedition. To evince the Neceffity of both, befides the ufual Reafons, he urg'd that as foon as thofe Rebels and the Dutch, hear of any War-like Preparations, they fpare neither Coft, nor Labour, to make all neceffary Provifion; and that they never fail by the Coafts of India without ruining, and plundering them. He affirm'd, that the General Furtado was no way to blame for hae ving abandon'd that Enterprize ; for as it plainly appeardd, and Captain Gallinato declar'd he had always behav'd himfelf like a brave Gentleman, and difcreet Commander ;but that befides the Want of Provifions and Am-. munition, he could not relie upon his own Men; and that if the Succours fent him from Manila had been more confiderable, he would have hazarded all with only them. He faid, the King of Tydore had fent him great Complaints againft the General Furtado, and that it was a common faying with him, That before he came to the Moluccos the King of Tydore Slept, and he of Ternate Watch'd; but now the Cafe was alter \({ }^{\text {d }} \mathrm{d}\), and the contrary might be faid. Yet he believ'd he was not heartily forry for the Difappointment. The fame he urg'd in Relation to the Kings of Bachian and Sian. He concluded, offering to undertake that Affair in Perfon, provided he might be furnifh'd with what was neceffary, that he might not be Diftrefs \({ }^{\circ} \mathrm{d}\) as his Predeceffors had been. Then he went on, by Way of Anfwer to the Objections, or Acculations of the Spanifh Commanders, who being us'd to the Wars in Europe, defpistd all other Enemies, who made War without all thofe Engines, and Fire-Arms us'd in Flanders, France, and England. He fays, none of thofe Eaftern Provinces wanted any of the Inventions we have in Europe; and that befides the great Numbers they have, and the Dexterity in ufing them of the Faporiefes, Clinefos, Mindanaos, and Moluccos, they are no lefs expertat their Bows, and Arrows; effecialIy the frvanefes, who conquer when they fly, and that they are not deftitute of fuch Stratagems, that the Spaniards have need of all their Valour againft them, and their numerous Armies. He owns the Molucco Iflands can not fand in Competition, with the ftrong and populous Cities taken in our Parts, but that neverthelefs, fo many Chriftian Churches as have been pollured in them; the baniming of our Religion; the Perfecution of its Minifters; the contintal Tyranical Practices; and Alliance of thofe People, with the Dutch, his Majefties laft Rebels, ought not to be caft into Oblivion. And that, were there no other Motive but this, the King ought to retrieve his Honour, which is concern'd for the lois of fo many of his Fleets, and Commanders. It is very remarkable, that tho' in thefe Letters hegave an Account of the Pofture of Affairs, either as to Peace, or War, of So many \{everalKings,among whofe Territories the Spanifh Arms appear,nov without Glory; yet he infifts not fo much on any Point, as that of Ternate, which was grown Old by above thirty Xears fanding, to the Difcredit of our Nation. From all this may be inferrd, how neceffary it is always, in Affairs of great Difficulty, to bend the entire Underfanding to them, and to be in Love with the Defign conceiv'd, that fo the Event may anfwer the Expectation. He at the fame Time fent long Reflections, and Projects of the Count de Monterey, then Viceroy of Perv, relating to the Execution of that Affair, wherein it plainly appear'd, by the Confonancy of the Reafons, and the Opinions of Men well acquainted with thofe Patts, that the Expedition was of greater Concern and Importance, than all the Arguments made ule of upon the like Occafions do ever amount to.

Lewane/s of theKing of Ternate and Cachil Amuxa.

Thus was Ternate bandy'd in the Councils of Spain, whilf at home it abounded in Trade, yet food upon its Guard, and particularly the King, whofe Profperity gave him Occafion to indulge his Inclinations, of Cruelty towards the Chriftians, and private Satisfaction to himfelf. He gave himfelf up to the Love of Celicaya, yet being divided among fo many Women, it had not the ufual Power over him, but allow'd of other Diverfions. Cachil Amuxa, the braveft of his Commanders, and his Coufin Gernan, was newly Marry'd to a Daughter of the King of Mindanao, a fingular Beauty, not of the Afatick Sort, but of the Spanifh or Italian. The King, who was us'd to obferve no Rules, courted her as a Gallant, and as a King, perfifting, and prefenting her; and was foon admitted by the Indian Lady. Her Hulband, tho' their Privacy for a while conceal'd his Wrong; at length, by the King's contriving to keep him abroad, and the Interpofition of Time, which reveals all Secrets, found out who it was defil'd his Bed. What could the unfortunate Man do? He durft not kill his Wife, for the Love he bore her, and for Fear of the King's Difpleafure. He refolv'd to be reveng'd, as if it had been in a Money Concern. In order to it, he diffembled the beft he could, and whenfoever he had an Opportunity to talk to Queen Celicaya, either feign'd, or profefs \({ }^{6} d\) Love, till he had inculcated it as he defir'd. He bore with the Difdain and Threats, which are the Weapons Nature beftow'd on that Sex; and Perfeverance prevail \({ }^{2}\), for Celicaya rewarded Cachil's Love. This Intrigue continu'd a confiderable Time, till the King found it out, and both Rivals took Notice of it. Tho' the King more deeply refented the Reprifal his Kiniman had made, to be reveng'd; yet they did not fall out on that Accont, nor forbear converfing together. They preferv'd Peace and Friendfhip in their Houfes; and the King food fo much in need of Cachil Amuxa, for his Wars, which in thofe Parts are no lefs frequent, than Peace, the fpecial Blefling of Heaven, is among us, that he durft not declare againft him, and what is more, not fo much as difpleafe Celicaty, She, as if the Abufe tolerated in Men had been allow'd to W omen, juftify'd herfelf by alledging the Wrong the King had done her in courting the other. However, the King being once in the Field, under one of their Arbours, and Cachil Amzxa coming in, without his Campilan, or Cymiter, the Guards upon a Signal given them, handled their Arms, fell upon, and gave him many Wounds on his Head, Face, Arms and Body, none daring to defend him. He was fenfible of the Occafion, and Revenge, and fuddenly drawing a Imall Criz, or Dagger, he happen'd to have about him, did not only defend himfelf againft many Cuts and Thrufts, but affaulted the Murderers, and with great Activity, wounded fome, bore down others; and put the reft to Elight, killing four. Nor had his Fury flopp'd there, but that the King flipp'd away ; tho now his Wounds had weaken'd Amuxa by Reafon of the great Quantity of Blood that ras from them; He was left for dead; but an Uncle of his, hearing the Noife, came in to his Alfiftance, with his Followers; who all bound up his Wounds, and carry'd him to his Houfe, where he was cursd, by the King's Permiffion. This was the Effect of his Fear, rather than good Nature, for all his Kindred took the Injury upon themfelves, and began to meditate Revenge 3 which they would certainly have compafs \({ }^{\text {s }}\), and made fair Way for the Pretenfions of Spais, had not thofe who were apprehenfive uf another War foon reconcil d thofe Animofities. The Cachil was cur'd, but with fuch Scars in his Face, and fo many deep Gaikes and Seams in his Head, that hewas nothing like the Man he had been before. So fay they who knew him, and have feen him in our Days at Manila and Ternate. He was reftor'd to the King's Favour, and both of them to that of their Wives, without. Preparations int Spain againft the Moluccos.

The Prefidents Remonftrance to the King.
 HE continual Application of the Prefident and Council to expedite the Enterprize, feem'd to be a Prefage of the late ill Succefs at the Molucco Iflands. The true Account of it was brought in Don Pedro de Acunna's Letters. The King and his Minifters were concern'd at it ; but at the fame Time, it was a Motive to haften the Preparations, recover the lof Reputation, and put an End at once to that Strife. Some attributed the Mifearriage to Difagreement between Gallinato and Firtado; others fufpected the Difcord had been between the Spani/b and Portuguefe Nations. None urg'd that it might be for Want of Neceffaries for carrying on the Work. Thefe Debates ended, and the Prefident efpoufing the Bufinefs with the Refolution that was requifite, reprefented the Matter in a lively Manner to the King, recounting what the General Furtado had done, the Succours fent by Don Pedro de Acumna under Gallinato, and how, tho' the Officers and Soldiers did their Duty, the Succefs fail'd. That it was look'd upon as moft certain, That the Molucco Kings, who fill continud under Subjection, had acted coldly. That this Failure in them was occafion'd by a Sort of State Policy, eafy to be feen thro'; which was the Protracting of the War, and making ufe of our Arms for their private Advantage, without defiring it ffould be fully concluded. That if Means were not us'd for expelling the Dutch out of Ternate, they would become abfolute Mafters of the Archipelago of the Conception, and deprive his Majefly of all the Revenue of the Spice, as they had almoft done in the moft confiderabie Parts of India.

The King having confider'd it , approv'd of what was laid before him ; The King's and being lenfible of its mighty Import ance, judg'd the Number of Ships, Anfwer. Men and Arms demanded, too fmall; and there ore added more with his own Royal Hand, without fixing a certain Proportion ; and order'd, that no Time fhould be loft, feeming very earneft to have his Decree put in Execution. In the fame Manner he directed, thro the Intervention of the Duke of Lerma, that the Defign in Hand fhould be carry'd on. Hereupon the Council pafs'd the Neceflary Orders, and the Prefident fent Letters and Inftructions to the Viceroy of New Spain, and the Governour of the Pbilippine Iflands, that they might with the fame Diligence fulfil the Commands they fhould receive as to this Point. The King in his Order fent to this Effect, declar'd his Will, and the Method he was pleas'd fhould be obferv'd as follows.

Valladolid, June the zoth 2504.

After the Difpatching of this Order, or Letter, the Contents of it Degan to be executed in Spain. In the foregoing Year 16c3, whilf Don Pedro de Acunna wias bufy in making Preparations to this Effect, an Aucident Dreadful happen'd in the Philifpine Iflands, which threatned the Ruin of them, and Fire at greater Calamaties. A Fire broke out at Manila in April, which con-Manila. fum'd the beft Part, and above half the City, without being able to fave the Goods, which had been landed from the Ships newly arriv \({ }^{\text {c }}\) d from New Spain, and laid up in the fafeft Part of the foufes, whereof 270 of Timber and Stone were burnt, as alfo the Monaftery of S. Dominick, Houfe and Church, the Royal Holpital of the Spaniards, and the Magazines, no Building that lay betwixt them efcaping. Fcurteen Spaniards were burnt, and among them, the licenciate Sanz, a Canon of the Cathedral, with fome Indians and Blacks. The Lofs was valu'd at a Million. It feem'd to be an Omen of what was to follow, which agreed with the Signs feen in the Sky.

In the foregoing Marcb, a Clinefe Ship came into the Bay of Manila, in which, as the Out-Guards gave the Account, there came three great Mandarines, with fuitable Bomp and Retinue, about their Monarch's Bufinefs. The Governour gave them leave to land, and come into the City. As foon as landed, they were carry'd directly to the King's Houfe, in Palankines of Ivory, and curious Sorts of Wood gilt, on the Shoulders of their Servants, who were clad in Red. There the Governour expected them, with the Members of the Royal Court, and a great Number of Officers and Suldiers, who alfo lin'd the Streets, and publick Places. When they came to the Houfe, they werefet down by their Servants, and leaving their Colours, Umbrelloes, Launces, and other Tokens of Grandeur, went into a facious Room magnificently adorn'd. As foon as they faw the Governour, who, expected them flanding, the Mandarines, making their Obeyfance, and performing Ceremonies of Civility after the Cliniefe Fafhion, made up to him. Don Pedro return'd their Courtefy after the Manner of Spain. They, purfuant to their Commiffion, with the Interpofition of Interpretere, told him; \({ }^{6}\) That their King had fent them with a Cbi"s nefe, they brought along with them in Chains, that they might with "f their own Eyes fee a Goiden Mland, call'd Cabit, near Manila, of " which that Subject of his had given him an Account, telling him, it If was not poffefs'd by any Body, and therefore ask'd of him a Number "s of Ships, to feize it, promifing to bring them back loaden with Gold, " and if he did not he fhould take his Head. That they were come to "f fulfill that Promife to their King, and to fatisfy him of the Truth of "the Exiftence of fo ftrange an Illand; which being an Affair of fuch " Confequence, their King would not commit it to any Perfons of lefs 65 Note than themfelves. Don Pedra de Acunna anfwerd them in a few Words: "That they were Welcome; that they might reft them in the "s Houfe prepar'd for their Entertainment in the City, and they would af\({ }^{46}\) terwards difcourfe about that Affair more at Leifure. Thus they took

Their Ex-traordinay M Meffage. DouPe-: dro's \(A n\) fwer. their Leave, and at the Door got up again into their Palankines, on the Shoulders of their Slaves, who carry'd them to their Lodgings. There the Governour order'd them tobe plentifully furniffid with Provifions, and all Dainties as long as they ftaid.

It is a plain Cafe, that the coming of thefe Mandarines muft raife a Jealoufy, and make it be concluded, that they camie upon another Defign, than what they dechar'd. The Chinefes are fharp and miffrufful, and it was not to be believ'd, that their King fhould fend them on that Errand, nor the Fiction likely to be credited by the Spaniards. At the fame Time, eight Cbinefe Ships arriv'd at Manila with Merchandize, and declar'd, That the Mandarines come as Spies, Decaufe the King of Cbina intended tobreak off all Trade with the Spaniavds, and fend over a mighty Fleet of Ships that could carry an hundred Thoufand fighting Men, to poffels himfelf of that Piace, and that this Expedition would be fone time that Year. The Governour redoubled his Care for the Security of the City, and orsder'd the Mandarines to be well treated, but not to be fufferd to go out of the City, nor to adminifter Juftice among the Sangleys, or Chinefes, as they had began to do, which they feem'd to refent. Then he fent them Word, that they muft difpatch their Bufinefs, and return fpeedily to Clina. All this was done, without any Signs of Jealoufy fhown by the Spaniards, or that they faw into their private Defigns.
The Mandavines vifited the Governour again, and then he was more plain; and making fomething of a Jeft of their Coming, faid to them, That Prifoner ; or if it had been true that any fuch Gold were in the Pborizippine Iflands, that he fhould think the Spaniards would fuffer it to be carry'd away, the Country belonging, as it did, to the King of Spain. The Mandarines anfwet'd they believ'd as much; but that their King had fent them, and they were oblig'd to come, and to carry him an Anfwer. That having done their Part, according to their Duty, they would return. The Governour being willing to make fhort Work of it, fent the Mandarines, with their Prifoner and Servants to the Port of Cabite, which is two Leagues from the City. There they were receiv'd with the Noife of our Cannon, purpofely fir'd at their Landing, which they admir‘d, and did not conceal their Surprife and Fear. When lanted they ask'd the Prifoner, whether that was the Ifland he had told the King of: He, nothing daunted, it, werd, It was. They reply'd, Then where is the Gold? All that is in the Prefence of fome Queftions put to him; and all Nasuatatown in terbreters. To conclude, Tree Leaves to be filld with Mandarines orderd a it to the King of Calmand after dining and refting, rety Earth, to carry The Naguata of China; terpreters, declarcd, That the Man'd to Manila. The Prifoner to anf or In rectly the King was, that there was abundance of Gold, and other Wealth in to Poffeffion of the Spaniards and Natives of the Philippine Inlands; and if he would furnifh him with a Fleet well mann'd, he having been at \(L_{u z o H_{3}}\) and knowing the Country, would undertake to make himfelf Mafter of it, and return to China with the Ships laden with Gold. This, with what the Cbinefes had faid before, feem'd more likely than the Invention of the Mandarines.

\section*{the SPICE-ISLANDS.}

Don F. Michael de Benazides, then Archbifhop Elect of Manila, who underftood the Cbinefe Language, was of this Opinion. He had been in their Country, was acquainted with the Subtilties of the Sangleyes, and fuffer'd their Torments and Cruelties. It was prefently Judg'd, that the Mandarines came under that Colour to view the Country, and to lay the Foundation of their Infurrection and Mutiny there. Thefe certain Judgments are grounded on the Irrational Difpofition of the Sangleyes, or Cbinefes, which; not to mention other Proofs, will fufficiently appear, by fome few Periods of the long Letter Ferdinand de los Rios, of whom we have fpoken before, writ to Manila, from the Port of Pinar in Canton, where he was upon the Service of the Church, and of his King. For thefe Infidels, fays Part of a he, have the Liglst of Nature more clouded than any. ot Jeer People in the Letter World, and therefore there is need of Angels, and not Men, to deal with, concerning them. For the betfer conceiving what a fort of a Country'tis we are in, I foall the Chiueonly fay, that this is the true Kingdom of the Devil, and where be may be faid fes.
to govern with abfolute Power. Every Sangley, or Chinefe, feems to be pof fefs'd by lim; for there is no piece of Malice, or Fraud, but what they attempt. The Government, tho' outwardly it appears good, as to Order and Method, for its Security; yet when you once bave Experience of its Practice, you will find it is all a Contrivance of the Devil. Tho' they do not bere publickly rob, or plunder Strangers, they do it another worfe Way, &e.

This Jealoufy conceiv'd againft the Sangleyes, who, once for all, are the Chinefes Cloinefes fo call'd by the Spaniards at Manila, was verify'd; for it defign the was afterwards known, that the Captain of the King of Clrina's Conqueft Guards had begg'd of him the Conqueft of the Pbilippine Iflands, at the of the Phi Perfwafion of that Chinefe they brought Prifoner. The Governour trea-lippines. ted the Mandarines civilly, and miftrufted their Defigns, keeping a watchfull Eye over them. However there wanted not fome-body that afk \({ }^{6}\) them, what they thought of that Fellow's Invention, fince they had feen that the Place he mention'd was fo far from having any Gold, that there were not the leaft Tokens of any fuch Thing to be found in it; and fince it was fo, they ought to make him give it under his Hand, that he had told his King a Lye. One of the Mandarines bid him do fo, and he taking the Pen form'd three Characters, which, explain'd in our Tongue, fignify'd, If the King The Prijopleafes, it is Gold ; and if not, it is Sand. Being prefs'd farther, he decla- ners Dered, That he had inform'd his King that Gold was produc'd there, to incline claration. his Majefty to entruft him with a good Fleet, wherewith he might "take Revenge of the Chriftian Sangleyes, who had done him many Wrongs. Little Notice was taken of all this, and tho' the Authority of the Mandarines feem'd to corroborate it, all was look'd upon as Folly, for none believ'd that they defignsd to carry on a War out of their Country. The Mandarjnes return'd Home, having, as is believ'd, communicated their Project to the Sangleyes that were fettied there, who at Manila, and in the other Iflands, were above 30000 .

The fame was practis'd by the Chinefe King in the Ifland of Aynao, or Aynan, a mof fruitfur Country, and near to his Kingdom, where the Cbinefes crept in under Colour of Trade, as they did at Manila, and poffefs \({ }^{\circ} d\) themfelves of it to this Day. This Ifland has fuch a plentiful Pearl Fifhery, that in the Year 1600 the King caus'd 1500 Arrobas, that is, 375 Hun-

Chineles take Aynan by Treachery.

Veffels that row \({ }^{〔} \mathrm{~d}\), for this Fifhery, every one being oblig'd to take a Pico, that is, five Arrobas, or Quarters of an Hundred, to gather a fufficient Quantity of Pearls to rebuild a Royal Apartment that had been pull'd dowir in that King's Palace. He built it again, covering the Walls and Roofs with Clufters of Pearls, and Birds, Beafts, Fruits, and Flowers, all made of that precious Subflance, fet on Plates of Gold. The Truth of this Fact appears by an Authentick Writing, which gives an Account of it; for being likely to be judgrd Fabulous, it was requifite to authotize the Relation.

The Governour did not altogether look upon the Deffgn of the Mandarines as a Piece of Vanity and Folly, tho' he conceal'd his Thoughts; for he made fome Preparations, and among the reft haften'd the repairing of the Walls of the City; which having fufferd much by the Fire, when the Arms were alfo loft, he made up that Defect the beft he could, and the Sangleyes were affifting in it. It is to be obferv'd, that ihofe People have a feparate Government among themielves, in the Philippize Iflands.
At the Time that Don Pedro, the Governour, was moft intent upon the War againft the Molucco Iflands, there happen'd fuch an Accident at Manila, as might not only have diverted it, but utterly deftroy'd the whole Province. A Man was then living, who flay'd at Manila, when the great Pyrate Limaion, of whofe Life and Actions there are Printed Relations, came to Ma nila. He was then an Idolater, and, as was reported, ferv'd tne Pyrate in a leud Capacity. His Name was Enoan, born at Semyg iua, in the Province of Cbincbeo; and was Baptiz'd under the Government of Santiago de Vera, who gave him his Surname, and he was call'd Baptijf de Verao He provd a fubtile Dealer, and fuccefffully Active, by which Means, following Trade, he gatherd \({ }^{\text {d }}\) immenfe Wealth, and was Great with the Governours of the Pbilippines. Through his Interpofition, the Sangleyes proposid to Don Pedro, that he fhould allow them to repair a Parapet of the Wall, which was finiming, at their own Expence; for that they, as a Part, of the Publick, would do his Majefy that. Piece of Service; and every one of them offer'd four Royals, that is, two Shillings, towards the Woik, This Piece of Service, and the Favour of the Citizens, Encan had purchas'd by good Turns, made the Sufpicion conceiv'd of their Confpiracy vanifh, or at leaft be little regarded.
He' was refpected by the Spaniards, and belov'd by the Sangleyes, had been their Governour feveral Times, and had many Godfons, and other Dependants. At this Time he cumningly kept within the City, to fecure Things by his Prefence; but from thence he stirr'd up the People, and laid his Defign, by Means of his Confidents. He thought fit to know what Number of People he fhould find to put it in Execution, and that he might mufter them in privade, order'd that every one of his Country-Men fhould bring him a Needle; pretending he had Occafion for them for fome Work. The sangleyes, either gueffing at the End. for which thefe Needles were gather 'd, or elfe ignorantly obey'd Encan. The Needles being put into a little Box, the Number of them was fo great, that it encourag'd him to undertake a far different Work than he had propos'd,
The Governour fill forwarded the Work of the Walls; rais'd Men; and directed the Juftices to furnifh themfelves with Provifions, and Arms, to relieve the City. Near the Parian, which is the Quarters of the Clinefes, there was another Ward, inhabited by Faponefes, who are Enemies to the Sangleyes, with whom they are continually at War in their own Country. The Governour fummon'd the Heads of them, and artfully div'd into their Inclinations, to difcover, what Ufe he might make of them upon Occafion, and whether they would affift him againtt the Chinefes, in Cafe they came to a War. The Faponefes, proud of the Confidence he repos'd in them, and of an Opportunity of ferving againft their Enemy, anlwer'd, they were ready to dye with the Spaniards. This difcreet. Precaution occafion'd fome Harm, for the Faponefes revealing the Secret, or adding fome Circumitances in the Relation, it was given out, that Dor Pedro, with their Affitance, intended to cut off the Sangleyes; and fome of the Faponejes told them as much, that they might fly, and reward them for the Intelligence. Many of them had Thoughts of abfconding in the Mountains, the Reft were frighted, and thofe who intended to revolt, found an Opportunity to perfwade the others to joyn with them, and encourag'd the unfettled with fair Promifes. In fhort, moft of them confented to the Rebellion, and appointed S. Francis's Day, when the Chriftians were all at Church, celebrating that Feftival, for the Time of rifing. Others were for having it done at Night, when 25000 of them were to break in and murder our Men.

Netwithftanding their Secrecy fome Difcovery was made. Joln de Tit lavera, Curate of the Village of Quiapo, inform'd the Arch-Bifhop, that an Indian. Woman, with whom a Sangley, or Cbinefe, was in Love, had difcover'd to him the Plot laid for S. Francis's Day. It was alfo reported, that a Woman-Black had faid, there would be a great Slaughter, and another Conflagration, like the former, on S. Francis's Night. Thefe and other Advices, were prefently made known to the Goveriour and Council. A fufficient Proof was to fee the Chinefes fell all, to their very Shoes, and compound their Debts, the' this was rather lookt upon as a Defign to be gone, than to commit any Treafon. To difpell their Fear of the Spaniards and Faponefes, the Governour made them fome Speeches himfelf, and caus'd the fame to be proclaim'd in all Parts, ingaging the King's Faith and Security; but nothing was of Force to quiet them. Three Days before the Feaft of S. Francis, above 400 Anbayes Merchants ftay'd in the City, becaufe they could not difpofe of their Goods. Thefe feeing the others in Diforder, on Account of the Report, that the Spaniards and Faponefes defign'd to maffacre them, fent a Meffage to the Governour, by Chican, one of the Province of Anhay, or Clincheo, whereof that City is Head. He came to him by Night, for Fear of the other Chinefes; and acquainted him with the Dread, and Confufion they were in, without knowing what Courfe to take, and therefore they came to him for Advice and Protection. He having hear'd him, gave all poffible Security in his. Anfwer, and the next Day went himfelf to talk to his Companions, whom he fatisfy'd in a very obliging Manner, affuring them, that the Spanifh Nation never was guilty of executing, or confenting to fuch Villanjes. This Difcourfe fatisfy'd them; bat fill thofe whohad Mifchief in their Hearts did not defiff.

Francis's Eve, a great Number of them met in a Huule half a League from the City, where there is Sugar Work: The Houfe ftands in a Thicket, which belongs to the Sangley Governour. Thole who began firft to gather there, were the Gardiners of the Quarter of Parian. Don Lewis Ferez de las Marinbas had Advice of it, from the Dominicans of Minondo. Don Lewis had Charge of the Chriftian Sangleyes, and fent Word to Don Pedro de Acunna. Minondo is a Town inhabited by Clinefes oppofite to Manirun on, as far as another Town From Minondo the Cbinefe Dwellings run on, as far as another Town of the Natives, call'd Tondo; and in the Quarter of the Chinefes, there is a ftrong Monaftery of Auguftinians, all of Stone. Not far from it the Dominicans have two, but wooden Buildings. The Governour, to be fully inforin'd of the whole Truth, fent thither Baptj/t. before mention'd, Governour of the Sangleyes, of whom he had a great Opinion, and all Men lookt upon him as a fincere Chriftian, and loyal Subject to the King. He charg'd him to \{peak to them in his Name, and to convince them how little Caufe they had to fear, as knowing how peaceable the Spaniards were. Baptift undertook this Commiffion, went to the Sugar Work, which was his own, fpoke to his Beople as he thought fit, and return'd very late with the Anfwer, telling Don Pedro, that he had been in Danger of being chofen their Chief, and that his People would have forc'd him to accept of it. That it was true, they were affembled together, and ftrong, but that it was all occafion'd by the Fear they had conceiv'd of the Spaniards; and that they had difplay'd feveral Colours with Chinefe Characters on them, which, being tranflated, contain'd thefe Words.
'The Cbief and General of the Kingdom of China, call'd Ezequi, and ano'ther of the Trike of Su, call'd Tym, following the Didates of Heaven in sthis Affair, that all the Chinefes may unanimoully joyn in this Work, and - Obey thjem, in Oider to root out thefe Enemy Robbers, are willing that Yo\({ }^{6}\) churre and Quinte, Japonefes, in Conjunction with us Sangleyes, do conquer - this City, and when we bave fubdubd it, we will divide this Country, evex - to the Grafs of it, equally between us, as becomes boving Brothers.

He pretended to be mightily concern'd, becaufe they would have proclaimd him King, and he was forc'd to make his Efcape to fave his Loyalty; and had deceiv'd them, promifing to return. Hereupon the Governour us'd Ieveral Means to appeafe them, the Danger of fo furious a Beginning increafing with the Number of the Rebells. The firft Mifchief he endeavour'd to prevent was the deftroying of the Rice, which was then almoft ripe. He appointed Colonel Auguftin de Arceo, Major Cbriftopher de Azcueia, and Captain Gallinato to go fpeak to them; but Don Lewis Perez de la Marinhas, who liv'd at Minondo thinking the Rebellion now requir'd fome harfher Remedy, came at Night to advife the Governour to be more watchful, and that all the City fhould do the like. He defir'd he would allow tim fome Men to fecure that Town, for he fear'd the Sangleyes would burn it that Night, and it was now requifite to make open Wiar; and he muft not believe they could be reduc'd by Meffages, or fair Means. The Governour being impos'd upon by Baptift, ftill hop'd all would be compos'd without Effufion of Blood, and at the Perfwafion of Don Lewis gave him 20 Soldiers, his own Servants, and fome marry'd Spaniards, who were Inhabitants of the fame Town. He difributed thefe Men into the moft dange- rous Rofts of it, that the Enemy might not fet Fire to it, and the Chrintian

Singleyes when they loft their Goods,joy n'd the Rebels. On the other Hand, the Governour privately pofted his Troops, and Sentinels; and all Men expected, or dreaded the Pate of that Night, particularly the General \(\mathrm{Fol}_{\mathrm{l}} n\) de Alcega, who, by the Governour's Command, was to follow the Orders he receiv'd from Don Lewis. Proclamation was again made, that all Men fhould be peaceable, under Penalty of being fent to the Galleys for four Years.

This availsd fo little, that, excepting 4000 Handicrafts Men, and the An-1000 bayes Merchants, all the Reft affembled at the Sugar Work. At one in Sangleyes the Morning, a Party of about 1000 Sangleyes march'd out of a Fort, with Salley. Catanas, or Cymiters, Halbards, and other Weapons advancd, as alfo with long Staves, harden'd at the Fire at the Points; which they ufe inftead of Pikes, and are no lefs ferviceable. Thefe are very frequent among them in their Country, and are made of a folid Sort of Wond, call \({ }^{6}\) d Mangle. They fell upon the Farm, or Pleafure Houfe of Captain Stephen de Marqui\(n a\), not far from their Parian, and murder \({ }^{\text {d }}\) him, his Wife, Children, Servants, and Slaves. They fet Fire to the Houfe, and to thofe of other Spaniards, among which were thofe of Colonel Peter de Cbaves, and of rwo Clergymen, who liv'd a retir'd Life, their Names Francis Gomez, and Ferdinand de los Rios. They alfo kill'd \(F\). Bernard de Santa Catalina, Commiffary of the Inquifition, of the Order of \(\mathcal{S}\). Dominick. All thefe defended themfelves, as did many more who efcap'd, defparately wounded. Thence they drew towards the Town of Tondo, which is divided into Quarters. They fell upon that of Quiapo, and fet Fire to it, after murdering 20 Perfons. Among the Reft they burnt a Lady of Quality, and a Boy, giving great Shouts, and boaiting that from thence forward, the Indians fould pay Tribute to them, and the Caftillas perifh.

News being brought on Saturday Morning, that the Sangleyes were going to enter the Town, and that the Natives had withdrawn themfelves in their Veffels toward Manila, in Order to get in, or lye under the Shelter of its Walls in the River, the Governour difpos'd the Regular Troops, and thofe of the City Militia about the Walls, viewing the Gates, and all weak Places. He fent Captain Gafpar Perez with his regular Company to Tondo, and order'd him to obey Don Lewis de las Marinhas, and to carry no Colours. As foon as he came, the 20 Men fent the Night before, joyn'd him, and Don Lewis thinking that too fmall a Force, fent to defire Succours. The Governour knowing he was in the right, fent the Captain Don Thomas Bravo, his own Nephew, 24 Years of Age, who ferv'd at Ternate in the Expedition of Andrew Furtado. He went over to the Town of Tondo, with another Company of the regular Forces, fome Voluntiers, and feven of the Governour's Servants, leaving the Colours in the City. After him he fent Captain Peter de Arcea, an old Low-Country Soldier: Don Lewis fent Word again, that the Cbinefes were marching towards Tondo, that they were Numerous, and he fear \({ }^{\text {b }}\) d they would burn the Town, and a ftately Church of the Auguftinians. The Governour fent him 60 Men more, moft of them armd with Pikes, and Halbards, the firft having been Mufketiers. Thefo were commanded by Don Jobn de Penna, till he deliver'd them to Don Lewis. When this Company came, there had been an Ingagement at Tondo, wherein. Don Lewis flew abundance of Sangleyes, and oblig'd the reft to retire; preventing their burning the Town, which began totake Fire, and the Houfes at the Entrance of it were confum'd. Don Lewis would have purfurd the Ene-

Captain Alcega faid the fame, but Dou Lewis being bent upon it, and offended to be DonLewis enntradifed, afked him, What Hen lowd cackled in his Ear? And bid them uplyaids follow him, for five and twenty Soldiers were enough to deal with ath Captain China. Alcega anfwerd, Ho was us'dto hear as good Game-Cocks as JintAlcega. felf Crow ; yet he would do well to confider what he did. However, thios F. Farfan, an Ausuftinian, earneftly perfwaded Don Lewis, falling on his Knees, to do as they defir \({ }^{\prime}\) d him, and not to go any farther, yet he could not be prevail'd on; but having ordertd the Captains, Gafpar Perez, and Peter de Arceo, to fecure fome Pofts with a few Men, he broke out furioully, and began to march, being follow'd by the Men, in Purfuit of the Enemy; who had already gain'd the Road, and they overtook them near the Fort, between the Bogs and the Fordable Shoals. When they came to the Fort, the Country open'd a little more. Here they began to fall upon the Enemies Rear, and they perceiving how few the Spaniards were, as not being above 130, drew up in a Body with two Points, like a Half Moon, and lay in Ambulh among the Grafs. The main Body of our Men march'd towards the Fort, and then thofe who lay in Ambuifh rifing, enclos'd our Men, and tell upon them fo furioufly with fharp Stakes, Cymiters, and other Weapons, that they cut them in Pieces. Head-Pieces of Proof were found batter'd with a Stake. A Mufketier, who ferv'd Don Lewis, reported, that a Company of

The Sangleyes cut off the Heads of the Slain, and hoifing them on the Points of their Spears, nm in at thein Nofrils, carry'd them to prefent to their Chinefe General, who was in the Fort, and his Name Hontay. He, and the Refl, view'd the Heads, and fet them up with much rejoycing, returning Thaniks to Heaven, and the Earth, according to their Cuffom, for That Victory; thinking they fhould meet with little Oppofition from the Spaniards after that.

All this Day, being the Feart of S. Francis, and the next, the Enemy fpent in rejoycing. At Manila they were burning the Sularbs, and Houifes without the Walls, and confider'd what Order they fhould take againft the Parian; for tho \({ }^{6}\) many Thoufands of Sangleyes used to inhabit it, there were not then 1500 remaining, and among them 500 Anbayes Merchants, a peaceable and rich People, of whom there was no miftruft ; the reft were Handicrafts, no Way fufpected. About 50 of the others were fecurd, who had their Hair fhorn, and were mix'd among the Christian Sangleys. The fe gave Information, that they had burnt Monafteries of Religious People in feveral Places. Some Clergy-Mev, with abundance of Women and Children, fecur'd themfelves in the Church of \(S\). Francis del Cloriftians Monte, and Come Companies of Sangleyes coming to befiege them, they defend went up into a Belfry, where having fixt a Sheet on a Staff, they difplay'd themfelves it like Colours, the People appearing at the Windows, the Women and in aBelfry. Children ringing the Bells, rating the Enemy, and bidding them come on. Our Men often firing two Mufkets, which was all they had, the Sangleyes durf not approach, being more afraid than they had Occafion, and accordingly drew off to a ftrong Poft, whence they were to continue the War.

The Governour endeavour'd to prevent the News of the Slaughter fpreading abroad, left it flould difcourage the Country; and gave out, that the Slain were at S. Francis del monte. He warn'd the Juftices to get together all the Indian Servants, becaufe there were farce any Spaniards left; and rent the Factor Francis de las Miffias to cruife upon the Coaff, with three Rowing Veffels, towards the Enemies Fort, to cut off all their Provifions. The Factor perform'd his Part fo well, that he funk forme Velfels, and burnt thole that carry'd them Provifions. He kill'd many of their Men at the Mouth of a River that falls into the Sea, about the Fort call'd Navotas; look'd for the Clergy-men they were faid to have kill'd in their Houfes; and felt away to S. Francis del monte, a Party of 500 faponefes, with three Spaniards, and two Francifcan Fryers, to gather the Remains of that Slaughter. In his Way, he pafs'd by the Enemy's Fort, with a Defign to do them fome Harm, if he could, and found they had abandon'd it, retiring to the Parian, to joyn the reft and befiege the City, being puff 'd up with their late Victory. This happen'd on Monday the 6 th. The Fapione fer fearch'd the Fort, where they found about 200 fick and wounded Chinefes, whom they flew, and faving abundance of Piovifions, burnt the Fort with all their Warlike Preparations, which could not be ferviceable againft the firft Owners. They went up to the Monaftery, and re-their Fort. turned thence the fame Day to the City.

The few Sangleyes in the Parian were no leis apprehenfive, than the greater Number in the Fort, both because they were fo near, and for that ir was fuppos'd they would joyn their Companions, when they fat the Spaniards decline. Befides, it was known, that thole in Rebellion had font to defire them to come over to their Party, giving them Notice of the Spaniards they hat killed. This was difcover'd by a Sangley, who fwimming over, was taken by the Sentinel on the Veffels that were in the River, who, having confefs'd on the Rack; that he was a Spy, and went forward and backward with Intelligence, was put to Death. On the other Hand, it was confider'd, that though the fafeft Way was to kill all thole People, yet it was not jut to execute Men that were not convicted of any Crime; efpecially fince they came to the Philippine Iflands, to trade upon Tl e Governour having himfelf in Perfon acquainied them herewith, as alfo by fome of the Counfellurs and their Friends, yet they wrere irrefolute; and tho \({ }^{6}\) fome of them committed the keeping of their Goods to others, they flay'd themfelves to be Spectators of the Event. The laft Care taken of them, was Don Pedro's going in Perfon to the Parian that fame Day; and about an Hour after, many of the Enemies Colours appeard on the other Side of the River, along the Bank of it. They came from the Fort, which was a quarter of a League from the City.

Some of the Sangleyes began to fwin over to the Parian, and others came in Boats and Floats provided for that Purpofe. Their Paffage could not be obfructed, becaufe the Galiots and Carcoas belonging to the Navy were then among the Pintados, to defend thofe Iflands; aintelligence having been brought, that a Fleet of Mindanaos and Ternates was coming to invade them. The Rebels enterd the Parian with great Cries, bringing the Heads of the Spaniards they had kill'd on S. Francis's Day, run through the Noftrils. The Governour nbferving their Refolution, order'd the Captains, Gafpar Perez, and Peter de Arceo, who were at Tondo, to come oves to the City with their Cumpanies. The Enemy being return'd to the Pavian, with that difmal Spectacle of the Heads, began to perfwade the \(A n\) bayes, who had not yet declar'd, but not being able to prevail, and finding them pofitive on the contrary, and that they blamd what they had dome, they fell upon and butcher'd above 200 of them. Then they plunder'd Part of their Silks, which made them Cloaths of feveral Colours. They alfo hang'd other Merchants, and fome, being about 80 in Number, hang \(d\) themfelves, to prevent falling into their Hands, which is very frequent in theat Country. One of thefe was the Sangley General himfelf, call'd, Hontay, F. Jobn Pobre, formerly a Captain, fince a Francifian Fryer, and at this Time compell'd by Neceflity to take up Arms again, reported, That the mutinous Sangleyes, having perfwaded the Anbayes to follow their Example, they appointed Cbican, a rich Sangley, and Mafter of the Spani/b Tongue, to anfwer for them. He, before he would fpeak his Mind, told them it would be proper to fet up a Gallows, and the Heads of the Spaniards on it, that being in View, they might all take Courage to fight manfully. They approv'd of his Counfel, and the Gallows being fet up, he went up himfelf to range the Heads, and taking out a Rope he had carry‘d up unfeen, put it about his own Neck, and hang'd himfelf in the Sight of them all.

mation made the Day before, commanding them all to have the PalmTree Leaves and Nipa, wherewith they are thatch'd, taken off, for Fear of another Conflagration ; he fent to take it off. The Enfign Andrew Obregon went up to this Purpofe to the very Top, and there found Raptift hidden with his Sword and Dagger, whom fome Women endeavour'd to conceal. Being ask'd by the Enfign, what he did there? he anfwer'd, He was taking off the Nipa. The next (Queftion he was quite daff'd, and his own Confcience fuddenly accufing him, he faid, Do not kill me, sir. The Enfign mildly encouraging, bid him go to the Governour, who expected him, and flay'd to take off the Covering of Nipa. Then coming down faw fome Soldiers, and went up again with them. By this Time certain Indion Women had hid Baptift in a Chamber, where the Soldiers entering by Force, bound him, and he was caft into Prifon among other Chinefes. The Tryal was fhort, as is ufual in the Martial Way, and in the mean while the Prifoners were remov'd to Captain Gallinato's Houfe. Thither came a Faponefe Boy, enquiring for Baptift. They found his Pocket full of Squibs, and another Boy with a Piece of a Wax-Candle, all which was given them by one of Baptifts Slaves. The Squibs were all bloody, perhaps it was fome Chriftian's Gore. He own'd himfelf he had fo great a Hand in the Rebellion, that it was not without good Reafon they would have made him their Chief. That the Sangleys call'd out upen his Name. That Hontay was troubled at his Abfence, faying, He muft needs be in fome Trouble, fince he did not come to Head them; and for this Reafon he hang‘d himfelf. Next appear'd the Ring-leaders of the Mutiny, and it was proved againft them, That they had fet up a Fole on the Place call'd el Cerro, or the Hill of Calocan, and on it a black Fla̧, with two Cline fe Characters on it, which imported CU NTI EN, the Signification whereof is, IN OBEDIENCE TO HEAVEN. Other Colours were found with the Army that fought at Dilao, with a.Cut on them containing the Clinefe Figures of Encan, or Baptitft.
Several Religious Men, at this Time fought againft the Mutiniers ; but among them all, fpecial Praife is due to the Valour of the Lay-Brother \(A n-\) tony Flores, of the Order of S. Auguftin. He was born in Efremadura, had fervid in Flanders, was a Slave in Turkey above 20 Years, and made his Efcape out of the Inland Cointry by his Valour and Induftry. He went over to the Philippine Iflands, where he chearfully took the Habit, in the Monaftery of S. Auguftin at Manila. He always fhow'd great Humility in Obedience, and loft nothing of his Courage in the Simplicity of a ReligiousLife. Him the Governour order'd to fcour the River, in the Galliot belonging to the Monaftery, fighting the Ships and Cbampanes of the Sangleyes. One Night after having drove from the Share above 200 Veffels, burnt fome large ones, and funk others, he ftay \({ }^{〔}\) d in the Middle of the River Pafig, to obferve the Sangleyes. Between eleven and twelve, he perceiv'd that one of the Rebels was fwimming over to the City, and the

He having feen him before, the Indian Servants had the Opporrunity of laying hold of him, drew him by the Hair into the Galliot, and carry'd him to the Governour. He was put to the Rack, and there confefs'd, That he came to acquaint the Sangleyes of the Parian, that the next Day thofe on the other Side wou'd crofs the River, and then they would all together, with the Engines they had provided, attack the Wall, put all the Spaniards to the Sword, and make themfelves Mafters of the Iflands. The Governour having this Intelligence, took the neceffary Precautions for the next Day, and Brother Antony return'd to his Monaftery, where he furniff'd himfelf with Meal and other Provifions for his Calliot. He carry'd two Mufkets for himfelf, and drew his Veffel into a Creek the River makes, that runs by the Walls of Manila, among abundance of Manglans, which are Trees. growing in any watrey Land, and fothick, that Men may eafily be hid among them, without being perceiv'd. fuppofing, or knowing, that the Sangleyes muft of Neceffity pafs that Way, as being the narroweft in the River, and neareft to the Wall. Nor was he deceiv'd in bis Expectation, for they came very early in the Morning, and were paffing over in great Numbers from the firft Peep of Day, till very late. The Fryer had put above 200 Bullets into two Pouches, and kept firing the two Mufkets from before five in the Morning, at break of Day till fix in the Evening, cooling them with Vinegar; nor did he evez fire at lefs than a Company of 20 or 30 Sangleyes, that no Shot might be loft. It was concluded for certain, that he alone that Day kill'd above 600 of thofe Barbarians. The Governour afterwards fent him in purfuit of thofe that remain'd, with a thoufand Indians; and he flew above 3000 Sangleyes, putting to flight the fmall Remains of them.

At this Time many of the Sangleyes that had croEs'd the River, appear'd in the Streets of the Parian; who ftanding in Sight of the WValls, with their own, or the Weapons they had taken from the Spaniards they flew, call'd upon thofe who defended the City, whence they made feveral Mufket Shot at them, wounding and killing many, for they came within good Aim, after a defperate Manner. It was reported, they had taken their Anfon, that is, a Compofition of Opium, as the Turks do, and is alfo us'd Dy the People of the Moluccos, when they are to give Battel; for it dofes and gives them a brutal Courage. A Piece of Cannon was planted on the Gate of the Parian, and did confiderable Execution, and no Man would have fufpetted that any had been there. Some Faponefes and Natives of the Plilippines.fally'd out upon the Sangleyes, with good Succefs; for they kill'd many of them, and particularly fuch as had been wounded by the fmall Shot, and Brafs Guns on the Wall. They thinking the Payian was a Shelter for Cowards, fet Fire to it, and went out to fight the Japonefes and Indians. The Sangleyes from the Houfes, where they lay conceal'd, kill'd a Portuguefe Captain, and wounded three others, with fmall Shot. One of them was Ruy Gonzalez de Sequeyra, Commander in Chief of the Moluccos. The sangleyes xemov'd to the Monatery of Canselaxia, that is of Candlemas, whence they fally \({ }^{\text {d }}\) more furioully than from the Parian.
On Truefday in the Morning, Captain Gallinato maxch'd towards the Candelaria, with about soo Spaniards, and fome Faponefes. The Enemy refus \({ }^{\text {d }}\) not the Engagement, but came out above 400 ftrong. Our Men made themfelves Mafters of a Bridge, whence they pour'd fome Volleys upon them. Perceiving the Lofs they furtain'd, they fell back, to draw the Spaniards into open Field, and ferve them as they had done Don Lewis; bas but tho' fome Soldiers were fobold as to go into the Church, and plunder Part of what the Sangleyes had robbid in the Parian, yet lome of them retir'd haftily to the Bridge, with the Lols of three Spaniards, and five Faponefes, befides the wounded, the Enemy charging them in a Body. Of the Cbinefes 360 of the boldeft were kill'd, which made them finch with Fear. The fame Day in the Evening, a Party of them came up to affault the Wall, where it was loweft, bringing fcaling Ladders, and other Necefiaries, cuver'd with Silk; but the Cannon play'd fo fimartly on them, that they lont their Ladders, and many of them their Lives. This lame Afternoon there was an Engagement on the Side of the Pqrian, where the Enemy brought on two great Machines, like Carts, wade the Night before, with Wheels, and fuffed with Quilts, Blankets, and firch Materials, to defend them againft the Cannon, and fmall Shor. The Governour was apprehenfive that they had fome Fire-works, they being great Mafters at them ; but was foon fatisfy', for having fir'd at them with the Piece that was over the Gate of the Parian, where one of his Servants was Gunner, it carry'd away a confiderable Part of the foremof Machine, and with it a good Number of the Sangleyes that drew underneath, and were on it. However they advano'd boldjy, till the Gun tore others in Pieces, and they retir'd, abandoning the Machins. Still the Fight grew hot about the River, and feveral Men went out in Boats, and others did Execution thro' the Loop-Holes. The Enfign foln Guerra de Cervantes, fent out the Faponefe and Native Soldiers, and they drew near to the Parian, chine deunder the Sheiter of the Cannon on the Walls, fo courageoufty, that they fitroy' \(d\). fet fire to the beft of it, being the Houfes of the Anbayes; which quite difcourag'd thofe that were in them, efpecially when they obfery'd they had fecur'd the River, and the Boats, and taken their Mufqueriers. It was judg'd that above 2 suo Sangleyes perifh'd this Day by Fire and Sword, befides thofe at the Candelaria, and other Straglers. Having loft the Shelter of the Parian, they took up in the Church of the Candelaria, but the next Morning none of them appear'd. They crofs'd the River on Wednefday, and fome of our Men were drowned purfuing them too eagerly. They took the Way to the Village call'd Tabuco, 5 Leagues from Manita, which is very populous, and plentiful. Here Captain Don Lewis de Velafco found them fortify'd, and defended with Doors and Boards, towards the Lake Vay; whence he plyd them with fmall Shot, and kill ld many, they no longer able to endure the Damage they receiv'd, kindled many Fires in the Night, to prevent being obferv'd, and march'd away towards S. Paul's, a Village 16 Leagues from Manila, where they came fo thin, that they were not above 6000 , having loft very many in the Way to Tabuico. There Don Lewis fell upon them again; and purfuing them after they quitted the Village, was to hot, that they killd him four Soldiers, and two barefoot Fryers, the one a Prieft, the other a Lay-Brother.
They made a Halt at S. Paul's, intending to reap the Rice, which was then almoft Ripe, becaufe that is a forwarder Country than Pampangua. Before they came to S. Paul's, a Detachment of 1500 of them turn'd off from the main Body towards the Mountains of Pace. The Spaniards and Natives overtook them, and tho they flood to it, our Men play'd their

The Fort the Sangleyes had rais'd at S. Paul's was of Palm-Trees, whence they made Excurfions to fight, reap the Rice, and ravage the Country. They thought it convenient to divide themfelves into two equal Bodies; the one fay'd in the Fort, the other went away to Vatangas, feven Leagues diftant towards the Sea-Coaft, with a Defign, as was thought, to

The Governour reflecting on their Defign, fent fome vigilant Perfons towards the Bay of Vatangas, to fecure the Veffels on the Coaft, that the Enemy might not make ufe of them, and get over to other Iflands, which would have been of ill Confequence.

The Governour believing the Defign of the Sangleyes was to gain Time, and perhaps to expect fome Supplies from Cbina, which might be promis'd by the Mandavines, before they went away; he thought it requilite to bring the War to a fpeedy Conclufion, becaufe the Enemy fortify'd themfelves daily, and made Excurfions from their Forts, to fcour the Country, and gather in the Rice; perfwading the Natives to joyn with them; tho they were fo far from complying, that they kill'd all they could meet with. There were feveral other Reafons which prov'd that the greatef Safety confifted in Expedition, and therefore abundance of Spaniards and Natives, by the Governour's Order, were always in Queft of the fraggling Cbingfes. However it was judg'd expedient to prefs them yet nearer, and not allow them Time, as they wifhd, till the Rice was ripe, fince Hunger muft prove their greateft Enemy. To this Purpofe it was thought Expedient to make ufe of trufty neighbouring People.

Pamłangua is a Province ten Leagues from Manila, beyond the Town of Tondo, over the River Pafig, on which the Citizens have convenient fmall Veffels. The Country is fubject to be overflow'd, by reafon of the many Rivers, and becaufe the Natives draw Trenches from them, to water the Rice, and other Grain. The whole Diffrict is of twelve Leagues, all inhabited, and has feven Churches, belonging to the Order of S. Auguffiv. The Natives are Brave, Docible and Loyal, receive the Chriftian Faith, and are ftead aft in it; and richer than thofe of other Parts of the Ifland. Captain Ferdinand de Avalos was Alcalde mayor, or chief Governour of Pampangua, and the Governour General having acquainted him by Letter with the Rebellion of the Sangleyer, requiring him to fend Provifions and Arms for the War, and not to leave any Enemies behind, he perforin'd both Things, with extraordinary Care. He furnifh'd him with great Store of Rice, Palm-Wine, and a confiderable Number of Cows and Calves; and took above 400 Sangleyes, who being carry'd to a Creek in the River, bound two and two , and deliver'd to the \(\mathfrak{F a p o n e f e s , ~ t h e y ~ f l e w ~ t h e m ~ a l l . ~} \vec{F}\). James de Guevara of the Order of S. Augufin, Prior of Manila, who writ this Relation, preach'd to them firft, and only five of them forfook their Idolatry, and were baptiz'd. At the fame Time he fent the Governour 4000 Pampanguos, arm'd after their Country Fafhion, with Bows, Arrows, Half-Pikes, Shields, and long broad Poniards. They came to Manila with great Shouts, and as iffure of Victory, fell upon the Enemy, who increas'd ftill, the more they were deftroy 'd.
This obliged the Governour, notwithftanding fome Oppofition, to fend a Number of Spaniards, and Faponefes, with a frong Pary of the Pampangua

Indians, well arm'd and provided, under the Command of the Captain and Major Azcueta, a brave and vigilant Commander, well acquainted with the Country, ordering him to draw near the Enemy; yet not to engage, becaufe Major Az-e they were a defperate barbarous People in their firf Onfets, but to alarm them Day, and Night, on every Side, obltructing their Excurfions, that fo they might want Rovifions, and conlequently be oblig'd to diflodge, for if he could remove them but twice, he might cut them off, as it happen'd accordingly. The Major departed Manila, with thefe Orders, by the Way of the River. On Munday the 20th of Oatober, he came in Sight of the Enemy, who was ftill in the Fort at S. Paul's, and there he had fome Adtions. Having caft up fome Works, for his greater Security, in the Quarters he took up, the Enemy's fally'd out of their Fort, and fome of thofe who valu'd theinfelves on their Bravery advanc'd to fight the Spaniards in their Pofts, with as much Boldnefs, as could be expected from Men in Defpair, and quite diftracted. Thus being cut off from Water, ftreightned, often alarm'd, never fuffer'd to reft, and fuch as ventur'd out cut off, they difmay'd, and diflodg'd in the Night very filently, marching towards Batangas, where their other Body was. However their Departure could not be conceal'd from the Vigilany of our Men, who march'd after them, Martin de Herreva, Captain of the Governours Guard, leading the Van, which confifted of Spaniards, and the braveft of the Natives. He overtnok the Enemy, and began to fall fo hard upon their Rear, that they were forc'd to face about; and after killing above 800 of them as they pafssd a narrow but deep River, our main Body coming up attack'd the reff three fe- He cuts off veral Ways, on an Eminency they had taken, and flew above 1000 more; one entire thofe that efcap'd perifhiug the next Day, fo that only one was taken alive, Body of tho' the Governour would have had many fav'd to ferve in the Galleys; but them. the Faponefes and Natives are fo bloody, that neither his Orders, nor Major Azcueta's Severity, or the other Coimmanders could curb them.
The Men refted that Day, having travel'd above five Leagues over Grounds full of Sedges, and Bogs; and prepartd to proceed to Batangas, to fight the other Body of Rebels, carrying fome Fields Pieces. The Major had difmifstd the Japonefes, becaute they, alledging they were not Soldiers in Pay, would return to Manila. He had only soSoldiers left with him, and found the Enemy well fortify'd, and furnifhdd with Provifions, as having been Mafters of the Country. He foke to them in peaceable Manner, as he had done before to the other Party, offering good Terms, if they would fubmit to the Governour ; but Obftinacy had fopp'd their Ears, and excluded all Hopes, fo that they would not admit of any Accommodation. Our Men drew near, three feveral Ways with their fmall Shot, and the Pampangua Indians, who were brave, fupported by the Spaniavds, who led and encourag'd them, attack'd the Fort; but the Defendants behav'd themfelves fo bravely, that they caus'd them to retire, with the Lofs of four or five Pampanguos kill'd, and fome wounded. Our Men came on again, and the Captain of the Guards, who Commanded that Attack, with the Men under his Ciarge, and cthers that joyn'd him, fell on with fuch Fury, that they en- them all. ter'd the Fort, and put them to the Sword. Don Pedro had received fome Intelligence of his Majefties approving of the Enterprize on the Moluccos; and whilft he expected to fee the Effect of that Refolution, writ all the Ways he could; as alfo through India, to folicite thofe who were commiffion'd in that Affair. Being deliver'd of Rebellion. the Trouble of the Saxgleyes, he bent his Mind to provide all Neceffaries for the Fleet, againt he fhould be commanded to fer out; but the End of this War, was the Beginning of other Difficulties at Manila, All Handicrafts ceas'd, Works were lay'd afide, and Provifions grew fcarce; which Scarcity made all Things dear; whereas before there was Abundance, all Things laborious being done by the Sangleyes, by Reafon that the Native Indians are neither willing, nor induftrious at fuch Affairs. They had quite laid afide tilling the Land ; breeding of Fowl, and weaving of Blankets, all which they formerly us'd to do, in the Time of their Infidelity. The Parian or Chinefe Quarter was particularly ftin'd with Fire and Sword. That Place us'd to be fo plentítul and advantageous, that when Don Pedro came firft to Manila, he writ concerning it to a Kinfinan of his in Spain, as follows.

Walth of rhe Parian. This City is remarkeable for fately Buildings, which bave aftonilf'd me. I fall only mention one Particular, which is the chiefeff, That it has a Suburb, or 2 uarter, full of all Sorts of Silks, and Gold, and Mrechanick Trades, and 400 Sbops full of this Sort, with above 8000 Men generally dealing in them; and at the Time when Fleets come from China with Merchandize, which is at this Seafon there are always above 13 or 14000 . Men. They bring extraordinary Things, fuch as aye not in Europe. Don Pedro was alfo afraid that the Slaughter Jately made would obitruet the Trade, and that the Ships would not come as ufual, with Provifions, from Clina. But the greater and more general Apprehenfion was that initead of Merchants, Ships of War would come to revenge the Sangleyes. He therefore fent away R. James та Jent through India to Spain. de Guevara, Prior of Manila, into Spain, by the Way of India, withan Account of what had been done, and of his Fears. The many Accidents that befell him in India, Perfin, Turkey, and Italy, made him fpend three Years before he came to Court, where he then found other frefher Intelligence.

At the fame Time Don Pedro fent Captain Mark de la Cueva, with F. Lewis Gandullo, a Dominican, to Macao, a City in China, where the Portu-guefer refide, with Letters for the Commander in Chiet and Council of that City, giving them an Account of the Rebellion of the Sangleyes, and the Meffage to Event of it, that they, upon any Rumour of a Fleet providing in China, might China. fend him Notice of it feveral Ways. They had alfo Letters for the Tutones, or Tfuntos, Albytaos, and Vifitors of the Provinces of Caston, and Cbinchreo, acquainting them with the Guilt of the Climefes, which oblig'd the Spaniards to punifh them fo feverely. The Meffengers at their Arrival, found all the Country peaceably difpos \({ }^{6} d\), notwithflanding that fome Sangleyes flying from Manila in Clampanes, had given an Account of their Commotions. The Coming of thefe Spaniards to Macao was foon known at Cbinclueo, and prefently fome of the richeft Captains, who usid Manila moft, came to vifit them; their Names were Guanfan, Sinu, and Guachuan. They being fully inform'd of the Truth of the FaEt, tcok upon them to deliver the Letters Don Pedro fent to the Mandavines, who receiv \({ }^{6}\) them by their Means. The Merchants of Clinclseo took Courage to trade in the Ploilippine Iflands, and fail'd in their own Ships from Macao, with our Meffengers, carrying Abundance of Powder, Saltpeter, and Lead, werewith the publick Magazints were fortd. In May following 13 Chinefe Ships arriv'd at \(\mathbb{M}_{\text {anila, }}^{\circ}\) and many more after them, continuing that Trade.

Don ledro fent the Ships that had brought Supplies from the Iflands, to Neip Spain; The Commodore of them was caft away, and not a Man nor a Mank fav'd. He ceas'd not at the fame. Time to flore the City with Provifions and Ammunition, that he might be at Leafure to undertake the Expedition againft the Moluccos. Now arriv'd Colonel Fobn de Efquivel, from Mexico, with 600 Soldiers, and Intelligence that farther Provifon was making in News Spain of Men, Stores, Ammunition, and Money, by the King's Order. All came in due Seafon to Manila; and there at that Time dy'd the Arch-Bifhop Don Miguel de Benavides, gemerally lamented by all the Country. The Clinefe Ships that came again to trade, brought the Governour the Anfwers to his Letters, contain'd in three others, all to the fame Effect, from the Tuton, or T/unto, that is, the Viceroy, the Hayton, and the Viffor General of the Province of Chinchoo. Being tranflated by the Interpreters, they were found to this Effect.

To the Chief Commander of Luzon: Having rnderftnod that the Chinefes that went to Trade and Trafick in the King dom of Luzon, bave been kill'd by the Spaniards, I lave inquir'd into the Caufe of that Slaugbter, and intreated the King to do Fuffice, on tiofe who had been the Occafion of fo nuch Mifobief, that the like may be prevented for the future, and the Merchants erjoy Peace and Quietriefs. Some years fince, before I came lither as Vifitor, a Sangley, whofe. Name was Tioneg, went over to Cabit, in Luzon, with three Mandarines, and the King's Leave, to feek for Gold and Silver, which was all a Cheat; for be found neitber Gold nor Silver, and therefore I befeeclsed the King to punifb that Deceiver, Tioneg, that the World might fee how impaytially fuffice is adminifter'd in China. It was in the Time of the late Viceroy, and Eunucb, that Tioneg and bis Companion, whofe Name was Vanlion, told the faid Lye. Since then I intreated the King, :o caufe all the Papers relating ta Tioneg's Cafe, to be copy'd, and the faid Tioneg, and the Proceedings againgt bim, to be lay'd before lis Majefly, and I my felf faw thofe Pajers, and was fenfille that all the faid Tioneg had faid was a Lie. I writ to acquaint the King that the Caftillas fufpected we in-

Spaniards charg'd with the Slatghter of the Chinefes. tended to make War on them, on Account of the Lyes Tioneg bad told, and therefore they bad Jain above 30000 Chinefes at Luzon. The King did what I defir'd, and accordingly punifs'd the aforefaid Yanlion, ordel ing binm to be put to Death; and cans'd Tioneg's Hend to le cut off, and hung up in a Case. The Chinefes that Dy'd at Luzon were not to blame, and \(l\), and fome others bave acquainted the King witb fo much; as alfo with, the comsing of two Englifh Ships upon thefe Coafts of Chincheo, a Thing very dangerous for China, that the King maty refolee what is to be done in two Af. fairs of fuch Confequence. We alfo Writ to the King, to order two Sangleyes to be punifard, for baving bhown the Harbour to the Englifh. And after baving Writ as aforefaid to the King, be anfwerd, What did the Englifh Ships come into China for? Whether they came to Rob? That they Joowld be orderd to depart thence immediately to L"zon; and to tell thofe of Luzon that they fiould not give Credit to the wicked and lying Perfons among the Chinefes; ani that they Jould inmediately kill the two Sangleyes. As for the reft we writ to bim about, be anfwer'd that we foould do our Wills. The Viceroy, the Eunuch and I, after receiving this Order, do now fend thele our Letters to the Governour of Luzon, that his LordBip may be acquainted with the Grandeur of the Ring of China; for lee is So. Gieat that be goveins all the Sun and Moon fiine on; as alfo that the Governour of Luzon may know how well this fo large Kingdom is govern'd, whofe King none bas dar'd to offend this long Time. And tho' the Japonefes bave attenipred to difturb Corea, which belongs to the Government of China, that have not fucceeded; but bave been expelld thence, and Corea bas remain'd very peaceable and quiet, as is well known by Fame to the People of Luzon.
The laft Year, when we were inform'd, that fo many Chinefes were flain at Luzon, on the Account of Tioneg's falfbood, we met many Mandarines of us to agree to propofe to the King, that be would revenge fo great a Slaugliter. We faid, tbat the Land of Luzon is poor, of no Value, and tbat formerly it was the Habitation of none but Devils and Snakes; and that fo many Sangleyes baving of late Yenrs gone to Trade with the Caftillas, they are now grown \{o greas; the faid Sangleyes baving labourdd fo much there, building Walls, and Houfes, making Gardens, and other Things very Advantageous to the Caftillas. And fince this is fo, why lad not the Caftillas confider'd thefe Things, nor leen grateful for thefe good Turns, but on the con vary fo cruelly deftra'd fo many Men? And thio we, two or three Times, Writ to the King as above, be being Angry for the aforefaid Tlings, anfwerd us, Tbat it was not convenient to take Revenge, nor make War on the Pcople of Luzon, for three Reafons. Firft, Becauje the Cantillas bave for many rears pont, been Friends to the Chinefes. Secondly, Becaufe it could not be known, whether the Viafory would fail to the Caftillas, or the Chinefes. Thirdly, and laftly, Becaule the People killd by the Caftillas were bafe, and ungrateful to their Native Country of China, their Parents and Kindied, fince they bad not return'd to China in fo naty Years; which, People the King faid lie did not much value, for the aforefaid Reafons; and he only order'd the Viceroy, the Eunnch, and me to Write this Letzer by the Embulf Tdor; that the People of Luzon may know the King of China bas at great Soul is very Patient and Merciful, fince be bas not order'd War to be made on the Inlabitants of Luzon. And bis Juffice will appear, by his caulSing the Fal/bood of Tioneg to be puni/b'd. And frace the Spaniards are a difcreet People, bow can they not be troubled for baving kill'd fo many Men; and repent of it, and be kinid to the Chinefes that are left. For if the Cafillias bear the Chinefes good Will, and refore the Sangleyes that bave remain'd of the War, and pay the Mancy that is due, nnd reffore the Goods taken from the Sangleyes, there will, ibe Amity letwixt this King don, and that, and Trading Ships faall go every Year; otherwife the King will not give Leave for any ships to trade; but on the contrary will caule 1000 ships of War to be built, with Soldiers, and Kindred of the flain, and with otljer Na- Mandations, and Kingdoms that pay Homage to China, and will make War with- rines out fpuring any Perfon, and then the Kingdom of Luzon Joall be given to Threats. thofe People that pay Acknowledgement to China. The Vifitor General's Letter was writ on the 12th of the fecond Month, which, according to our Reckning, is March; the Eunuchs on the 16th, and the Viceroys on the 22 d of the fame Month and Year.

The Governour return'd an Anfwer to thefe Letters by the fame Meffengers, in Terms full of Civility, and Authority. He gave an Account of the Rebellion of the Sangleyes from its firft Rife; juftifying the Spaniards for their natural Defence, and the Punifhment they had inflicted on the Criminals. He tells them, no State can fubfift without punifhing the Wicked, or rewarding the Good; and therefore he does not repent that Execution, le-

That the only Thing which troubled him was, that he could not fave fome Sangley Merchants Anbayes, who dy'd among the guily ; but that it was not poffible to prevent it, becaufe the feverity of War will not allow the killing of forme, and exempting of others; efpecially, they not being known by the Soldiers in the Heat of Action. That ufing Mercy towards thofe that were taken alive, he condemn'd them to row in the Galleys, the Punifhment fubftituted among the Caftillas for fuch as deferve Death. Yet if it fhould be thought in China that it ought to be moderated, they fhall be fet at Liberty. But let it be confider'd, faid Don Pedro, that the not punifhing of fo heinous an Offence, may be the Occafion of their falling into it again, which would exclude all Mercy. The Goods of the ClineJes that were kill'd are fafe laid up, and to fhow I had no other Motive, but the Execution of Juftice, I will order them to be immediately deliverd to their Heirs, or to fuch Perfons, as they of Right belong to. Nothing but Juftice inclines me to any of thefe Things. Your faying, that unlefs I releafe the Prifoners, there will be Leave granted in China to the Kindred of the flain in the Rebellion, to come in Arms to Manila, does not move me in the leaft; becaufe I take the Chinefes to be fo wife, that they will not go upon fuch Undertakings upon a flight Occafion ; efpecially, when no Provocation has been given them on our Side. And in Cafe they fhould be of another Mind there, we Spaniards are Men that know how to defend our Righit, our Religion, and our Territories. Let not the Chinefes think they are Lords of the World, as they pretend; for we Caftillas, who bave meafur'd every Foot of it, very well know the Lands of the Chinefes; and therefore H h they ought to underftand, that the King of Spain maintaius. Wars with Kings as powerful as theirs, and checks, and gives them much Trouble. Nor is it any Thing new with us, when our Enemies think they have brought us under, to be wafting and deftroying their Lands, and never give over till we have caft them out of their Thrones, and wrefted their Scepters out 'of their Hands. I fhould be very forry the Commerce fhould be interrupted ; but at the fame Time, believe the Cbinefes are not willing to lofe it, fince it is fo advantageous to them, for they carry Home our Silver, which never waftes, in Exchange for their Commodities, which are flight Things, foon fpoil'd. It was difcreetly done, not to admit the Englifh Ships that appear'd upon the Coaft, for they are not Spaniards, but their Enemies, and Pyrates; for which Reafon they fhould have been puniff'd, had they come to Manila. To canclude, for as much as we Spaniards always juftify our Proceedings, and value our felves upon the Worlds not being able to fay, we Ufurp the Right of others, or make War on our Friends, what is here promis'd fhall be perform'd. And the Chinefes may take Notice, for the future, that we never do any Thing out of Fear, or on Account of our Enemies Threats. Don Pedro concludes, offering the Continuation of Friendfhip, upon new Affurances of Peace, with the Kingdom of China; faying, he would, at the proper Time, give Liberty to their Prifoners he had in the Galleys; Tho he defign'd firf to make Ufe of them, and did fo in his Expedition to the Moluccos, which he was then preparing for; and all this was punctually perform'd.
The Emperour of Japan's Letter.

Dutch Squadion.

He receiv'd other Letters at the fame Time, from the Emperor of fapan, wherein,after returning him Thanks for a Prefent of Wine of Grapes, which Don Pedro had fént him, with other Things of Value, he Encourag'd him to Trade, and defir'd he would not fend him any Chriftian Preachers, without his Confent. For, fays he, this Country is calld Xincoco, which fignifies, Dedicatei to Idols; which have been honour'd with much Commendation by our Fore-Fathers, whofe Actions I alone can not reverfe, and therefore it is not convenient that your Law be fpread abroad, or preach'd in \(\mathfrak{F a p a n}\); and if your Lordhip is willing to entertain Amity with me, and thefe Kingdoms, do as I would have you. So fays the Japonefe. Don Pedro anfwer'd and appeas'd him, fo that the preaching was continu'd in his Dominions.

This fame Year 1604, the Provinces of Holland and Zealand, according to their Cuftom, fitted out a Squadron of twelve tall Ships, well equipp'd, with fome fimaller Veffels, and, as if they had been Lords of the Winds and of the Seas, fet Sail for India, the known Way, arriving profperoufly, in a fhort Time, at the Cape of Good Hope. All the Captains had been there before, and the Pilots valu'd themfelves upon no lefs Experience. The Admiral was Stepben Drage. Beginning to vifit their Forts, and Factories, in Order to take fome Prizes, as well as Trade, they met with two fmall Ships, loaden with Ivory, at the Bar of Mozambique. They chas'd thenl, and tho Takes two they fled amain, being purfurd with no lets Swiftnefs, the Dutch Robbers Portugues overtook, and after a fharp Engagement entertd them. They burnt the one, Slips. and mannd the other, which was a Reinforcement to profecute their Rob.beries. All thofe Kings, and the Commanders of our Forts, receiv'd them as Friends. In September, they came to the Bar of Goa; and lay 15 Days at Bardes, in as much Security as if they had been at Amflerdam, expecting the India Ships. Thence they fent away a Ship to Cambay a, to exchange the Ivory they had not long before robbed our People of, attin's not like Pytates, but Merchants who difpofe of the Wealth they pick up by Trade, and fucceeded profperoufly in all their Undertakings. They fent two more Ships to Bengula, with other Commodities; all which returntd in due Time confiderably enrich'd. Perceiving that no Power oppos'd them, they failed down the Coaft of Malabar, trading wherefoever they thought fit, and took another Portuguefe Veffel, call'd a Foiff, which had 21 Oars; and after unlading the Booty, they fitted her up their Way, and took her along with them.

After this they bent their Thoughts upon greater Matters, to which End they fent an Embafly to the Zamori, which Name imports as much as Cafar among us, and he is King of Calicut, a Friend and Confederate with the Dutch. Having agreed upon an Interview, they fell to Trade, and whilit the reft attended Commerce, and private Gain, the Admiral confulted about State Affairs, concerting to carry on the War againft the Spaniwrds, and more particularly the Partuguefes. They fettled the Time, and the Forces they were to joyn for that Effect. Then they diverted themfelves with Feafling and Treats. At one of which, by way of Farewel, Zamori gave Admiral Drage an Emeraud, thought to be the largett and beautifulleft in the World. They went on, and took fome Prizes on the Coaft of fava, and among them a fmall Ship, in which were Don Manuel de Melo, Commander in Chief of the Moluccos, and his Wife, who was oblig'd to fight as well as her Hurband, and yet they could not efcape Captivity. The nearér they drew to Ternate, the more confiderable Encounters they had, for in Sight of Amboyna they fell in with a Frigat coming from the Moluccos to Anchor in that Inand, which they took, and in her Captain Antony Maclado, her Commander. They ftay'd at Amboynd, hoping to recover what they had loft, either by Treachery, or Force. The Y ear 160 s had now commenced, and they began their Work on the 23d of February.
Eight Ships and fix Tenders enter'd the Port, and the Fort was furrender'd to them without much Difficulty, or Oppofition. They alfo poffers'd themfelves of the Portuguefe Colony. Thofe People feeing the Dittob fo ftrong in Men and Cannon, durft not, nor could they well oppofe them. Forty Portuguefes took an Oath of Fidelity to the Prince of Orange's Baflard Son. They put the Commander in Chief into Irons, and deliver'd the Fort to the Dutch, alledging, for an Excufe, that they had not Ammunition to defend themfelves. There was another greater Mifchief, which was, that the Natives favour'd the Dutch, as their Deliverers from the Portuguefe Yoke; and they are well belov'd there, and in all Places where they Trade, becaufe of late they have taken this Courfe, not to meddle with their Religion, nor fo much as inention it, unlefs, where any will embrace Chriflianity on their own Accord. They neither wrong'd nor diftur'd any Body; and to flow they would always maintain them in that Security, within five Days, they fitted out 40 Carcoas; to defend the Natives againft any Enemy.

The Admiral pick'd out three of the Ships, and went himfelf with them to the Illands of Banda, to load Nutmeg, Mace, and Clove, there and at Aniboyna. The Fame of this Succefs, and the Hatred conceiv'd againft the Spaniards, were fo favourable to this Nation, that at this Time the People of Amboyna, Ito, Veranula, and other Places, had their Embaffadors at Sunda, to expect this Fleet, which came from Home at their Requeft. Before they fet out from Holland they had receiv'd Embaffadors from the King of Achenz in Sumatra, to the fame End. For this Reafon the Dutcl, give out, that they come to revenge the Wrongs, the Portuguefes and Spaniafds have done to the Natives, and to refore them to their Liberty. The Defigns of thefe perfidious People were no longer a Secret; for the Admiral Drage refitted five of his Ships, and fent them to the Moluccos, to take the Fort and Kingdom of Tydore, the only one that continu'd in Subjection to Spain; and it was publickly reported, that the King of Ternate would forward the Enterprize with his Ships and Men. The Dutch Vice-Admiral fail'd with thefe Ships ftopping by the Way to make his Advantage, take in the Refrefhments in their Factories, and lade Pepper, and other Spice. Every Thing fucceeded as they could wim, tho' they alpir'd to fome Matters which requis'd a greater Power than they brought. They intended to pafs by the Streight of Acapulco, and there to lie in wait for the Ships belonging to the Philippines going and coming, becaule they knew them to be Rich, and might take them. To this End they delay'd Time, till they could be joyn'd by the two Ships they expected from Sunda, laden with Pepper, from that plentiful, and fecure Factory of theirs.

A board the eight Ships there was great Store of Bricks, Lime, and fquared Stones, Wheele-Barrows, and other Tooles and Materials for Building; all which was to be carry'd from the aforefaid Streight, tho' they had al. ready began to build it at Amboyna, and landing a conliderable Part of thofe Materials, they left there 130 Soldiers, to carry on the Works, and Garrifon the Fort. At the Heels of this Fleet they expected another to lay Siege to Malaca; defigning from thence to Govern India, as the Portuguefes have done. In Order to this, they had before confederated with the Kings of For, Achem, and Sunda, with whofe Affiftance, and that of other Native Sangiacks, they were to overthrow the Power of Portugal; for they were refolv'd not to quit India, and fince its Commodities enfich'd them, they would pay for the Expence of the War; befides, that they were already fo wealthy, that even in Flanders the Soldiers deferted from the Arch-Duke Albertus, to ferve them. Notwithftanding this extraordinary A ffection, wherewith the Dutch are entertain'd in all thofe Countries, before they came to Amboyna, two Englijh Ships came to an Auchor near by, and acquainted the Natives, that a Dutch, Squadron was coming to poffefs itfelf of the Ifland ; but bid them not to fear, for it had none but poor fcoundrel Men; and therefore they fhould defend themfelves, offering them their Affiftance, and acquainting them that the Crowns of Spain and England were then in Amity; and therefore the Subjects of them both ought to be fo of Courfe. They llighting this favourable Opportunity, chofe rather to hecome Subjects to Prince Maurice, and undergo the Dutch, Yoke. The Englijh demanded Clove, and offer'd them their own Price for it, and were fo juft, that they never joym'd with the Dutch. In fiort, Ampoyna remain'd in the Enemies Hands. The People difpers'd, many of them went to Malaca, and among the reft, the Commander in chief, Don. Emanuel de Melo, with fome Portuguefes. Others repair'd to the Illand of Cebu, part of the Pb;lippines and other Places, for they had all their Liberty. They all departed Amboyna about the middle of May, but without their Goods, or Spice; being pofitively forbid that Trade, the Luich alledging it was all their own.

One of thofe Englifh Ships failing along thofe Coafts, and efcaping the They give Ridges of Rocks, got before-hand to the Port of Tydore. They call'd the IntelliCommander in Chief of the Fort, Peter. Alvarez Abreus, and inform'd him, gence of that they left the Dutch, Squadron fertifying the frong Holds at Amboyna; the Dutch and that when they had reduc'd all in thofe Seas, they would come to fall at Tydore. upon Ty dove. The Commander in Chief return'd Thanks for that friendly Intelligence; and among other Civilities that pafs \({ }^{2} d\) between them, defird to know the Motive that induc'd them to fhow fuch Kindnefs. Then the Englifh told him, That their Kings were Friends, and to convince him of it, and the Danger he was in, offer'd him as much Ammunition as he food in need of. They gave him Six Barrels o: Powder, 100 Cannon Balls, and a Number of Head-Pieces. This made the Tydores and Portuguejes begin to fortify themfelves, and was the Product of the late Peace.

A Month after, four great Dutch Ships, and four Tenders, came to the Illand, where two of the King's Galleons lay at Anchor, with the Portuguefe Ships laden with Gonds and Provifions. The Dutcl. Admiral fent the King of Tydore Word, That if he would deliver him that Fort, and expell the Portuguefes, he would be his Friend; and defiring he would not

The King of Tydore fent him a Cow, and anfwer'd, That he neither could, nor ought to put the Portuguefes ont of their Forts, His Annor to admit of any other Nation in their Place, till they had either volun-fiver. tarily, or by Force of Arms, abandon'd their Poffeffion. That whilft they two decided the Quarrel, he would look on as Neuter. The Portuguefe Commander in Chief, underftanding what Meffages pafs'd, interrupted them, fending to let the Dutch Men know. That it was in vain to talk of furrendring the Eort, whilft he was alive, and prefent. That he was to treat with him, and the marry'd Men that liv'd in it about that Affair.

Being come to this Refolution, the next Morning the Duich Ships remov'd, and went to board the Portuguejes that were at Tydore, two Cannon Shot from the Fort. They fought above two Hours, and fo conftant was Fortune to one Side, that in fo fhort a Tine, the Portuguefes that remain'd alive were fain to throw themfelves into the Sea, and their Galleons were taken, one of which they immediately burnt. The next Day another Meffage was fent to Tydore, wherein the Dutcb directed the King to propofe the furrendring of the Fort to the Portuguefes, and he would give them the Galleon he had fpar'd, to carry them and their Effects, wherefoever they fhould think fit. The Portuguefes taking Courage, where others would be difmay'd, anfwer'd, That the Lofs of the Galleons had not daunted them; for they would rather dye all of them, than deliver up the Fort. The Dutch durft not batter it alone, but refolv'd to joyn the King of Ternate, who was already fet out with abundance of Carcoas to that Effect. They mer him a League from the Fort, and fpending little

Time in Ceremonies return'd together, burning a Town of Tydare by the Way, came the next Morning before the Fort.

They landed 800 Dutch and Ternate Soldiers, and having made a Trench with Barrels fill'd with Earth, batter'd the Fort for three Days from that Work, with two Pieces of Cannon. At the fame Time they play'd

They kill'd the Conftable of the Caftle \({ }_{3}\) and in the midft of the Confufion \({ }_{3}\) the King of Ternate and the Divtch, that were afhore, advanc'd, drawing the Cannon under the very Fort, having furpriz'd the Portuguefes, and falling on them unexpectedly. They foon recovering themfelves, attack'd the Dutch afrefh, who turning their Backs, behav'd themfelves fo bafely, that they ran into the Water; abandoning the Guns they had afhore. In the Height of this Succefs, many Dutch being flain, and only four Portuguefes, on a fudden they fpy'd all the Fort in a Flame, which roard from up, and almoft all the reft confum'd, and lay'd flat. Six and twenty Dortyguefes were burnt, and it could never be difcover \({ }^{d}\) d or guefs \({ }^{〔} \mathrm{~d}\), how, or which Way the Powder was fet a fire, to caufe that mighty Deftruetion. The Portugilefes, who juft before were joyful for their Victory, having no Walls to fhelter them, were forc'd to retire to the City of \(\boldsymbol{T y}\) dore, and the Dutch and Ternates rallying, purfu'd them thither. The King receiv'd them in friendly Manner, and he himfelf went the fame Day aboard the Dutch Ship that lay at Anchor before it, and calling the Dutchs Admiral, proposed to him the Affair of the Fort, and that if thofe who defended it had Ships allow \({ }^{\text {d }}\) them, they would go away to other Parts. He agreed to it, and though it coff the Portuguefes all they had, they accepted of three fmall Tenders, a Galliot that had been the King's, and a Dutch Temer to fecure them againft the Ternates. The Dutch fettled Amity with the King of Tydore; that they fhould continue in his Dominions; and erect Factories, and Trade for Clove, as the Portuguefes had done. Thus the Conquer \({ }^{6} d\) having bought fome Ships difpers'd themfelves about thofe Illands. Many of them went to the Pbilippines, where Don Pedro, the Governour, examin'd them, in order to get Information concerning the Moluccos.
Antony de Silva, a Porituguefe, was one of them that efcap'd from the Silva gives Intellipence of it. Fort of Ternate, and came to the Town of Arevalo in the Plilippines: Befides being a Soldier, he was alfo a Naguatato, or Interpreter. This Man gave an Authentick Relation of that Affair, and added, That being brought Prifoner from Amboyna, the Dutch Admiral having a Sea-Chart before him, look'd for Mindoro, Manila, and for Cabite; and being afk'd by Silva, why he look'd for it, was inform'd, That his Defign was, in Cafe he did not fucceed at the Moluccos, to try to take fome of the Ships that trade betwixt New Spain, and the Plilippines. Silva reply'd, That he had not Time to meet either; becaule thofe that come to the Pbilipfines arrive about the 1oth of May, and the others fet out on the roth of June. However that was the Defign of the Dutch Admiral, who intended to get Intelligence at Mindoro, thence to fail to Macao, fend an Embafiador into Cliza, and revenge the Wrong Don Pablos de Portug at had done them in thofe Countries. Then to load Pepper at Patane; next at the Streight of Sincapura, to endeavour to take the Chinefe Ships that refort to Malaca; and whatever happen'd, to hold on his Voyage to Holland that Way, loaden with Treafure. All this the Dutch Admiral communicated to Antony de Siloa, as to one that was to go with him into Holland, becaule he was a Soldier, and able Interpreter in both Languages ; and therefore Stepten Drage made much of him. This Intelligence was confirm'd by fome others, who had fought and efcap'd the Slaughter at Tydore. Don Pedro hearing fo much, was concern'd, as a Man zealous for the Chureh, and for his King; and it griev \({ }^{\text {d }} \mathrm{dhim}\) to confider, that the Crown of spain had not a Foot of Land left it in the Moluccos; and that a Rebel was in quiet Poffeffion of them all.

Profperity having embolden'd, and frengthen'd the Dutch, Don Pedro affembling his Council of War, order'd that the Captains Antony Freyle, Commander of the Squadron belonging to the Pintados, Peter Sevil, Siephen de Alcazar, and Bernardine Alfonfo, fhould repair to the Forts of the Pintados, and other Illands that were in Danger, with their Companies. He refirted the Ships, and prefar'd his Cannon, as being fo near a victorious Enemy, who fo fuccefsfully put in Execution all their Threats. An+ tony de Sylva Ahow'd an Original Letter, written by another Dutch Admiral at the Ifland of Bornco, to the King of Ternate, and fent by Plilip Biffegop, Captain of a Ship, with a Prefent of a Quantity of fine Holland; Six Bales of feveral Veffels with Musk; Twelve Bottles of Rofe-Water; Six Pounds of Dutch Anfion, that is, Opium, which, as has been faid; difturbs the Senfes, and is us'd. by thofe People to encourage them to fight; and fix Barrels of Powder. He gave him an Account of Andrew Furtado's unfortunate Voyage, the Obfacles, Storms, and Enemies he had met with, fince his Departure from Tornate, till he came to Malaca. He gave him the Tirle of Moft Serene Prince, and Porent King of the Moluccos, Bandas, Amboyna, and innumerable other Iflands. He congratulated with him for the Event of his Arrival at the Maluccos; promifing he would return to Ternate with a greater Power, he expected from Hollind, and take Poffeffion of the Forts, to extirpate the common Enemy, the King of Spain; and encourag'd him with thefe Hopes, to hold out till then. He affur'd him, that he fhould fcour all thofe Seas from the Moluccos, and extend his Dominions as far as Cbina, without being hinder'd by the Pbilippines or \(\mathcal{F} a-\) ponefes. To this End, he defired hin to renew his Friendihip with Mindanao, and to acquaint the King of thofe Illands, that he was a Friend to the Dutch, fo to give them Admittance to thofe Ports, Freedom of Trade, and amicable Entertainment, as was requifire for their Undertakings; this being a Thing moft Expedient, above all other Politick Confiderations. He added, he might obferve, and be affurtd, that nothing was fo little regarded in Spain, as to contrive that their many Provinces fhould preferve fome Sort of Union. That therefore all thofe which are very remote, and fubject to that Crown, ought to take much Notice of the great Delays there, in coming to a Refolution, and fending Succours from Spain; becaufe before they believe, or examine the News brought them in order to believe them, Affairs have taken a new Turn, and confequently neither the Spanifh Councils, nor their Arms come feafonably. Letters and Prefent to the King of Ternate* had made moft of thefe Things known to his Highnefs, and his Zeal for his Service oblig'd him to mention them. Antony de silva, added, that he was very fure the King of Ternate had not omitted doing any Thing of what the Dutch Man recommended to him; and that he had already propos'd to his People to go abroad to fight, far from their own 'flands. Tho' it was never apprehended he would dofo, yet at that Time it much troubled Don Pedro, becaufe he was fo fpent with the Affair of the Sangleyes, the Want of whom he labour'd fo to fupply, that no fuch Mifchief might happen again, it being fo neceflary to fupport the Trade of the Pbilippines another Way, and procure fafery at Home in Order to make War, and keep up a Reputation.

Time, which fometimes gives Hope, and fometimes Difpair, comforted Don Pedra in his Affliction, bringing in a few Months after fome Ships of Management of the Goverทรル\%. private Perfons from New Spain, and then in due Seafon the ufual Fleet. They arriv'd at Manila, on the Eve of S. MattJias, and in them the Spaniards fent from Spain, for the Expedition of Ternate, with above 200 more from the Marquefs de Montefilaros, Viceroy of New Spain, as alfo the other Neceffaries, and Money, purfuant to the King's Order. Part of this came committed to Brother Gafpar Gomez, who was receiv'd with incredible Joy. He deliver'd all his Letters to the Governour, and immediate Care was taken to quarter the Officers and Soldiers, and to diftribute them fpeedily, fo that all Men might believe there was no other Defign in their coming, but the Security of the Philippine Iflands, threatned by the Emperor of fapan, and the Confpiracies of the Sangleyes. This Report was induftrioufly fo given out, that it might fly and fpread abroad without the Kingdom, left they might receive any Intelligence, who had caufe to fear. Befides that, as the Fame of thofe great Preparations was Advantageous to the Spaniards in Point of Reputation, fo the Reality of the Power they had, added to the Opinion conceiv'd, prov'd the Defence and Security of them all. In fapan, only the News that Manila was full of Men, and Ships of War, allay \({ }^{6} d\), or quite banifh'd the Difguft of that King, on Account of Don Pedro's refufing him Ship-Wrights. The People of Chincleo alfo forbore meditating Revenge againft an Enemy, whofe Viftories were back'd with fuch Succours. Don Pedro confider'd all thefe Particulars, and each of them made him conclude, that he might with Safety be abfent for fome Time from Manila. However the King of Ternaie overjoy'd that he had fhaken off the Spanifh Yoke, made little Account of all that was told him, concerning its Neighbouring Kingdoms, believing they would never recover their Ancient Poffeffions. The Dutc/s Commanders, who were rebuilding the burnt Fort at Tydore, fent him a confiderable Number of heavy Brafs Cannon, of Drakes, and Mufkets, and he hired fome of the Ingeniers, that came in thofe Ships, to look to his Fortifications, and refide in them, and in his City. Some accepted of the Habitation, approving of that diforderly, and irreligious Liberty of Life allow'd in that Country; where confidering the frequent Refort of Ships from the North, and the many Factories, they reckon'd themfelves as good as at Home, fince they could often meet with their Kindred or Friends, or at leaft with their Country-Men. among them Paut de Lima, a Perfon of great Experience, and ftill General of the Artillery at Tydore, who, befides the News of the late Deftruction, brought an Account of the Joy wherewith the Dutch dug up the Guns he endeavour'd to hide, and how much they were increafed in Strength and Shipping. He was receiv'd with much Honour, in regard to his Quality, and becaufe he was one of thofe who had loft Lands and Goods, taken from him by the King of Ternate, and his Information, and Counfel were of Ufe for what afterwards happen'd. All Men attended the Warlike Preparations, in their feveral Stations, but with equal Zeal; building Ships, and gathering Provifions, Arms, and Ammunitions; and Don Pedro himfelf was fo diligent and vigilant, that he attended the meaneft Employments, giving an Example, and encouraging; fo that it may be faid, he did every Thing, for he ply'd all Hands.

\section*{BOOK. X.}

THERE is generally fome Moral Inftruction, which lies couch'd under the Actions of Men, and which Judicious Writers ufe topoint at in the Relation of Events, as the Advantage of Hiftory; but what civil Rules, or Precepts for the forming of the Political Life, can we lay down, in writing the Conqueft and Defence of Barbarous Countries, which all depends on Voyages, and reducing of Garrifons; notwithflanding State Craft has fomewhat inform'd thofe Nations? Or what can occur in this Subject, which the Reader may not infer, as a neceffary Confequence of the foregoing. Difcourle? Since then the Matter in Hand does not afford us fuch Reflection, let us draw to a Conclufion, in Purfuance of our Promife made at the Beginning.

Don Pedro de Acunna, now Captain General of the Fleet that was affemYloiloPort bled in the Pbilippine Iflands, at the fame time took Care to fee it fitted the Ren- out with Expedition, and to provide for the Security of the Province he dezvous of was the that he might go upon that difficult Undertaking. Some the Navy. there were, wholook'd upon it ac Part of Don Pedro's good Fortune, that the Molucco Iflands had been utterly toft, that fuce he had the more Matter to work upon, his Victory might be the more glorious. He moft induftrioully provided all Things requifite for the Ufe of War ; and even for all the Accidents it might be liable to. The Point, or Promontory of Xloilo runs out into the Sea, not far from Arevalo, in the Illand of Panay, forming a Harbour proper and capacious enough to be the Place of Arms, for the Preparations then in Hand. Here the Fleet rendezvous'd, confifting of Six Tali Ships, Six Galleys, Three Galliots, like thofe they call Galizabras, belonging to the Crown of Portugal; in one of which was Peter Alvarez de Abvett, Commander in Chief of the Fort of Ty dore; the other two, under the Cominand of Folbn Rodriguez Camelo, Commodore, fent from Malaca, by the General Andrew Furtado de Mendoza, to be aiding with his Conrage and Conduct, and to carry him an Account of the Succefs. One flat bottom'd Galliot, to land the Artillery, and in it \(300 \mathrm{Baf-}\) kets of Rice. Four Foifts built purpofely for carrying of Provifions. Two Champanes of Ten Tun Burden each, with 1600 Bafkets of clean Rice. Two Duttch Long-Boats, which carry'd over the Portuguefes when the Fort of Tydore was loff. Seven Frigats belonging to the King, and Seven more to private Perfons, and the like Number of Crampanes, in all 36 Sail.

Colonel Folon de Efquive? brought 12 Companies of Spanifm Foot; four whereof were rais'd in Andaluzia, being his own, and thofe of the Captains, Paul Garrucho, Peter Sevil, and Luke de Vergara Gavivia. Six came from New Spain, under the Captains Don Roderick de Mendoza, Son to Don Joln de Raeza y Cafilla, and to Donna Maria de Mendoza, and by her Grandfon to the Marquefs de Montefolaros, and therefore, out of Refpect to his Kinfman, the Viceroy of New Spain, he came out of Italy to ferve his Majefty in the Plilippine Iflands; the others were Captain Pafcual de Alarcon Pacheco, Martin de Efquivel, Bernardine Aifonfo, Peter Delgado, and Stepben de Alcazar. Two other Companies commanded by the Captains \(\mathfrak{F o l i n}\) Guerra de Cervantes, and Cbriftoploer de Villagra, belong'd to the Forces of Manila, and the Province of the Pintados. All which, with their Officers, make up 1423 Spaniards. Don Pedro faild from the Port of Noilo, with all thefe Preparations, on the 15 th of Fanuary, \(\mathbf{I} \delta c 6\), the Weather being unfettled, but he as refolute as at other Times. He arriv'd at the Ifland Mindanao, then in Enmi-Tho Flees ty with the Spaniards, and in Confederacy with the Ternates, and came to fails froms an Anchor in the Port of Caldera, to water, where the Admiral's Ship, Yloilo. in which the Colonel Efquivel was, began to drag her Anchors, and was forc'd to fet her Sails to get off; but perceiving fhe could not, by fo doing, weather a Point, fhe fired two Guns, in Token of Diffrefs, at the Time when her Rudder ftruck. The Galleys made up to tow her off, and broke fome Ropes to no Purpofe, the Sea and Wind being againft them. Captain Villagra was entrufted to fave the Men and Provifions that were aboard; fet Fire to the Veffel, atier taking out all the lron Work. This Accident was much lamented, both for its own Confequence, and becaule the Men, who are often vainly Superflitious, put an ill Confruction upon it ; but the General's Wifdom made amends fur all.

From the Port of Caldera, the General order'd the Colonel to fail over to that of Talangame, which, as has been faid, is in the Ifland of Ternate; and bore him Company himfelf, with the Galleys, till he was out of the Streight of Sabuanga, which is dangerous by Reafon of the Currents, and Ridges of Rocks, wherefore they tow'd the Ships, till they were out of Danger, as alfo becaufe they were becalm'd. The Fleet ftood out to Sea; the Galleys coafted along flowly to take in Water enough to laft them to Ternate, the Men that had been fav'd from abroad the Admiral being diftributed among them, and the other Veffels, fo that their Burden and Labour was increafed. The ableft Pilots in thofe Seas, had. Charge of the Galleys, and yet notwithftanding all their Care, and that of the Captains and expert Mariners, they miftook their Courfe, and fell in among the Inands of Celebes, otherwife calld of Matbo, above 60 Leagues to the Leeward of Ternate. The Wind was contrary, and the Error was to be retriev'd by rowing. With very much Labour they reach'd Ternate, on the 26 th of March, being Eafler-Day. That Day fo joyful to all Mankind, made them forget paft Toils, and convert them into Pleafure and Delight.
They were inform'd, that the Day before, an Eclipfe of the Moon had been obferv'd at Ternate, with the ufual Concern. No fooner does the Darknefs begin to cover the Body of the Moon, than the People with Sighs and Tears begin alfo to lament that Planet's Mourning ; for they believe it forebodes the Death or Captivity of their King, or of fome eminent Perfon, or fome Calamity to the Publick. If the Eclipfe paffes over without any of thefe Loffes, they Repair to their Mofque in Proceffion, Rank and File. Here the foremoft carry large Clina Difhes. Thofe are follow'd by others with Launces, and Hatchets advanc'd, and Mufkets refled. Next them follow three Lamps, carry'd on Men's Shoulders, as common Pictures reprefent the great Bunch of Grapes carry'd by the Difcoverers, who went to view the Holy Land promis'd by God to his People. Next comes a Boy, in Royal Robes, and behind him another holding an Umbrelle, made of various Feathers, over the Head of the firf. Then follow the Women, fet off with Flowers and Palm-Branches, without Order; and thus they celebrate their Thankfgiving, in the Streets and Temples, becaufe the Eclipfe pais'd over without any Detriment. The Dutch told them, That Eclipfes were commonly known in their Country, and throughout all Europe; which thofe People either admirtd or did not believe.
When our Galleys came to the Port of Talangane, Don Pedro expected to have found the Colonel with the Fleet in it; but only faw a flately Dutch Ship, carrying 30 Pieces of Cannon, and 12 Pedreroes. She fought our Ships as they pafs'd by, and then drew to the Shore, and defended herfelf with Part of the Atillery, that was fitteff for the Purpofe, and being guarded by a great Number of Ternate Soldiers, kept clofe in her Fortification. Don Pedro took a View of her, as he pafstd by in the Galleys, tho' the made feveral Shot at him, and threw 18 Round Balls into the Admiralo iniral Gailey, where he was. He thought fit nor to fiay, till he heard of the Fleet which was then at Tydore, little above two Leagues from that Purt, as was known by fome Veflels of the Natives, that came up board and board, in failing by that Harbour. The Galleys directed their Courfe to Tydore, led by the Joy of this good News, which eas'd Don Pedro of much Care he was ill, knowing there was a Scarcity of Seamen aboard the Fleet, and he fear'd it inight have been drove away elfewhere.

Efquivel found four Duich Men at Tydore. One of them was the Factor who gather'd the Clove for a Company of his Countrymen, that belong'd to the Factories of Ternate, Ainboyna, Banda, Sunda, and cther Places about with her from Bantam, and was parted in foul Weather. That the main Drift of the Agreement made between the King of Ternate and the Dutch, was their Affiting him againft the Spaniards, and Portuguefes. That there were Ordersat fava and Sunda for the Dufch. Ships which pafs \({ }^{\bullet} d\) by to enquire there, whether there were any News from the Moluccos; and if Need were, that they fhould leave their Loding there, and go fuccour the King of Ternate.

Before Don Pedro departed Talangame, he confulted with his Officers, whether it were convenient to attack the Dutcl5 Ship before they went upon the Enterprize of Ternate. Opinions varied, but it was concluded, that fince his Majefties Defign was to recover the Maluccos, and he had order'd the Fleet to be provided for that Intent, it was not expedient to prefer any other Action. Time is fubject to change, and fometimes an Accident overthrows the beft concerted Defigns. That great Ship, fo well ftor'd with Guns, and Mann'd, might have funk fome of ours, by which we fhould have loft our Cannon, and Provifions, or fome other Mifchief, that could not poffibly be forefeen might have happen'd, to the obftructing of the main Defign. Befides that the Ternates being their Friends, in Cafe we had mafter'd the Ship, the Men might fly and fave themfelves among their Confederates, and thus the Enterprize be rendered more difficult by their Affiftance; and it was known by Spyes, that the King already had Dutcl/ Gunners, and Soldiers of Courage and Conduct.

The King was not at Tydore when our Fleet came into his Harbour, being gone to marry a Daughter of the King of Bachian; and tho' the Colonel fent to acquaint him with his Arrival, and to defire he would haften his Coming, as fearing Delays; yet perceiving the Time flipt away, he fet out on the laft of March for Ternate, with his Fleet. When they were at Sea, they heard the new marryed King's Bagpipes, Bafons, Trumpets, and Kettle-Drums. He having receiv'd the Spaniards Letters, imbark'd, bringing the New Queen along with him, and joyn'd them with his Carcoas full of Mufick, and Garlands of Flowers. They met with extraordinary Joy, and the King of Tydore exprefs.d it particularly for feeing of Don Pedro de Accunna, with whom he had before frequent Communication by Letters and Meffengers. He fhow'd much Concern for the Streights he had been reduc'd to by the King of Ternate, with the Affitance of the Dutch. Don Pedro comforted him, declaring his Majefty's Intention, and how he had order'd him to come to his Affiftance, from the Plilippine Iflands, whenfoever he fhould require it. He vifited the Bride, paying her all poffible Refpect; and the King of Tydore, telling him, he would attend the Fleet inPer-

Sentinels on Trees keaten off. Ion, with his Ships and Men, went away then to his Illand, and the next Morning, at Break of Day, according to his Promife, came into a Bay near Ternate, where our Fleet had anchor'd. The Rejoyeings for his coming did not delay the Confultations, and Orders for the Enterprize. The Gos vernour call'd a Council of War, where it was refolv'd, that all the Strength of the Fleet Thould be reduc'd to only three great Ships, to fecure the Sea and Land. They were immediately fufficiently mann'd with Seas Men and Suldiers, under the Command of Bernardine Alfonfo, Antony Carrenno de Valdes, and Don Gil Sancbez de Carranza, all three Commanders of Repute. Other Orders were iffu'd out, and prefently put in Execution by the Officers. Of the three above nam'd, two dy'd in their Return Home, and only Carreno out liv'd it.

Don Pedro, and the King of Tydore landed their Men, on the firf of April, at Break of Day ; but it being difficult, and even dangerous to march fo near the Water, becaufe there was no more ground on the Shore than for five Men in Rank; it was refolved to make the Attack with a fmall Number, gradually along the Sea Coaft, without ingaging too far; and at the fame Time to make Way over the Top of the Mountain, with fome Pampangro, and Tangalo Indian Pioneers, and to fend another Party of Men that Way, to give the Enemy a Diverfion, and oblige them to divide their Forces. The King of Ternate, whom Experience and Fear had inftructed int the Art of War, perceiving what was aim'd at, to avoid being cut off int the Rear, retirtd to his Fort, as foon as he difcover'd our Army. This was the Reafon why our Men met with no Oppofition, whereas the General Furs tado found fo much Refiftance there, three Years before, at the Seige we have fpoken of, when in gaining that Pafs, he loft fome Portuguefes and Spaniards, being affifted by Captain Gallinato.
He now put cur Men into gool Order, leading the Van, and drew up within Musket Shot of the Wall. He told Don Pedro, in the Prefence of the Kirg of Ty dore, that fome Soldiers had, by his Command, taken a View of the Place, and that confidering the Nature of the Situation, it was requifite to maintain that Ground till Night, when our Men fhould intrench; and bring up the Cannon for Battery. His Advice was approv'd of, and put in Execution; and in Regard that the Enemy did fome Harm in the main Body, and Wings, with their Camon and Fmall Shot; Don Pedro to prevent it, orderd the Men to lye down. It was oblerv'd that there were four Eminences cover \({ }^{\text {d }}\) d with wild, and full headed Trees, on which the Enemy had their Sentinels, who gave Intelligence how the Spaniards moved, and of whatoever they orderd, or perform \({ }^{\text {®d }}\). A Captain went up to make himfelf Mafier of the Trees, and foon brought down the Enemies Sentinels. Gallinato perfected that Work, commanding our Sentinels to get up into thofe fame Trees, as was done. The Enemy endeavourd to remeve them with their Cannon and fmall Arms, firing incellantly; but could never difturb either thofe that were on the Top, among the Boughs, who gave the Information, nor the others that flood at the Foot, who receiv'd and carry-ed it to the Officers. The Enemy was poffers'd of a Poft near the Baftion of Caclij Tulo, on the right Hand of the Wall, a little beyond the Trees, and the General thinking it neceffary to be gain'd, commanded Captain Foln de Cubas, an old Low-Country Soldier, to attack it with 30 Musketiers, and if he thought himfelf too hard fet, to fend Word, and he fhould have a good Supply of Pikes. The Captain went on by the Way of the Mountain, and the Enemy to prevent him, fent a Body of Men out of the Fort next the Sea, whom Captain Villagra charg'd. Whilit they were ingag'd, the King of Ternate, perceiv'd that Cubas was marching to gain his Poft, and being fenfible how prejudicial the Lofs of it would be, fally'd out hinfelf to fight him, and the Spaniards had enough to do. Cubas gain'd the higheft Ridge ; but fo fatigued, that he was forc'd to fend for the Supply of Pikes. The Captains Wergara, Alarcon, and Don Roderick de Mendoza fupported him with 40 detatch'd Men; and before they came up more Ternates and Favanefes fally'd out of the Fort, with whom the Fight was renew'd in morefurious Manner. Another Party of Infidels was p pefently difcover'd next the Sea, for which Reafon, and becaufe, if the Enemy had demanded more Succours, his Pofts would be forfaken, the King order'd thofe who fought withVillagra to retire, and went himfelf with them, and fome others to fuftain the Keff. His coming on like a brave, or rather a defperate Commander, oblig'd Cubas, to ask for another Supply which the Captains Villdgra, and Cerviantes carry'd him, and charg'd the Enemy. Cachil Amuxa, of whofe Bravery Mention has been made, went up to Captain Cut vas after burning the Brims of his Hat, and the Feather in it, with a Musket Shot, and they both fought Hand to Hand for a confiderable Time, the one with his Sword, and the other with his Campilane, or Cymiter. The Sentinels on the Trees cry'd out, giving Notice of the Troops on the Shore, and that they came on towards our Van-Guard, and the Front of it. Cap: tain Villagva was order'd to charge them with a Divifion of Shot, belonging to Captain Cervantes, who commanded all the Halbardiers. Both Parties fought with equal Tokens of Courage, when the Sentinels froin the Trees gave Notice, that Foln \(^{2}\) de Cubas, on the Right, demanded more Suecours. The Captains Don Roderick de Mendoza, and Rafoual de Alarcon went with it immediately, drawing ayt two Divifions of Nufretiers. The Sentinels cry'd out agaia, that the Enemy, who fought with Captain Villagra were retiring towards the XValls, and that Jobnde Cubas demanded anorher Supply of Pikes and Haibards. Captain Ceroantes fupported him with 50 , and Willagra, with the Men he commanded.
Our Sentinels, to whofe Vigilancy a great Part of this Succefs is owing, gave Notice again, that upon the A pproach of our Supplies, the Enemy retired in Diforder, and our Men made up to the Wall. The Event of the Battel began now to be out of Doubt, and even in that Poflure requir'd Diverfiat of Conduct. Don Redro therefore prderd the Colours with the Reft of the Pikes to march, leaving one Divifioll of Mufquetiers, and the Heavy Harquebuffiersin the Rear, to face the Enemy, in Cafe they fhould happen to fally out again toward the Sea. The other Captains and Soldiers went on fighting, and at the fet Time attack'd the Wall, helping one another to elimb to the Top: The two firf that got upon it were the Captains Folin. de Cubas, and Cervantes, whohaving receiv't fome Wounds on it, tumbled i) (20 down again. The Difficulty of this Enterprize increas'd as the Enemy renew'd their Efforts, doing us Harm with their heavy and fmall Cannon, Mufkets, fundry Sort of Fireworks, Stones, and other Contrivances the Dutcb furnifh'd them with; but the Attack was made fo furioufly, that the Spaniards gave not the King, nor his Men Leifure enough to get into the old Portuguefe Fort, within the Wall; for had they done fo, they might have defended themfelves fome Time, and our Men would have been oblig'd to batter the Walls with Cannon ; and tho' the Fort is fmall, and built in more unflilful Times, it would have coft Trouble.

The Place was taken with little Lofs, for we had but Fifteen Men kill'd on our Side, among them was Captain Cervantes, who getting up the firft

He had before faid publickly, offering to give the Charge, Gext lement, the Bull frall not make bis Efcape my Way, unlefs it coft me my Life; alluding to keeping of him in at the Bull-Feants. He was as good as his Word both ways, fince he dy'd in Performance of it; with his Arms and Legs broken. No Man of any Note, either among the Spaniards or Indians efcap \({ }^{\text {d }}\) unhurt. Many Ternates and Favanefes were flain, and fome Dutch fhed their Blood, like brave or defperate Men, thinking it a Misfortune, as they faid, to owe their Lives to our Courtefy, or Mercy.

It was never expected that the Succels, would be in all Points anfweraBle to the Juftice of the Caufe. Don Pedro had defign'd to batter the Forts, wherein he would have met with mighty Difficulties, becaufe the Cannon was very heavy, and hard to be drawn to the proper Pofts for Battery; as alfo for that there was not Earth to fill the Gabions, and the Rockinefs of the Ground obftructed the throwing up of the Trenches, which would have occafion'd the Lofs of many Men before the Artillery could be planted. The Spaniards purfu'd their Succefs, and poffeffing themfelves of the Fort, found in it 43 large Brafs Guns, abundance of Drakes, and other Arms, befides Ammunition and Provifions.

The Men having enter'd the City, every one fell to plunder, and commit Outrages. Don Pedro had made Proclamation, that all the Enemies taken within four Days fhould be made Slaves. The Commanders halted near the ancient Church of S. Paul, which was fortify'd by the Enemy with Ramparts for this Service. Opinions vary'd about what was next ta be done; Some were for fecuring what was already gaind; Others for pufhing on, to gain the main Fort. The Captains Vergara and Villagra, were forthe Latter, and the Soldiers were fo brifk and eager to run into any Danger, that one of them, of the Province of Eftremadura, and belonging to the Company of Captain Sevil, an Aragonian, and notable Commander, who was alfo for going on, took up Captain Villagra in his Arms, and carry'd him above ten Paces, faying, Good Capcain, fall on, fall on; and then fet him down. The Captain ftruck him, for having taken him up fo rudely, at fuch a Time; and the Soldier bowing, plea, fantly and with a fmiling Countenance, faid to him, God is my Life, ftrike ngain, and foll on. tacks d the main Fort, and carry'd it, being themfelves the firft that ente1'd the Cates, but not the firft that went up; for as they were ruming up the Staiss haftily, and juf going into the Hall, Barela, and old Soldier, and Corporal to Captain Cervantes, thruft by their Side, and getting in, took a git Ewre, made in the Shape of an Urn, curiounly ingrav'd, from off a rich Cupboard, or Side-bo rd there was in the Hall, Taying to the Captains, Gentlemen, I take this in Token that I came in here with you; and carry'd it away, by their Confent. All the Palace was then expos'd to the Avarice of the Soldiefs. Don Pedro would have given a check to it; but was not taken Notice of, till almoft all was over.
The King of Ternate had torfaken all, and fome of the Dutc\% him, when they faw he was going down; none follow \({ }^{〔}\) him in this Confufion and Flight, but the Sangiack of Mofaquin, his Kinfman, who encourag'd and advis'd him, his Queen Celicaya, and fome other Women. He embark'd with them all, Prince Gariolano his Son, and a few Dutch, in great Hafte, within the Wall, aboard fome Carcoas of Mofaquin, and plying the Oars, or rather Flying, arrived in the Ifland of Gilolo, at a Fort there, buile not long before in Sabugu. The reit of the Dutch got off in other Veffels to their Slip.
The whole Body of the Army now rang'd the Towns and Houfes of the Natives, wholly intent upon Plunder, and Don Pedro went about, giving Orders, and checking the Soldiers, that they might keep in a Body.
The General went on to S. Paul's Church, which was unroof'd and profan'd; he orderd it to be cleans'd, and immediately adorn'd with Boughs, and other Ornaments, brought thither by the diligent Soldiers, where they devoutly, with loud Voices, fang the Hymn, Salve Regina, which our Church ufes to call upon the bleffed Virgin. For the compleating of this Victory, they ftill wanted to feize the King, Prince, Sangiacks, and Commanders that follow‘d him. The General took Poffeffion of the Forts, fetting up and difplaying the Colours, with the Arms of the Crown of Spain, and the Name of PHILIP THE THIRD, OUR SOIEREIGN, the Mufick playing, and Guns firing. He orderd, that the next Day Captain Villagra fhould fet out in Purfuit of the King of Ternate, with roo Men in two Galleys, and the King of Tydore, and the Prince his Son, with their Fleer, confifting of two fanguas, and is Carcoas, in which were \(1000 \mathrm{Men}_{\text {. }}\)

The King and Prince of Tydore, with Captain Villagra, came to the Fort of Tacame, in Ternate, on the third of Aprit, where they found Cachil Amuxa, the braveft of the Natives of Ternate, Coufin German to their King, and his Captain General. Villagra fent him a Meffage by Antony de Siloa, Interpreter of their Language, and through his Means he furrendred, with fome Dutch; all whom he carry'd Prifoners to the City. He broughe them in very honourable Manner, and they had not the dejected Looks of Men that were overcome. Being come to the City, he deliver'd them to Don Pedro de Acunina, who obferving the fame Generofity, received and treated them courteoully, and commended their Valour. There the Cactril and Captain Foln de Crbas knew one another again, remember'd the Wounds they had given and receiv'd, and were good Friends. mending the Bravery they had fhown in the War, the General, with his own Hands, put weighty Cold Chains about their Necks, as was then us'd among Soldiers, defiring they would accept of that Acknowledgement of their gallant Behaviour, and excufe the Smallnefs of the Gift; and they on their Side, made fuitable Returns of Courtefy.

Villagra went out again, and by the Way, took the Sangiack of Mofaquia, and two of his Nephews, without any Oppofition. All thefe having defir'd Audience of Don Pedro, told him, they had always been defirous to return to their Subjection under his Majefty, but that their Kinfman, the King, had obfructed it, and ruin'd himfelf by adhereing to his own Opinion, rejecting the fafeft and beff, which was to recover their former Favour. This Pride, faid they, bas reduc'd bimto the miferable Condition be is now in. If you plenfe we will difcourfe, and perf fwade fiml to put bimfelf into your Hands, after you bave taken fuch, Security of us as becomes. conquer'd Men, and given Commitifion to fuch as you can confide in to drticle with the King. It is not the Change of our Fortune that moves us to this, for rone can daunt thofe who are prepard for the worf; but it is that Fidelity, which the Circumplances of the Times would not permit us to exert. Don Pedro seturn'd Thanks for their Zeal, and told them, The Method they had chofen was the beft to oblige the King of Spoin to ufe that Victory with his innate royal Goodnefs; and therefore empower'd them to affure the King, and his Son, that their Lives fhould be fafe. The two Cachiles embarking with Paul de Lima, who, tho' a Native of Ternate, was. difcreet and a Mafer of the Spani/b Tongue, as alro well known to the King, and with Captain Villagra, they fail'd over together to the Fort of Sabubu, in the Ifland Batoclinin. The King embrac'd, and receiv'd them with Tears; but when they propos'd his furrend'ring himfelf, he would fot conlent without a formal lafe Conduet firft granted. That Satisfaction was foon given him, for Don Pedro fent it, with Affurance of his Life, in refpectful Terms, becoming the Perfon of a King, and all folid and fafe, according to the Power committed to him, the Reft being left at his Catholick Majefy's Difpofal.
The Inftrument, which the General had drawn in Form, being read, the King refolv'd to repair to Ternate, with the Prince, and the other Cachites and Sangiacks; yet contrary to the Advice of Celicaya, of whom he was always defperately in Love. In fine, he put himfelf into the Hands of Don Fedro, and to this Effect embark'd on three Fanguas, and meeting with Villagra, they went over with all the ref into his Galleys, to be carry'd to the General. The King defir'd by the Way to vifit his Mother, who was in the Fort of Tacome, and having propos'd it to Captain Villagra, he comply'd with him, and the Galleys made hafe. They came to \(\mathrm{Ta}_{a}\), come on the 8th of April, where he landed, and his Mother coming out to meet him, encourag'd him, without fhowing the leaft Dejectednefs. Nothing appear'd in the Difcourfe between them that could be heard, that had a Womanifh Air, or the Refemblance of a Motherly Tendernefs, as the Interpreters declar'd, nor did fhe comfort him with Hopes of Revenge, but only with Reafons perfwading to fute himfelf to his Fortune, which is the Will of Heaven.

From this Place Villagra fent Advice to Don Pedro, that the King was come, and would foon be with him. He having receiv'd the News, fent The King Major Afoueta to bid him welcome. He orderd be fhould be treated with hrought to Refpect, and that the Major fould in fecret bid Captain Villagra make Ternate. hafte to Ternste, becaule there was much fill todo, and it was not proper to lofe Time. The Progrefs of Victory is not to be interrupted. They fet out in the Evening for Ternate, where they arriy'd late at Night, and therefore went not into the City. The King flocd as it were amaz'd when the faw the Place, and heard the Drums, and other Martial Noifes; being fenfille of the Y oke he had been fo averfe to bear. However he diverted himfelf that Night, as a fick Perfon ufes to admit of the Entertainment he receives from thofe who are in Health. The next Day the General came aboard, whilft the Army was forming into one great Body, and the Companies were marching, that the King might not fay ; that Show being provided for him, and the Defign that he fhould be conducted in through the Midat of the Forces. Don Pedro ordertd, That before be landed, the King of Tydore, who attended in the fame Habour, fhould go vifit him. He refus'd to receive him, as long as he could, and the Colonel and all the Captains intreated him to admit of the Vifit, which he at length confented to, either being perfwaded, or yieldiag to Importunity. The Galley made towards the King of Ty dove's Fleet, and as they drew near, the Cannon fir'd. The King of Tydore ftay'd aboard his Admiral, conceal'd between Curtains of Crimfon Damask, and when the two Galleys were come together board and board, after a long Silence, the Curtains were drawn. Both the Kings appear'd in their Veffels, looking at one another, for a confiderable Time, without feaking a Word. At length he of Ternate, as the conquer'd, call'd to one of his Nephews, to whom kneeling, he delivertd a Meflage in his Ear for the King of Tydore. The Nephew went over to the Carcoa, and having made the Zumbaya, according to their Ceremonies, with great Tokens of Submiffion, kneeling, joyning his Hands, and raifing them up to his Face, kifs'd the King of Tydore's

Then he delivertd him his Meffage with much Deliberation, all the Standers-by oblerving the knitting of his Brows, and all the other Tokens of Admiration and Sorrow, where with he was heard. The Nephew withdrew as foon as he had done fpeaking; and after the King of Tydore had continu'd a while Thoughtful, he call'd another Cachil, who was his Favourite, and Kinfman. He fpoke to him in the fame Manner, and gave him another Meffage for the King of Ternate, with much Deliberation and State. This Meffenger paid nies, and going over to our Galley, when he came into the Prefence King of Ternate, after performing the fame Zumbaya, bow'd himfelf do the and deliver'd the Anfwer. The King receiv'd it with as much Grandn, as he could have done had he been Conqueror. Then he alfo ftood a while mufing, and rifing went over to the Admiral of Tydore, which, as has been Meeting of faid, was grappled with the Galley. The two Kings difcours'd about \{everal Affairs, and he of Ternate, of his Misfortune, tho' in manly Manner.

It being now Time for the King of Ternate to land, both the Kings began to draw near it, but with different Notions. The General waited in the Forr, and faw the Landing from the Top of it. The King of Ternite came afhore between and led by the Colonel, and Gallinato. After him follow'd the Prince, conducted by Captain Villagra, and the Major. The King march'd thro' a Lane of our Foot, and feem'd pleas'd to fee them fo gallant, and orderly. Thus he came to the Fort, the ancient Refidence of his Predeceffors, and not lang fince his oww, Don Pedro, the Governour coming down to the Gate to meet him, unarm'd, richly drefs'd, and with

He would have kis'd his Hand, but the King embrac \({ }^{6}\) d him, and they went up Hand in Hand to the Lodgings; in the Statelieft whereof, they found three Chairs, with as many Cufhions before them, plac'd on a rich Carpet under the Canopy. The King fat on that in the Middle, the Prince on the next, and the Governour on the third. After a fhort Silence, the Difcourfe began, Don Pedro telling the King, his Highnefs ought to bear his prefent Condition with Refolution, remembering the long Profperity he had enjoy'd. That he offertd to interceed, and ufe his Intereft with his Majefy, that he might be reford to his Kingdoms ; and that the Subject in Hand requiring longer and private Conferences, he for the Prefent would cut it fhort, becaufe the fettling of weighty Affairs, is not to be grounded on the Noife of Promifes. The King return'd Thanks for the Kindnefs he fhow'd, in promining his Reflitution, and bewailing his prefentCondition, concluded, faying, That he took Comfort in him, confidering Heaven had referv'd him to be fubdu'd by fogreat a Commander; in which particular he reckon'd he was much oblig'd to his Fortune; and that he confided, he would treat him with fuch Generofity and Goodnefs as was due on his own Account, and his being the Minifter of fo great a Monarch, without calling to mind that his own Pride had been his Ruin. The Governour fatisfytd him as to all Points, and having ordersd the beft Houfe in Ternate to be furnifh'd, and fent to it Plate, Houfehold Goods, Linnen, Beds, Pavillions, and all Things anfwerable to fuch a Gueft, he defirdd the King would be pleas'd to remove thither, and with his leave he would wait on him; and that, with his good liking, a Spanifo Captain with his Company fhould guard his Perfon; left the Subjects of the Kingdom of Tydore, his natural Enemies, who were then very Numerous in the City, feeing him alone, fhould offer any Rudenefs. The King accepted of it, fmiling in a heavy Manner, to fignify that the Guard was appointed to fecure him, and all the other Prifoners, and that he was fenfible of the falfe Glofs they gave it.
Hedefires the Company of Captain Villagra.

The two Kings land.

Requefl of a conquer'd Perfon, he would fend him Captain Villagra, whom, as the firft Spaniard he hadbeen acquainted with, he lov'd, call'd him Father and delighted in his Company. The King is reported to have faid, that to converfe with the Conquerors, is oniy to haften being overcome, and make the Change of Fortune Habitual. The Governour was glad he could afford him that Satisfaction; and fending immediately for Captain Villagra, defir'd he would go divert the King, and make much of, and entertain him with Art, that he might be comforted. The Captain readily comply'd, and the King exprefs'd fingular Satisfaction in his Company. He fupp'd, and went to Bed, difcourfing all the while with the Captain concerning Martial and Religious Affairs.

Two Days after the Governour directed Colonel Gallinato and Captain Tillagra, together with Paul de Lima, to propofe to the King to enter into Treaty with him, in his Majefty's Name, for fettling Things in a State of Security, and Safety; and to perfwade him, that was the Way to deferve Treaty Set well, and put himfelf into a Letter Condition. They three went to him, attended by other Perfons of Note, and among them fome religious Men of the Orders of S. Augufin, and S. Dominick, and the Society of fefus, who all behav'd themfelves commendably in their Stations. The King did not refufe to capitulate, and after fettling the Form, by the Interpofition of Paul de Lima, and glanting fome Things he defir'd of the King of Spain, the following Articles were drawn and fign‘d.

The firf Thing requir \({ }^{2} \mathrm{~d}\) of Cachil Sultan Zayde, King of Ternate, and of the reft who are Prifoners with his Highnefs, is that he fhall deliver up to his Majefty King Pbilip our Sovereign, the Forts he is now poffefs \({ }^{6}\) d of, being thofe of Gilolo, Sabubu, Ganocanora, Tacome, thofe of Machian, thofe of Sula, and the Ref. To this he anfwers, that he will deliver up to his Majefy the aforefaid Forts, and to that Effect, will fend the Prince his Son, and his Kinfman Cachil Amuxa, with the Perfons appointed to take Poffeffion of them, and that they fhall be deliverd up, with all the Cannon, Ammunitions, Mufirets, and Fire-Arms there are in them. Secondly, That he ffall reflore all the Prifoners he has, either Chriftians, or Infidels, being our Subjects, as well of the Provinces of the Pintados, as of the Reft that are fubject to the Spaniards in the Pbilippine Iflands. He aufwerd, that all fuch as can be found at prefent fhall be deliver'd, and the Reft hereafter as they are difcover'd.

Thirdly, That he fhall deliver up the Dutch he has in his Power. He anfwerd, That when he departed the Fort of Ternate, 13 or 14 that were with him fled; and he fuppofes they repair'd to the Dutch Sbip, becaufe he has not feen them fince; but if they fhall be found, he will deliver them immediately.

He anfwerd, he is xeady to Herrao. deliver up all, as he had done his Perfon.

Spaniards plainly ; and this Original Capitulation was brought into Spain, with the other authentick Infruments.
In Purfuance to this Agreement, the Commanders imbarks \(d\) to take Poffeffion of the Ceveral Places, carry ing along with them the King and Prince, and other Prifoners in two Galleys being the Admiral, and Vice-Admiral, with all Villagra's Company, and Part of that of Cervantes. The firft Prace taken Poffeffion of was the Fort of Tacome, next that of Sula, both in the Itland of Terunte. Thence they faild to the great Batocbina, where are thof ra, which we corruptly call Gran Bocanora; but in that Country Language, Gano figmifies Middde, and Canora Land, fo that Gamocanora, altogether fignifies, Mid-Land, becaufe it lies in the midt of Gilolo, and El Moro. Pofferfion was taken of all thefe Forts, none landing but Villagra, with Cachil Amuxa, Antony de Sylua, and Fobn de Vega, who did the Part of a Notary, being appointed, and authoriz'd for that Time. The Caclril affembled the People at all the Forts, acquainted them with the Succefs of Ternate, and Marmer of cane to take Poffeffion, that fo all might pay their Obedience to his Majefty. raking Polfisfion. The People having been attentive to what was propos'd to them, knelt down, and raifing their Voices made the Zumbaya. Then the Captain difplay'd the'Standard advancing it in his Majefty's Name, to denote Poffeffion. Then he commanded the Natives to bring out the Cannon, and draw it down to the Shore, to be imbark'd aboard the Galleys. This was the Method obferved at Gilolo, and in other Places of lefs Note.
In the mean while, the King of Tydore, makinghis Advantage of the Victodore reco- ry, vers his Tomns. the King of Teraate had taken for him, as he actually did. Don Pedro being inform'd of it,was offended that an Enterprize fhould be undertaken without his Order, and thinking the King of Tydore had therein given Tokens of Diftruft, and Difrefpect, had Thoughts of taking fuch Satisfaction, as he judg'd the Matter deferv'd; but the King of Tydere reflecting on his Mifbehaviour, and that the Governours Refentment fwell'd up to abfolure Indignation, he found Means to appeafe him, excufing himfelf, and faying, that Invaition had been carry'd on without his Order, or Knowledge; and defifting expected to be reftor'd by Don Pedro, as we flatl foon fee.
The Method eblerv'd at other Forts, could not be followed at that of Sabubu, where Queen Celycaya was, becaufe Cachil Amuxa fell fick, or pretended fo to do. Villagra had Regard to the Circumfances of Times. Cachil Rete, &angiack of Gamocanora, the King's Nephew, and a brave Soldier, landed inftead of the other. The People of that Town imagin'd, that Villagra broughtconfiderable Forces, and therefore to fecure the Queen, and themfelves, they gathertd above 2500 fighting Men, under Pretence they would not fuffer Celycaya to be taken away. They hid themfelves with their Arms, yet not fo but that the Captain knew of it. He took no Notice, but coming up to one of the Baftions of the Town, which were both next the River, drew off the Cannon, fome few of the Natives, and thofe Boys helping him; the Reft waiting for more confiderable Action, in Arms. Then hedifarm'd the other Baftion, affifted by Francis Romanico, and \(\mathrm{Fol}_{\mathrm{on}}\) Rodriguez Bermejo, Captains of the Galleys. The Town fands on the Bank of a River, up which they had tun in their Boats; but returning with the Men that row'd, the Guns were loaded, the Sangiack Rete forwarding of it. He finding the People in an Uproar, would not have had the Cannon carry'd away, at that Time. Poffeffion was not taken till afterwards, out of Refpect to the Queen, and by Reafon of the Mutiny of the People, who efcap'd not unchaftis'd. The Galleys return'd to Gumoranora, and not being able to get into the River, nor to flay out, becaufe of the Flats, where an indifferent Wind may do much Harm, the leaft Part whereof was the Lofs of the Veffels; Gallinato therefore confidering, that if they fhould be caft a way, the King was in his own Country, whence it would be impoffible to get him out again, tho' a greater Power fhould be gat er'd for that End, than what came from the Pljilippine Iflands, and having confulted with him about the Method to be us'd to get in to Gamocanora, the Sangiack of that Place faid to him. Sir, if you Jave fuch Confidence in me, as I know yout may, and my Advice is of any Force with you, , do not gothither with thefe Galleys, for you will expofe them to Sloals, and Winds. Since therefore bere a e two Carcoas of Tydore, let the Captain Villagra, the Notary, and the Interpreter go aboard them, and I will go along with them to ny Country, where the fame foall be done, as if the Galleys went in.

Gallinato confulted with Villagra, and they approv'd of the Method, feting out in the Carcoas on Saturday in the Afternoon, and on Sunday Morning a League fhort of the River, the Sangiack told the Captain, he well knew he had been long from his Country, attending the King, and that his Subjects had no certain Account of him, and therefore, they might then as they us'd to do at other Times, come out to the Mouth of the River with a Fleet, to guard the Entrance. That if it fhould fo happen, he muft not be difurb'd, for they fhould all ferve him. The Captain, told him, how much he confided in him, fince he had fo eafily follow'd his Advice, and was come to his Country almoft Naked; and that whatfoever happen'd he would not mifruft him. Being come near the Mouth of the River, they faw is Veffels come out, and when in the Sea, they drew up in a half Moon, and made up to enclofe the Captain's Carcoa. The Sangzack feeing them near at Hand, went foward, and calfing out, commanded them to be peaceable. As foon as they knew him, they obey'd, drew together their Veffels, and came to fpeak to him. He enquir'd into the Pofture of his Affairs, and ask'd whether his Mother was there. They faid fhe was, and gave him a long Account of all Things. They went before to carry his Mother the News of his Coming, and he order'd them to affemble all the People of the Town, and that none fhould appear arm'd, for they never us'd to lay afide their gether, and imbarking again, met the Sangiacks Mother in the Middle of the River, the then coming down, to fee her Son, in a Veffel all full of Women, clad in feveral Sorts of Silks, with high Feathers, and feveral of them arm'd. Some handed the Sails, orthers ply'd the Oares, and others atrended about that Princeffes Perfon, fo that there was nut one Man among them.

The Mother being impatient, advanc'd as foon as ever fhe came to her Son's Carcoa; but he more nimbly leap'd into that Veffel of Women, and after paying the due Refpect to his Mother, there pafs'd extraordinary Demonftrations of Love on both Sides, fhe imbracing, and kiffing her Son. Thus they all went up the River, againt the Stream, till they came to the Town. Onboth the Banks there appear'd People clad in gay Manner, with Feathers, but unarm'd, and the Sangiack having defir'd his Mother to 50 athore, all the Prime Men to perfwade her Jeap'd into the Water, and carryed her in their Arms. The Saneinok and Tillagra came to the MarketPlace, in the midft whereof they found an Arbour, or Hut made of Boughs, on Timbers, and init two Chairs, on a Carpet. They fet down with the ufual Ceremonies, and the Sangiack declar'd to his Subjects, that all the Dominions of the King of Ternate, and their Perfons, were then fubject to the King of Spain, as he was himfelf. That hereupon follow'd the Obligation of delivering up the Forts to him, and he was poffers'd of all the Reff, only that being wanting. That they fhould fo order that Captain Villogra might take Poffeffion of it and the Artillery. Villagra intreated the Sangio ack ro go fee his Wife, and Children, and he would receive the Surrender of the Fort, and Arms, in the Afternoon; but he anfwer'd, that he came not to rejoyce with his Family, but to ferve the King of Spain. Afterwards he added, If ycu will have me fee them I will make Ufe of your Leave; and if your refule ir, will imbark withour feeing them. Villagra would not allow of fuch rigid Nicety, preffing him to take the Satisfaction of his Family, before the Act of Poffeffion, and in the mean while, flay'd himfelf with folia de Vega, and Autony de Sylva.

As foon as the Sangiack came Home, he fent the Captain about 30 Indians loaded with Provifions, one after another, but firf they brought Tables, Chairs; and Table-Linnen in their great Difhes, and Salvers, and on them the Salts, Knives, drinking Cups, and Ewres, Variety of Fruit, Pullets roafted and fry'd, Goats Elefh roafted and boil'd, and other Difhes, after the Fafthion of their Country. A little hefore the Dinner was ended they brought a Bed, and Pillows of green Satin, which they laid upon Carpets, to take an Afternoons Nap on. It was not long before the Sangiack himfelf came, follow'd by all the People, leading his Mother, and with them many Men loaded with the Arms he was to deliver up, gather'd from private Men, as alfo Drakes, Muskets, and other Fire-Arms, Yndjays brought them un their Shoulders, adorn'd with Boughs, in Token of the Satisfaction they had in delivering thein. The fame was then done in the Fort, as had been in the others. The Sangiack that Night gave the Captain a Supper in the fame Manner as the Dinner had heen. in the Galleys, at Tacome, with fome Indians of Sabubu, who came with a Meffage to Villagra, inviting him to go take Poffeffion of the Fort.

He fuppected they had a treacherous Defign, which wast, that, when they came to Sabubu; they would endeavour to have the Galleys come into the River, the Bar being proper for them, and having I5 00 Men in Ambufh, on both Sides of it, they would at Night fend down fome Rire-Ships upon them, then thofe that, were in Ambuth giving the \(A\) lam, they might at leaft refcue their King, and the other Pifoners that were aboard; and in Cafe the spaniards would not go in with their Galleys, they would feize Captain Villagra, when he landed, that the Governour might, in Exchange, for himdeliver them the King of Ternate. A Poutuguefe Woman, whoretir"d to Tacome, flying from Ternate when it was raken, and marry'd to a Renegado, tho the was herfelf a Chriftian, gave Gallinato Advice of this intended Treachery. He took no-Notice, but privately advis'd Villagra to pretend he was fick. The Natives of Sabutur, again preffed for the Captain, that they might deliver him the Fort, and Gallinato defiring him to make ready to go thither, he excus \({ }^{6}\) d himfelf, alledging his Indifpofition. Vega and sylva, and fome other Officers, went without him, and did the fame Thing he could have done, avoiding the Danger ofthe Treafon.

They returned with the Galleys to Ternate, where they found Don Pedro, who condefeending to fome juft Requelts, and to others which depended on Courtefy, being only Matter of Bounty, reftor \({ }^{\text {d }}\) feveral Towns, wrong fully taken. Thefe were beflow'd on the Kings of Tydore, of Baclian, and of Eian. The laft of thefe, tho \({ }^{6}\) he ought to have joyn'd the Governour before the Expedition, came late, by Reafon of contrary Winds. He reftord eight Towns to the King of Tydore, Caclil Mole, he having been before poffers \({ }^{\text {d }}\), of them in the Ifand of Machian. On Cachil Raxa Laudin, King of Bachian, who was always faithful to the Spaniards, and wounded-at the Siege Andrew Furtado lay'd to Ternate, he beflow'd the Iflands of Cayoa, Adoba, and Bayloro, which are near Bacljian, as alfo Lucabata, Palomata, and other Towns. He gave Ruy Pereyra, the Sangiack of Labua, a notable Chriftian, and the King of Spain's Subject, the Ifland of Gane to hold as Governour ; and others to Paul de Linwa, which his Family had formerly been poffers'd of.

Some Affemblies were held, to confult, what was to be done with the King and his Son. Upon fumming up the Votes, it was Refolv'd, that neither the one, nor the other, or any of the Pxifoners of Note, being This Kinfmen, Cachiles and Sangiacks of Repure, fhould be left in the Moluccos; and that, for confiderable Reafons, then appearing, it was not convenient, at that Time, to depofe the King, but to allow him to appoint fuch peaceable Perfons as he thought fit, to Govern the Kingdom, Don Pedro had, during this Time, writ to the King of Spain, acquaining him with the Succefs of the War, and approv'd of the Method of appointing Governours, and accordingly order'd the Captive King and Prince fhould be told, that this Form of Government was pitch'd upon to fecure us againtt their Confederacies, fince it was certain that they expected the Dutch, and had fent to invite them againft the Spaniards. The King complying, fubmitted to every Thing, and nam'd Cachil Sugui, and Cachil Quipat, both of them his Unkles, to be Governours, becaufe they were of a peaceable and honeft Difpofition.

A Day was was apponted for the folemn Act of doing Homage. The great Hall in the Fort was hung withSilk, rich Canopys fet up; the Governour took his Seat under the chiefeft of them, all the Forces being at Arms; and then he declar'd to the Kings the Occafion of affembling them together, which was to fwear Fealty to his Majefty, a Duty that had been fo long put off, and at the fame Time fo much labour'd for by War.

They fwore Fealty to our Sovereign Lord King Philip, in the Perfon of the Governour Don Pedro. The firf was Cacljil Sultan Zayde Buxey, King of Ternate, and Cacbil Sulamp Gariolano, the Prince, his Son. Then Cachib Mole, King of Tydore; Cacbil Raxa Laudin, King of Bachian; Cachil Dini, King of Sian, who had never done it before, but only profefs'd Friendfhip. After them fwore the Sangiacks and Cachiles, Tulo, Codate, Amuxa, Rete, Ale, Nayo, Quipate, Colambaboa, Dexebes, Pamuza, Babada, Barcat, Sugi, Gngu, Boleyfe, Guilila, Maleyto, Banaba, all of them Princes, Kinfmen, and Subjects to the Molucco King. They promis'd not to admit of the Dutch, nor any other Nations, to the Trade of Clove, and to preferve it entirely for his Majefty, and his Subjects; and to be affining with their Perfons, Forces, and Ships, whenfoever they frould be call'd upon by the Commander of the Fort of Ternate, or of the Philippines. It was alfo agreed, that they frould not any Way obfruct the Converfion of the Gentils that were inclin'd to embrace Chriftianity.

They were all fatisfy'd with this Beginning of their new Subjection, becaufe the King of Ternate opprefs'd them, as being the moft poient, and fupported by the Dutch; nor had they any Security againft his Tyranny; efpe-

The old Fort being fmall, and unfit to make any confiderable Defence, it was thought fit to build one on a higher Ground, larger, and fronger. The Plan was laid out, and Orders given for carrying on the Work. The faid old Fort was brought into a narrow Compafs, whilf the new one was raifing, which the Governour, befoie he departed Ternate, faw finifh'd, quite enclos'd, and

Governour
Don Pedro, the Day before his Departure, gave the faid Governour his Infructions, which had been maturely weighed, and debated, after feveral private Conferences with him, providing for all Accidents that might happen.
All the Prifoners, being the King and Prince of Ternate, and 24 Sangiacks and Cachiles, were putaboard the Admiral Galley, under the Care of Captain Villagra, with particular Orders to convey them to Minila. This done they fer fail. Our Fleet being departed with the Booty, and Prifoners, the Colonel, Folm de Efquivel, apply'd himfelf diligently to the Affairs of his Charge, and to haftning on the Fortifications begun in feveral Parts. Whilft the Conquerors faild away, on the fourth of May, he order'd the King of Tydore, with his Fleet, and in it fome Spaniards, commanded by the Captains Pafqual de Aragon, and Martin dc Efquivel, to fail for Sabubu, to perfwade the Cactiles, Sugui and Quipati, to return to the City; becaufe by thelr Examples the Citizens and Multitude would do the like, they being fled to the Mountains on Account of the. War; for fo they would quit thofe Deferts, be encouraged to confide in the Conqueror, and fettle in Peace. The King of Tydore arriv'd at Sabubu, with his Company; fent Meffengers to them, who delivertd what they were commiffion'd with, adding, that if they requird Hoflages for their fafe coming, they fhould have the Spanigh Captains that were in the Fleet deliverd to them. The Governours were fo far fromgiving \(\mathbf{E}_{\text {ar }}\) to their Meffage, that they fent to conjure them to depart Sabubrto \(E f\) quivel was concern'd at this miftruffful and rough Behaviour, becaufe the greateft Partof the People of the Illand were in that frong Hold, and in GiZolo, and that Repulfe in the Prefence of the Natives that were fled, feem‘d to threaten greater Oppofition. Whilft he prepardd to reduce them, he endeavour'd by fair Means to attract the Inhabitants of a Town, call'd Tacome; two Leagues from Ternate, whither alfo fome of thofe that had fled were retir'd. He fent them a confiderable Quantity of Plunder, plačd Safeguards inTacome and Malayo, to quiet, and defend them againf the Tydores, their Enemies and Conquerors.

The King of Tydore, and our Commanders, returning without any Effect from Sabubu, they failsd with the Fleet to Macbian, to recover peaceably that Part of the Illand, which the Governour, Don Pedro, took from the King of Te, nate, to reftore it to him of Tydore. At the fame Time two Dutch Ships arriv'd there; one of them was the fame our Fleet found fome Days before in the Fort Talangame; which having been a Witnefs to our Succefs, rejoyn'd the other, and both of them came together to the Moluccos, by Order of the Dutch Commander refiding at Anboynt, to encourage the King of Ternate to perfift in his Difobedience, and affift him againt our Fleet. Our Men fent the Colonel Advice, who orderd our Galliots to fet out, to find, and purfue thofe Ships, that fo their Boats might not offer to move far from them, and to endeavour to obftruct their erading with the Natives. Tho the Orders were obey'd, the faidrtwo Ships appeartd before Ternate the third Day after, and holding on their Courfe, anchor'd at Gilolo, where moft of the Natives of the Moluccolllands, who were fled, had fortify'd themfelves. They gather'd all their Veffels, and thought, with them, and the Dutch Ships, to obftruct the Ravage our Galiots made, and to fupport their Friends. This new Rebellion was carryed on in Sight of the Ditch Ships lying at Anchor before Gilolo, and they

The Colonel intreated the King of Tydore, who was newly return'd from Machian, to gather a greater Number of armid Carcoas, that our Infantry might be carry'd in them, and the Galiots, to attack Gilolo, and Sabubu, in Order to Jupprefs that Mifchief in its first Rife, there being other Places for our Veffels to put into, befides the Harbour where the Enemies Ships lay at Anchor. The King of Tydore ftarted fo many Difficulties, that Efquivel

Another more effectual Method was found. cularly Rice, from the Province del Moro, and Ifland of Moratay, partithere is great Plenty; and that we having burnt the Ships of the Molucere during that War, they would fupply the Want of them from thofe fame Places; the Governour therefore refolv'd, that Major Vergara, and the King of Tydore, fhould repair thither with Izo Spraiards, to difappoint their Defigns, that fo Neceffity might reduče them to fubmit.

Our Forces arriv'd at the Ifland Batocljina, which is the fame as Gilolo, 12.0 Spa- and where Sabubu flands. They met with no Oppofition, or other Obftacle in the Way, but only thofe fharp pointed Stakes they ure to drive into the Ground. The Enemy had placed their greateft Defence upon the River; butabandondd it upon the Approach of the Spaniards, ruininitg up into the Mountains, and leaving their Houfes They burn and Verfels. Our Men fell upen both, bumt them, and took fuch as durft Towns and ftay behind. In fine, they all, difmay'd at the Sight of the Flames and reduce the Deffruttion, embrac'd more fubmifive methods. The City Vifoo unJfland. derwent the fame Fate, and the Remains of it fued for Rardon, and comply'd.

Our Men went over in fmall Veffels to Galela, a Town built in a large Lake, which beld out till reducd by Fire and Sword, the very Childien fwimming away. Tolo, Chiava, and Camafo, which are three Leagués from Galela, and whofe Inhabitants had been formerly Chriftians, prevented Military Execution, by fending Deputies from Tolo, the firongeft of them, with Boughs of Bonanas in Bloffom, and Green, and White Cloves. They came uniarm d , and with Mufick, and exprefs \({ }^{s}\) d much Sorrow for their late Rebellion, for which Sultan Zayde was to blame, and for having forfaken the Chriftian Religion, which they were there ready to imbrace. The Spanif/ Commander praistd, and treated them Courteoully. Dur Men now fickned a pace; for which Reafon, as alfo becaufe the weferly Winds began to grow boifterous, he was oblig'd to defer the fubduing of Moratay. However he left fome Men at Tolo, with the fmall Guns taken at Gabocanora, to fecure the Towns that

The Governour mann'd a Galliot, a Brigantine, and forme faller Veffels with Soldiers, and Cbinefes to row, under the Command of the Enfign Cbriftopher suarez. He fails with a fair Wind for the Inland Mateo, which we call Celebes, the neareft Part whereof is 30 Leagues Weft from Ternate, and its Length above 150 Leagues. The furthest Part of it is fubject to the King of Macaffar, a Matometan Prince, with whom the People of Malaya have Trade, as alfo with three other heathen Kings, of whom there was a Report, that they defired to be Chriftians; but they fell under the Tyranny of the King of Ternate, and fuffer'd by his Invafiont and Burnings. Bfquivel fent to acquaint them with the King of Spain's Victories and Succefs; and exhorted them to come under his Dominion, but above all to be united to the Church. He made them Prefents of European Commodities, which are as good as Money with them, and offered the Protection of the Spanifb Power, which had pulled down that Tyrant, to whom they were Tributary. He faid, he font them Ships and Arms, and that for the Time to come, they might fafely repair to trade at the Moluccos, The fe Princes were two Brothers, the one King of Boot, the other of Totoli. He plunder'd the great Town of Mira, in Moratay, and made Captives of many that oppose 1 Hm , who had also been Chiftians. Among the reft he took a Guimala, which fignifies, a Chief, or Head of a Quarter, or Ward, whom he again let at Liberty, at the Requeft of our Men, fending him away with two other Guimalas, in the Company of Captain fo on de la Tories. The Iftands in thole Parts were reducing by Degrees, with little Oppofition. Thole of the Means, lying to the North-Weft, towards Manila, being among, and full of large Towns, defended themfelves, with the Affifance, and Induftry of the Dutch; but B. Antony Flores, a LayBrother, of the Order of S. Augufin, who fought againft the Singleyes of Manila, as has been fail above, coming thither with the Galleys, they fubmitted. The Enfign Lewis de Zuazo arrived after the Bufinefs was over, and they being now fuecefsful, and underfanding that the Dutch Ship was failed from Gilolo, made after her. Whilift the Molucco Iflands fubmitted by Force to receive the Yoke, the Governour, DonPedrode Acunna, was failing for Manila. Captain Villagra was at a Diftance from the Fleet, with the King, Prince, and Sangiacks that were Prifoners, aboard the Admiral Galley. This made them form a Defign to attempt to make their Efcape to Mindanao, and they had fucceeded, if not prevented by the Soldiers that guarded them. Captain Villagra either Sufpected, or had Information of it, and therefore doubled the Guards, and put eight of the moft daring into Chains. Among the moft xemarkable were Cachil Amuxa, the Sangiack Rete, and he of Mofaquia. They all arriv'd at Manila, but their Fetters were taken off before they came thither, after they had worn them ten Days, with much Regret of the King, whom they fatisfy'd with Hopes, and acquainting him with fome of the Grounds there were to fufpect, till the Danger of laying them afide ceas'd. The Hazard at Mindanao was, that thofe Iflands are not Tributary, yet they value themfelves upon entertaining Friend hip with the King of Ternate ; and it is moft certain, that had he attempted to fly, and fucceeded in it, they would have fupported him there; and Villagra had Intelligence given him, that the King either made, or approv'd of the Propofal ; tho' there was no want of Care and Vigilancy either in Don Pedro's Ship, or the Admiral Galley.
During all this Time we have fpoken of, the News of our Succefs was not brought to the Ploilippine Illands. This long Silence, and Want of Intelligence, became an Argument in thofe Parts, and particularly at \(M a-\) nila, that Don Pedro and the Fleet were loft, or at leaft had met with fuch ill Succefs as deferv'd to be generally lamented. Virtue never fail'd of envious Perfons to perfecute it, and accordingly Don Pedro was not without them at Manila; bur tho' they were well known, in fo much that in the general Opinion of all Men, they are fuppos'd to have given the Poilon, whereof that great Man was thought to have dy'd 22 Days after his Return, we will neverthelefs fupprefs their Names, fince it is not the Part of an Author, whofe Duty it is to obferve an exact Neutrality, and not to be led any Way by Affection, to confirm that Depofition, which, as yet, is no better grounded than on Sufpicion. They are all Dead long fince, Falfe Reports \(a\) 3road. and have been try'd before that great Tribunal, where the leaft thought cannot pafs without being accounted for. Thefe Men gave out, That Don Pedro attacking Ternate, enter'd it fuccefsfully; but that his Men had been too intent upon Plunder, the Enemy rallyed, and falling upon the Spaniards, beat them out again, killing moft of them. And that the General being afham'd of his ill Conduct, durft not return to Manila.

This Repoit being frread abroad among the Indians, did fo much Harm, Indiansbe- that they began to Mutiny, eipecially in the Provinces of Camarines, and gin toMu-Pintados; in fo much that the Fryers who attended their Infiruction, fing.

of the Moluccos were victorious, wily mould they be fill fubject to the Spaniards, who did not defend them againf the Moors, and thefe would now plunder them daily with the Affiftance of Ternate, and it would be worfe for the Future. Nor were they fatisfy'd with muttering, but proceeded to confer Notes together, and to contrive putting their Projects in Execution. But all this vanifhd at the Sight of Truth, and the News of it, brought in before the Arrival of the Conquerors, and the Preparations they faw made for their Reception, and triumphant Rejoycings. The Weather was feafonable, and favourd them in all Refpects, and they arriv'd at Manila on the ninth of fune, loaded with Honour and Victory, after they had refted in the Port of Cabite, two Leagues diffant.

The Captives diverted themfelves with our Men, to put off the Remembrance of paft Times, whilft rich Garments of feveral Sorts of Silks were provided for them at the publick Charge, which is the King's Treafury in the Pbilippine Iflands, They look'd dejectedly, and with Admiration, on the Harbour, Walls, Forts, and Buildings of the City, the Sight whereof made them call to Mind the laft Day on which they fell from their boafted State of Liberty. Our Commanders dropt fome courteous Words of Comfort in their Difcourfe, telling them, that as foon as the News could come to spain of their being reducd, and that good Order was taken againft falling again into the former Dangers, the King would order them to be reftor'd to their Liberty. All thefe Expreffions were not of Force to fatis? fy thofe Indians, who on the contrary began to complain of the General, becaufe they either fufpected, or were told by fome of our Men, that he would not obferve the fafe Conduct, and promife he had made them in the King's Name, and on which they had rely'd; and that in Cafe Sultan Zayde were continu'd in the Pbilifpine Iflands, it was certain they would fend his Son, Prince Gariolano into Europe, by the Way of New Spain. The general being acquainted with thefe melancholly Reflections of theirs, thought it concern'd the Reputation of the Chriftian Religion in general, and of the Spani/b Nation in particular, to difpell thofe Jealoufies, and therefore he writ to them, and directed the Captain, who carry'd the Letters, to perfwade the King not to conceive the leaft Miftruft of the King's Word, and Security he had confided in. This compos'd their Thoughts, and they either did, or pretended to take Comfort.
The Prifoners came with the Forces to the City, which the Fleet faluted with its Cannon, and were anfw er'd by the Artillery and fmall Shot from the Walls and Forts. The King landed in a Garden the Governour had without the Walls, where he repos'd himfelf that Night, and when Lodgings were provided for him, with the greatef State that could be, and anfwerably for other Prifoners, according to their Qualities, Don Pedro enter'd Manila with the Forces, and Ofentation of Captives and Booty. There wanted not Triumphal Archer, with fuch Infcriptions as are Generally fet on them in Honour of Conquerors. The Habit of the Prifoners, in rich Mantles, Turbants and Plumes, was not futable to their Fortune; as making their Countenances look more haughty, and reprefenting Arrogancy. That King was frong body'd, and his Limbs well Knit; his Neck, and great Part of his Armis he wore naked; his Skin being of the Colour of a Cloud, rather inclin'd to Black than Tawny. The Features of his Face were like an European. His Eyes large, full, and fparkling, to which they add the Fiercenefs of long Eyebrows, thick Beards and Whifkers, and lank Hair. He always wore his Campilane, or Cimiter, and Criz, or Dagger; the Hilts of them both refembling the Heads of Snakes gilt. This is affirm \({ }^{2}\) d by Officers that attended, and convers'd with him familiarly, to whom he was obligingly Courteous, and it appears by Relations, and by the Picture drawn to the Life, which the General fent inte spain for the King.

Rejoycings The Rejoycings for the Victory were continu'd with much Solemnity, the Indians, who were the principal Subject of them, being prefent. The King of Ternate underftanding that Meffengers were fending away to Spain to carry the News of the Succefs, and Account of the Prifoners, writ a fhort Letter to the King, intermixt with Commendations of DCn Pedro de Acumna and fome other Spanifs Commanders. He reprefented the change of his Condition, with fomewhat of Submifion, but not Humility, or rather Meaunefs; and intreated his Majefty to extend his Royal Goodneis towards the Conquer'd, for his own Magnanimity's fake, and on Account of the perpetual Fidelity, and Vaffalage they had fworn to him. This Letter was writ by another Hand, and in Spanifb. When it was given hin to fign, the King turn'd the upfide down, and Writ his Name on the white half Page in Perfirm Characters, thinking he had fign'd at the Beginning, or Top of the Letter, as is practis'd by the Princes of thofe Countries. The Moluccos being Reductd, our Minifters and Preachers went over thither, and the Voice of the Gofpel refounded again in the utmofe Borders of the Earth.
