REPORT, ETC.

INTRODUCTION.—As misapprehensions have, in some instances prevailed respecting the true nature of the Fugitive Slave Mission, it may be well once more to state that its object is simply of a spiritual kind. Thousands of colored persons, who had escaped from the United States, were located in Canada at the time of its formation; their numbers, their religious degradation, and their settlement in a British colony were the motives which induced the Society to commence the work. The funds of the Mission are expended entirely for spiritual purposes. The Committee deem mere temporal relief altogether alien from their special work; and are anxious that all the friends of the Society should be fully aware of the purely missionary character of their labors.

The collectors and subscribers will thus have the assurance that their kind co-operation cannot be interpreted, with any truth, into an enticement to slaves to run away from their masters; and that no portion of the pecuniary contributions entrusted to the Society can be expended for the mere temporal benefit of the colored population in Canada.

The following tabular statement exhibits an approximate estimate of the numbers of colored persons, of the African race, to be found on the Continent of America and in the West Indies:—

SLAVES.—United States	}	7,450,000
Brazil
Spanish Colonies
IN PROCESS OF EMANCIPATION	250,000
FREE	2,695,000
	10,395,000

The colored populations are distributed in the different countries in the following proportions :—

United States	3,650,000
Brazil	2,250,000
Spanish Colonies	1,470,000
South American Republics	1,130,000
British Colonies (West Indies)	750,000
Hayti	50,000
French Colonies	270,000
Dutch	50,000
Danish	45,000
Mexico	70,000
Canada	60,000
Total	10,395,000

It thus appears that nearly three-fourths of the whole African population, in the Western hemisphere, are still ground down, as beasts of burden, under the galling yoke of slavery! May the efforts of the Fugitive Slave Mission contribute its full measure of moral influence against this accursed system; and, under God, may it be made instrumental in some degree in hastening the time, when all men shall be recognised as being entitled to that freedom which is their birthright and their just inheritance!

The evils of slavery, in some of its worst features, continue to oppress, with inhuman severity, the children of Africa on the American Continent. It is deemed a duty, from which the Committee may not shrink, notwithstanding the repulsive nature of the details, to present from time to time evidences of the revolting treatment to which men and women—possessors of immortal souls—are exposed, as though they were mere chattels, to be bought and sold, simply because of the hue of their skin or the accident of birth.

The following account of a slave sale has been published in a Canadian paper, as the testimony of an eye-witness just returned from Tennessee, in February, 1859 :

SLAVE MART.

"Whilst there, accompanied by my wife, I visited out of curiosity a slave mart—a large shed, around which were ranged a number of colored persons of all ages and sexes about to be struck off at an auction to the highest bidder: one, a beautiful girl, whose complexion and appearance betrayed a large participation of white blood, and hardly any traces of African origin. Her age might be about twenty years. A private room was allotted for the express purpose of a thorough examination as to the soundness of the human flesh there exposed for sale. This girl was, after much competition, knocked down for a large sum. A darker-complexioned African mother, who had two children by her side, was next put up and sold; then her youngest child, about two years and a-half old, who sold for a high price, and after this her other child. The husband of this poor creature had been previously sold and separated from her and her children; and when her own desecrated human self had been thus disposed of under the hammer of the auctioneer, she besought, with tears, her purchaser to buy her children. They were, however, struck off to other dealers in human flesh. The briny tear fell from her eye at the thoughts of separation from her little ones, but the inexorable law of slavery, as recognised and enforced in Southern States, constrained her to submit, under the cold and comfortless remark of the auctioneer: 'Come, come, be off—let's have none of this nonsense.' In this way were the dearest ties of humanity ript asunder by this last act of the revolting drama. C—— says this scene was too much for himself and better half. They left, their eyes suffused with tears.

"Will our brothers on the other side of the line 45 deg., reflecting on the demoralizing tendency of such a 'domestic institution,' do nothing to accomplish the ultimate extinction of slavery within the American Confederacy, and wipe out the stain thus affixed to the escutcheon of our common race!"

In another journal is related the following deeply affecting incident of recent occurrence:—

SLAVERY, THE EXTINGUISHER OF PARENTAL FEELINGS.

"Near L, —Ky., lives a planter of wealth and standing. He was the possessor of a hundred negroes, and he was noted for his thrifty, money-making disposition. His house was managed by a young lady of about twenty, his daughter by a quadroon, whose complexion was lighter by half than his, and in whom the negro blood was scarcely visible. The mother died ten years ago, leaving her daughter with its father's solemn promise that she should be educated, and should live as a free woman rather than as a slave, and that she should pass as his daughter, as she was. The planter gave this promise, because he had really loved the dying woman, and was greatly attached to his beautiful child. And so she grew up, radiantly beautiful, receiving a reasonable education, all that her father could give, and in time took the management of his household. She never knew that there was any negro blood in her veins, and never dreamed that she was a slave.

"Last fall a series of misfortunes overtook the planter. His house was burned down, and in it the notes, books, and papers that composed a large portion of his fortune. His crops failed to a great degree, and some heavy speculations in which he was engaged resulted disastrously. Added to all this, he had lost heavily at play, the besetting sin of Southern gentlemen, and had completely exhausted all his ready means, and found himself in a terrible situation of having more money to pay than he could possibly raise in a given time.

"He applied to his legal adviser for counsel in his extremity. The adviser, after examining the situation of his affairs, advised him to sell off a portion of his negroes. A list was made out, and every head that could be possibly spared was put down. After all was done, and the most favorable prices set down for them, the aggregate was a thousand dollars short of the sum.

"The adviser remarked quietly that he had not included all that could be spared.

"'I have put down all I can dispense with,' replied the planter.

"'I do not see Mary the housekeeper's name in the list,' replied the adviser. 'She, if offered to the right person, would make up the deficiency. I would give that for her myself.'

"At any other time the planter would have taken the suggestion as an insult, but necessity is a hard master, and he grasped at the idea, and before an hour the transaction was closed. It troubled him not a little to disclose the matter to her, but the fear of bankruptcy and ruin drove him to it. The poor girl's horror and distress may be imagined. She had known nothing but happiness, and now was to be plunged into the deepest and most hopeless misery. She had been sold, and was then the property, soul and body, of one who purchased her merely for the worst of purposes. The idea was too horrible, and she swooned, remaining almost delirious for several days.

"There was another upon whom the intelligence came with crushing weight. A junior partner in a produce-house in L—— had frequently visited the planter's house on business, and struck with the beauty and intelligence of the supposed daughter, had become enamored, and after prosecuting his suit a proper time had declared his passion, and, unknown to the father, the two had betrothed themselves. As soon as possible after her father had told her her fate, she dispatched a messenger to him, stating the facts, and imploring him to save her from the fate that awaited her. Though thunderstruck at the intelligence that his affianced bride was a slave, and had just been sold to a fate worse than death, like a true man he determined to rescue her. That night he saw her, and a plan was formed for flight. The day she was to be transferred to the possession of her purchaser they fled, and in due time arrived at Cincinnati, where they were married.

"The adviser, as soon as he learned of the flight of the young woman, commenced active measures to recover her; but through the aid of watchful friends she and her husband foiled their pursuers, and in a short time reached Canada and settled in T——, where they are now residing."

From a third publication is extracted an account of

A GREAT SLAVE AUCTION.

"The largest sale of human chattels that has been made in the United States for several years, took place on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, at the race-course near the city of S—, Georgia. The lot consisted of four hundred and thirty-six men, women, and children.

"The negroes were brought to Savannah several days before the sale, and remained at the race-course stable for the inspection of customers. The anxiety of the negroes to secure what they considered good purchasers, and their painful earnestness to keep their families together by being bought by one party, led to many sad and sorrowful scenes. The following is a type of many others of a similar character:—

"Elisha, chattel No. 5 in the catalogue, had taken a fancy to a benevolent-looking middle-aged gentleman, who was inspecting the stock; and thus used his powers of persuasion to induce the benevolent man to purchase him, with his wife, boy, and girl, Molly, Israel, and Sevanda, chattels Nos. 6, 7, and 8. He made no appeal to the feelings of the buyer; he rested no hope on his charity and kindness, but only strove to show how well worth his dollars were the bone and blood he was entreating him to buy.

"'Look at me, Mas'r; am prime rice planter; sho' you won't find a better man den me; no better on de whole plantation; not a bit old yet; do mo' work den ever; do carpenter work, too, little; better buy me, Mas'r; I'se be good sarvant, Mas'r. Molly, too, my wife, Sa, fus rate rice hand; most as good as me. Stan' out yer, Molly, and let the gen'l'm'n see.'

"Molly advances, with her hands crossed on her bosom, and makes a quick, short courtsey, and stands mute, looking appealingly in the benevolent man's face. But Elisha talks all the faster.

"'Show Mas'r yer arm, Molly—good arm dat, mas'r—he do a heap of work mo' with dat arm yet. Let good mas'r see yer teeth, Molly. See dat, mas'r; teeth all reg'lar, all good—she'm young gal yet. Come out yer, Israel; walk aroun', an' let the gen'l'm'n see how spry you be.'

"Then, pointing to the three-year-old girl, who stood with her chubby hand to her mouth, holding on to her mother's dress, and uncertain what to make of the strange scene, 'Little Vandy's only a chile yet; make prime gal by and by. Better buy us, mas'r; we'm fus' rate bargain'—and so on; but the benevolent gentleman found where he could drive a closer bargain, and so bought somebody else.'

and exhibited of new; was his haporn; wallo no sold an end of

"Of the conduct and appearance of the 'stock' while under examination we have minute accounts. The following statement is made in regard to the poor slave women:—

"'The women never spoke to the white men unless spoken to, and then made the conference as short as possible. And not one of them all, during the whole time they were thus exposed to the rude questions of vulgar men, spoke the first unwomanly or indelicate word, or conducted herself in any regard otherwise than as a modest woman should do; their conversation and demeanour were quite as unexceptionable as they would have been had they been the highest ladies in the land; and, through all the insults to which they were subjected, they conducted themselves with the most perfect decorum and self-respect.

"The reporter gives many incidents of the sale which are of much interest. We copy the following story of Jeffrey and Dorcas:—

"Jeffrey, chattel No. 319, marked as a "prime cotton hand," aged twenty-three years, was put up. Jeffrey being a likely lad, the competition was high. The first bid was 1,100 dols., and he was finally sold for 1,310 dols. (260%). Jeffrey was sold alone; he had no incumbrance in the shape of an aged father or mother, who must necessarily be sold with him, nor had he any children, for Jeffrey was not married. But Jeffrey, chattel No. 319, being human in his affections, had dared to cherish a love for Dorcas, chattel No. 278; and Dorcas, not having the fear of her master before her eyes, had given her heart to Jeffrey. Whether what followed was a just retribution on Jeffrey and Dorcas for daring to take such liberties with their master's property as to exchange hearts cannot now be told. Certain it is that these two were not to realize their hopes. Jeffrey and Dorcas had exchanged their simple vows, and were betrothed each to the other, as dear as though their skins had been of fairer color. And who shall say that, in the sight of Heaven and all the holy angels, these two humble hearts were not as closely wedded as any two of the prouder race that call them slaves.

"Be that as it may, Jeffrey was sold. He finds out his new master, and, hat in hand, the big tears standing in his eyes, and his voice trembling with emotion, he stands before that master, and tells his simple story. Though his voice trembles, there is no embarrassment in his manner; his fears have killed all the bashfulness that would naturally attend such a recital to a stranger and before unsympathizing witnesses; he feels that he is pleading for the happiness of her he loves, as well as for his own, and his tale is told in a frank and manly way.

"I loves Dorcas, young mas'r—I loves her well and true; she says she loves me, and I know she does; de good Lord knows I loves her better than I loves any one in de wide world—never can love another woman half so well. Please buy Dorcas, mas'r. We're be good servants to you as long as we live. We're be married right soon, young mas'r, and de chillun will be healthy and strong, mas'r, and dey'll be good servants too. Please buy Dorcas, young mas'r. We loves each other a heap—do, really, true, mas'r."

"Jeffrey then remembers that no hopes of his are to enter into the bargain at all, but in the earnestness of his love he has forgotten to base his plea on other ground till now; when he bethinks him and continues, with his voice not trembling now, save with eagerness to prove how worthy of many dollars is the maiden of his heart:—

"Young mas'r, Dorcas prime woman—A I woman, Sa. Tall gal, Sa; long arms, strong, healthy, and can do a heap of work in a day. She is one of de best rice hands on de whole plantation; worth 1,200 dollars easy, mas'r, an' fus'-rate bargain at that."

"The man seems touched by Jeffrey's last remarks, and bids him "fetch out his gal, and let's see what she looks like."

“ Jeffrey goes into the long room, and presently returns with Dorcas, looking very sad and self-possessed, without a particle of embarrassment at the trying position in which she is placed. She makes the accustomed courtesy, and stands meekly, with her hands clasped across her bosom, awaiting the result. The buyer regards her with a critical eye, and grows in a low voice that the “gal has good p’int.” Then he goes on to a more minute and careful examination of her working abilities. He turns her round, makes her stoop and walk, and then he takes off her turban to look at her head, that no wound or disease is concealed by the gay handkerchief; he looks at her teeth and feels her arms, and at last announces himself pleased with the result of his observations; whereat Jeffrey, who has stood near, trembling with eager hope, is overjoyed, and smiles for the first time. The buyer then crowns Jeffrey’s happiness by making a promise that he will buy her, if the price isn’t run up too high. And the two step aside and congratulate each other on their good fortune. But Dorcas is not to be sold till the next day, and there are twenty-four long hours of feverish expectation.

“ Early next morning is Jeffrey alert, and, hat in hand, he begs the boon of a word to be spoken to his new master to encourage him to buy Dorcas. And all the long morning he speaks in his homely way with all who know him that they will intercede to save his Dorcas from being sold away from him for ever. No one has a heart to deny a word of promise and encouragement to the poor fellow, and, joyous with so much kindness, his hopes and spirits gradually rise, until he feels almost certain that the wish of his heart will be accomplished. And Dorcas, too, is smiling, for is not Jeffrey’s happiness her own?

“ At last comes the trying moment, and Dorcas steps up on the stand.

“ But now a most unexpected feature in the drama is for the first time unmasked: Dorcas is not to be sold alone, but with a family of four others. Full of dismay, Jeffrey looks to his master, who shakes his head, for, although he might be induced to buy Dorcas alone, he has no use for the rest of the family. Jeffrey reads his doom in his master’s look, and turns away, the tears streaming down his honest face.

“ So Dorcas is sold, and her toiling life is to be spent in the cotton fields of South Carolina, while Jeffrey goes to the rice plantation of the Great Swamp.

“ And to-morrow Jeffrey and Dorcas are to say their tearful fare-well, and go their separate ways in life, to meet no more as mortal beings.

“ In another hour I see Dorcas in the long room, sitting motionless as a statue, with her head covered with a shawl. And I see Jeffrey, who goes to his new master, pulls off his hat, and says, “I’se very much obliged, mas’r, to you for trying to help me. I knows you would have done it if you could, mas’r—thank you—but—its—very—hard”—and here the poor fellow breaks down entirely and walks away, covering his face with his battered hat, and sobbing like a very child.

“ He is soon surrounded by a group of his colored friends, who, with an instinctive delicacy most unlooked for, stand quiet and with uncovered heads about him.”

obtained for colored children into the common schools. The Committee have acceded to this proposal, made by the Corresponding Committee in London, C.W., and the General Superintendent, the Rev. Dr. Hellmuth, on the condition that the Scriptures are the basis of education in such common schools.

The Bishop of Huron has, from the commencement of the Fugitive Slave Mission, evinced a deep interest in its success, and has greatly contributed, by his counsel and co-operation, to raise it to its present state of growing efficiency.

Nearly a quarter of a century has passed since, on the 1st of August, 1834, the entire slave population of the British West Indies received their emancipation, by the generosity of the English Parliament and the British nation. The condition of degradation into which hundreds of the emancipated have sunk, in consequence of the absence of adequate religious instruction before and after their manumission, is a warning to the present generation to make a right use of the opportunity now offered for evangelizing the refugees in Canada, and to make amends for past indifference to the spiritual interests of the West Indies.

The Rev. Dr. Hellmuth, General Superintendent of the Society's various missions in British North America, has repeatedly inspected the work of the Fugitive Slave Mission in Western Canada. Without multiplying extracts from his communications for this Report, the Committee would confine themselves to his brief but satisfactory testimony regarding some of the agents employed. While on his tour of examination, Dr. Hellmuth wrote thus:—

*“London, Canada West, Sept. 25, 1858.—*Thank God we have now a respectable staff of agents, of every variety and color. On the whole, we have great cause to rejoice and to look forward with hope that our labors and efforts in the Lord to evangelize this long-neglected people will not be in vain. Our friend, Mr. Pinckney, shall have every encouragement, and I will do all in my power to strengthen his hand and heart in the work before him.

“Mr. Gordon is a young man of promise.

"Mr. Hughes is a sterling character, and esteemed in the community for his consistent Christian conduct; he has a real missionary spirit, single minded, and from the motive desires to preach Christ to colored and white.

"Miss King is most valuable as a visitor, gathering in young recruits for the schools, distributing tracts, speaking and reading to the people about Christ and their immortal souls. She has quite gained the affections of the colored people.

"Mr. Hurst, as an ordained minister, will, I trust, in the new field he is to labor in, be additionally useful and prove himself an able minister of the New Testament.

"Miss Williams continues to be very useful in the school—she never had so many colored children in her school as she now has."

The Rev. J. M'Lean, Assistant Minister of St. Paul's, London, C.W., acts as the Secretary of the Local Committee and the Correspondent of the Society. He writes:—

"London, Canada West, Jan. 3, 1859.—I consider it a great blessing to be placed near so devoted a servant of Christ as the Bishop of Huron, from whom I have experienced every kindness.

"I have every reason to be thankful at finding myself in so extensive and interesting a field of labor, and I pray that God's blessing may be with me in the work; and that the Holy Spirit may apply the Word preached with power and efficiency to the hearts of the hearers."

The statements of the missionaries themselves will be submitted under the heads of the stations where they are respectively laboring.

LONDON, C.W.—Into this city, which is the capital of the western portion of Canada, and the appointed See of the Bishop of Huron, the efforts of the Mission were first introduced five years ago. Many reasons combined at the time to lead to its selection; and the results have fully justified the choice. Schools were opened "for the religious and secular instruction, particularly of the children of fugitive slaves, but free to all who might see fit to profit by their advantages." These schools have continued in operation, and have effectually proved the feasibility of educating together white and colored children without reference to their origin or complexion.

The Rev. T. HUGHES, Master of the Boys' School, has been admitted to Holy Orders since the publication of the last Report, but has remained at his post. His letters supply the annexed statements:—

INSTABILITY OF CHARACTER OF THE COLORED RACE.

"May 1, 1858.—In all our efforts for the instruction of the colored children we have to contend with the natural instability of the negro character. While they, almost invariably in your presence, express themselves thankful for what is done for them, and generally their intention of attending the classes open for their instruction, the difficulty is to get them to do so after they have promised; and, having succeeded so far, to induce them to continue to come. This fickleness on their part is a great discouragement to us; but still I am persuaded that your agents exercise a salutary influence over all who come within reach of their labors; though, it is true, we have not yet been permitted to experience the joy (sweet when vouchsafed, but often, perhaps, too ardently coveted) of witnessing many outward results of our labors."

CLAIMS UPON BRITISH CHURCHMEN.

"I continue to take the service on Sunday afternoons at the Junction, or Lambeth, as the place is now called; and you will be interested to hear that the attendance on those services is steadily increasing. On fine days the room is full. As few who attend profess to have been brought up Churchmen it is gratifying to observe a growing interest in the prayers. This is shown by a larger number being in earlier time; indeed the room is frequently half filled before I get there. And a few Sundays ago I noticed that a respectable farmer, who has always been very regular, had provided himself with a large new Prayer-book. I know it is of immeasurably more importance to lead souls to Christ than to bring them into outward communion with our Church, and trust that such will ever be my chief object in my humble labors in the Lord's vineyard. Yet I cannot help thinking if English Churchmen could witness the spiritual destitution of this part of Canada, and were fully aware of the absolute dearth of laborers belonging to our own beloved Zion, the Colonial Church and School Society would receive a large accession to its funds to enable it to send forth men to cultivate this dreary spiritual waste. Surely Canada, which affords a home to so many of our countrymen, has no slight claims upon the liberality of English Churchmen!"

EMIGRATION TO THE GOLD-FIELDS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.

"August 2, 1858.—The newly-discovered gold-fields in the British possessions, on the Western Coast of this continent, are the all-absorbing topic of conversation at the present time. A considerable number of colored people from this place will shortly take their departure for those regions. Amongst them is a very amiable young man, who has, till within a few weeks past, been in regular attendance at school. His attainments are but humble, but his deportment for some months has been such as to lead me to hope that the Holy Spirit has begun a good work in his heart. I tremble for him now, as the scenes through which he will probably have to pass will be calculated to remove the serious impressions that have been made upon his heart. God, however, is able to preserve him from contamination, and to his Almighty protection we would prayerfully commend him. I had a few days ago a serious conversation with him, and he has promised to see me again before he leaves."

REFUGEE MOTHER AND TWO CHILDREN.

"The colored population here remains about stationary, and, from the great scarcity of employment, is not likely to increase. A solitary family now and then arrives and another leaves. Occasionally a few fresh fugitives come, stay a few days, and then pass on to other localities in search of work. About two months ago a wretched-looking woman, with two miserably-clad children, a boy and a girl, called to see if we could do anything for her. Hers, like that of every other fugitive, was a sad story, and adds another testimony, if one were needed, to the iniquity of slavery. She told us that she escaped from Alexandria, Virginia, in November last, and had been six months in making her way to Canada. She came via New York and Philadelphia, and was helped along by the Quakers. Her poor children had suffered much from cold by the way; the feet of her little girl had been dreadfully frostbitten, and still remained very sore and tender. She said her husband died some twelve months ago, and that she has four children altogether. The two eldest girls, one aged twenty-one and the other eighteen years, were unable to get away; and, consequently, she was compelled to leave them behind. This, as well it might, was now her greatest trouble. Her owner, who, she said, possessed about 150 slaves, was of a very fitful and uncertain temper. Sometimes he treated them with moderate kindness, and at others most unmercifully. His own daughter having conceived a partiality to one of this poor woman's eldest girls, taught her to read and write, under a strict promise that she should not tell her father. According to the poor woman's account, who seemed to dote on this girl, she made rapid progress, and soon became a 'smart scholar.' Her master, however, one day discovered her writing, and at once demanded who had given her instructions. She, mindful of her promise not to compromise her young mistress, refused to tell. He became enraged, had her stripped, and flogged most severely; but, notwithstanding this, she kept her secret."

INCREASE OF COLORED CHILDREN IN THE SCHOOL.

"Sept. 28, 1858.—(To Dr. Hellmuth.)—It is pleasing for me to state, and I doubt not it will be equally gratifying to you to know, that the number of colored children has been for some time past steadily increasing. You will remember at your last visit that you suggested a systematic looking-up of absentees. Miss King has perseveringly carried out your suggestion; and her efforts have been followed with the best results. Not only have those children, whose names were previously on our books, been more regular in their attendance, but many fresh names have been added to our list.

"Our visits among the colored people have enabled us to become acquainted with nearly all the colored children capable of attending school; and it is a matter of great satisfaction to be able to state, that of those who do so at all by far the larger number come to us. This is a cheering fact, and a great encouragement to us, inasmuch as it shows that the schools are doing as great a work amongst those for whose special benefit they were established, as can reasonably be expected in the present state of the colored population here."

VISITS OF THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

"I thank you for the kind and fatherly counsel and advice which we have all invariably received from you, and which makes your visits always so cheering to us; and also pray that God would vouchsafe his especial blessing upon our Mission at this important juncture, when it is about to extend the sphere of its usefulness by sending the message of reconciliation to the illused children of Africa in other localities."

SCHOOLS HELD IN THE BARRACKS.

"Dec. 7, 1858.—The close of another quarter finds us still at the barracks. The buildings are getting sadly out of repair, and are consequently rather comfortless; but from the uncertainty of our tenure it would be very injudicious to expend anything in repairs. Though I have nothing of striking interest to report, it will be gratifying to you to know that the attendance of colored children has been good during the quarter. But now that winter has set in it has become more irregular, and many of the smaller children have ceased coming altogether."

DIFFICULTIES AND ENCOURAGEMENTS.

"With regard to the improvement of the children and their progress in knowledge, especially in that best of all knowledge, the knowledge of the way of salvation, as revealed to us in the Word of God, though far from what we could desire, it is, I think, as satisfactory as could be expected when the difficulties we have to contend with are borne in mind.

"Great as are the ignorance and degradation with which we have to contend we could, with the blessing of God, struggle cheerfully, and I believe successfully, against these; but the uncertainty and irregularity of the attendance of by far the larger number is very discouraging, and baffles all our efforts to do them good. Those, however, who have been any considerable time in the school, and have been tolerably punctual, have made creditable progress, and would compare favorably with children of their own age and condition anywhere. There has been a continual diminution in the attendance of white children. This I mentioned in my last as being very probably owing to the depression that still exists in Canada. Employment continues very scarce; and the present winter will doubtless be a period of much want and suffering."

“The arrival of the Rev. T. A. Pinckney and Mr. Gordon (since ordained) has opened brighter prospects for the Mission. New ground, which we have all long desired to see occupied, will now be broken up. Mr. Pinckney has been located at Chatham, which affords a fine field for his labors, there being in that place a much larger colored population than is to be found in any other town in Canada. His color, experience, and thorough knowledge of the people among whom he is appointed to labor peculiarly fit him for the post.

“May the Lord bless and prosper him in his work! Until arrangements could be made for placing Mr. Gordon in a suitable sphere of labor, it was decided that he should stay with me in London. He was to assist in the school, and employ himself generally among the people. He has been most warmly received by them, and his desire and love for purely missionary work was so intense that I at once released him from all attendance at the school, in order that he might devote himself entirely to the work upon which his heart was set. He has commenced a Bible-class and Cottage Lecture, both of which are at present well attended. On Sunday afternoons he also holds a service in Miss Williams’s Sunday-school.”

HOSPITAL VISITATION.

“Having heard that there was a colored young man sick in the Hospital, I went to see him, which has led to my visiting that institution weekly. I found him suffering from an abscess in the back, which was slowly, but surely, undermining his constitution, and bringing him down to the grave. He is a fugitive, and, as far as he knows, all his relations are still in slavery. It is sad to witness, week after week, the quiet sufferings of this young man, and to think, owing to the cruel system of slavery, he must die in a land of strangers, deprived of the sympathy and consoling attentions of those near and dear to him. He is always most pleased to see me; and I am thankful to say that he has learned to look to his Saviour for comfort. I cannot forbear mentioning, as an illustration of the kindness with which the colored people treat each other, what a patient in the same ward told me with respect to this young man. He told me that they had been in the habit of bringing him so many nice things that the Doctor was at last obliged positively to forbid them bringing more, as they were injurious to him.”

DISTRESSED CONDITION OF THE COLORED PEOPLE.

“February 23, 1859.—There is more than an ordinary amount of distress prevailing in Canada at the present time; and the failure of last year’s crops has caused a considerable rise in the price of provisions. In this city the poor, both white and colored, are suffering severely; so much so, that the City Council have found it necessary to establish soup-kitchens, and numbers are relieved daily with a supply of soup.”

BOXES OF CLOTHING FROM ENGLAND.

“From the general improvident habits of the colored people, many of them are in a truly wretched condition, both with regard to food and clothing. The two boxes just received will enable us to minister to the wants of many in the latter respect, and, to some extent, alleviate their sufferings. I am sure the benevolent Christian friends who have placed it in our power to do so would feel themselves more than repaid could they witness the looks of gratitude, and listen to the expressions of thankfulness given utterance to by the recipients of their bounty; and I am also sure that they will not be deterred in their good work by the knowledge of the fact that some of the fugitives are careless and improvident."

EFFECTS OF SLAVERY.

"Great allowances must be made for them. When they were in slavery everything was provided for them, and habits of self-dependance are not soon formed. Though it grieves me to say that too many exhibit a total want of forethought, it must not be supposed that all are alike; there are many exceptions, and, even in these hard times, not a few will be able to get through the winter without asking or receiving assistance from any quarter."

MISS J. WILLIAMS has been Mistress of the Girls' School for four years, and has given abundant proof of untiring zeal and interest in her Mission, and of peculiar fitness for the work to which, in the good providence of God, she has been called. Her success as a female missionary has been as encouraging as her competency as a teacher. The Committee will, therefore, rejoice if the recommendation of the Corresponding Committee, already adverted to, can be carried into effect, and will gladly sanction the employment of Miss Williams in direct missionary labors among the adult female population of the refugee slaves.

From her varied communications the following selection will serve to justify the confidence with which she has been regarded by the Society, and to increase the interest excited at home in behalf of the Mission.

To a lady in Londonderry, who had forwarded a box of clothing:—

PECULIAR CLAIMS OF THE FUGITIVE SLAVE MISSION.

"May 8, 1858.—I thank you for the kind interest which you have manifested in my work, and I am truly thankful to find that you have been able to interest other Christian ladies in behalf of the Colored Mission, which, as it is yet in its infancy, has comparatively few friends; and I feel sure that those who so kindly provide clothing for the fugitives will also assist the Society in sending the glad tidings of spiritual freedom to the recipients of their bounty. Such charity has a reflex benefit, for it blesses both those that give and those that take. I think the fugitive slaves have a peculiar claim upon British Christians, inasmuch as they have long been the unconscious abettors of slavery. The produce of slave labor found a ready sale in the British market, and few thought of the groans and labors, tears and toils of the poor slave in the cotton-field or sugar-plantations, so that their debtors we are; at least, I always feel so. And certainly the Colored Mission in Canada has peculiar claims upon all those who recognise it as their bounden duty to send the Gospel to poor, benighted Africa; for here are her children, in whom years of oppression and degradation have marred all that was morally good, and developed to a fearful extent the grosser passions. I think the native African, heathen though he be, is, in some respects, superior to the poor slave, in whose veins is an admixture of so-called Christian blood, mingled as it is with sins unknown to heathens; and even on those who own no such admixture of blood the system of slavery is degrading and debasing in the extreme. The slaves are often spoken of as idle, dishonest, immoral, and deceitful. Is it any wonder? I often wonder they are not worse. Some of them work very hard; but I think few, after they have tasted the sweets of liberty, work so hard as poor white men, unless it be to procure a little lot on which to raise a home. There is very little drunkenness among them. They are unstable, and, from having been so systematically deceived, they are suspicious and deceitful; yet there are many pleasing traits in their character: they are gentle, teachable, and, when convinced of your sincerity in wishing to do them good, grateful. I have always said their better feelings only need to be awakened to make them good members of society."

CLOTHING FOR THE REFUGEES.

"You ask what articles will be most useful, and what sizes of children require the most clothing? The most useful articles are chemises made of thick, unbleached calico, blue striped shirts, flannel petticoats, frocks of almost any material, an occasional dress for a grown person. Such as are suitable for all ages and sizes will be useful.

"The greatest want, after all, is good strong shoes, which, of course, you cannot help us to, unless some ladies could interest their shoemakers sufficiently to induce them to give a pair: they are very expensive, and very poor here, lasting a very short time. Miss King has established a 'Parochial Shoe Fund,' or little savings-bank, but I am afraid the small deposits will be long in reaching the worth of a pair of shoes.

"The tradesmen and working-men of England are very generous. I have thought if an appeal could be made to them they would respond to it; and if the ladies who employ one shoemaker regularly would ask, I think a few pairs of strong boots would protect some little feet from the frost.

"Perhaps I ought not to have said this; but, after your kindness in asking what articles were most needed, I thought the suggestion might be given. You will know best if it can be acted upon.

"The kindness of some Christian friends in England enabled us to clothe or help many poor colored families last winter, which, though not severely cold, as is usual in this country, was exceedingly trying, owing to the stagnation of trade and the great monetary pressure. I know many families who were glad to work for flour, potatoes, and fuel, and have not received any money; to such the clothing was a great boon."

DOCILITY OF COLORED PERSONS.

"August 10, 1858.—The two colored men who have assisted me are very regular and consistent, and seem much interested in their work. They are intelligent, and, I hope, Christian men. Some of the scholars have made great progress in learning to read, and, I trust, have received some spiritual benefit. The last person whom I mentioned in one of my letters as a candidate for baptism learned the creed in an intelligent manner before he could read a word: now he reads in the Testament, and I purpose giving him the Bible sent as a reward by a lady, in the little box from Bristol.

"B—, a mulatto, whom I have mentioned before elsewhere as being very dark and ignorant of spiritual things, but exceedingly anxious for instruction, has been obliged to leave London, and seek work on the Grand Trunk Railway now being constructed between here and St. Mary's. Still, he is making progress, and as often as possible returns home on Saturday night that he may enjoy the privilege of coming to school. A week or two ago I sent him a few tracts, and was delighted to see him on Sunday, and to receive his warm expression of gratitude for them. He assured me they had all been read and distributed, and begged me to send him some more by the post. I am so pleased to hold any influence over them so far away, that I shall endeavour not only to send, but, before my school reopens, go myself. At present, I believe, about 1,500 are employed on that railway, and probably one-sixth of them are colored."

To a lady at Hadley, Barnet, who has rendered valuable assistance to the Mission:—

CASE OF D—, A REGUGEE.

"October 2, 1858.—I had expressed a wish to visit the little settlement where Mr. D— was, and he fetched me in his waggon. As we rode along, he told me of his conversion and escape from slavery, which was in substance as follows:—

"I was born a slave. My father escaped on board an English vessel from Baltimore to England—I know nothing of him. When one of my master's sons became of age, I was given to him, just as you might give a horse or a pig. He was very kind to me. I travelled with him to New Orleans and other parts; but I shall never forget the dreadful sights I saw there, the very air seemed rent with the cries and screams of the tortured slave. All this time I did not swear, nor steal, nor keep bad company; but I was an unconverted man. However, there came a great preaching some distance from us; mistress and all the family went. I drove them, and we went along jovial as possible,—I thinking of nothing but the frolic. When we got there the man was preaching. I listened, and for the life of me I could not get to unhitch my horses. I thought I'll get a little further away, but I could not. At last it seemed to me that if the whole world had been tied to me it could not have been so heavy as my load of sins. Oh, how I did cry for mercy! At last I found it, and I felt as light as a feather. I loved to pray, and, through grace, I have continued till now.

"Well, after this my master wanted me to go south, but I could not, and told him I would die first; so he let it pass, and said no more about it. But one day, whilst I was plowing in the field, I heard a long low whistle, looked about, and saw a man crawling along on the ground towards me. He said, "Do promise not to tell of me." I promised; and he said, the master had got a lot of fellows up at the house to take me and sell me down south, but, said he, "Clear off as quick as you can get up to our place,"—he left me.

"Presently the young master came and told me to go up to the house. I took in the horses and went up, saw mistress crying, and presently afterwards saw men with pistols in the porch. I shouldered a pitchfork and walked to the stable,—heard one of the men say, "He suspects nothing,"—went round the stable and ran off. Soon they saw me and set off in pursuit; they had a hound with them, and he started a squirrel which gave them a long chase, leading them away from the place I was seeking. Fearing their return and the dog finding the scent, I took to the water and waded for nearly two miles. I had some money at the house, but dared not fetch it; and thinking that probably I should want some, I concluded to go to a woman, to whom I had been hired to cut oats, and ask for the money. She could not have heard of my escape yet; so I went up to the door, received the money, and made my way to the house of the Quaker who had told me of the danger. He and his brother were helping to hunt for me: when he came home, he said, "Well, the master thinks you'll come back in a week or two, but if you do not he will advertise for you, and offer a reward; but before this you must be safe in Canada." So after giving me directions, and food, and a suit of clothes, they sent me away. Oh! how I trembled and prayed. Just at dark I came to the Black Swamp, and met a minister on horseback, who asked me if I thought of going through there, and tried to dissuade me, saying, he had been all day crossing it, often up to his horse's body in water. "Besides," said he, "there are panthers and wild cats there and no house;" but on I went.

"It grew pitch dark; I was up to the middle in water; heard such horrid unearthly screeches all around me, but I prayed all the time. After walking nine miles I saw a light, and thanked God; found the people were sitting up with a sick person. When they opened the door a good fire was blazing on the hearth.

"They said some unearthly power must have brought me through the Black Swamp; "for," said the man, "I would not go through it now for all the land in the state of Ohio." They were kind to me; said if I was not free, I had better be going, for they had seen a poor fellow, but a few days before, retaken and carried back in chains. This frightened me; so after drying my clothes, I set off again and soon found myself on the high-road. At night I lodged at a colored man's house; went off next morning, but had not gone far before, on looking back, I saw three men coming after me. I laid down and hid myself among the long grass ; they passed so near that I heard them talking. They concluded that I must have taken another road and returned to the town. I was greatly frightened, and walked all that day and part of the night without speaking to any one ; at last, when it was pitch dark, I heard some one behind, and was afraid to breathe, when a voice said, "Art travelling?" I said, "Yes." "Well friend," he returned, and when I heard the Quaker tongue I felt better, "thou hadst better not go farther to-night, I have a brother not far off, I'll lead thee to his house." I was very tired, so I followed him ; but fearing all the time I knew not what. I went to bed, was afraid to sleep, but next morning he came to me with a free pass, gave me food, and advised me to be going. By his direction I was passed to the captain of a boat at Cleveland, who kept an hotel, in the cellar of which he stowed away fugitives, till he could pass them to Canada. I lived on his boat, went with him to Lang Island, and up into the Georgian Bay. When we returned to Cleveland the captain saw the advertisement and the reward ; so he just turned his boat and landed me in Canada, paid me twenty dollars, and, said he, "As soon as you step there you may tell your master you are free, for you are under the British flag." No one knows what I had gone through ; so nobody can know what I felt. Since that time I have served the Lord, and He has been a good Master.

"This is but one of a multitude of narratives which might be given ; showing the difficulties and dangers which attend their flight and their perseverance in surmounting them. Would to God we might see so much perseverance and earnestness manifested in seeking to escape from the thralldom of sin ! I am sure yourself and friends will unite with me in earnest prayer, now that special efforts are being made for them, that the Gospel preached may be indeed 'the power of God unto salvation ;' and that his servants now going amongst them may point them successfully to the spiritual freedom wherewith Christ makes his people free."

To a lady at Chipping Norton, in acknowledgment of a parcel of tracts and clothing :—

THE WORK OF THE MISSIONARY FACILITATED BY THE KINDNESS OF ENGLISH FRIENDS.

"October 2, 1858.—Could you but peep into my school, you might see many articles of clothing, with the history of which you are acquainted. The wants of the poor woman H— shall be attended to as you desire ; and you may be sure we shall find many, particularly during winter, whose hearts will be gladdened by your kind liberality.

"The distribution, however, will not be confined to London ; for missionaries about to be sent westward will take a portion of the clothing with them, and it will enable them to prove that they seek only the good, temporal and spiritual, of those to whom they go. Thus your kindness is the means, not only of clothing the destitute, but of giving to the missionary an amount of influence, enabling him to open one of the avenues to their confidence, and thus advance their spiritual interest."

THE MISSIONARY STAFF STRENGTHENED.

"If I could only convey to you a scene which passed before my own eyes on Wednesday last, your hearts would bound with gratitude to the Disposer of events for thus opening the way for the Mission. Three gentlemen were ordained by our excellent Bishop. Impressing and interesting as such occasions always are; this was rendered doubly so, from the fact that they were set apart for a special work amongst a poor despised and down-trodden race, to whom they go, I believe, with the holy determination of St. Paul, to 'know nothing among them but Jesus Christ and him crucified.' One of them leaves immediately for Amherstburgh, a place long since immortalized by Mrs. Stowe."

CITIES OF REFUGE.

"If your young friends will look on the map, they will see Amherstburgh on the south-western extremity of Upper Canada, just where the Detroit river (which connects Lakes Huron and Erie) merges in Lake Erie. In this place and the adjoining township of Colchester there are great number of fugitives; indeed those western towns are cities of refuge, where the escaped are safe from the hounds of the slave-hunter, and the lash of his hard master. Perhaps we, who have been cradled in a land of liberty, cannot enter into the feelings of one, who breathes the air of freedom for the first time; and you will therefore allow me to quote from the writings of a young colored lady, herself never a slave, but deeply sympathizing with her oppressed people. She says, 'I have gazed for the first time upon a land of freedom! and would you believe it, tears sprang to my eyes and I wept. Oh! it was a glorious sight to gaze for the first time upon a land where a poor slave flying from our glorious land of liberty would in a moment find his fetters broken, his shackles loosed. And whatever he was in the land of Washington, beneath the shadow of Bunker's Hill, or even Plymouth Rock, here he becomes a man and a brother. And yet even here it is too true that the fugitive finds that he has only exchanged the iron yoke of oppression for the galling fetters of a vitiated public opinion. They came here of course exceedingly ignorant and debased; but who can wonder at it? For, as the writer I have just quoted well expressed it,—'Born to an inheritance of misery, nurtured in degradation, and cradled in oppression, with the scorn of the white men upon their souls, his fetters upon their limbs, his scourge upon their flesh, what can be expected from their offspring, but a mournful reaction of that cursed system, which spreads its baneful influence over body and soul; which dwarfs the intellect, stunts its development, debases the spirit, and degrades the soul.'"

REAL OBJECT OF THE MISSION.

"The Society aims at the moral and social as well as the religious elevation of these poor people, but unhappily the greatest difficulties are caused by the people themselves. Time is required to gain their confidence and uproot their suspicions. I am sure you will pray for us all, that wisdom from above may be vouchsafed to us."

MORE DIRECT MISSIONARY WORK.

"December 6, 1858.—The little Sunday mission still continues, though, from the fact that several families have removed from the neighbourhood, and that I have been unable to visit them during the week lately, it is not so well attended as at this time last year; but I hope soon to be able to bring them all out again, especially as we are now favored with a regular Sunday afternoon service. The people are supplied with Prayer-books (places found), and, all things considered, they respond very well. It is pleasing to see a growing attachment to our form of worship. I trust they feel that it is not a mere form, but a spiritual worship. As a proof of the interest awakened, I may mention that the wife of B—, with whose name you are familiar, asked and obtained from me a Prayer-book to take with her to St. Mary's; and, as that town is blessed with an Evangelical ministry, I hope to find that both she and her husband attend the church there.

"You will be gratified to hear that early in October (just about twelve months from the commencement of the little mission) seven children were brought up for baptism, which, together with those mentioned before, makes sixteen in one year—a very fair proportion from such a small community; and, without attaching any undue weight to the privileges of the baptized, such a result is something to be thankful for."

TO THE CHILDREN OF ST. MATTHEW'S SCHOOL, BRISTOL.

"February 19, 1859.—Your kind presents for the poor colored children were forwarded to me last autumn by the Secretary of the Fugitive Slave Mission. Since then I have often thought of you and of the kind feeling which was breathed in the letter which was written for you.

"I have often regretted that people did not try to enlist the sympathies of children in behalf of Missions more than they do; and I am thankful to find that your kind friends have interested you, by teaching you to make little gifts for children of different races and complexions from your own. I dare say you have often been taught also to collect money—to deny yourselves some little gratification, that you may be able to give something—your mite—to help forward the cause of Missions. This is good; and when you say that beautiful prayer which our Saviour has taught us, you will remember that you are praying for Missions. Is it not because we are the children of 'Our Father' that we feel bound to tell those, who are in error and ignorance, of the 'Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,' 'who so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life'? And in the first three petitions of that same prayer, even before asking for daily bread, we are taught to pray for the cause of God. Your little rewards and gifts gave the colored children in my school great pleasure, but I have something very strange to tell you—so strange that I doubt not angels wonder at it. They are pleased with your little gifts, and yet will not accept that GREAT GIFT which is so continually offered to them in the Gospel. Black children, and colored children, are like white children, and grown people, too. Their hearts are naturally hard; they think there is time enough to think about God, and heaven, and eternity—not knowing, or forgetting, that fearful passage in Prov. i., ‘Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded; I also will laugh at your calamity, and I will mock when your fear cometh,’ &c. Read from the 24th verse to the 31st, and God grant such awful words may not be said to you.

“When I look at the map and see how Canada is divided from the United States in some parts only by a narrow boundary, some of the States just over the boundary are free States; yet if a fugitive be found there, let him be ever so near the boundary, he is taken back to his former owner, and his hard bondage made still harder. I have known cases where they have been almost whipped to death for attempting to escape; but let them be once over the boundary they are free—they are safe, for they are under the protection of our gracious Queen. I say, when I look at this, I think how much it resembles the case of those who are the slaves of sin. They may break away from open sins and amend their lives, but so long as they neglect to flee for refuge to the hope set before them in the Gospel they are not safe; their hard master may at any time overtake them, and drag them to hopeless, endless chains. There is no safety out of Christ, but in him there is perfect safety. The fugitive slave is not safer on Canadian soil from the hounds, the lash and chains of slavery, than is the little child who believes in Jesus. (Read Rom. viii.)

“I know your kind friends read to you the little books and papers about the Fugitive Slave Mission, and therefore I have not given you any account of fugitives. We all listen with pleasure to a thrilling story, and such is the history of almost every escaped slave I know. But I wished to give you a higher motive—to convince you that the cause of Missions is the cause of God; and that you cannot engage in his cause, or render to Him acceptable service, unless your own heart be right with Him. I will now only pray that you may be happy recipients of God’s free gifts, and that, passing from death unto life, at last may join with that great company of redeemed ones, who out of every kindred and tongue and people and nation sing, ‘Worthy is the Lamb,’ &c.”

PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS OF COLORED SCHOOL CHILDREN.

“March 3, 1859.—With this I send you the portrait mentioned in my last, and a short description of each. My object in having so many taken together was to show the varieties of color between the genuine African and the nearest approximation to Anglo-Saxon.

“The boy on my right, James S——, is of real African parentage, and although he had the happiness of being born free, his parents had been slaves. When I called to show them the picture the mother’s hearty, ringing laugh, as she looked at ‘our Jim,’ almost made me wish for the same lightheartedness, but it is characteristic of the race. And, though in great distress, she could afford to laugh while she said, ‘Wall, raly I thought our Jim was a better lookin fellow then that; but, ’deed, Misses Williams, I shoulnd’t a knowed you no how, you looks reel weel.’ Of course I could appreciate the doubtful compliment.

"No. 2 shade, the little Lizzie L—, on my left (in front) was born in slavery. Her mother was owned by some wealthy people in Maryland, who were very kind to her, and, approving of her marriage with the slave of a neighbouring planter, purchased him, and settled them both comfortably upon a farm a few miles distant. Still they were slaves, and as they heard of one after another of the people being sold, in consequence of their master's losses at the gaming table, they began to fear lest they might share the same fate. So, collecting a good supply of food and what money they could, they started for Canada. Walking by night, hiding in the bush by day, and carrying their provisions and little Lizzie, then three years old—often going a considerable distance out of the way, either from ignorance of the road, or fear of detection, they made slow progress. Arrived at Pittsburgh in Pennsylvania; they took the cars, reached Detroit, crossed the river, and were safe in Canada just three weeks after they started.

"No. 3 shade, Alice G—, on my left, I have no particular information about; her parents had been slaves.

"No. 4, John P—, on S.'s right, is a mixture of African, Indian, and Saxon. His grandmother, a very interesting Quadroon, had been left free by her master's will; married and had seven daughters, two of whom, the mother and the aunt of John, were married; but all were near the old lady. On a sudden she heard it whispered that the heirs of her late master, having discovered some flaw in the will, intended to claim herself, her children and grandchildren, now seventeen in all. Greatly alarmed, she consulted a lawyer, who kindly told her that her only safety would be in flight. Not even a shadow of protection would the 'star-spangled banner' afford this poor woman, whose only crime was the hue of her face. Acting upon the lawyer's friendly advice, she took refuge in Canada, and now, while she has the pleasure of seeing her children's children, and their children—her daughters are all married but one, and the seventeen more than doubled,—she has the satisfaction of knowing that they never can be slaves. John is a boy of moderate abilities, much darker in color than his mother.

"No. 5, the Mulatto, William L—, tells his own story; and you would almost fail to recognise in his open countenance any indication of his parentage; still less would you suspect the beautiful little Quadroon girl on my right of belonging to the proscribed race, and yet that girl was born in slavery. When I tell you that her mother was an interesting Mulatto woman, you will read in that fair young face the sad story of her mother's wrongs. Soon after little Fanny's birth the poor slave-mother was obliged to leave her child, and accompany her young mistress on her marriage tour. On reaching Cincinnati she found friends among some abolitionists, who assisted her to escape to Canada, where she obtained a respectable situation with good wages, and at last succeeded in purchasing her child, then eighteen months old, for 250 dollars. She has since married a respectable mechanic, and, though another little one claims their affection, I think the little slave holds the highest place.

"So far I have given you only the bright side of the picture, but there is another and a sadder phase of fugitive history. The effects of the demoralizing system under which they have been 'raised' are not shaken off with the yoke of slavery. They have never been taught self-respect; in fact, the effect of their 'raising' has been to destroy what they had. Many of these unhappy women have children, some born before, some since, they came here. Could these be taken from the blighting influences of home, instructed in the fear of God and in a higher morality, and fitted for domestic servants, they might yet become useful and virtuous members of society.

"When Dr. Hellmuth was here last he proposed a plan by which a few orphan or fugitive children might be taken and provided for. If this could only take effect, and a few of the poor children, whom I have spoken of, be rescued from the terrible future which opens before them it would be a great blessing. And surely no amount of labor or self-denial need be thought too great, if it, by God's blessing, produced such results. I have written and spoken to Dr. Hellmuth relative to a desirable locality, and I have no doubt he will communicate with you on the subject."

Miss KING, voluntary teacher and missionary in connexion with the Society in London, has rendered valuable services, which the Committee desire gratefully to acknowledge. Their prayer is that she may be made a true spiritual blessing to many souls among the colored people.

From various quarters the Committee have received strong testimony to the zeal and success with which Miss King has devoted herself to promote the eternal interests of the fugitive slaves. She writes:—

CASES OF REFUGEES.

"May 1, 1858.—A short time back I met a man, a carpenter by trade, who arrived here recently from New Orleans. He had heard that he was to be sold down South, and that his master was to have 25,000 dols. for him, and, dreading the prospect, the poor fellow came away and got here in safety. Finding he could read a little I gave him a New Testament, with which he was much pleased.

"Another man I met, who had been injured by cruel usage, and has not been well since; he was two years in getting here, being twice captured and taken back. He came away at last, armed with fire-arms, and subsisted for many days in the woods on anything he could get, sometimes only frogs and buds of trees. He cannot read."

THE SCHOOL.

"The school children have received the book-markers, bags, &c., made for them by the children of the Rev. J. Hambleton's school and other friends, and were much pleased with their little presents. And we purpose on Whit Tuesday to have them all to tea by way of a treat.

"July 30, 1858.—You must have been expecting some little account of our school treat, which took place on Monday, the 26th May, instead of Tuesday, as at first proposed. Monday being the Queen's birthday, and a general holiday by appointment of the Governor-General, we thought it a better day. Everything went off pleasantly.

"We were favoured with the best day we could have had for such an occasion, though it rained for a day or two before, and for a day or two after, the treat; and the children were enabled to be out of doors, the Captain Resident at the barracks kindly allowing the free use of the barrack-square for the occasion, and also rendering us any assistance in his power. The children appeared to enjoy themselves very much, and behaved exceedingly well.

"They all assembled at three o'clock and amused themselves in the playground till five, when they met in the green-square in front of the barracks, where we had previously arranged benches for them on the grass. They then sang, 'When his salvation bringing,' &c.; and, after singing a grace, were abundantly regaled with tea and cake; after which they sang another grace, and the Bishop of Huron, who kindly honored us with his presence, addressed a few appropriate words to the children on the privileges they were enjoying in receiving a scriptural education. They then sang 'God save the Queen.' You will be glad to hear that there is still an increase of colored children in the schools, the attendance of late has been more than it ever was before.

"The other Sunday we were called upon to stand sponsors for two colored children, whose mother wished to have them baptized, and who could get no one to stand for them. They were the children, whom I mentioned in a former letter, as having been brought away last year from slavery by their mother to save them from being sold, and who are now amongst the most regular of our attendants at Day and Sunday schools."

DISTRIBUTION OF TRACTS.

"The tracts are still valued by the poor fugitives who can read; they are sometimes returned to be changed with such expressions as the following, 'That's a nice book,' 'it is so sweet and comforting.' 'I thought the last my daughter read to me was the best I ever heard in my life,' said a poor fugitive the other day, when returning her tract for another, 'but this, if anything, is still better; I think every one I get seems better than the one before.' Another said, 'That tract you lent me was so good and so beautiful I lent it to a friend of mine, and that friend lent it to another friend, and so it has gone through twenty people's hands, and it has not got home yet.' It is encouraging to find that they are really read and valued. There are three fresh families arrived from the States; and the children of two of these come to the school."

DISTRESS AND DESTITUTION.

"The fugitives as well as others have felt the badness of the times in the difficulty of obtaining work for the last six months; but to relate all these incidents to you would make my letter too long. This circumstance does not appear, in the least, to have made them regret the step they have taken in coming to Canada. The other day a man told me he had been troubled to get work this winter and spring, to obtain bread for himself and family; he said, 'Last week he was out three days in succession seeking something to do, and only had one meal in three days, and that one not at home.' I immediately said, 'And then you began to think of the good things you had in the States with but little trouble.' He said, 'No, not once; liberty is such a much sweeter thing than anything else, that I had rather put up with this or worse and have my freedom.'

COLORED MISSIONARIES.

"Nov. 1, 1858.—I am thankful to say that I have been enabled to continue visiting and class-teaching as usual; and you will be glad to hear that there continues to be a large number of colored children in the schools. Our colored brothers (Messrs. Pinckney and Gordon), who have lately arrived from England, are a great acquisition to the Mission, they strengthen our hands wonderfully; and I think their influence for good will be very great, both in benefiting the colored people and in destroying the prejudice of the whites, which I am sorry to say is much greater here than it ought to be, even among those from whom we have a right to expect better things. The truth that 'God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted with him;' and that 'He hath made of one blood all nations of men,' appears to be too much lost sight of; but I attribute this to our being so near the States. This place is quite unlike England, where a colored clergyman would create universal interest. Surely where God is pleased to give his Holy Spirit, and we see a living 'temple of the Holy Ghost,' it is man's duty to disregard altogether so trifling a matter as the color of a person's skin. As to other charges sometimes brought against the people, the high intellectual attainments and gentlemanly manners of our colored missionaries must completely give the lie to all that, when they see what education will do for them, and what the people may yet become."

ADULT CLASS.

"My Sunday adult class is growing into a Sunday-school of men, women, and children. I now receive all who come on Sunday, though hitherto I have only had an adult-class of such as could not read; still, when I found that several came who could read, because, as they expressed it, 'they wanted things explained,' I gave an invitation to all who liked to come. Last Sunday sixteen came.

"We have had more baptisms since my last letter to you, and have still been obliged to stand sponsors ourselves. The Rev. T. A. Pinckney has baptized eight children who could not be brought to the church; and, since he has left for Chatham, the Rev. R. Gordon has baptized one female adult at the church. She belongs to my Sunday-school; and I had the pleasure last Sunday of seeing her at the Lord's table. This is a little encouraging fruit; she is the first communicant we have had, and I feel much interested in her. God has been pleased to call her to the knowledge of himself through much affliction; and we believe her to be perfectly sincere and single-minded."

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

"Feb. 24, 1859.—As far as my own work amongst the colored people is concerned, there is not much of fresh interesting news to communicate. My little Sunday-school, for the benefit of those colored people who live on the opposite side of London to Miss Williams's Sunday-school, continues to be attended, and more have joined it. But the irregularity with which the people attend to everything—one of the greatest difficulties we have to contend with in laboring amongst them—leaves the number in regular attendance only slightly on the increase."

CLOTHING FOR THE POOR.

"The attendance of colored children in the Day-schools has been small during the winter, though we have the same number on the books. The distress during the winter, arising from the scarcity of food, has partly caused this; and here I may add, that the clothing so kindly and liberally sent out from England has been most useful. From the last that came we filled a box and sent it to Chatham, so that it is now distributed in three different places—London, Amherstburgh, and Chatham."

The REV. R. GORDON, of African descent and of unmixed color, arrived in Canada from the West Indies at the close of last year. He has been admitted to Holy Orders by the Bishop of Huron, and located in London under the direction of the Bishop and the Corresponding Committee. Mr. Gordon is almost self-educated, but is an instance of the progress which may be made in mental improvement by the children of Africa. He reports:—

"Dec. 31, 1858.—I embarked on board the North American from Liverpool on the morning of the 25th of August, and arrived at Quebec on Thursday evening, the 9th Sept. About four hours after I was seated in one of the coaches of the Grand Trunk Railway, purposing to proceed forthwith to my destination. I arrived here (London) at two o'clock on Saturday evening, after a land journey of nearly 800 miles, and received Holy Orders from his Lordship the Bishop of Huron about a fortnight after. That I have met with some amount of success, as the blessed result of the Holy Spirit's gracious smiles on my humble, yet fervent, efforts to spend and be spent in the prosecution of the benevolent object of the Society, the following facts will doubtless afford proof. I have had for the last thirteen weeks, on Tuesday nights, a Bible-class at the barracks."

CONFIRMATION-CLASS.

"I have under faithful drilling in the Church Catechism twenty-two candidates for confirmation, who are also members of the Bible-class."

"A few evenings before the Confirmation-class was regularly organized I lectured before a large number on Confirmation, showing, in simple language, the institution of the rite in apostolic times, its practice in the primitive ages of the Church, and the object intended in requiring those who have come to years of discretion to submit to it. I have a class of male and female adults who are candidates for baptism; five have already been baptized. A fortnight ago I baptized four of the members of a Roman Catholic family."

CASE OF CHARLES GORDON.

"A very interesting African lad, aged about twenty, escaped here, a month ago, from New Orleans, and brought papers from several kind persons who facilitated his fugitive object. He came to London in quest of his mother, who, it appears, had, by flight, breathed the pure atmosphere of freedom before he did. He can read and write a little, is possessed of superior natural abilities, is a member of my Bible-class, a candidate for confirmation, and is, I think, worthy of the personal interest which is taken in him. If he were in a position to come to school, his teacher, from his remarkable facility for retaining instruction, would never labour in vain. I baptized him last week by the name he desired, namely, Charles Gordon, in compliment to his new friend."

SUMMARY OF DUTIES.

"I regret exceedingly that as yet I have but two stated services a-week, three being the number I proposed to myself to maintain. The one is kept upon a Sunday evening, a mile and a-half from my residence, whilst the distance to the place where the other is held, on a Thursday night, is the same. I have, for the last three months and a-half, been attending to a class at the Sunday-school of the Cathedral; and, for a half-hour on the mornings of Mondays and Fridays, give religious instruction in Mr. Hughes's school.

"With regard to the duty of house to house visitation, I beg to report that, as a rule, I daily employ four hours of my time in its performance, so that I can say that I have visited very many colored families in London. From the circumstance of their being so widely scattered over a very large area, the visitation of half-a-dozen families, of course such between whom a long length of ground intervenes, consumes the whole of the time allotted to it. The tracts, which the Religious Tract Society, and Prayer-book and Homily Society, kindly gave me when I was in England, have doubtless been instrumental in effecting much good, and I have great pleasure in stating that the people read them with avidity. Feeling convinced that a salutary influence would result from the practice, I have invariably had full evening service whenever my Bible and Confirmation-classes meet. Those who come regularly are being initiated in the sober and chaste mode of worship of which it is our inestimable privilege to be the possessors. And because of their hitherto entire ignorance of that mode, and want of sympathy with it, the repugnance which they manifested to come to church must gradually become weaker and weaker."

DESIRE FOR INSTRUCTION.

"I cannot but say that they receive me with open arms, and evidence in their deportment deference and civility. They are, doubtless, eager to obtain religious instruction, and always express themselves as being grateful for the kind and Christian feelings which the people of England entertain towards them, and which I never pretermitted a favourable opportunity of making known to them. A rather remarkable and exemplary negro, distinguished for his fisty predilections in seconding the force of his warmly-conceived opinions, was some time ago rapturously giving vent to the gratitude which found a place in his affectionate heart, on account of the love which the Queen cherishes for his race. With stentorian lungs he gave out the following assertion:—'That she had sent all kinds of men to elevate them and do them good; but now she sends Moses himself (meaning myself, your negro missionary) to lead we into de land o' Canaan.'

"It would certainly be unworthy of me were I to close this first Report, which I have the honor to make to the Committee, without stating that the very exemplary and zealous co-operation of their voluntary agent, Miss King, has been of immense service to me, so that it has considerably facilitated my labors."

CHATHAM.—This is a considerable city on the river Thames, with a population of 4,000 or 5,000. The colored people resident here and in the immediate vicinity cannot be less than 2,000. There is, consequently, abundant scope for the zeal and energies of a faithful missionary.

The Rev. T. A. PINCKNEY, a colored native of Carolina, and formerly a missionary in Liberia, has been located at Chatham. Though never himself in slavery, he takes the warmest interest in the highest welfare of his race, and is anxious to spend and be spent in promoting their religious instruction, and in leading them to the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation. Mr. Pinckney remained some time in England, and has the sympathy and prayers of the Committee, to whom he became fully known, that the Lord may prosper his work and labor of love. He has furnished the subjoined Report:—

"December 7, 1858.—I arrived in London, Canada West, from England, on the 27th August, preached several times, and read the service in St. Paul's Church; also visited the colored people from house to house, and distributed a large number of tracts. After which I was appointed to this field (Chatham). Arrived here on the 8th October; commenced next day visiting and conversing with the colored people from house to house, and also distributing tracts and lending books as at London. It was nearly three weeks before I could get a suitable place to hold service in. Afterwards I obtained from the Council the use of the Town-hall, where I am now holding service on every Lord's-day twice, when my health, which is not very good, permits. The severe climate is trying my constitution somewhat."

BIBLE-CLASS AND SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

"I am also about forming a Bible-class and Sunday-schools, but am prevented from completing them from want of books suitable for the purpose. I have already written to his Lordship, the Bishop of the Diocese, on the subject, and he has promised to send me a few, such as he may be able to find. But I would respectfully request the Committee to furnish me with a full supply, as his Lordship may not be able to provide."

GREAT NEED OF BOOKS.

"Indeed, I may truly say that my hands have been completely tied up for want of books and funds to carry on the work. But I hope and trust that the blessing of God may rest on my labors in the next quarter, and that matters connected with the Mission will progress more smoothly and prosperously than it was possible they could do in the first, considering the disadvantages under which I labored in coming for the first time into this strange place."

DIFFICULTIES.

"There are in and about Chatham some 2,000 colored persons, it is said. The majority of them are Methodists and Baptists, as they are generally, wherever they are found. Many of them do not profess any religion at all. It is upon these last that I hope, by God's blessing, to make some impression. There are also a very few who have been in the habit of attending service in the Episcopal Church in the States. These are following with me now.

"A few whites also attend occasionally; indeed, I may say, every time I hold service."

ENCOURAGEMENTS.

"Upon the whole, I have to say, in conclusion, very respectfully to the Committee, that, though I have met with some discouragements, yet, on the other hand, I have been encouraged to go on in the performance of my duties to the utmost of my poor abilities, expecting from on high the blessing which is promised to the finally faithful."

AMHERSTBURGH.—This city, also called MALDEN, is situate on the Detroit River, and has a population exceeding 2,000 persons, of whom several hundreds are colored refugees. A separate school for colored children has been established here, at the request of the African race, while the mixed plan is carried out in the other settlements, excepting Chatham.

The Rev. J. HURST, who has been recently ordained, and has now had considerable experience among the colored people, has been appointed to establish the Society's Mission in this city, which was originally marked out as a place to be occupied when the plans of the Society were more fully developed. Mr. Hurst has been successful as an agent of the Society, and has been much blessed in his labors for the spiritual benefit of the colored race. He is the oldest Fugitive Slave Missionary in respect of length of service. His reports and letters present the following details:—

"December 6, 1858.—Immediately after my ordination to the ministry of the Word, I was appointed missionary to Amherstburgh and its vicinity. Amherstburgh is a small town at the south-west extremity of the province, where the River Detroit merges into Lake Erie. This is an old settlement, partly occupied by French Canadians, and, like some other places, not much improved."

COLORED BAPTIST CHAPEL.

"I obtained permission from the School Trustees to occupy, for an evening lecture, the school-room set apart for the colored people; but it being found too small, or, at all events, not having convenience to seat above forty persons, who assembled the first evening, the colored Baptists invited me to hold the meeting in their chapel, which will comfortably accommodate 200 persons. Last Wednesday evening about seventy assembled, though the roads were very muddy."

THANKFULNESS FOR THE MISSION.

"During the service, as well as in my visits to their houses, it is easy to see that a lively interest has been awakened in the Mission, and they hail with joy my coming amongst them. May this grow, not that my name may be mentioned, but that their souls may be saved, and the people of God built up in their most holy faith.

"Colored people have a peculiar way of expressing their religious sentiments; but here, as in every place where I have been, there may be found some of the Israel of God, who, though despised of men, are beloved of the Lord."

BIBLE-CLASS.

"In addition to the lecture mentioned, I have already commenced a Bible-class in their school-room, held on Saturday afternoons.

The elder scholars form this at present, but I confidently hope very soon to see a large attendance. Some Testaments from the Rev. J. Hambleton's school-children will be used in this class. May it please God to make their liberality a blessing! Bibles, however, would be more suitable for reference."

DOMICILIARY VISITATION.

"I have already visited a considerable portion of the colored people, but not systematically, judging it best to become acquainted with the leading persons immediately, and to learn what I can from all quarters."

CHOICE OF LOCALITY.

"This is certainly an excellent place for the Mission; the appointment quite fell in with my judgment, and I hope it will appear so to others in a short time. Lying around are several settlements, where, with a horse, not only could I hold service in the school-rooms on Sunday afternoons, but I should have time to return to town for evening service. There is also a large settlement ten miles in the country, which might be reached, in the same manner, on weekdays. These things I mention merely to show you how well this place is suited for a centre of operations."

CLOTHING FOR THE POOR.

"December 16, 1858.—We brought one box of clothing from London, and find it needed much more than in any other place we have seen. Mrs. Hurst is disposing of it where she thinks it most needed. Children go about the streets with apparently nothing on but an old cotton frock. No wonder they get sick and die. A woman told me yesterday, she had lost ten children by consumption."

"There is a box of clothing on its way for London, but really it is more wanted here. May we not hope to come in for the next one? When navigation is open, anything may come from Quebec, direct to Amherstburgh by steamer, at other times we have the Grand Trunk Railway as far as London. Tracts also are much wanted. There has not been any tract distribution here, and tracts are anxiously sought after. It is pleasant to sow seed in this way. I should be glad of a few Prayer-books, at a price as low as can be afforded, that I may sell them. Forgive me if I ask for some of the Tract Society's small gift-books, for the children who learn a few verses of Scripture every week. I like to entice young minds in this way."

PRAY FOR US.

"March 2, 1859.—Your kind letter was duly received last week; and I take the earliest opportunity of answering it. I have no doubt that this special Mission awakens the sympathy of our English friends, and indeed it ought to do so. Nor would we wish them to show their sympathy by contributing to its funds only; but also in their prayers for us, that the Lord will continually open our way, and give us the necessary wisdom to take advantage thereof."

DIFFICULTIES OF THE WORK.

"This Mission is a difficult one in whatever light it is viewed. We have to contend with the prejudice of the whites against the colored, and of the colored against the whites; with their attachment to their own habits of worship and uneducated preachers, and even the shyness of assembling in the same house of prayer with the whites."

OUT STATIONS.

"There are three stations around the town, not more than four miles distant, where services can be held. I have already occupied one of these, and have a good congregation of apparently devout people; but the roads are in such a wretched state that travelling is next to impossible. On Sunday I ventured out, but could only get to the place by climbing the fences, and crossing the fields and bush lands; and even then it is too bad to be repeated, until we have improved roads. A horse and light vehicle are indispensable, if my labors must be pushed into the country; and I think the white people will give me one of the two in a little time for services held amongst them. Last night I preached to about one hundred colored persons in a Methodist chapel, and if they were delighted I certainly was also. Their singing made me quite cheerful. I saw two colored ministers and a white one present, with a small sprinkling of white people. This evening (D.V.) I am to preach in the Baptist chapel, and doubtless 150 will be present. Our English friends would be delighted to see the earnestness of these poor persons; they seem to drink in the word and feel that Jesus is precious, and I have good hope that the Gospel is not preached in vain. By the way, the Bishop advises me to preach to the colored people wherever I can gain admittance. In addition to preaching I catechise the children in the colored school once a week, when there are present from thirty to fifty. Some adults come regularly to listen to this class. A great part of the Testaments sent out to me are here used. The children are very intelligent, many of them can read well and write a fair hand, and their answers to my questions are not inferior to those of the white children of the same age. In Toronto, London, and most of the cities east of Chatham, all colors are admitted into the 'common schools,' but here there is a white school and a colored school, and the same distinction is observed in the surrounding country."

COLORED SCHOOLS.

"The three preaching stations I have mentioned are in colored schools. Some of these are very fairly taught, and in almost every case by colored persons. In the town we have a male teacher of good attainments, and really a hardworking man, but laboring under great disadvantages for want of suitable maps, &c. I have often thought it would be desirable to send out a few of the Christian Knowledge Society's cheap maps of Palestine, to give each school one; these would be of great use in our Scripture instruction. Many of the schools are entirely secular, but in these the teacher reads a chapter out of the Bible, and opens with prayer every morning."

APPOINTED SUPERINTENDENT OF COMMON SCHOOLS.

"Yesterday I received an official notice of my appointment to the office of local superintendent of the "common schools" in this township. This will bring me into immediate connexion with all the teachers and schools. By this appointment I shall have opportunities of visiting the surrounding country free of expense, as the allowance for my trouble will pay the hire of a vehicle for the necessary journeys; so you see the way keeps opening. You ask me particularly for narratives of fugitives. I shall be happy to furnish you with them from time to time, as I become more acquainted with the people."

CASE OF MRS. B., A REFUGEE.

"This woman, now about eighty years of age, spent the greater part of her life in slavery, and was the mother of twelve children. One of these died in infancy, and the rest came with their parents to Canada. We very rarely find families so large as this making their escape all together. Her statement was much as follows:—

"When my boys began to grow up they were unwilling to remain in slavery, and determined to go to Canada. I saw this spirit increasing in them, and was afraid it might become known; for then we should certainly have been sold down the river. This was a great burden to me,—my master was very kind, and we had much liberty. I had charge of the hogs and sheep, the smoke-house and some other things. We had plenty of clothes, a good house for the family, comfortably furnished, and a good feather-bed to sleep on, and the thought of running away was very hard to bear.

"What would General T. think of me after all his kindness? I took these things to God in prayer, and asked Him to let us remain as we were. But six of my boys who had got religion prayed against me, and how could I succeed when six prayed against me? Then the boys came and said,—"Mother, we are going to Canada, and if you will not go, we must go without you, and perhaps you will be ill-treated when we are gone,—you had better go along with us."

"This was very hard (putting her hand to her breast), I felt mighty bad here; for we could only get away by deceiving our master. On Saturday we left the place, while master was away, telling those at the house that we were going to a meeting at a little distance; but instead of that set off for Canada, first on foot, then on a steamboat as far as we could, and in a waggon the rest of the way. But how frightened I was the whole time! Yet the Lord brought us through. On the following Saturday we reached the wharf at Amherstburgh, and feeling my feet on free soil, I shouted out—Victory! victory! Bless the Lord, He has given us victory! The boys came around me and said, "Mother, you must not make all this noise;" but I said, "Go away, I will shout, for the Lord has given us freedom."

"This poor woman is now a widow, and, like Anna, 'serves God day and night.' Her conversation is only about her Saviour, with whom she appears to hold the closest communion. A few days ago, when I visited her, she said,—"Are you the brother that preaches in our chapel?" I said, Yes. "They told me you were going past the other day, and I could not see you;" but I said, Never mind, I shall see him in the next world if not here. They tell me you preach to them different from the other preachers.' I told her that to teach the simple truths of the Gospel was my object. She cannot read a word, and yet in those things which immediately concern her salvation is well instructed. If I say,—‘How did you learn these things?’ She answers,—‘The Lord Jesus taught me by his Spirit. He said so and so to me.’ I have often felt assured that God has ways of communicating a saving knowledge of himself to persons who have very little opportunity of attending the means of grace. There will doubtless be many at the last day at the right hand of God, whose religion has been despised by other Christians when on earth.”

CASE OF MRS. B.—T.

“I was brought to this country when young. My father and mother left Virginia with six children intending to bring us all to Canada. But on the way, while in a free State, we were overtaken by persons who had been hired for the purpose. My father offered resistance, and in the affray was wounded; and one of my sisters had her skull broken by a blow with the barrel of a gun, so that her brain was laid bare. By the help of some friends my mother escaped with five children; I saw my father when he was wounded leaning against a stump, and that was my last look at him. Both he and our wounded sister were taken back. We afterwards heard that our father was sold to New Orleans, but of my sister we know nothing. After pursuing our way some time, my brother being persuaded by a man who was travelling with us to return with him, went away, and we never heard anything of him. In another part of our journey one of my sisters went into the wood to find a stream of water and got lost. We were then wandering in a strange place, and not knowing the way, found at night that we had come round the country to a place we had seen before,—we had returned six miles. Here we found a house, and asking for shelter were shown into a barn, in which we lay down to sleep. Presently a sound of breathing was heard, which raised suspicion in our minds as to whether we were in company with friends or foes. But my mother, summoning courage to speak in the darkness, was answered by her own dear lost daughter, who had wandered through the wood to the same place. At this time we had no money, for my brother and the man with whom he returned had taken all with them, so we lived upon what friends gave us on the way.

“Finally we got on board a vessel, and were landed on a small island in Lake Erie, where my mother, from exposure and unhappiness, became sick and remained a little time, but we were sent to the mainland opposite, on the Canadian shore. We wandered on foot to Amherstburgh, crying as we went. There our mother joined us when she recovered.”

“In no place have I seen people so ragged as these are in the country places, and what clothes they have could never be put on by any person unacquainted with their peculiar shape. They seem to be rather hung upon their backs than otherwise; but there is a commendable modesty in many of these people. They will not always tell us what they want. A few kind friends gave me some money at the beginning of the winter to relieve distressed cases. These both Mrs. Hurst and myself have hunted up, and actually offered the relief before it has been asked for. This is a pleasing trait in their character, and leads one to trust them."

VALUE OF THE CLOTHING SENT.

"March 11, 1859.—Our winter has been exceedingly mild. Surely God has tempered it to the distressed state of the inhabitants. Last year's crops of wheat and oats were destroyed; the former by a small insect, the latter by the rust; so that we depend for these necessaries on other places. To see the joy in the countenances of the colored people for the clothing they receive would repay our kind English friends for their trouble. They cannot procure food, much less clothing. Some of the scenes Mrs. Hurst meets with are too wretched for me to describe. She generally visits after me, and attends to the clothing, and sometimes finds out families who have not come in my way."

In former publications, the Society has made known the name and character of the colored man, Abraham Copeland. He has, like many others, emigrated from Canada to the new British colony in the North-West. His letter from thence to Mr. Hurst will be read with interest:—

"Vancouver's Island, Dec. 11, 1858.—Christian Friend,—It is with pleasure that I write these few lines to you to inform you that I am well, hoping this may find you enjoying the same blessing. My wife wrote me word that you were in London, and had called to see her. I was highly pleased to hear from you indeed. I often think of the times we used to have at Brother Gibbs's and other places in praising God; and I hope, if we never meet in such meetings again on earth, we shall in heaven, where all our partings are no more. I am well pleased with this country indeed, and intend to make Victoria my home. I have found more true hearts towards Christ here than any place I have found since I left home. Victoria is a small place, consequently there are only two churches—the English and the Catholic. I attend the English twice every Sabbath. The Rev. Mr. Cridge is our minister. I expect my wife to this country in the spring. Please remember me to Mr. O'Neil, and excuse this short letter, and write to me soon."

TORONTO.—The Committee have not received any special report of the labors of Mr. Ormerod as a city missionary among the colored people of Toronto. They are glad to know that he is pursuing his labors with fidelity, and trust, on a future occasion, to be able to publish an account of them. Amidst a population of nearly 50,000, it is believed that at least 1,000 are colored refugees.

VANCOUVER'S ISLAND.—The Rev. E. Cridge, Colonial Chaplain of Victoria, Vancouver's Island, feeling the importance of early efforts for the spiritual instruction of a considerable number of colored persons who had arrived in the colony from the United States and the Canadas, in consequence of the gold discoveries on the Mainland, British Columbia, at once applied to the Society for the required co-operation. The following is his statement:—

"Oct. 4, 1858.—The colored people are still an object of great anxiety and interest to me. There are, perhaps, 300 of this class here at present, and when a favorable juncture arrives, there is every probability of their immigrating in large numbers. They have mostly bought land and built on it, or are engaged in various useful occupations. They seem to be decidedly rooting in the soil. Whoever goes away, these, I am convinced, will, as a body, be permanent (unless they are greatly disappointed in their hopes). So far, their conduct as a class has been excellent. They feel their position, and know that they are on their trial, and that they have a character to establish. They are anxious to enjoy British liberty and the good will of the white people, but they have a great ordeal to go through. Most of the Americans and Americanized population are affected with a deeply-rooted prejudice against the colored race, and we have had great difficulty in so ordering our church arrangements as not to drive away either the one party or the other. Sometimes white people will leave the church outright, when they find themselves in contact with a man of color; at others, a white man will watch his opportunity, and dart from his seat as if he had been stung, and seek another place. How the matter will end I know not. I can only act on the broad principle of knowing no distinction, at the same time that we (the churchwardens and myself) carry it out with such modifications as circumstances require and wisdom dictates. In this we have been greatly assisted by the colored minister, Mr. Moore, who fully appreciates the position, and knows how to restrain and modify the forwardness of some of his people. I send you a 'Victoria Gazette,' containing a correspondence which arose in consequence of a sermon which I preached on this subject. I think, on the whole, the prejudice is less marked. I should be glad if you could send me any papers to show how this thing works in Canada.

"My chief anxiety at present, however, is to provide some more specific agency, if possible, for the benefit of this interesting race. I fear they may gradually lose those religious influences with which many of them were imbued when they first came here. The church is not large enough to contain them all without driving away the white people, for which reason I cannot use so great and general urgency with regard to their coming to church as I could wish. There seems to be an opportunity of setting such agency on foot in the person of Mr. Moore. I should first say that, in consequence of some remarks made by some of his people who preceded him to this place, intimating some expectation of his being permitted to carry on his ministrations among them here in connexion with the Episcopal Church (I think I told you that he was ordained in the American Methodist Episcopal Church), I was purposing to write to him, lest he should form expectations which could not be realized. I was prevented from doing this by his coming earlier than was expected. Immediately on his arrival he sought an interview with me, and said he wished, if it were practicable, to make his services here directly beneficial to the spiritual welfare of his race, and, if possible, in connexion with the Established Church. He readily understood (what, indeed, he did not seem to expect) that he could not labour as an ordained minister in connexion with our Church. But I said it was quite consistent with my own wishes that his people should enjoy the benefit of his labours, if satisfactory arrangements could be made, and promised to write to your Society on the subject, at the same time that I fully made him to understand the contingency of the proceeding. Now, I think he might be very useful as a Scripture-reader or catechist. He might hold a service once on the Lord's-day, and perhaps once in the week, in a room in another part of the town, provided we can in due time get a suitable one built. I do not know whether your Society is in a position at the present time to take him into your service in this capacity. I mentioned the subject to the Bishop of Oregon (Bishop Scott), who paid us a visit a short time ago, and he fully approved of the plan, provided I was previously satisfied as to Mr. Moore's character. In reference to this, I can only say that everything I have seen and heard of him has given me an opinion highly favourable to his soundness of doctrine and consistency of life. He has considerable natural ability, and is, at the same time, of gentle and unaffected manners. And what enhances my opinion of him still more is the affection with which all his people have spoken of him to me from the first, both those who came as a deputation at an early stage of the movement, as well as those who followed, as many as I have spoken with. He is at present keeping a store as a means of livelihood, and this perhaps he might continue to do, unless he could be provided with such an income as would set him above the necessity of doing so. He has a wife, but no children. I should say he is about thirty-five or forty years of age. I commend this matter to the favorable consideration of your Society, and beg an early answer."

The Committee at once responded favorably to this appeal, and authorized Mr. Cridge to employ Mr. Moore for a time, as catechist, upon a grant from the Society. And as soon as he had gathered adequate evidence of the spiritual qualifications and competency of Mr. Moore for the duties of catechist, he was further instructed to appoint him permanently to that office under the Society, and to place him on the list of its agents.

The hearty loyalty of the free colored population in Canada is attested by all who have been brought into contact with them. They sometimes give utterance to their feelings of attachment to the Crown of England in a style peculiarly their own. A colored gentleman of Chatham, C.W., has composed an anthem for his fellow-countrymen, which is happily expressed, and in the prayer of which every true British Christian must cordially join:—

AIR—"Home Again."

"Bless the Queen! England's Queen!

Heaven protect and save!

Oh, may the space be wide between

Her cradle and the grave!

Ever may her land remain

Asylum of the free;—

A spell to break each galling chain

Of human slavery.

CHORUS.—Bless the Queen, &c.

"Neath her sway, equal rights

Extend to rich and poor;

From halls of dukes and gallant knights,

To the humble peasant's door:

Hence, ever from the peasant's cot,

And domes of wealth and sheen,

One prayer ascends of word and thought,

God save, God save the Queen!

CHORUS.

"O'er her may angels spread

Their all-protecting wing;

Oh, may they shield her heart and head

From each delusive thing;

Shield her from the gloom and care

By mortal eye unseen,

That she may live—long live—to wear

The crown—God save the Queen!

CHORUS.

"When her long, peaceful reign

Shall here have been complete,

And she for brighter realms would fain

Leave this terrestrial seat,

May her deathless spirit soar

To that blest world of light,

Where ills and cares disturb no more,

And there's nor day nor night."
