FRANCE and ENGLAND.

IS Majefty thinks it confiftent with his goodnefs and juffice to inform his fubjects of the endeavours he has ufed, and the facrifices he refolved to make, in order to reftore peace to his kingdom.

France, and the whole univerfe, will judge from a plain and faithful detail of the Negotiation, which has been carried on between the Courts of Verfailles and London, which of the two Courts have been averfe to the re-eftablifhment of public tranquillity, and have facrificed the common peace and welfare to their own ambition.

In order to form a clear and just opinion with regard to the Negotiation which has lately broken off between France and England, it is neceffary to recollect the motives which occasioned the rupture between the two Crowns, and the particular circumstances, which have involved a confiderable part of Europe in a war, which had at first America only for its object.

The limits of Acadia and Canada, which, by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, were left to the difcuffion of commiffaries to be named by the two Potentates, have ferved England as a pretence for commencing hoftilities, and for taking two French fhips, the Alcide and the Lys; while, in the midft of peace, and under the fanction of the law of nations, the Duke of Mirepoix, the French Ambaffador, was treating at London in order to prevent a rupture, and to terminate those differences, which might have been eafily accommodated at Aix-la-Chapelle, and which, while the peace fubfifted, had met with the most unreasonable and extravagant opposition on the part of the English Commissions. The unexpected violence offered on the part of the English neceffarily brought on the war: his Majefty found himself obliged, though with regret, to repel by force the indignity offered to France, and to prefer the honour of the nation to the tranquillity it enjoyed.

If the court of London had no other defign than to effablish the respective possibility possible to obviate, as France has done, every incident which might engage the Powers of the Continent of Europe to take part in a war which is abfolutely foreign to them, and which in fact, having no other object but what relates to the limits of Acadia and Canada, could not last long, and did not require the interposition of any other Power. But England had more extensive views: she endeavoured to raise a general war against France, and hoped to renew the famous league which was formed against Lewis XIV. upon the accesfion of Philip V. to the throne of Spain; and to perfuade all the Courts of Europe, that they were as much interested in the limits of Acadia, as in the fuccession of Charles II.

The conduct of France, in confequence of the first hostilities in 1755, was very different from that of England : his Majesty pacified his neighbours, restrained his Allies, refused the advantageous prospect of a war, which was proposed to him on the Continent, and gave all the Powers to understand, that his fole ambition was to restrain his enemies, the English, within due limits, and to maintain peace and justice among the Powers, who ought to regard the differences respecting America with the most impartial neutrality.

The Court of London, to accomplifh their ends, took advantage of his Majefty's equitable and pacific conduct. She knew that one of the Allies of France might prove a lively obftacle to the eftablifhment of peace and tranquillity, and made no doubt, but, in fecuring that Ally, fhe fhould be able to make that Houfe, which was confidered as the antient rival of France, enter into all her views: but the Emprefs Queen of Hungary and Bohemia, animated by the fame principles of equity of which his Majefty gave fuch laudable proofs, refufed the propofals of England, and rather chofe to run the rifk of an unjuft war, which was the natural and forefeen confequence of the treaty figned at Whitehall between the Kings of England and Prufila, than to engage in one contrary to the good faith of her Imperial Majefty.

His Majefty and the Emprefs-Queen, previous to the King of Pruffia's invafion of Saxony, entered into an alliance on the 1ft of May 1756, which was purely defensive. Their Majefties hoped, that their alliance would check the fire which was ready to kindle in Germany, and that it would prevent a war on the Continent of Europe. They were deceived in their expectations : the Court of London had armed the King of Pruffia : nothing could reftrain a Prince whofe paffion for war was unhappily violent : and he began it at the end of the year 17.56, by the invasion of Saxony and the attack of Bohemia.

From that time two diffinct wars fubfifted; one of France with England, and which at the beginning had nothing in common with the war in Germany; and the other which the King of Pruffia waged against the Empress-Queen, and in which which the King of Eng'and was interefted as an Ally of the King of Pruffia, and his Majefty, as guarantee of the treaty of Weftphalia, and, after his defenfive treaty of the 1st of May, as an Ally of the Court of Vienna.

France was cautious, in the engagements the was conftrained to make with the Confederate Powers, not to blend the differences which diffurbed the peace of America, with those which raifed a commotion in Europe. In truth, his Majefty having always made it his principal object to recal each Potentate to terms of reconciliation, and to reftore public tranquillity, he judged it improper to blend interefts of fo diftant and complicated a nature, as those of Europe and America would prove, were they to have been jointly treated of in a negotiation for a general and final peace. His Majefty proceeded farther, and with an intent to prevent a direct land war in Europe, he proposed the neutrality of Hanover in the year 1757; the King of England, Elector of Hanover, refufed the propolition, and fent his fon the duke of Cumberland, into his hereditary dominions in Germany, who, at the head of an army entirely compoled of Germans, was ordered to oppose the march of those forces, which his Majefty, in purfuance of his engagements, fent to the affiftance of his Allies who were attacked in their dominions.

The electoral army of Hanover finished the campaign of 1757, with the capitulation of Clofter-Seven. The Court of London thought proper to break that capitulation, a few months after it had been concluded by the confent of the King of England's fon; the chief pretence alledged was, that the army which had capitulated belonged to the Elector, and that the fame army which, contrary to the right of nations and all military laws, re-entered into action, was from that time to be confidered as a British army. From that moment, (and it is necessary to attend to this circumftance) the army commanded by Prince Ferdinand of Brunfwick, is become an English army : The Elector of Hanover, the Duke of Brunfwic, the Landgrave of Heffe, their forces and their countries, have been blended together in the caufe of England; fo that the hoftilities in Weftphalia and Lower Saxony have had and still have the fame object as the hostilities in America, Afia and Africa; that is to fay, the difputes fublifting between the two crowns concerning the limits of Acadia and Canada.

His Majefty confequently from that time being obliged to support a war both by fea and land against England his professed enemy, has afforded no farther fuccour of troops to his Allies to enable them to carry on their war in particular, but has only undertaken to preferve the places on the Lower Rhine for the Emprefs Queen, which were acquired by conqueft from the King of Pruffia, in the name of her Imperial Majefty. It would therefore betray ignorance of the moft politive facts, to suppose that the war which is actually carried on in Weftphalia, is for the interest of his Majesty's Allies; that war is purely English, which is carried on only because the army of England, in that part, defends the posselfions of the King of Great Britain and his Allies.

We must conclude from what has been faid with regard to the state of the two Belligerant Crowns, that the war of France with England is in fact, and in its origin, very diffinct from that of the Empress against the King of Pruffia: nevertheverthelefs there is a connection between the two wars, which confifts in the common engagement between the King and the Emprefs Queen, not to make a feparate peace with the common enemy but by mutual confent. This engagement, which is fo conformable to the fentiments of friendfhip and confidence by which their Majefties are united, was neceffary for their reciprocal fecurity. As it would be dangerous for the forces of the King of Pruffia to join againft France, with those of England, commanded by Prince Ferdinand, it would be equally prejudicial and contrary to the faith of his Majefty's engagements with the Court of Vienna, that the Britifh army fhould join the King of Pruffia againft the Emprefs Queen, and againft the Princes of the Empire who are in alliance with France.

Although the year 1758, produced no political event, which might give room to a negotiation for the re-eltablifhment of peace, yet France, ever zealous to promote it with the fame fincerity, made use of the mediation of Denmark to inform England of her perfeverance in the fame pacific dispositions; the antiwer from the Court of London was as haughty as it was negative, and destroyed all hopes of a negotiation.

In 1759, the Courts of London and Berlin transmitted the following declaration from the Hague, to the Ministers of France, Vienna and Russia.

No. I.

Declaration of their Prussian and Britannic Majesties.

• THEIR Britannic and Pruffian Majefties, touched with compaffion, when they reflect on the evils which have been occafioned, and muft ftill neceffarily refult from the war which has been kindled for fome years paft, would think themfelves wanting to the duties of humanity, and particularly regardlefs of the intereft they take in the prefervation and welfare of their refpective kingdoms and fubjects, if they neglected to ufe proper measures towards checking the progrefs of this cruel peftilence, and to contribute towards the re-eftablifhment of public tranquillity. It is with this view, and in order to afcertain the fincerity of their intentions in this refpect, that their aforefaid Majefties have refolved to make the following declaration:

• That they are ready to fend Plenipotentiaries to any place which shall be • judged most convenient, in order to treat, in conjunction, concerning a general • and firm peace, with those whom the Belligerant Powers shall think proper to • authorize on their fide, towards the accomplishment of fo falutary an end.

Given at the Caftle of Ryfwick, this 25th November 1759.

Signed L. D. de Brunswick.

This declaration made no mention either of Sweden, or of the King of Poland, Elector of Saxony, two Powers who were principally interested in the war. France France and her Allies were not aware of this proceeding of the courts of London and Berlin. They were obliged to wait for an anfwer from Peterlbourg, in order to transmit in common a counter declaration, which the great distance between the countries obliged them to defer longer than France could have wished. At length it was transmitted in the following terms, and the Courts of London and Berlin never made any reply to it.

No. II.

Counter Declaration of His Most Christian Majesty.

* THEIR Britannic and Pruffian Majefties having thought proper to teffify, by a Declaration which was delivered on their parts at the Hague, the 25th of November laft, to the Ambaffadors and Minifters of the Courts of Verfailles, Vienna, and Peterfbourg, refident with their High Mightineffes the States General of the United Provinces, that, from a fincere defire of contributing to the re-eftablifhment of public tranquillity, they were ready to fend Plenipotentiaries to any place which fhould be judged most convenient, in order to treat concerning that important object with those whom the Belligerant Powers fhould think proper to authorize on their parts, for the accomplifhment of fo falutary an end.

His Majefty the Most Christian King, her Majefty the Empress Queen of Hungary and Bohemia, and her Majesty the Empress of all the Russian, being equally animated with a defire of contributing to the re-establishment of public tranquillity, on a just and folid footing, do declare in return,

• That his Majefty the Catholic King having been pleafed to offer his media-• tion with refpect to the war, which has fubfifted fome years between France • and England; and this war having no object in common with that which has • likewife for fome years been carried on by the two Empresses with their Allies, • against the King of Pruffia;

• His Moft Chriftian Majefty is ready to enter into a treaty of peace with • England, fo far as it regards himfelf, through the good offices of his Catholic • Majefty, whole mediation he accepts with pleafure.

His Majefty was not difcouraged by the inflexibility he ftill experienced on the part of his enemies, from endeavouring to bring about a juft accommodation. His Majefty, in 1761, thought proper to declare his fentiments, and pacific inclinations to his alies. He found them inclined to concur in any measures which might facilitate and accelerate the re-eftablishment of public peace, and in confequence of these falutary dispositions, all the Confederate Powers agreed to transmit the following declaration to London.

No. III.

The Declaration of his Most Christian Majesty.

• THE pacific difpositions which the Kings of England and Pruffia exprefied the laft year, and which are conformable to the fentiments of all the Belligerant Powers, having met with fome difficulties which have proved obstacles to their fucces, the Courts of France, Vienna, Petersburg, Stockholm and Warfaw, have unanimoully agreed to invite those of London and Berlin, to the renewal of a Negotiation fo expedient for the welfare of mankind, and which ought to interest all the powers at war in the cause of humanity.

• With this view, and in order to proceed towards the re-eftablishment of • peace, they propose the meeting of a Congress, at which they think it will be • convenient to admit, with the Plenipotentiaries of the principal Belligerant • Powers, no other than those of their Allies. If the Kings of England and • Prufila adopt this measure, his Most Christian Majesty, the Empress Queen, • the Empress of Rufila, the King of Sweden, and the King of Poland Elector • of Saxony, propose the town of Augsburg, as the place of Congress, which • they only point out as a town within the reach of all the parties interested, • which by its fituation feems to fuit the convenience of all the States, and • th-y will not oppose the choice of any other town in Germany, which their • Britannic and Prufilan Majesties may deem more convenient.

* His Most Christian Majesty, the Empress Queen, the Empress of Russia " and the Kings of Sweden and Poland, declare farther, that they have made * choice of Plenipotentiaries, to whom they will commit their interefts at the · Congress, in expectation that the King of England, the King of Pruffia, * and their Allies, will speedily make choice of their respective Ministers, that * the Negotiation may not be retarded.

. The fincerity of this declaration, which the Courts of France, Vienna, Pee terfburg, Stockholm, and Warfaw have, out of regard to the general good, · determined to make to the Courts of London and Berlin, gives them to hope " that their Britannic and Prussian Majesties, will fignify, by a speedy answer, <sup>6</sup> their fentiments on a fubject, fo effential to the peace and welfare of Europe.

" By order, and in the name of his Most Christian Majesty,

" Signed, the Duke de Choifeul."

This declaration, which concerned all the Allies in general, was not fufficient to put a stop to the miseries of war, so speedily as France could have wished.

In fact, what delays and perplexing incidents were not to be expected from a Congress at which the interests of America were to be treated of at the same time with those of the two Empresses, Sweden, Saxony, and the King of Pruffia!

To remove these obstacles, the King, with the confent of his Allies, thought proper to prefs for a feparation of the two wars, which had been agreed upon fince the year 1759. In confequence of this intention, his Majefty caufed a separate Memorial to be addreffed to the Court of London, which was accompanied by a letter from the Duke de Choifeul, his Minister and Secretary of State for foreign affairs, to Mr. Pitt, Minister and Secretary of State to his Britannic Majefty.ot at belogning bis oft

Memorial of the Christian King.

* THE Most Christian King wishes that the separate peace of France with England could be united with the general peace of Europe, which his Majesty most funcerely defires to establish; but as the nature of the objects which have occasioned the war between France and England, is totally foreign from the disputes in Germany, his Most Christian Majesty has thought it necessary to agree with his Britannic Majesty on the principal articles which may form the basis of their separate Negotiations, in order to accelerate, as much as possible, the general conclusion of the peace.

. The best method to accomplish the end proposed, is to remove those in-* tricacies which might prove obstacles to its fuccefs. In the business of peace, * the difputes of nations concerning their reciprocal conquefts, the different opi-* nions with respect to the utility of particular conquests, and the compensations for · reflitutions, generally form matter of embarraffment at a Negotiation of peace. As " it is natural for each nation, with regard to these different points, to endeavour · the acquifition of all poffible advantages, intereft and diffruft occasion oppositions ' and produce delays. To obviate these inconveniencies, and to teftify the fin-* cerity of his proceedings in the course of the Negotiation of peace with Eng-' land, the Most Christian King proposes to agree with his Britannic Majesty, * that, with respect to the particular war of France and England, the two Crowns ' shall remain in possession of what they have conquered from each other, and * that the fituation in which they shall stand on the 1st of September, in the ' year 1761, in the East Indies, on the 1st of July in the fame year, in the "West Indies and in Africa, and on the 1st of May following in Europe, shall ' be the polition which shall ferve as a basis to the treaty which may be negos tiated between the two powers. Which shews that the Most Christian King, in in order to fet an example of humanity, and to contribute to the re eftablish-6 ment of the general tranquillicy, will make a facrifice of those reflitutions · which <sup>5</sup> which he has a right to claim, at the fame time that he will maintain those <sup>5</sup> acquifitions which he has gained from England during the course of the <sup>6</sup> war.

<sup>6</sup> Neverthelefs as his Britannic Majefty may think that the periods propofed of <sup>6</sup> the 1ft of September, July, and May, are either too near or too diftant for <sup>6</sup> the interefts of the Britifh Crown, or that his Britannic Majefty may judge <sup>6</sup> it proper to make compenfation for the whole, or for part of the reciprocal con-<sup>6</sup> quefts of the two Crowns, the Moft Chriftian King will readily enter into Ne-<sup>6</sup> gotiation with his Britannic Majefty in relation to thefe two objects, when he <sup>6</sup> fhall know his fentiments concerning them, the principal view of his Moft <sup>6</sup> Chriftian Majefty, being to teftify not only to England, but to the whole <sup>6</sup> world, his fincere difpofition to remove all impediments which might defer the <sup>6</sup> falutary object of peace.

• The Most Christian King expects, that the disposition of his Britannic Ma-• jesty will be correspondent, and that he will, with equal fincerity, answer all • the articles contained in this Memorial, in which the two Powers are so effen-• tially interested."

These pieces were dated the 26th of March. England had then conquered from France Isle Royal or Cape Breton, all Canada, the Isles of Guadaloupe and Marigalant, and that of Goree in Africa, with Senegal; Europe at that time was ignorant of the precise fituation of affairs between the two Crowns in Afia, and the expedition against Belle-Isle had not then taken place.

France, on the other hand, had conquered the Island of Minorca, had repaired fome parts of the port of Dunkirk, and in Germany were in possession of Hanau, the Langraviate of Hesse, and the town of Gottingen in the Electorate of Hanover. It is necessary to observe, that Cassel was besieged on the 26th of March, and that it was to be feared that on the 1st of May the King's forces would no longer be in possession of Hesse, and of the town of Gottingen.

Wefel and Gueldres could not be comprised in the offer of Uti possidetis which France proposed, because those two towns, and the countries dependant on them, appertain to the Empress-Queen: that the King has only the custody of them, and that justice is administred there in the name of her Imperial Majesty.

All Europe was aftonished at the facrifices which the King was disposed to make to England: his Majefty's Ministry were reproached on the part of those Courts who were most affectionate to France, and no one doubted but that England would prefer the quiet possession of her conquests, and the repose of her Allies in Germany, to the continuation of the war. The memorial of France, by establishing a fixed basis for the Negociation, proposed to make necessary compensations for the advantage of the two crowns, and opened a way for the evacuation of Germany on the part of the French troops, in compensation of the conquests of England in America.

The full extent of the proposition contained in the Memorial of the 26th of March, addreffed to Mr. Pitt, was known in France; but the King, like a true Father of his people, thought of nothing but their relief; and in confequence of this fentiment, determined to adhere to the offers which feemed to him the most fure and ready expedients for infpiring his enemies with that fpirit of reconciliation, which directed all his Majefty's wifhes and meafures.

Mr. Pitt answered the Duke of Choiseul's Letter, and at the same time fent. him a Memorial, in answer to that of France of the 26th of March.

3 I R,

London, 8th April, 1761.

THE King my Mafter has authorized me to transmit to your Excellency, with all the dispatch which was found possible, the Memorial hereto annexed, in answer to that of the 26th of the last month, made by the order and in the name of his Most Christian Majesty, folely concerning the interests of England and France, relative to the particular war between the two Crowns, which was accompanied by a letter from your Excellency of the same date, transmitted to me by M. the Prince Galitzin.

His Majefty has published his real fentiments, with regard to the falutary business of Peace, with the fincerity which his Christian Majesty defires, and of which he himself fet the example; the king my Master, on his part, defires nothing more than, by the fincerity of his conduct, to remove all distruct in course of the Negociation.

• As to what remains, it is superfluous to mention to what degree his Majefly • wishes for this speedy establishment of the general peace in Germany, after • the distinguished proof his Majesty has given, in so readily confenting to the • proposition of so distant a place as the town of Augsbourg for the meeting of • the Congress. Such are the fincere and upright intentions of the King my Mafter for the reeftablifhment of the public tranquility. I think myfelf happy in having the charge of conveying fuch fentiments, and of having an opportunity of affuring your Excellency of the diffinguifhed regard with which I have the honour to be, &c.

The Memorial of his Britannic Majesty, of the 8th of April 1761.

HIS Britannic Majefty, equally defirous with the Moft Chriftian King, that: the feparate Peace of England and France could be united with the general peace, for which the King of Great Britain is fo fincerely interefted, that, in regard to this point, he even means that the contefts which might arife between the two Crowns concerning their particular differences, fhould not occafion the leaft delay to the fpeedy conclusion of fo falutary a work as the general peace of Germany; and his Britannic Majefty is the more confirmed in thisfentiment, dictated by humanity towards fo many nations, that he feels in all its extent the proposition which the Moft Chriftian King eftablishes as a fundamental principle; that the nature of the objects which have occasioned the war between England and Erance, is totally foreign from the difputes in Germany.

• In confequence of this inconteffible principle, the King of Great Britain en-• tirely adopts the fentiment of his Moft Chriftian Majefty, that it is neceffary to • agree between the two Crowns on fome principal articles, which may form the • bafis of their particular negociations, in order the more to accelerate the con-• clufion of a general peace.

The King of Great Britain equally agrees in general to the propolition which the Moft Chriftian King has made with an opennels, in which his Britannic Majefty will concur throughout the course of the negotiation; that is to fay, that, in relation to the particular war between England and France, I. The two Crowns shall remain in possession of what they have conquered, one from the other. 2. That the fituation in which they shall stand at certain periods, shall be the possible to ferve as a basis for the Treaty which may be negociated between the two Powers.

With regard to the first branch of the aforefaid proposition, his Britannic Mai jesty takes pleasure in doing justice to the magnanimity of His Most Christian Majesty, who, from motives of humanity, determines to factifice to the love of peace, the restitution which he thinks he has a right to claim, maintaining at the fame time what he has conquered from England during the course of the war.

• With respect to the fecond head of the aforefaid proposition, concerning • the reciprocal Conquests made by the two Crowns one upon another; that is to • fay, That the fituation in which they shall stand at the respective periods af-

· figned :

' Nevertheless as this confideration, as well as that which respects the Come penfations (if fuch shall be found proper to be made between the two Crowns) on account of their reciprocal Conquefts, comprehend the most interesting and " capital articles of the Treaty, and as it is upon these two decisive objects, that * the Most Christian King voluntarily offers to enter into a Negociation ; the King " of Great Britain, defiring to concur effectually with the favourable difpolitions of the Moft Christian King, in order to remove all impediments, which might defer the falutary object of peace, his Brittannic Majesty declares that he is * ready on his part to enter upon the proposed Negotiation with speed and fincerity. * And more authentically to demonstrate to what extent the fincerity of his con-" duct proceeds, his Britannic Majefty declares farther, that he should be glad ' to fee fome perfon at London fufficiently authorized, by a power from the Moft · Chriftian King, to enter upon this fubject with the British Ministers, in regard to the feveral articles contained in the Letter of the D. de Choifeul of <sup>s</sup> the 26th of March 1761, to the Secretary of State of his Britannic Majefty, " which points are fo effentially interefting to the two Powers.

• By the order, and in the name of the King of Great Britain my Mafter, Signed W. Pitt.

The Letter of the English Minister shews, in appearance, an equal zeal with that of France, for the re-establishment of the Union between the two Crowns: it contains, moreover, a declaration in favour of the King of Prussia, which feems foreign to the purpose, and appears the more affected, as the King never testified the least defire to separate the alliance which united England to his Pruffian Majesty.

The British Memorial, annexed to the letter of the English Minister, accepts the Statu Quo, but fays nothing with regard to the epochas. In fact, it is concluding nothing with regard to that interesting and necessfary object attached to the proposition of Uti Possible is, to fay that the peace shall be the epoch to fix the possible for the two powers. In the conclution, England proposed the fending of a French Minister to London. This proposition gave a favourable omen of the dispositions of the British Court towards peace. The King ordered the D. de Choifeul to return an answer to Mr. Pitt, and to accompany it with a Memorial which, at the fame time that it clearly expressed his Majesty's real fentiments, contained an acceptance of the proposal for fending a Minister to London, which required the reciprocality of dispatching an English Minister to France.

Verfailles, 19th April, 1761.

• I Made the King my mafter acquainted with the letter which your Excellency did me the honour to write to me on the 8th inftant, as well as with the • Memorial thereto annexed.

His Majefty has remarked with real pleafure, the conformity of his Britannic Majefty's fentiments with his own, in regard to the fincere and open conduct which it becomes two fuch great Powers to obferve in the Negotiation of a Peace.

• The King has not delayed, Sir, the nomination of an Ambaffador to re-• prefent him at the Congress at Augsburg. His Majesty has made choice of • the Count de Choiseul, at prefent his Ambaffador at Vienna, and he will re-• pair to the town appointed, at the beginning of July, in the expectation which • we entertain here, that his Britannic Majesty will send his Ambaffador thither • at the fame time.

• The King has commanded me, Sir, to obferve on this occalion to your • Excellency, in anfwer to the declaration contained in your letter, that his Majefty, as conftant as any other Power, in fulfilling the engagements he has • made with the Allies with the moft forupulous punctuality, will continue, with • that fidelity which is confiftent with the integrity and dignity of his character, to • make his caufe common with theirs, whether in the negotiation for the peace • of Germany, or in the continuance of the war, if, to the misfortune of man-• kind, the favourable difpolitions in which the Belligerant Powers are at prefent • fhould not be attended with the fuccefs which is fo earneftly defired.

• I ought not, on this occafion, to omit informing your Excellency with what • concern the King would fee himfelf obliged to continue fuch a deftructive war, • after having entertained a confidence that all the parties were interefted in put-• ting a ftop to the calamities it occafions.

As to what relates to the war in particular between France and England, I have annexed to this letter a Memorial in reply to that of your Excellency.
We cannot be too zealous in explaining the upright intentions of our Mafters, in: order to remove, at the beginning of this interefting negotiation, those misunderstandings, which often augment, instead of lessening the delay.

* You are a Minister, Sir, too enlightened, not to approve of this principle.

No. IX.

The Memorial of his Most Christian Majesty of the 19th April, 1761.

FHE Most Christian King perceives with fatisfaction, that his Britannic Majefty agrees that the nature of the objects which have occafioned the <sup>66</sup> war between France and England is totally foreign from the difputes which <sup>6</sup> have given rife to the war in Germany; it is in confequence of this principle <sup>6</sup> that his Moft Christian Majefty offered the King of England to treat concern-' ing the preliminaries relative to the particular interefts of the two Crowns; <sup>46</sup> but in making that proposition, the King of France, did not understand, as • the beginning of the Memorial of London of the 8th of April feems to inti-• mate, that the peace of Germany could take place, without the differences * between France and England being adjusted. His Most Christian Majesty has Inflicient confidence in his Allies to be certain that they will neither conclude <sup>6</sup> a peace nor a treaty, without his confent. He did not underftand therefore, • that the peace of Germany could be concluded diffinctly from that of France " and England, and he only proposed to the King of England, to separate the " discussion of the two wars, in order to bring about a general peace for all ·6 parties.

His Moft Chriftian Majefty renews the proposition which he caufed to be made in the first Memorial, that the two Powers should remain in Statu Que with regard to their possibilities and conquests, according to the periods stated in the faid Memorial, but his Majefty observes, that the basis of the proposition is necessarily connected with the epochas proposed; for it is easy to conscious that fuch events may happen on either fide, as may absolutely prevent an acquiescence to the Uti Possibilities, if the epochas are distant; and his Most Christian Majesty has the more reason to recal the whole proposition, if the King of England does not acquiesce to the epochas annexed to it, fince no one can doubt but that those periods were proposed at a time when they were not advantage.

<sup>6</sup> It is certain that the reciprocal conquefts cannot be afcertained but on the day of figning the peace; but it is no lefs certain, that it is impoffible to fix the bafis of a negotiation for peace, otherwife than according to the fituation in which the Belligerant Parties flood at fuch or fuch a period of the war. This is the light in which the King of France underflood the proposition which he made to the King of England; and it is upon this principle, if his Britannic Majefty adopts it, that his Moft Chriffian Majefty will fend a Minifler to London with credentials, and charged with full power fufficient to treat with the Miniflers of the King of Great Britain, either with refpect to the ground of the difpute, or in regard to the compensations proper to be made to the two Crowns, as well as concerning the interefts of their colonies and their commerce, The disposition of his Most Chriffian Majefty, to put an end to the miferies of war, which divides the two nations under their government, is equal to that of his Britannic Majefty; but as the zeal on both fides should be alike, at the fame time that the Most Chriffian King shall fend M. Buffy to London, " he hopes that the King of Great Britain will fend an English Minister to France, to treat concerning the fame objects with his Ministry. His Most Christian · Majefty expects the answer of his Britannic Majefty on the contents of this Mee morial, in order to expedite and receive the reciprocal and neceffary paffports. · By the order and in the name of the King my Mafter,

Signed Le Duc de Choifeul."

Mr. Pitt's answer contained a new Memorial on the part of England, in which their arguments with respect to the epochs were far from being just : for, altho' France propoled, by the Memorial of the 26th of March, to negotiate with refpect to the epochs, it was not the lefs certain, that the proposition of Uti pollidedis was connected with those epochs, whether the Courts agreed that they should be diftant or near. In fact, if it fhould happen that they could not agree in that particular, it was evident that the proposition of Uti possidetis dropped with the Negotiation.

The Memorial of his Britannic Majefly of the 28th of April, 1761.

HE King of Great Britain, always influenced by the fame defire of putting an end to the miferies of the war, which is unhappily kindled between . 1 Great Britain and France, has with pleafure concurred in every measure which e tends to remove the obstacles which impede fo falutary a work. It is with this · view, that his Britannic Majefty will readily fend Mr. Stanley to France, in · the quality of his Minister, at the same time that the Most Christian King shall · fend Mr. Buffy to London.

" As to what remains, his Majefty does not find by the Memorial of the 26th · of last month, made in the name of his Most Christian Majesty, that the ground · of the proposition therein contained, concerning the reciprocal conquests, is ne-· ceffarily connected with the periods propofed; quite on the contrary; it is expressly about those very periods that the Most Christian King offers to enter ' into a Negotiation. These are the express words : Nevertheless, as his Majesty · may think that the proposed periods of September, July, and May, may be either too near or too distant for the interests of the British Crown, or that his Britannic · Majesty should think proper that compensation should be made for the whole or part e of the reciprocal conquests of the two Crowns; upon these two points, the Most · Christian King will readily enter into a Negotiation with his Britannic Majesty; " when he shall be acquainted with his intentions.

" It was in confequence of an offer fo clearly expressed, and not capable of mif-· construction, that his Britannic Majefty refolved to declare, that he was ready on his part to enter, with fpeed and fincerity, upon the proposed Negotiation. " The King of Great Britain, perfevering in his intentions, renews his former " declaration; and his Britannic Majefty, to leave no doubt with regard to his " inclinations, has forwarded the paffport hereto annexed, and will be glad to * receive one immediately in return from the Court of France, that, by means of * a treaty by word of mouth, as well with respect to the grounds of the dispute, " as in relation to the epochs, as also in regard to the compensation which may * be agreed on between the two Crowns, they may be better able on both fides to clear up doubts, and remove all ambiguities from the Negotiation, which, ' in order to be effectual, fhould be conducted on both fides with fincerity, pre-" cifion and expedition.

Have received the three paffports, which your Excellency has done me the honour to transmit for Mr. Stanley, in quality of Minister from the King my Mafter, and I in return transmit to you a fecond, which his Majefty has granted for the veffel which the Most Christian King shall think proper to order for transporting M. Buffy into England; and I annex the order to the Officers of the customs, for the free importation of the effects and baggage of the faid Minifter.

As to what relates, Sir, to the observations which you thought yourself obliged to make, to warrant the execution of the commission of those two Ministers, it is with great fatisfaction I affure your Excellency, that the King, in conformity with the sentiments of his Most Christian Majesty, is of opinion,

1. 'That the two Ministers should be charged with ample power from the Kings their Masters, to make use of as occasion shall offer.

2. 'That the two Ministers ought, each of them, to have Letters of Credence from their Majefties, which they shall not need to deliver but to the Secretaries of the respective States, in the manner specified by your Excellency. 3. <sup>6</sup> It is the intention of his Majefty, that M. Buffy fhould abfolutely enjoy in England, the fame rights, prerogatives, franchifes and liberties, as if the two Courts were in the midft of peace, and which Mr. Stanley, in purfuance of the intention of his Moft Chriftian Majefty, is to enjoy in France; and that as to the difpatch of Couriers, as well as every thing elfe which concerns the two Minifters, the tenor of the third Article of Oblervations relative to this head, fhall be obferved in every refpect.

' As to what remains, concerning the time of the departure of the faid Mi-" nifters, as also concerning the manner of their croffing the fea, the King is of · opinion, that in order to obviate all difficulties, Mr. Stanley and M. Buffy " may respectively repair to Dover and Calais, to cross the sea each of them in ' a veffel appertaining to their own nation, which the Kings their Mafters shall · keep ready for that purpole in the two ports aforefaid. It is in confidence · of this difpolition, that I am obliged to acquaint your Excellency, that the . King will difpatch Mr. Stanley from London, fo that he may reach Dover on ' the 23d of this month, unless we learn that a time fo near at hand should be ' inconvenient to the Court of France; and the King my Mafter relies, with full * confidence, in M. Buffy's repairing to Calais on the aforefaid day, that the * two Ministers may cross the sea without delay, as far as the circumstances of " wind and navigation will permit them. I will add to your Excellency, that " Mr. Stanley will make use of a packet-boat from Dover, and that M. Buffy * may crofs from Calais to England in whatever veffel his Moft Chriftian Majefty · fhall judge convenient.

• I flatter myfelf that your Excellency will find that these arrangements will • equally facilitate the method of the two Ministers repairing to their recipro-• cal deftinations without inconvenience.

> " I have the honour to be, &c. " Signed W. Pitt."

> > the

The Courts in alliance with France, without oppoling this Negotiation with the Court of London, expressed great uneasiness at the reciprocal dispatch of the two Ministers: they were encouraged, however, by the promise which the King made to them, of communicating with the utmost confidence, a detail of the feveral objects which should be treated of, either at London or Verfailles. In the Declaration made to them on the part of the King, they at once admired his Majesty's steadiness to his engagements, and that generosity with which he determined to facrifice his perfonal interests, in order to come to a speedy and firm reconciliation with England.

M. Buffy fet out for London : his inftructions were extremely fimple : the bafis of them regarded the proposition of Uti Poffidetis, and he was enjoined,

1. To demand of the British Minister, whether the King of England accepted of the periods annexed to the proposition of Statu Quo, and if his Britannic Majefty did not accept of them, What new periods he proposed to France?

2. To declare to the Court of London, That the war which the King waged against England, was entirely diffinet from that of the Empress Queen against the King of Pruffia, and that confequently, except as to Wefel and Gueldres, which appertained to her Imperial Majefty, the King was at liberty to caufe his forces to evacuate Gottingen, Heffe, and the county of Hanau, but that his Majefty made this evacuation to depend on two conditions: Firft, That the Court of England fhould give proper fecurity, that the army commanded by Prince Ferdinand fhould be difbanded, and not ferve againft the King's Allies. Secondly, That his Britannie Majefty would agree on fome refittution which fhould be judged reafonable on the part of England, as a compenfation for the French troops evacuating Gottingen, the Landgraviate of Heffe, and the county of Hanau.

Mr. Stanley arrived at Marly at the fame time that Mr. Buffy arrived at London. The Englifh Minifter, at the very first conference, declared in the name of his court, that the King his Master would support his Allies with Efficacy and good Faith (These were the terms he made use of.) The King's Minister who conferred with Mr. Stanley, answered him by a Declaration equally precise, with respect to his Majesty's intention to fulfil his engagements with regard to the Allies of France: but as the Peace between the Empress Queen and the King of Prussia was to be negociated at the Congress at Augsbourg, which was fixed for the pacification of Germany, the D. de Choiseul observed that the differences between her Imperial Majesty and the King of Prussia were by no means the fubject on which the French and English Ministers were reciprocally dispatched.

The fubfequent conferences passed in discussing the periods fixed in the Memorial of the 26th March; but the English Minister, both at London and at Paris, cluded giving any positive answer on that subject.

It is neceffary to obferve, that the British Court had refolved on the enterprize against Belleisse, fince the Memorial of the month of March. The expectation of fuccess from that Expedition, no doubt retarded, on their part, a categorical answer in relation to the epochs.

Mr. Pitt, being prefied on that fubject by M. Buffy, had fhewn himfelf averle from declaring any thing decifive; on which his Majefty wrote to his Minister at London, to elucidate and fix precifely the basis of the Negociation, relative to the Uti Pessidetis and the epochs, and by that means to accelerate the Negociation of peace. The island of Belleisse was taken: Mr. Pitt then gave M. Buffy the Memorial here annexed.

• MR. Stanley having reprefented by his letter of the 8th of June, that the D. de Choifeul, in the courfe of their conferences, had agreed That the epochs must still remain a matter of Negociation, but that his Excellency nevertheles was of opinion, that in the present state of that affair, according to the natural and usual courfe of things, his Most Christian Majesty having already named the 1st of September, July, and May, his Britannic Majesty should proceed, either by accepting of those days, or by naming others more agreeable to his intentions, which were probably regulated by preparations and designs of which the Court of France was ignorant;

It is upon this footing, that, in order to make a return to ' the above invitation on the part of France, as well as in confequence of his ' Majefty's having accepted the proposition of the faid Court of the 26th March ' last, his Majesty offers to agree with the Most Christian King, that the first day of July, September and November following, shall respectively be the diffe-' rent periods or epochs, to fix the Uti Possidetis which France has proposed to · make the bafis of the treaty which may be negociated between the two Powers. he shall know, his Majesty will open himself with perfect sincerity and good

We fee by this Memorial, the epochs which England required to determine the Uti poffidetis, were farther diffant by two months than those offered by France; and it was evident that as the enterprize against Belleisse had determined England to defer her answer with regard to the epochs, fo the fuccess of that expedition had made them resolve to fix the term of July for Europe, specified in the

1.00

English Memorial, instead of May, which was proposed by the French Memorial.

England made the epochs fhe affigned depend on two conditions. The first of those conditions departed both from the letter and the spirit of the Memorial of the 26th of March: for although France had proposed to treat of a peace sparately with England; nevertheless his Majesty's intention was not regulated by this principle of the negotiation, that peace could be concluded with England, without providing for the peace of Germany. In fact, the Memorial of the 26th March, from which the Court of England drew such advantageous arguments, opened with this expression, The Most Christian King is desirous that the particular peace of France with England should be united with the general peace of Europe.

The fecond condition, with refpect to difcuffing and fettling the Articles, fo that they might be figned and ratified by the 1ft of August, was very difficult to be fulfilled in regard to a War, which extended over the four quarters of the globe, this condition proposed by England not being known to France till the end of June.

France returned no fpecific answer to the Memorial of the Court of London; but verbally acquiefced, as far as possible, to the fecond condition: and with regard to the first, the King required the confent of the Court of Vienna, to conclude a separate peace with England. This Confent was necessary, fince, from the beginning, as is before mentioned, it was agreed between her Majesty and his allies, that they should treat of peace separately; but that all the belligerant parties should come to a conclusion together.

Though the Emprefs Queen was perfectly fentible of the prejudice which the alliance might fuffain by a regociation in Germany, at a time that France was at peace with England; yet her Imperial Majefty, to oblige the King, agreed, on this occafion, to facrifice her own intereft to the defire which his Majefty expressed for the eftablishment of peace. This princefs confented to the feparate accommodation of France with England, upon this express and equitable condition, that nothing thould be therein flipulated, which might be contrary to the intereft of the Houfe of Auftria.

The conclusion of the British Memorial contained a Proposition for France to make fome overtures with regard to the compensations. The King availed himfelf of this intimation, and ordered a Memorial to be prepared, including specific propositions, which put the negociation in a proper train, and fixed its basis on express and determinate points.

France was perfectly fentible how difadvantageous it was to her, to make her enemies acquainted with the favourable conditions which it was agreed to allow them, in order to fucceed in the re eftablifhment of peace : fhe was confcious, that it was juft and reafonable for France, who made the firft proposition of Uti poffidetis, to wait till England explained herfelf concerning the Compensations : but fhe flattered herfelf, that England was fincerely defirous of re-eftablifhing the union between the two Crowns ; and the advantages, which would redound to England from the offers of France, were fo visible and extensive, that there was no furficien that the Court of London would increase the difficulties of a negociation, which France was zealous to terminate without delay, and to the fatiffaction of the two powers.

Before a Memorial of propolitions was fent in form to the court of London, his Majefty's Minister, entrusted to confer with M. Stanley, gave him previous affurances of the facrifices which his Majefty had refolved to make. He authonized him to write word, that France would guaranty the poffeffion of Canada to England, provided that England would reftore to the King the ifland of Cape Breton, and confirm the right of the French to fish, and dry their fish, in the gulf of St. Lawrence, upon the coast, and in the island, of Newfoundland. As the island of Cape Breton, if fortified, might afford England matter of jealously, the French Minister told M. Stanley, that the King engaged to destroy all the fortifications which might remain in that island, and not to erect any new ones upon any pretence whatever. The port of Louisbourg being to be confidered only as a shelter for the fishermen in the gulf of St. Laurence, and on the coast of Newfoundland, France offered to reftore the island of Minorca to England, provided they would give up the islands of Guadaloupe and Marigalante in return.

With regard to the East Indies, they proposed that the treaty of the Sieurs Godeheu and Saunders, made in the year 1755, shou'd be confirmed. That treaty, although advantageous to the English Company, was judged to be most effectual for maintaining peace between the two Companies, and to recal them to views of commerce much more analogous to their reciprocal interests, than prospects of conquests, which had hitherto kept them at variance.

With refpect to Africa, France required that England fhould reftore either Senegal or Goree, and on those conditions the King declared that he would evacuate Gottingen, Heffe, and the county of Hanau, would withdraw his forces upon the Rhine and the Maine, and would leave no French troops in Germany but in proportion to what troops of the enemy remained affembled in the British army at Weftphalia.

Mr. Stanley took notes of these overtures which were made by the D. de Choiseul, who told him moreover that the propositions made to the English Minister, could only be considered as intimations of conditions which might poffibly be agreed to, and as preliminary steps to the Memorial which France determined to transmit to the Court of London in form, if the points discussed in the conference of the D. de Choiseul with Mr. Stanley should be thought proper to ferve as a basis for the Negotiation of peace.

The anfwer from England arrived the 30th June. Mr. Stanley had a conference with the D. de Choifeul respecting this answer; and in the course of that conference, he started three difficulties on the part of his Court. The first concerned Cape Breton. England absolutely result to cede that island to France, even upon the condition, that no military establishment whatever should be kept on foot there. Mr. Stanley intimated that his Court had no intention of restoring any island or port in the Gulf of St. Laurence, or within reach of that Gulf. He added, that England would make no difficulty of allowing the liberty of fishing and drying the fish on the shores and coasts of Newfoundland;

but that this would be granted on condition that Dunkirk was demolished, as it was flipulated to have been by the treaty of Utrecht.

Till this moment, no mention had been made of Dunkirk, either in what had paffed by word of mouth, or in writing, with relation to the peace between the two Crowns.

In fact, it was unjust to infist on this article, fince the Court of London, having had this principle established, in treating of peace, to adhere to the Memorial of Uti possedetis of the 26th March, they could not pretend that the prefent state of Dunkirk was comprized in the Uti possidetis of France.

The liberty of fifting, and the fhelter without fortifications, was the compenfation for the ceffion of all Canada, and of the guaranty which France offered to make to England of that confiderable part of North America. The reftitution of the ifland of Minorca was certainly equivalent to the ceffion of Guadaloupe and Marigalante; and the evacuation of Heffe and the other countries appertaining to the Elector of Hanover and to the Landgrave, was compenfated by the reftitution of Senegal and Goree, and of Belle-Ifle, which had been conquered fince the Memorial of the 26th March, and after the proposition of the epochs proposed in that Memorial.

Befides, France had declared, at the time of taking Belle-Ifle, that fhe did not underftand that conqueft was to have been an object of compensation, and that the thought the keeping of Belle Ifle would be more expensive than profitable to England.

Mr. Stanley, in oppofing the ceffion of Ifle Royal to France, abfolutely refufed the reflitution of Senegal and Goree, pretending that Senegal could not be fecurely maintained without Goree; in the end, he infilled on the demolition of Dunkirk as a condition abfolutely neceffary. The article relating to Germany was not negotiated on his part; and after feveral conferences it was agreed that France fhould prepare a Memorial of fpecific propolitions, which fhould be fent to England. The Memorial was drawn, and is here annexed.

No. XVII.

The French Memorial, 15th July, 1761.

<sup>c</sup> THE Negotiations of peace entered upon between France and England, have proved that the Sovereigns fincerely with to re-eftablish that union and amity, fo agreeable to humanity, between the two Crowns; and the refolution in which the King concurs, in conjunction with his Britannic Majesty, to terminate by a precise and durab'e treaty, the differences which have occafioned the present war, has determined his Majesty, always maintaining the spirit and letter of the declaration of the 26th March last, in relation to the means of procuring peace, to explain more precisely by this Memorial, the conditions which appear to him most proper to accomplish the defirable end which influences him as well as the King of England.

"But the King declares at the fame time, that he entrusts this proposition with the King of Great Britain, that if it fhould not be accepted by his Britannic Majefty, or fhould not ferve as a Bafis for the Negotiation of the future peace, the Court of London fhall in no circumftances take advantage of it, the faid proposition made in confidence to the King of Great Britain having no other object than the accelerating of a Negotiation in which the two Crowns are fo much interefted.

" tan-

The Uti poffidetis expressed in the declaration of the 26th March, is adopted on both fides; it would be difficult for either party to reject it; for though it was not expressed, it is properly according to what they possible only either lawfully or by conquest, that the parties can negotiate together concerning peace, and the compensations requisite for that purpose.

• The periods of the Statu Quo, which form the fecond effential article in the • declaration of the 26th March, and which have remained in Negotiation be-• tween the two Courts, have not yet been fettled. The Court of France has • proposed the epochs of May, July and September; that of England has pro-• posed the epochs of July, September and November. That question will be • determined without farther Negotiation, if the scheme of the following treaty • is adopted by the Court of London, for then all the epochs will be valid, as • that of the peace will unite the sentiments and opinions of the two Kings.

It is the compensations therefore which will determine the epochs and the peace, and it is to settle them that his Majesty proposes the following articles to the King of Great Britain.

Article I.

The King cedes and guaranties Canada to the King of England, fuch as it has been and in right ought to be poffeffed by France, without refriction, and without the liberty of returning upon any pretence whatever against this ceffion and guaranty, and without interrupting the crown of England in the entire poffeffion of Canada.

II.

• The King, in making over his full right of fovereignty over Canada to the • King of England, annexes four conditions to the ceffion. First, that the free • exercise of the Roman Catholic religion shall be maintained there, and that • the King of England will give the most precise and effectual orders that his • new Roman Catholic subjects may, as heretofore, make public profession of • their religion, according to the rites of the Roman Church.

Secondly, that the French inhabitants or others, who have been fubjects of the King in Canada, may retire into the French colonies with all pofible freedom and fecurity; that they may be allowed to fell their effects, and to tranfport their property as well as their perfons, without being reftrained in their emigration, on any pretence whatever (except for debt;) and the Englifh government fhall engage to procure them the means of transportation at as little expence as poffible.

<sup>4</sup> Thirdly, that the limits of Canada, with regard to Louifiana, fhall be clearly <sup>6</sup> and firmly eftablifhed, as well as those of Louifiana and Virginia, in such manner, that after the execution of peace, there may be no more difficulties between
<sup>6</sup> Louifiana, whether with respect to Canada, or the other possible filling of Louifiana, whether with respect to Canada, or the other possible filling of Louifiana, which gives him power to come to a final treaty on that article with the Ministry of his Britannic Majefty.

• Fourthly, that the liberty of filhing, and of drying their cod-fifth on the banks of • Newfoundland, may be confirmed to the French as heretofore : and as this confirmation would be illufory, if the French veffels had not a fhelter in those parts • appertaining to their nation, the King of Great Britain, in confideration of the guaranty of his new conquests, shall reftore Isle Royal, or Cape Breton, to be • enjoyed by France in entire fovereignty. It is agreed, to fix a value on this • reflicution, that France shall not, under any denomination whatever, erect any • fortifications on the island, and shall confine herfelf to maintain civil establish-• ments there, and the port for the convenience of the fishing vessels landing there.

III.

<sup>6</sup> France shall reftore to England the island of Minorca, and Fort St. Phi<sup>6</sup> lip, in the fame condition it was in when it was conquered by the King's forces, <sup>6</sup> together with the artillery belonging to England, which was in the fort at the <sup>6</sup> time of taking the island.

IV.

In confideration of this reftitution, England, in her turn, fhall reftore to France the ifland of Guadaloupe and Marigalante; and those two iflands shall be ceded in the fame condition they were in at the time they were conquered by the arms of England.

liorate of Planover GVal

• The islands called neuter, are Dominica, Saint Vincent, Saint Lucia, and • Tabago. The two first are occupied by the Carribees, under the protection of • France, according to the treaty of 1660: they shall remain in the condition • they have been fince that treaty.

• The Crown of England has not yet fhewn any title, which gives them a right over the two laft; neverthelefs, it fhall be a matter of negociation between the two crowns, either that the four illands fhall remain abfolutely neuter, or that the two poffefied by the Carribees alone fhall be declared neuter; and that England fhall enter into poffefion, as fovereign, over the ifland of Tabago, in the fame manner as France over that of St. Lucia, faving, at all times, the right of a third perfon, with whom the two crowns will explain themfelves, if fuch a right exifts. <sup>c</sup> It would be advantageous for the companies of the two nations in the Eaft-Indies, to abitain for ever from all military views and conquefts, to reftrain themfelves, and mutually to affift each other in the bufinefs of commerce, which more properly belongs to them. The precife fituation in which the two nations ftand, is not known in France: wherefore the King, in order to confine himfelf, in that refpect, to the object most uleful, both for the prefent and hereafter, to the two companies, proposes to the King of England the treaty concluded between the Sieurs Godeheu and Saunders, as a basis for the re-establishment of the peace of Afia.

VI.

VII.

The colonies of South America, in poffeffion of the French, neceffarily require negroes to cultivate them; the French fettlements of Senegal and Goree fupplied the wants of the French colonies in this refpect. England, in keeping those fettlements, would prejudice France, without procuring any positive advantages for herfelf; and the union which the two Sovereigns fo fincerely wish to eftablish between the two Crowns, leaves no room to fuppose that the Court of London has any fuch intentions of mischief. Nevertheles, France, with a view to the bleffings of peace, offers England the choice of the possibility of Senegal or Goree, meaning that one or the other possibility.

VIII.

The Ifland of Belle-Ifle and the fortrefs conquered by the arms of England fhall be reftored to France, together with the artillery therein at the time of the conqueft.

<sup>6</sup> In confideration of the 8th Article to be granted by England, the King <sup>6</sup> will caufe his forces in Germany to evacuate the Landgraviate of Heffe, <sup>6</sup> the county of Hanau, as well as the town, which fhall not be occupied by the <sup>6</sup> troops of either Power, leaving the navigation of the Maine free, and thofe <sup>6</sup> parts of the Electorate of Hanover occupied by the French troops; and thefe <sup>6</sup> evacuations fhall be preceded by a fufpenfion of arms between the two Crowns, <sup>6</sup> which fufpenfion of arms fhall take place from the day of the ratification of <sup>6</sup> the preliminaries, or the Article of the Definitive Treaty, not only in Germa-<sup>6</sup> ny, but in all parts of the world where France and England are at war.

X.

<sup>6</sup> As the King is under an engagement with the Empress Queen, to flipulate <sup>6</sup> nothing in his Treaty of Peace with England which may be difadvantageous <sup>6</sup> to her Imperial Majefty, and as it was foreseen that, in case of a fulpention be-<sup>6</sup> tween the French and British forces, the German troops in the pay of Eng-<sup>6</sup> land might join those of the King of Prussia against the Austrian armies, <sup>6</sup> the King, faithful to his engagements with his allies, and very far from in-<sup>6</sup> tending to fettle any thing to her prejudice, proposes to the King of England, that it may be agreed between them, that his Britannic Majefty will undertake that no part of the forces which compole Prince Ferdinand's army, fhall, under any pretence whatever, or under any denomination, join the army of his Prufian Majefty, or act offenfively against the Empress Queen or her allies; and in like manner, no French forces, under any pretence, fhall join the Imperial army, or ferve against the Allies of Great Britain. To afcertain these positions, it so farther concluded, that after these evacuations, the army of the Upper Rhine, commanded by Marshal Broglio, shall re ire towards the Maine, the Necker and the Rhine, occupying Francfort; and that of the Lower Rhine commanded by Marshal Soubife, shall, on the other fide, retired towards the Rhine, occupying Wesel and Guelders.

' that

The countries belonging to the King of Pruffia, on the Lower Rhine, have been conquered, and are actually governed in the name of the Empress Queen :
the King would not undertake to evacuate them without the confent of her Imperial Majefty, and before the fuccess of the Negotiations at the Congress at Augfbourg, which is to reftore Peace between the Empress and the King of Pruffia; but as it would be difadvantageous to the two Crowns to maintain a confiderable body of national forces in Germany, which, in time of peace, would remain in abfolute inactivity, and, by the Conventions of the Treaty, would become useless in every respect to the Allies of France and England, the King undertakes, that, from the time that his Britannic Majefty do recal the English whom he has fent to his army in Germany, he will cause double the number of French forces in his Majefty's armies on the Upper and Lower Rhine to return to France, fo that no French troops shall continue in those parts, but in proportion to those which the King of England shall keep in pay.

XI.

• If before the execution of the Treaty, one of the two Powers should make • any conquest, in whatever part of the world it be, they shall be restored. • without hesitation, and without requiring any recompence.

XII.

The captures made at fea by England before the declaration of the war, are objects of legal reflitution, and which the King will willingly fubmit to the juffice of the King of England and the Englifh tribunals; in fact, fubjects, who under the faith of treaties, the law of nations, and in time of peace, follow their trade and navigation, cannot with juffice become fufferers by the mifunderftandings fubfifting in the cabinets of the two Courts, before they have any intimation of it. Declarations of war are effablifhed by the law of nations, for no other purpofe, but to make public to the people the contects between their Sovereigns, and to give them warning, that their perfons and fortunes are in danger from an enemy. Unlefs fuch declaration is agreed upon, there can be no public fecurity; every individual would be in danger, or in fear, every moment that he ftepped beyond the limits of his own country. If thefe principles are inconteftible, nothing remains but to examine the date of the declaration

claration of war, between the two Crowns, and the date of the Captures; all that has been taken prior to the declaration, cannot be adjudged lawful prize, without overthrowing the moft falutary laws; it will be in vain to alledge that the French began hoftilities, and that the captures were taken by way of reprizal. What connection can there be between fuppofed hoftilities offered at Fort Duquefne, and the capture of trading veffels in the fouth part of America? Thefe hoftilities are the motives for the Declaration of War; but the effects of that Declaration cannot take place, till after the faid Declaration is made public; and it would be unjuft to make individuals fuftain a lofs, who are totally ignorant of the facts and circumftances of a latent hoftility in a corner of the world, which has occafioned a general war between the two

This argument is deemed unanfwerable in France; and it is on this footing that the King challenges the right of nations, to the end that fome expedient may be agreed upon in the future Treaty as a recompense for the captures made upon his fubjects previous to the Declaration of War, without entering into any discussion about Reprizals, which should be forgotten when the two Courts draw near to an agreement. France confults nothing but the interest of the individuals who have been sufferers, and does not pretend to include the King's fhips taken before the Declaration in the fettlement of the Captures, as the loss of the King's ships may be confidered as a confequence of the motives of the

O XIV.

• The prifoners made on each fide, as well by fea as land, fhall be fet at li-• berty, and fent home without ranfom, immediately on the ratification of the • Peace.

His Britannic Majefty will readily perceive, that thefe articles are not drawn in the form of a treaty; they are only offered to him as articles explained in their full extent, which elucidate the fentiments of France, and put the two Crowns in a condition to treat upon certain and diffinct objects.'

This Memorial was fent to London on the 15th of July. The date is mentioned, becaufe the Britifh Miniftry reproached the French Miniftry with having delayed the difpatch of the Memorial; and it is proper to obferve, that the laft anfwer from England did not reach France till the 1ft of July; that there was a neceffity of having feveral conferences with Mr. Stanley, to form the fcheme of a treaty, which comprehended the precife difcuffion of objects in every part of the world where the two Crowns are at war, and which was to produce the re-eftablifhment blifhment of peace, or the continuance of the war. The reproach of a delay of fifteen days, upon fo interefting a bufinefs, was certainly an inftance of injuffice.

However that point be fettled, it is fubmitted to the difcernment and juffice of all Europe to determine, whether the Memorial of France of the 15th July did not confirm the principles of reconciliation, which had hitherto appeared in every ftep taken by that Crown. The Court of France acted with fuch integrity, in the confidence fhe repofed in the pacific difpolition of England, that having facrificed confiderable interefts, fhe carried her forecaft fo far, as to intimate to the Court of London her apprehenfions left the matters which remained to be difcuffed between Spain and England, and which were not yet adjuffed, fhould in the end prove an obffacle to the duration and folidity of the peace which the King and his Britannic Majefty were defirous of re-eftablishing between them.

In confequence of these apprehensions, M. Buffy had orders to remind the Court of London, with respect to the subject of the Neutral Islands, specified in the 20th article of the Memorial, that his Catholic Majesty made fome claims upon those Islands, with which the Court of Madrid had recently made that of Versailles acquainted. The French Minister was charged at the fame time to represent to Mr. Pitt, how dangerous it would be to determine the fate of those Islands, without paying regard to the claims of his Catholic Majesty. M. Buffy was ordered to add, that it was evident that the Court of Spain would agree to the fettlement which should be made between France and England, in relation to the four Islands in question, provided that the three articles negotiated at London on the part of the Court of Madrid, were adjusted at the fame time that the Peace with France should be concluded there; and to testify a fincerity as laudable as it was perfect, M. Buffy was charged to annex to the Memorial of Propofitions, the particular Memorial which follows relative to Spain.

No. XVIII.

The private Memorial of France, of 15th July, 1761, relating to Spain.

A S it is effential, and agreeable to the defire of France and England, that the projected Treaty of Peace fhould ferve as a bafis for a folid reconciliation between the two Crowns, which may not be liable to be interrupted by the interefts of a third Power, and the engagements which either one or the other may have entered into previous to their reconciliation, he propofes that the King of Spain fhall be invited to guaranty the future Treaty of Peace between his Majefty and the King of Great Britain. This Guaranty will obviate all prefent and future inconveniences with regard to the folidity of the Peace.

The King will not difguife from his Majefty, that the differences of Spain with England fill him with apprehenfions, and give him room to fear, that, if they are not adjufted, they will occafion a fresh war in Europe and America.
The King of Spain has communicated to his Majefty the three articles which remain to be difcuffed between his Crown and the Crown of Britain: which are,

1. 'The

34]

1. • The reflitution of fome captures which have been made during the prefent • war upon the Spanish Flag.

2. 'The privilege for the Spanish nation to fish upon the Banks of New-'foundland.

3. 'The demolition of the English settlements made upon the Spanish territories in the Bay of Honduras.

* Thefe three articles may be eafily adjusted agreeable to the equity of the two nations; and the King earneftly wishes, that some accommodations may be thought on, to the fatisfaction of the Spanish and English nations, with regard to thefe articles; but he cannot difguise from England the danger he apprehends, and of which he must neceffarily partake, if these objects, which feem nearly to concern his Catholic Majesty, should be the occasion of a War. His Majesty, therefore, deems it a principal point of confideration in concluding a firm and advantageous Peace, that, at the fame time that that defirable Point fhall be concluded between France and England, his Britannic Majesty should terminate his differences with Spain, and agree to invite his Catholic Majesty to guaranty the Treaty which is to reconcile (pray Heaven for ever) his Maigsty and the King of England.

• As to what remains, his Majefty does not intimate his apprehension in this • respect to the Court of London, but with the most fincere and upright intentions to obviate every impediment which may arise hereafter to disturb the • union of the French and English nations; and he defires his Britannic Majefty, • whom he supposes influenced by the same good wishes, freely to communicate • his fentiments on so effectial an object.

The precaution of France to enfure the folidity of the Peace, comprized every object which could conduce to that end. The fuccours which his Majefty and the King of England afforded their Allies in Germany, left a fource of war ftill fublifting, and an expence detrimental to both nations. The King judged, that the most natural means to put an end to the disputes which the fuccours to be afforded their respective Allies might produce, would be to come to an agreement between France and England, that France, on her part, fhould not yield any kind of fuccour to the Empress-Queen, and in like manner, that England fhould be bound not to furnish any affistance to the King of Prussia. It would have been a violation of good faith to have flipulated this withdrawing of all fuccour, without the confent of the Allies. The King required the confent of the Empress Queen, and obtained it early enough, for M. Buffy to transmit the following note to the British Minister relative to that object, at the fame time that he gave him the Memorial of the French propositions, and that whick related to Spain.

M. Buffy's Note to Mr. Pitt.

CINCE the Memorial of the propolitions from France was formed, and at 5 5 the inftant that the courier was ready to fet out for London, the King re- ceived the confent of the Empress Queen to a separate peace with England, · but upon two conditions :

1. ' To keep pofferfion of the countries belonging to the King of Pruffia.

2. ' That it shall be stipulated, that the King of Great Britain, neither in <sup>6</sup> his capacity of King or Elector, fhall afford any fuccour, either in troops, or of * any kind whatever, to the King of Pruffia; and that his Britannic Majefty will <sup>4</sup> undertake that the Hanoverian, Heffian, Brunfwickian, and the other Auxili- aries in alliance with Hanover, fhall not join the forces of the King of Pruffia, • in like manner as France shall engage, on her part, not to yield fuccour of any kind to the Empress Queen, nor her Allies.

· Both these conditions appear to natural and equitable in themselves, that his Majefty could not do otherwife than acquiefce in them, and he hopes that • the King of Great Britain will be ready to adopt them."

Upon reading these vouchers with attention, it may be observed, that the Memorial containing the propolitions, clearly explains the means of reconciling France and England with respect to their particular interests; and that the Note, No.XIX, removes all obstacles which the fuccours to be given to the Allies in Germany might throw in the way of a reconciliation between the two Crowns. In fact, what could be more just and advantageous both to France and England, in the circumftances in which they ftood, than wholly and abfolutely to withdraw from the war in Germany. Laftly, in order to prevent the flames of war from breaking out afresh in Europe, which the complaints of Spain might re-kindle, and in which France, fooner or later, would have been forced to have taken part; nothing could be deemed more difcreet than the proposition contained in the Memorial, No. XVIII. more efpecially as that proposition was the natural refult of the good offices which his Catholic Majefty had offered to the Crown, the preceding years, in order to mediate peace between them, which kind offices had been accepted on the part of France by an authentic declaration, which had not then been opposed by England.

M. Buffy laid these feveral pieces before Mr. Pitt on the 23d of July. They had been previoufly communicated to Mr. Stanley, to the end that that Minister might transmit a circumstantial account of them to his court, and that the English Minister might be apprized of the objects included in the dispatch, and might be able to confer with M. Buffy thereupon without loss of time. The King had even transmitted very minute instructions to his Minister at London, which contained fresh expedients for reconciling the differences of France with England, in relation to the respective possessions of the two Crowns in America, Africa.

Africa, and Afia. His Majefty had forefeen that the taking of Pondicherry, of which an account came but a few days before, might occasion fome alteration, which it might be neceffary to obviate by fresh facrifices, if fuch should be deemed expedient; but the English Minister, in the conference at which the pieces were laid before him, discovered his personal opposition to peace: he refused to agree to any of the articles in the Memorial of propositions; he entered very little into the particular motives of his opposition; he expatiated with some warmth on the Memorial which related to Spain; rejected the Note which concerned the Allies in Germany with disdain; and concluded with faying. That he would take the directions of the King his Master, with respect to those two last pieces, and that he would transmit to Mr. Stanley the answer of his Britannic Majesty to the propositions of France. In confequence of this, Mr. Pitt, having returned M. Bussy the Memorials concerning Spain and Germany, wrote a letter to him on the 24th of July, conceived in the following terms.

No. XX.

Mr. Pitt's Letter to M. Buffy, 24th July 1761.

SIR,

· LIAVING explained myfelf, in our conference yesterday, with respect to certain engagements of France with Spain, relative to the diffutes of the · latter Crown with Great Britain, of which your court never informed us, but at ' the very inflant of making, as she has done, her first propositions for the fe-* parate peace of the two Crowns; and as you have defired, for the fake of greater punctuality, to take a note of what paffed between us upon fo weighty ' a fubject, I here repeat, Sir, by his Majefty's order, the fame Declaration. " word for word, which I made to you yesterday, and again anticipate you with · respect to the most fincere sentiments of friendship and real regard on the part 6 of his Majefty towards the Catholic King, in every particular confiftent with " reason and justice. It is my duty to declare farther to you in plain terms, in * the name of his Majefty, That he will not fuffer the difputes with Spain to be · blended, in any manner whatever, in the Negotiation of Peace between the two · Crowns; to which I must add, That it will be confidered as an affront to his ' Majefty's dignity, and as a thing incompatible with the fincerity of the Nego-• tiation, to make fatther mention of fuch a circumstance.

Moreover, it is expected that France will not, at any time, prefume a right of intermeddling in fuch Difputes between Great Britain and Spain.

• These Confiderations, so just and indispensible, have determined his Majesty • to order me to return you the Memorial which occasions this, as wholly inad-• missible.

• I likewife return you, Sir, as totally inadmiffible, the Memorial relative to • the King of Pruffia, as implying an Attempt upon the Honour of Great Bri-• tain, and the Fidelity with which his Majefty will always fulfil his Engage-• ments with his Allies.

I have the Honour to be, &c.' Signed Pitt.

The

The fivle of this Letter, and the manner of returning the Memorials, do not bear the marks of that conciliating temper, by which the Court of England would hitherto have been thought to have been influenced.

tt. The The Anfwers to the Memorial of the French Propositions, which were remitted to Verfailles on the 29th July, are extremely analogous with Mr. Pitt's Letter; they are dictated with an air of haughtiness and defpotifin which might have shocked a Court of less confequence than that of France. They follow word for word.

No. XXI.

The Anfwer of the British Court to the Memorial of French Propositions. 29th July 1761.

A Paper of Articles to be delivered to Mr. Stanley, as the definitive propositions from the Court of Great Britain.

H IS Britannic Majefty will never recede from the entire and total ceffion on the Part of France, without any new limits, or any exception whatever, of all Canada and its appurtenances; and his Majefty will never relax, with regard to the full and compleat ceffion on the Part of France, of the Iffe of Cape Breton, and of all the other Iflands in the Gulph or in the River of St. Lawrence, with the right of fifting, which is infeparably incident to the poffeffion of the aforefaid Coafts, and of the Canals or Streights which lead to them.

2. 'With respect to fixing the limits of Louisiana, with regard to Canada, or the English Possessing fituate on the Ohio, as also on the Coast of Virginia, it can never be allowed that whatever does not belong to Canada shall appertain to Louisiana, nor that the boundaries of the last Province should extend to Virginia, or to the British possession on the borders of the Ohio; the nations and countries which lie intermediate, and which form the true barrier between the aforesaid provinces, not being proper, on any account, to be directly or by necessary confequence ceded to France, even admitting them to be included in the limits of Louisiana.

3. 'Senegal, with all its Rights and Dependancies upon the River which bears its name, fhall be ceded to Great Britain in the moft full and ample manner; as alfo the Ifland of Goree, fo effentially connected with Senegal.

4. 'Dunkirk fhall be reduced to the condition in which it ought to have been after the Treaty of Utrecht, without which no Peace can be concluded; and upon that condition only can his Majefty ever confent to enter on the confideration of the demand which France has made, viz. The refitution of the privilege granted by the thi teenth article of the faid treaty, with certain limitations and under certain reftrictions, for the fubjects of France to fifh and dry their fifh on part of the Banks of Newfoundland.

5. • Though the titles by which the Kingdom of Great Britain has, on many • occalions, maintained its right to the Islands of St. Lucia and Tabago, have • never yet been refuted; and though his Majefty by force of arms has acquired possefilion poff-flion of St. Dominica, and of the French Colony eftablished before the commencement of the war; nevertheles his Majefty, from that principle of moderation, which is so becoming to Kings, will confent to an equal partition of the four Islands, commonly called the Neutral Islands, which partition shall be regulated in the ensuing treaty.

6. 'The ifland of Minorca fhall be immediately reftored in the condition it 'was at the time of its being taken, together with the artillery, &c. appertaining to that ifland.

7. 'France fhall immediately reftore and evacuate the conquefts fhe has made over his Majefty's Allies in Germany; that is to fay, of all the States and Countries appertaining to the Landgrave of Heffe, to the Duke of Brunfwic, and to the Electorate of Hanover, as alfo of Wefel, and of all the places and territories belonging to the King of Proffia, in poffeffion of the arms of France.
In a word, France fhall make a general evacuation of all her conquefts, on the fide of Heffe, Weftphalia, and its countries.

8. 'The King of Great Britain on his part, agrees to furrender to his Moft Chriftian Majefty, 1. The important conqueft of Belle-Ifle. 2. His Majefty likewife confents to furrender to the Moft Chriftian King the opulent ifland of Guadaloupe, with that of Marigalante.

9. <sup>c</sup> The treaty concluded between Meffrs. Saunders and Godeheu, cannot <sup>b</sup> be admitted as the bafis of the re-cftablifhment of the peace in Afia, becaufe <sup>c</sup> that provifional treaty has had no confequences, and becaufe thofe provifions <sup>c</sup> are by no means applicable to the prefent flate of affairs in the Indies, by the <sup>e</sup> final reduction of the poffeffions and fettlements of the French company in the <sup>e</sup> Eaft Indies; but as the perfect and final fettlement with regard to that coun-<sup>e</sup> try can only be made in conformity to certain rights abfolutely appertaining <sup>e</sup> to the Englifh company, and as the King cannot juftly difpofe of their rights <sup>s</sup> without their confent, it muft neceffarily be left to the Companies of the two <sup>e</sup> nations to adjuft the terms of accommodation and reconciliation, according to <sup>s</sup> thofe rules of reafon and juftice, which the flate and circumftances of their af-<sup>f</sup> fairs may require, and mutually point out; provided neverthelefs that thofe <sup>s</sup> conditions are not repugnant to the defigns and equitable intentions of their <sup>s</sup> Sovereigns for the peace and reconciliation of the two Crowns.

10. 'The demand of the reftitution of the captures at fea before the declaration of war cannot be admitted; fuch a claim not being founded on any particular convention, and by no means refulting from the law of nations, as there is no principle more contestible than this, viz. that the abfolute right of all hostile operations does not refult from a formal declaration of war, but from the hostilities which the aggreffor has first offered.

11. As the indifpenfable care which is due from his Majefty to his people, and the juft and invincible motives which concern the prefervation and fecurity of his kingdoms, authorized by the most formal stipulations of folemn treaties (viz. those of Radstadt, and the Barriere) and even by the express and irrevocable conditions of the cession of the Low Countries, will not allow France to retain possession of Oftend and Newport, the two places aforesaid shall be f eva-evacuated, without delay, by the French garrifons; it is for this reafon declared that the reflitutions fpoken of in the preceding Articles of this Memorial, and particularly the convention which is to be framed and regulated with refpect to the Indies, cannot take place till the aforefaid evacuation of Oftend and Newport shall be faithfully executed.

12. 'The ceffation of arms between the two crowns shall be fixed and take place on the day of the ratification of the preliminaries, or of the definitive treaty, and all the Articles relative to the ceffation of hostilities, shall be fettled and take place, according to common usage in such cases, and as the circumstances in different parts of the world shall require.

13. 'His Majefty having, from the first overtures made on the part of France, declared, that in case the separate peace between the two Crowns should be concluded, his Majefty would continue, as an Auxiliary, faithfully to affift the King of Prussia, with efficacy and good faith, in order to accomplish the falutary purpose of a general pacification in Germany; it shall be free to Great Britain and France, to support, as Auxiliaries, their respective Allies, in their particular contest for the recovery of Silesia, pursuant to the respective engagements which those Crowns have entered into:

14. 'The prifoners taken on one fide and the other, both by fea and land, thall be releafed in the ufual manner, faving the terms which may exift by virtue of fome cartel or fome convention, which may have relation to this particular.

Thefe articles are not digefted into the form, nor in the detail of articles of peace; but it is hoped that, with regard to effential points, this Memorial has that precifion and perfpicuity which leaves nothing doubtful, and which evidently demonstrates the fincerity and perfeverance of his Majefty's disposition, with respect to his intentions and resolutions for the accomplishment of fo great a bleffing as that of an entire peace between the two Crowns.

The first article of this sketch entirely deprived the French of the liberty of fishing for cod; and the demolition of Dunkirk required in the 4th article, only reftored this liberty in part, with certain limitations and under certain reftrictions which were not explained.

From the fecond article, one might infer that England pretended, not only to keep an exclusive possession of all Canada, but also to make herfelf mistress of all the Neutral Countries between Canada and Louissiana, to be nearer at hand in order to invade the last Colony when the thould think proper.

The third Article confirmed the entire poffeffion of the African Coaft in favourof the English, and deprived the Erench of all settlement in that part for the Negroe trade.

The ninth entirely annihilated the French East India Company.

The feventh and thirteenth did not appear conclusive. In fact, by the first, England proposed that France should evacuate Germany, and in the second she agreed that the two Crowns should support their Allies in that part of Europe.

These answers, and all those which England has made in the course of the nego-

Negotiation, evidently manifest that the Court of London is averfe to all reconciliation.

The Articles which declare the advantages which England would fecure, are clear, decifive, and even dictatorial; those which concern the interests of France, are obscure, subject to various constructions, and leave a train of discussions, which, by leaving the fource of the war still substituting, would still have redounded to the prejudice of France, if she had agreed to admit the claims of England.

These reflections did not escape his Majesty's penetration. Nevertheless his Majesty, unwilling to take upon himself the rupture of a Negotiation, which, on his part, proposed the welfare of mankind, he ordered a Reply to be made to the Answer from England, Article by Article, in the following Memorial, in the form of an Ultimatum.

No. XXII.

Ultimatum of France in reply to that of England, of 5tb of August, 1761.

Ultimatum of the Court of France, as a Reply to the Ultimatum of the Court of England, remitted to the D. de Choifeul by M. Stanley.

THE King renews the Declaration which he made to his Britannic Majefty, to the Memorial of Propositions for Peace, which has been tranfmitted to M. Stanley, and to which the Court of England has given no Anfwer, either by word of mouth or in writing: his Majefty again declares, that if the Negotiation entered into at Paris and at London, for the re-establishment of Peace between the two Crowns, has not the defired fucces, all the Articles agreed to in that Negotiation by France, cannot be represented, on any occasion, as settled points, any more than the Memorial of the month of March last, relative to the Uti posities.

1. 'The King confents to cede Canada to England in the moft extensive manner, as specified in the Memorial of Propositions; but his Majefty will not recede from the Conditions he has annexed to the same Memorial relative to the Catholic Religion, and to the power, facility, and liberty of emigration for the ancient subjects of the King. With regard to the Fishery in the Gulf of St. Laurence, the King means to maintain the immemorial right which his subjects have of fishing in the faid Gulf, and of drying their fish on the Banks of Newfoundland, as it was agreed by the Treaty of Utrecht. As this Privilege would be granted in vain, if the French vessels had not fome falter appertaining to France in the Gulf, his Majesty proposed to the King of Great Britain the restitution of the Island of Cape Breton; he again proposes, either that island, or St. John, or such other Port, without Fortification, in the Gulf, or within reach of the Gulf, which may ferve the French as a shelter, and fecure to France the liberty of Fishing, from whence his Majesty has no intention to recede.

2. The King has in no part of his Memorial of propositions, affirmed that all which did not belong to Canada, appertained to Louisiana; it is even diffi° cult

<sup>6</sup> cult to conceive fuch an affertion could be advanced. France, on the con<sup>6</sup> trary, demands that the intermediate nations between Canada and Louifiana, as <sup>6</sup> alfo between Virginia and Louifiana, fhall be confidered as neutral nations, in<sup>6</sup> dependant of the Sovereignty of the two Crowns, and ferve as a barrier between <sup>6</sup> them. If the Englifh Minifter would have attended to the inftructions of M.
<sup>6</sup> Buffy on this fubject, he would have feen that France agreed with England as

3. 'No anfwer has been given by England to the plain argument, That if Seenegal cannot be enjoyed in fecurity without Goree, England will make no great facrifice, in keeping Goree, and reftoring Senegal to France. Upon this article, Mr. Stanley has acquainted the D. de Choifeul that fome expedients may be agreed on between the two Crowns: in confequence of which his Majefty, out of regard to the bleffing of peace, has authorized M. Buffy to treat concerning thefe expedients with the Britifh Miniftry.

4. 'The Court of London, when they mean to fecure, in purfuance of his Ma-'jefty's confent, the conquefts they pretend to maintain, readily rely on the Me-'morial of Uti Poffidetis; but they take no notice of that Memorial when they 'advance claims at the expence of France. It cannot be denied but that the flate 'of the town of Dunkirk is not included in the Uti Poffidetis.

<sup>6</sup> According to the Treaty of Utrecht, the Demolition of Dunkirk was not affented to, as a compensation for the liberty of drying codfish on the Banks of
<sup>6</sup> is the ground of that compensation: but the King, to testify to all Europe, his <sup>6</sup> fincere defire of peace, and to remove all obstacles which the enemies to peace <sup>6</sup> may throw in the way, authorizes his Minister at London to negotiate con<sup>6</sup> cerning the flate of Dunkirk, fo foon as a convenient port shall be agreed up<sup>6</sup> on in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, or within reach of the Gulf, which shall be

5. 'France has refuted the title of England to the Antilles, which are pretended to be neutral; His Majefty neverthelefs, from a principle of moderation, accepts of the partition of the faid iflands; but fuch partition cannot take place but in the form fpecified in the first Memorial of the French propositions.

6. 'It feems as if England, by her propositions, offered the island of Belleisse as a compensation for the island of Minorca: as France does not allow the importance of the conquest of Belleisse, the two Courts will retain their several opinions; England shall maintain her conquest, and France shall keep Miorca.

7. <sup>6</sup> France is willing to evacuate, in confideration of the reftitution to be made <sup>6</sup> by England of the Island of Guadaloupe and of Marigalante, the countries <sup>6</sup> belonging to the Landgrave of Hesse, to the Duke of Brunswic, and to the <sup>6</sup> Electorate of Hanover, which are or shall be occupied by his Majesty's forces, <sup>6</sup> and of which the conquest is connected with the British War, since the rupture <sup>6</sup> of the capitulation of Closter Seven, and which may be separated from the War <sup>6</sup> of the Empres-Queen with the King of Prussia.

F

6 But

But as to what concerns Wefel, Gueldres, and other countries in Weftphalia belonging to the King of Pruffia, which are actually in poffeffion of the Emprefs-Queen, and where juffice is adminifered in the name of her Imperialia Majefty, the King cannot flipulate to furrender the Conquefts of his Allies; and fuch an evacuation, neither in fact nor by right, can take place without the confent of the Emprefs Queen at the Congrefs at Augfburg; that Congrefs being to affemble in order to terminate the differences which have arifen in the Empire, and particularly those which have occasioned the War between her.

8. 'The King accepts on these conditions; and in confideration of the ceffions made by France, in North America and Africa, as well as in regard to the set. tlement of Dunkirk, the restitution of the Island of Guadaloupe and of Marigalante.

9. 'The French East-India Company have fulfilled the conditions of the Yeaty made between Meff. Godeheu and Saunders : that of England has not. observed the fame punctuality. However that may be, the King is willing to acquiesce in the 9th Article of the Ultimatum of England, in relation to Afia.

10. 'The King perfifts, with regard to the Captures made before the War, in the contents of the 12th Article of the first Propolitions. M. Buffy is authorifed to deliver a Memorial expressly on this subject; and every one is persuaded in France, that this object neither can nor ought to break off the Negotiation between the two Crowns.

11. 'The Empress-Queen enjoys full fovereignty in the towns of Oftend and Neuport; the King has only lent his forces to his Ally to fecure those places. England has no right to impose laws upon the King and the Empress, contrary to the will of the King and of her Imperial Majesty, who do not in the least violate the Treaties of the House of Austria with the States General. As to what remains, his Majesty readily declares, that his intention never was to keep possession of the faid places after the establishment of peace.

12. 'The 12th Article of the Ultimatum of England does not feem liable to any difficulties, while the terms of the intended Sufpenfion fhall be obferved and maintained with fincerity.

13. 'In anfwer to the Declaration made by Mr. Stanley, that in cafe of a feparate Peace between France and England, his Britannic Majefty would conftantly continue, in the capacity of an Auxiliary, to aid his Ally the King of Pruffia with all his power, and with the utmost integrity, in order to accomplish the happy iffue of the War, and the pacification of Germany, the D. de Choifeul, in the name of the King, his Master, has declared to Mr. Stanley, that his Majefty, with the fame view to the general pacification, will also fupport his faithful Allies with all his forces, and to the utmost of his power, and will take every precaution which his approved fincerity and integrity shall fuggeft to him, in order to prevent the feparate Peace of France with England from being prejudicial to them.

' It is in confequence of these fentiments, that the King, with the confent of his Allies, is willing to flipulate, that he will grant no fuccour of any kind to • his Z * his Allies for the continuance of their War against the King of Pruffia; but his · Majesty neither can nor will enter into such an engagement, unless his Britannic " Majefty will enter into the like agreement with refpect to the King of Pruffia.

. The Proposition of leaving France at liberty to fend forces into Silesia, is ' unfavourable, from particular circumstances, to the interests of the Empres, <sup>e</sup> and confequently inadmiffible.

. The King, therefore, perfifts in the Propositions contained in the roth Ar-* ticle of his first Memorial. All that can be negotiated with respect to these * points, must be the liberty of affording fuccours in money to the respective Al-" lies, fo foon as it shall be politively afcertained that no power shall be at liberty ' to furnish them any supplies of men, or warlike stores, under any denomina-<sup>6</sup> tion whatever.

14. ' The King accepts the 14th Article of the Ultimatum of England.

" It is hoped that the Court of Great Britain, will allow the precifion of the Answers to their Ultimatum, as well as the readiness with which the King endea-* vours, even to his prejudice, to use all means to bring about a reconciliation " with the King of Great Britain."

M. Buffy, on prefenting his Ultimatum, accompanied it with the following Letter, in Anfwer to that of Mr. Pitt, of the 24th of July.

No. XXIII.

Mr. Buffy's letter to Mr. Pitt, 5th August, 1761.

SIR,

to

to.

* I Have acquainted my Court with the Letter of the 24th of last month, with * I which your Excellency honoured me, on returning the Memorial I laid before you, in relation to the interefts of the Court of Spain with refpect to England, and the Note which I thought it my duty to communicate, with re-" gard to the intention of the King my Mafter, concerning the neceffary fteps ' to put a ftop to hostilities in Germany.

. The King, Sir, orders me to acquaint your Excellency, that as to what " relates to the interest of the Catholic King, his Majesty's precaution expressed ' in the Memorial which I remitted to you, is in confequence of that fincerity " which he professes constantly to adopt in the course of all his Negotiations. . The Memorial which your Excellency has returned me, neither contains any menaces, nor any offer of mediation. No other fentiment can be inferred from · it, than that of the fincere defire which his Majefty entertains, that the pro-' jected peace between France and England, may be firm and durable. More-* over, the King refers himfelf to his Catholic Majefty concerning the manner in " which this Memorial was received and remitted; but his Majefty has charged • me to declare to your Excellency, that fo long as Spain shall approve of it, . his Majefty will interfere with the interefts of that Crown, without defifting on * account of a repulse from the Power who opposes his good offices.

« With

With refpect to the matter of the Note, likewife returned by your Excellency, and which relates to the two neceffary conditions of the propoled expedient for evacuating the countries fubdued by his Majefty's arms, his Majefty explains himfelf fully on that Article in the Ultimatum, in Anfwer to that of the Court of London. His Majefty has ordered me to declare further to you in writing, that he will rather facifice the Power which God has given him, than conclude any thing with his enemies, which may be contrary to the engagements he has contracted, and that good faith in which he glories. If England will undertake to yield no fuccour to the King of Pruffia, the King will engage, on the other hand, to afford none to his Allies in Germany. But his Majefty will not adopt the liberty of fuccouring his Allies with a fupply of men, becaufe he is fenfible of the difadvantage which the prefent fituation of the armies might occafion to the Emprefs Queen. His Majefty may ftipulate not to act for the benefit of his Allies, but he neither can or will confent to any condition which may be detrimental to them.

<sup>6</sup> It remains for me to obferve to your Excellency, how greatly my court was <sup>6</sup> aftonifhed, as well at the ftile of the Letter you wrote to me, as at the Ulti-<sup>6</sup> matum of England. This ftile, which is fo little conformable to the propofi-<sup>6</sup> tions of France, betrays the averfion of the Court of London to peace. The <sup>6</sup> King, who is very far from infifting on forms, when the happines of Eu-<sup>6</sup> rope is at ftake, has used every endeavour, in the Answer to the Ultimatum, <sup>6</sup> which, without injury to the honour of his Crown, were judged most effectual <sup>6</sup> to recall the British Court to fentiments of pacification : your Excellency will <sup>6</sup> judge, from the Ultimatum of France, that I am ordered to acquaint you with <sup>6</sup> what facility the King, forgetting the imperative ftile, fo unfit for Negotia-<sup>6</sup> tion, which England makes use of in her Answers, enters into the views of <sup>6</sup> the British Court, and endeavours, by the facrifices he makes, to engage them <sup>5</sup> to adopt the ftipulations of a reasonable peace.

<sup>6</sup> If your Excellency is defirous of having a conference with me on the fub-<sup>6</sup> ject of the Ultimatum, I will attend your commands, and I fhall be very ear-<sup>6</sup> neft to teftify the difpolition of my Court, to make a happy iffue of the Nego-<sup>6</sup> tiation on foot, as alfo the peculiar regard with which, &cc.

' Signed De Buffy.'

At length, as the British Ministry had seemed to refeat the Memorial relative to Spain, his Catholic Majesty authorized his Ambassador at London, the Count of Fuentes, to remit the following Note to Mr. Pitt, which is the interpretation of the Memorial.

No. XXIV.

Note of the Spanish Ambassador to Mr. Pitt.

• THE Most Christian King, who wishes to make the peace, concerning which he proposed to treat with England, at once effectual and durable, entrusted his intentions with the King my Master, expressing the pleasure with which

• he he embraced that opportunity of acknowledging his fense of the reiterated offers which his Catholic Majesty had made both to Him and England, in order to facilitate a just and lasting reconcitation.

It is from thefe principles of fincerity that the Moft Chriftian King proposed to the King my Master the guaranty of the Treaty of Peace, as a measure which might be equally convenient to France and England, and at the fame time affured him of his fincere intentions with respect to the facifices he proposed to make, in order to restore tranquillity to Europe, by an honourable and lafting peace

Such a proceeding of his Moft Christian Majefty could not but be highly acceptable to the King my Mafter, who found it agreeable to his own fentiments, and to his defire of fulfilling on his part, with the moft diffinguished conformity, all the connections which unite them both by ties of blood and their mutual intereft; and moreover, he perceived in the disposition of the King of France, that magnanimity and humanity which are natural to him, by his endeavours, on his fide, to render the Peace as permanent as the viciffitudes of human affairs will admit of.

It is with the fame candor and fincerity that the King my Mafter expressed in confidence to the Most Christian King, that he wished his Britannic Majesty had not made a difficulty of fettling the guaranty, on account of the grievances of Spain with England, as he has all the reason to conclude that his Britannic Majesty has the fame good intentions to terminate them amicably, according to reason and justice.

The confidence which the King my Mafter reported in France, gave that Court room to teftify to his Britannic Majefty the fincerity of their intentions for the re-eftablifhment of peace, fince, by proposing the guaranty of Spain, they expressed their fincere defire of feeing the interests of Spain fettled at the fame time, which might one day re-kindle the flames of a new war, which at prefent they with to extinguish.

If the intentions of the Moft Chriftian King and the King my Mafter did not feem fraught with fincerity, the King my Mafter flatters himfelf, that his Britannic Majefty will do him the juffice to confider his in that light, fince, if they were founded on any other principle, his Catholic Majefty giving full fcope to his greatnefs, would have fpoken from himfelf, and as became his dignity.

<sup>6</sup> I must not omit to inform you, that the King my Master will learn with fur-<sup>6</sup> prize, that the Memorial of France could raise a sentiment in the breast of his <sup>6</sup> Britannic Majesty, entirely opposite to the intentions of the two Sovereigns.

<sup>6</sup> But his Catholic Majefty will always be pleafed, whenever he fees that they <sup>6</sup> make that progrefs which he has ever defired, in the Negociation of Peace, <sup>6</sup> whether it be feparate between France and England, or general; as his fincere <sup>6</sup> wifhes are to make it perpetual, by obviating every fource which might here-<sup>6</sup> after unhappily renew the war.

• For this reason, the King my Master flatters himself that his Britannic • Majesty, animated with the same sentiments of humanity towards the public • trantranquillity, will express the fame intentions of terminating the disputes of England with a power which has afforded fuch reiterated proofs of her friendfhip, at the fame time that it is proposed to reftore peace to all Europe in geheral.

The King ordered M. Buffy, by the inftructions which were fent to him with the Ultimatum, to agree to the ceffion of Canada, in the full extent which England defired it, fo that the fifthery on the coaft and in the Gulf of St. Lawrence was maintained to France, and that England would appoint a port in that part, which might be fubject to the fovereignty of his Majefty, and ferve the French fifthermen for a fhelter.

M. Buffy had in charge to agree upon the limits of Canada and Louifiana, according to the English map, though very unfavourable to the rights and possefillions of France. With regard to Africa, the King's Minister was authorized to confent to the ceffion required by England, fo that the exportation of negroes might be confirmed to France by fome expedients equally eafy and fure; and his Majefty made the facrifice of Dunkirk, in compensation of the fecurity of fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, in favour of his subjects.

As to what concerns Afia, the King authorized M. Buffy to agree that the French and English India companies, should adjust their respective interests among themselves, upon condition that they suspend hostilities during the Negotiation, and that the advantages on either fide should be confidered as a compenfation with regard to the respective interests of the two Crowns.

The King infifted, in the Inftructions he fent to his Minister at London, upon the Article respecting the Restitution of the French vessels taken before the war by the English marine. His Majesty's love for his subjects would not allow him to omit any thing to alleviate the distress which several towns in his kingdom suffained by means of those illegal captures. M. Bussy had even orders to prefent the following Memorial on that subject.

No. XXV.

Memorial concerning the Veffels taken before the War.

Concerning the Reclaim of the Prizes made before the Declaration of the War. THE Reclaim of the Captures made by the English before the Declaration of War, is founded on the Treaties of Utrecht and Aix la Chapelle.

<sup>6</sup> It is not neceffary to conteft the principle that the right of exercifing Ho-<sup>6</sup> ftilities does not always refult from the formality of a Declaration of war; but <sup>6</sup> as it is impracticable for two Princes who make war on each other, to agree <sup>6</sup> between them which is the aggreffor with regard to the other, equity and hu-<sup>6</sup> manity have dictated thefe precautions, that where an unforefeen rupture hap-<sup>6</sup> pens fuddenly, and without any previous declaration, foreign veffels, which, <sup>6</sup> navigating under the fecurity of peace and of treaties, happen at the time of <sup>6</sup> the rupture to be in either of the refpective ports, fhall have time and full <sup>8</sup> liberty to withdraw themfelves. • This wife provision, fo agreeable to the rules of good faith, conftitutes a • part of the Law of Nations, and the Article of the Treaty which fanctifies • these precautions ought to be faithfully executed, notwithstanding the breach • of the other Articles of the Treaty, which is the natural confequence of the • war.

The Courts of France and Great Britain used this falutary precaution in the Treaties of Utrecht and Aix la Chapelle; in the first, by the nineteenth Article of the Treaty of Peace, and in the fecond of the Treaty of Commerce:
in the fecond, by the third Article which renews and confirms the first.

If thefe Treaties allow a protection to the refpective fubjects who may have fhips in the ports of either of the Powers, becaufe, having no opportunity of knowing that a rupture has fallen out, they failed under the Security of Peace and under the Faith of Treaties; by a parity of reafon, all the other fubjects who are not inhabitants of the refpective ports, who have fhips at fea, fhould enjoy the fame fecurity for their veffels, in whatever part of the fea they fhould be failing, otherwife it would follow, that the Sovereigns provide for the prefervation of one part of their fubjects from the miferies of a fudden rupture, to which they expose the reft, which is abfolutely repugnant to the humanity of Sovereigns, and contrary to right reafon.

• It is upon this principle that the King of France reftored to England the • English Vessels which were found in the ports of France, at the time of the • rupture, or taken at sea before the Declaration of War.

• If his Majefty had not caufed those vessels to be reftored, his Britannic Ma-• jefty might have alledged that he retained the French vessels by way of Re-• prifals; but the punctuality of France in conforming to the Treaties of Utrecht • and Aix la Chapelle, and to the principles resulting from thence, give England • no pretence for refusing to fulfil engagements which are reciprocal.

• The Court of France therefore does not doubt but that the Court of Eng-• land will agree to order the Reflitution of the staken by the English from • the French, before the Declaration of the War."

The King likewife ordered his Minister to represent, with its full force, the utility which would redound to the two Crowns by the total defertion of the war in Germany. His Majefty moreover required M. Buffy, after having used his utmost endeavours to perfuade the British Ministry to acquiesce in propositions fo advantageous to England, to wait for fresh instructions, if the Court of London should refuse the conditions offered in the Ultimatum of France, the King being refolved to carry his compliance as far as possible, in order to inspire the King of England with pacific dispositions.

The Ultimatum of France, of the 5th August, arrived at London the 8th of the fame month : M. Bussy wrote to Mr. Pitt : that Minister returned him the following Answer on the 15th.

Mr. Pitt's Letter to M. Buffy. 15th August, 1761.

SIR;

I Made the King my Mafter acquainted with the Memorial, which, by the order of his Moft Chriftian Majefty, you accompanied the Ultimatum of the Court of France : his Majefty perceives from these two pieces, with that regret with which the love of peace inspires him, that the happy moment to put an end to so many miseries is not yet come.

<sup>6</sup> As to what relates to the flile of the Ultimatum of England in answer to the <sup>4</sup> Memorial of propositions from France, as likewife of the letter which I addreffed to you by his Majefty's order, upon returning the two papers relative · to Spain and the King of Pruffia, as totally inadmiffible, the King orders me to ac-<sup>6</sup> quaint, you, Sir, that his Majefty adheres both to the form and fubftance of " those two pieces, in which his dignity concurred with his justice and good " faith, leaving all the world to judge which of the two Courts have fhewn an aver-" fion to peace during the course of the Negotiation; whether it be that Court, which * from a principle of candour, not by way of affuming an imperative tone, has e always endeavoured to give open answers, in order to shorten delays, by ob-* viating mifunderstandings, and to avoid the reproach of having acted delu-" fively even with an enemy; who, in the conditions of peace, fo far from mak-' ing an ill use of her prosperity, has not even infisted on all those rights which the " Uti poffidetis, and the Memorial of France of the 26th March, gave her; " who, moreover, proposes, that after the conclusion of peace between the two " Crowns they shall respectively be at liberty, with regard to the contest concern-6 ing Silefia, to fulfil the engagements they have contracted with their Allies; 6 it belongs therefore, Sir, to Europe to judge whether this is the Court which has fhewn an averfion to peace, or whether it is not that, which after fo many · variations and delays on her part, arbitrarily continues to infift on objects in · America which we have a right to by the Uti poffidetis, and which would make e a direct attempt on the effential rights of our conquests of Canada and its e appurtenances, in the Gulf of St. Laurence; which, in Germany, not only " refuses to give up her conquests, gained over his Majesty's Allies, as a just · compensation for the important reflitutions with which his Majefty is willing 6 to accommodate France, but even pretends to impose an obligation on his Ma-· jefty not to fulfil the engagements of his Crown towards the King of Pruffia; " which moreover, not fatisfied with throwing fo many infuperable obstacles in " the way to peace, has not fcrupled to interpofe new perplexities in opposition " to this precious bleffing for which the nations figh, by intermixing, too late, " matters fo foreign to the prefent Negotiation between the two Crowns, as are <sup>6</sup> the difcuffions between Great Britain and Spain.

• Such, Sir, being the conduct of the two Courts, the King perceives with • regret that the peace fo much defired is far diftant, and that at this very mo-• ment <sup>6</sup> ment the Court of France is willing to intrust it to the uncertain fate of far-<sup>6</sup> ther events.

If this is the intention of France, his Majefty relies on the fame Providence, which has hitherto bleffed his arms, and the fincerity of his intentions towards peace; and hopes, that the courfe of events, accomplifning what his Majefty's moderation has in vain attempted, will recal the Court of France to a more favourable difposition.

Neverthelefs, Sir, although I am not at liberty to confer with you concerning the Ultimatum of your Court feparately, yet if you defire, Sir, that we fhould have a conference on the two Ultimatums of our Courts together, I will be at your command when you think proper, that I may have the honour to learn what you have to communicate to me with refpect to the intentions of your Court.

• I have the Honour to be, &c.

Signed W. Pitt.

Europe will be able to judge by the pieces contained in this Memorial, and which cannot be difavowed by the British Ministry, any more than their dates, whether France has used any delay in the Negotiation, and whether she has varied from her propositions, and from the constant defire the has always expressed for the conclusion of peace.

Mr. Buffy's Answer to Mr. Pitt, 16th August, 1761.

SIR,

<sup>6</sup> I Received the letter which your Excellency did me the honour to write to me on the 16th of this month. I will not undertake to difcufs the principal object of it without fubmitting it to my Court, whether it is proper to make a reply, and what that reply fhould be. I will confine myfelf, Sir, to affure you that I accept, with pleafure, the offer your Excellency makes me of a Conference on the fubject of the two Ultimatums of our Courts; as you are out of town, and as I would not trefpafs on the moments you devote to the eftablifhment of your health, I refer myfelf to you entirely to appoint the day and hour when I may come to confer with you.

• Nothing can be more true than the affurance I make to you of the refpect-• ful attachment with which you have infpired me; and with which I have the • Honour to be, &c.

Signed, De Buffy.

The many deliberations of the British Court, and the delay, from the 8th to the 30th of the fame month, of the Answer to the Ultimatum of France, renewed the hopes of reconciliation between the two Crowns. At length the Answer came, and Mr. Stanley remitted it on the 1st of September to the Duke de Choifeul.

The Answer of England to the Ultimatum of France, received the 1st September, 1761.

The Answer of the British Court to the Ultimatum of the Court of France, remitted the 17th of August, by M. Bussy Minister Blenipotentiary of the Most Chriftian King, to the Secretary of State of his Britannic Majelly of the Southern department. island of dire

· THE Most Christian King having repeatedly declared, in the Ultimatum of the Court of France, remitted to Mr. Pitt by M. Buffy, as well as in the · Memorial of the propositions of peace, which was remitted by the Duke de · Choifeul to Mr. Stanley, that, if the Negotiation entered upon between the two · Crowns has not the defired effect, all the Articles conceded in that Negotia-' tion by France, cannot be confidered in any cafe as points agreed upon, any ' more than the Memorial of the month of March last, in relation to the Uti · pollidelis; the King declares, in return, that if the conceffions his Majefty has , made to bring about peace, flould not be accepted by his most Christian Ma-· jefty, the important reftitutions offered to France, as well as the other circum-" flances herein after expressed, cannot for the future be confidered as given up.

Article I.

• The King will not defert his claim to the entire and total Ceffion of all Cana-" da and its dependencies, without any new limits or exceptions whatever; and <sup>6</sup> likewife infifts on the compleat ceffion of the Ifland of Cape Breton, and of the <sup>6</sup> other Iflands in the gulf and river of St. Laurence.

" Canada, according to the lines of its limits, traced by the Marquis de Vaue dreuil himfelf, when that Governor furrendered the faid province by capitula-' tion to the British General Sir J. Amherst, comprehends on one fide the lakes . Huron, Michigan and Superieur; and the faid line drawn to the Red Lake, * takes in, by a ferpentine progrefs, the river Ouabachi, as far as its junction " with the Ohio, and from thence extends itfelf along the latter river as far in-· clufively as its influx into the Miffiffippi.

<sup>6</sup> It is in conformity to this flate of the limits made by the French Governor, " that the King claims the Ceffion of Canada, a province which the Court of • France moreover has offered anew by their Ultimatum to cede to his Britan-" nic Majefty, in the most extensive manner, as expressed in the Memorial of Propo-· Sitions of Peace, of 13th July.

" As to what concerns the public profession and exercise of the Roman Ca-* tholic religion in Canada, the new fubjects of his Britannic Majefty shall be " maintained in that privilege without interruption or moleftation ; and the French ' inhabitants, or others, who may have been fubjects of the Most Christian King ' in Canada, shall have full liberty and power to fell their effects, provided they · dispose of them to the subjects of his Britannic Majesty, and to transport their * property, as well as their perfons, without being reftrained from their emigration under any pretence whatever; (unlefs in cafe of debt, or for the breach 'af criminal laws;) it being always underflood, that the time granted for the 3

• As to what refpects the line to be drawn from Rio-Perdido, as contained • in the Note remitted by M. Buffy of the 18th of this month, with regard to • the Limits of Louifiana, his Majefty is obliged to reject fo unexpected a pro-• pofition, as by no means admiffible in two refpects.

1. <sup>6</sup> Becaufe the faid line, under colour of fixing the limits of Louifiana, an-<sup>6</sup> nexes vaft countries to that province, which with the commanding pofts and <sup>6</sup> forts, the Marquis de Vandreuil has, by the moft folemn capitulation, incon-<sup>6</sup> teflibly yielded into the poffeffion of his Britannic Majefty, under the defcrip-<sup>6</sup> tion of Canada, and that confequently, however contentious the pretentions of <sup>6</sup> the two Crowns may have been before the war, and particularly with refpect <sup>6</sup> to the courfe of the Ohio, and the territories in that part fince the furrender <sup>6</sup> of Canada, and the line of its limits has been traced as aforefaid by the Mar-<sup>6</sup> quis de Vandreuil, all those opposite titles are united, and become valid without <sup>6</sup> contradiction, to confirm to Great Britain, with all the reft of Canada, the pof-<sup>6</sup> feffion of those countries on that part of the Ohio which have been heretofore <sup>6</sup> conteffed.

2. " The line proposed to fix the Bounds of Louisiana cannot be admitted, because it would comprize in another part, on the fide of the Carolinas, very extensive countries and numerous nations, who have always been reputed to be under the protection of the King, a right which his Majesty has no intention of renouncing; and then the King, for the advantage of peace, might confent to leave the intermediate countries under the protection of Great Britain, and particularly the Cherokees, the Creeks, the Chicasaws, the Chactaws, and another nation, fituate between the British fettlements and the Mississippi.

III.

• The King refers to the third Article of the Ultimatum of England concerning • the Ceffion of Senegal and its dependencies, as well as the ifland of Goree, in • the most ample manner, as expressed in the faid article; and his Majesty renews the declaration which has been made by Mr. Stanley, that if the Court of • France would suggest any reasonable expedient to provide themselves with • Negroes, which may not be too detrimental to the interests of the British subsects in Africa, he will willingly enter upon a discussion of this subject.

IV.

• The important privilege granted by the 13th article of the treaty of Utrecht, • under certain limitations and reftrictions, to the fubjects of France for fifting • and drying their cod fifth on a certain part of the banks of Newfoundland, has • not been refueed by Great Britain, but connected with a reciprocal fatisfaction on • the part of France, with regard to the indifpentable object of Dunkirk, which • the King has required, and ftill requires : it is therefore on condition that the

<sup>6</sup> Town and Port of Dunkirk fhall be put in the condition it ought to have been <sup>6</sup> in by the laft treaty of Aix la Chapelle, that his Majefty confents to renew to <sup>6</sup> France the privilege of fifting and of drying their fifth by virtue of the trea-<sup>6</sup> ty of Utrecht, upon the aforefaid diffrict of Newfoundland.

<sup>6</sup> As to the demand which his Moft Chriftian Majefty has farther made that <sup>6</sup> his fubjects may fifh in the Gulf of St. Laurence, as alfo to have a port there <sup>6</sup> without fortifications, and fubject to the infpection of England, as proposed on <sup>6</sup> the part of the D. de Choifeul in his conferences with Mr. Stanley on that <sup>6</sup> head, which port fhould merely ferve as a fhelter to the fifting boats of the <sup>6</sup> French nation which shall land there; the King, to manifest to his Most Chrif-<sup>6</sup> tian Majesty and to the whole world, the fincerity of his intentions with regard <sup>6</sup> to peace, will confent,

1. 'To grant the French fubjects the privilege of fifting in the Gulf of St. Laurence, upon this express condition, that is to fay; That the faid French fubjects shall abstain from that particular fishery on all the coasts appertaining to Great Britain, whether on the Continent or on the Islands fituated in the faid Gulf of St. Laurence, which fishery the proprietors only of the faid coasts have constantly enjoyed and always exercised; faving always the privilege granted by the 13th article of the treaty of Utrecht, to the subjects of France to fish and dry their cod fish on a part specified on the Banks of Newfoundland, which privilege is proposed to be renewed to France as aforefaid.

2. 'The King will confent to cede to his Majefty the ifle of St. Pierre with it's port, which ifle, with respect to that part of Newfoundland fituate between the bay of Placentia and the bay of La Fortune, flands east fouth east, and its port opens towards the north east, the interior part of which port is called Bourgway; the ifle of St. Pierre, which the King is willing to cede, is divided by a little ftreight from another island known by the name of Maquelon, or of Michelon, which lies to the north of the faid isle of St. Pierre.

• To the ceffion of the faid ifle, as above mentioned, his Majefty annexes • four indifpenfible conditions.

1. 'That France, on no pretence, nor under any denomination whatever, . 'fhall erect any fortifications, either in the faid ifle, or in its port, and that fhe 'fhall not keep any troops there, nor maintain any military eftablishment what-' ever.

2. 'That the faid ifle and the faid port fhall only ferve as a fhelter for the fifthing veffels of the French nation, and that France fhall not fuffer the veffels of any other nation whatever to partake of the convenience of this fhelter for the fifthing boats.

3. 'That the poffeffion of the isle of St. Pierre as aforefaid, shall not be conftrued in any case to confer, transmit, or participate in any manner whatever the least right or power of fishing or of drying cod fish in any part of the coast of Newfoundland, beyond the district expressly stipulated and fixed for that purpose by the 13th article of the treaty of Utrecht, that is to fay, a Loco Cap Bonav sta nuncupato, usque ad extremitatem ejusdem Insulæ septentrionalem, indeque ad Latus occidentale recurrendo usque ad Lacum Pointriche appellatum.

4. ' That

interior set of the company

4. ' That in virtue of the ceffion of the faid island as aforefaid, an English commiffary shall be allowed to refide there, and the commander of the Bri-' tifh fquadron at Newfoundland shall be at liberty from time to time to infpect • the faid ifle and the faid port, to fee that the ftipulations above expressed are · punctually observed.

V.

· The propolition of an alternative fuggefted by the Court of France, in rela-· tion to the illes of Tobago, St. Lucia, Dominica, and St. Vincent, common-· ly called Neutral islands, is by no means admissible. The King however, · from a principle of moderation, continues his inclination to agree to an equal · partition of the faid four islands, to be afcertained in the future treaty between · the two Crowns.

VI.

· The King confents to reftore to his Most Christian Majefty,

1. . The important conqueft of Belle-Ifle, with the artillery, &c. which was * therein at the time of taking the faid Island.

2. ' His Majefty likewife agrees to reftore to the Moft Christian King the fer-• tile and wealthy Island of Guadaloupe, with that of Marigalante, with the " artillery, &c. which was therein at the time of taking the faid Islands.

VII.

. The Island of Minorca shall be restored to his Britannic Majesty, as likewise · Fort St. Philip, in the condition it flood, and with the artillery therein, &c. at * the time of taking the faid Ifland and Fort.

VIII.

· As to what regards the reflitution and evacuation of the Conquests made by · France over the King's Allies in Germany, and particularly of Wefel and the other territories of the King of Prussia, his Majesty persists in his demand re-· lative to that subject in the 7th Article of the Ulimatum of England; it being e always underftood, that all the places belonging to his Majefty's Allies in Ger-" many shall be restored, with the artillery, &c. found in them at the time of · taking the faid places.

IX.

· With regard to the fuccour to be afforded to the King of Pruffia on the part · of the British Crown, as an Auxiliary, after the conclusion of the separate · Peace between Great Britain and France, his Majesty remains in the fame in-· flexible refolution, which he declared at the first overture of the prefent Nego-· tiation, that he will never defift from giving conftant fuccour to the King of · Pruffia, as an Auxiliary, with Efficacy and good Faith, in order to attain the fa-· lutary end of a general Pacification in Germany. With this view, his Majefty, · far from proposing to leave France at liberty to fend armies into Silesia, with-• out being limited to the number stipulated in her actual engagements with the Court · of Vienna, (a circumstance not to be found in any part of the Ultimatum of Eng-· land) has uniformly declared, as the 13th Article of the faid Ultimatum pro-· feffes, that Great Britain and France shall be at liberty to support their respective Allies as Auxiliaries, in their particular contest for the recovery of Silesia, according to the engagements entered into by each Crown.

The King declares at the fame time, that his Majefty has neither the intention nor the authority to take upon him to inhibit and forbid any foreign troops from entering into the fervice and pay of the King of Prufila, however his Majefty might be inclined to confent not to furnish, but by means of fubfidy, those fupplies which Great Britain shall judge convenient to grant his Prufilan Majefty, in purfuance of her engagements.

X.

With regard to the Captures made after the commencement of hoftilities, and before the Declaration of War, the King continues of opinion, that fuch a demand on the part of France is neither juft nor maintainable, according to the moft inconteflible principles of the rights of War and of Nations.

XI.

• Concerning the evacuations of Oftend and Nieuport, the King cannot but • refer to the moft express and irrevocable stipulation of the most folemn Trea-• ties, and expressed in the 11th Article of the Ultimatum of Great Britain, as also • to his Declaration relative to that subject: and his Majesty relies on the since-• rity of the Declaration on the part of France; that is to fay, that the intention • of his Most Christian Majesty never was to keep possession of the aforesaid places af-• ter the return of Peace.

XII.

<sup>6</sup> In regard to the ceffation of hostilities, the King perfists, in every respect, in <sup>5</sup> the fame intentions, declared in the 12th Article of the British Ultimatum.

XIII.

• As to what concerns the French East-India Company, he can only refer to • the 9th Article of the Ultimatum of England, with regard to which no difagree-• ment feems to fublift.

XIV.

* As to the prifoners of war, the two Courts feem to agree perfectly on that * head.

• The Court of France cannot but perceive from this Anfwer, the fincerity of • his Majefty's intentions, as well as the moderation which directs his Majefty to-• wards the means of reconciliation with the Moft Christian King.

' Signed N. Stanley.'

The D. de Choifeul had feveral conferences with the English Minister on the fubject of this Answer; but M. Stanley, in those conferences, as well as thro' the whole course of the Negotiation, did not appear to be authorized by his Court to come to any agreement with respect to the difficulties which occurred, nor even to elucidate those obscurities which occurred in the English Answers, and particularly in the 9th Article of the last Answer from the Court of London. As this

this Minister was confined to the letter of the Answer given by his Court, this circumftance abfolutely put a ftop to all eclairciffement on these points, and took away every expedient for removing the obstacles of the Negotiation. It was judged proper in France, in order to obviate these difficulties, to send a new Memorial to England, as a final answer to the Court of London. This Memorial was fent to M. Buffy the 9th of September.

No. XXIX.

The last Memorial of France to England, 9th September, 1761.

The Memorial of France to the Answer of England, transmitted to the D. de Choifeul the first of September, by M. Stanley the Minister of his Britannic Majesty.

HE King accepts the Declaration of the King of England contained in the preamble of the Anfwer, and renews that which he before made to " his Majesty on this head, in fuch manner that it is concluded between the two · Courts finally and without ambiguity, that if peace is not the refult of the prefent Negotiation, all that has been faid, written and negotiated between the two · Crowns, fince the Memorial of the 26th of March inclusive, to the moment · of the rupture, shall be void and of no effect, and shall not be brought as an e argument in favour of either of the parties, in any future negotiation of Peace.

Article I.

. The King has declared in his first Memorial, and in his Ultimatum, That • he will cede and guaranty to England, the possession of Canada, in the most · ample manner; his Majefty perfifts in that offer, and without difcuffing the · Line of its Limits marked in a map prefented by Mr. Stanley; as that line, on " which England refts its demand, is without doubt the most extensive bound " which can be given to the ceffion, the King is willing to grant it.

. His Majesty had annexed four conditions to his guarranty: it seems that · England agrees to them; the King only conceives that the term of one year · for the fale of the French effects and for the Emigration is too fhort, and his · Majefty defires that it may be agreed to extend the term of one year to eighteen ' months at leaft. · As the Court of England has added, to the first article of their Answer to * the entire and total Ceffion of Canada, as agreed between the two Courts, the " word Dependencies, it is neceffary to give a specific explanation of this word, * that the ceffion might not in the end occasion difficulties between the two Courts * with regard to the meaning of the word Dependencies.

* The first paragraph, with respect to the limits of Louisiana, contained in the * fecond article of the Anfwer from England, is agreed to by France. The fe• cond paragraph is neither just nor explicit, and it is finally proposed to express • it in the following terms.

• The intermediate Savage Nations between the Lakes and the Miffifippi, and with-• in the Line traced out, Shall be neuter and independent under the protection of the • King, and those without the Line on the side of the English shall be likewise neuter • and independant under the protection of the King of England. The English traders • also shall be prohibited from going among the Savage Nations beyond the Line on • either side; but the said nations shall not be restrained in their freedom of commerce • with the French and English, as they have exercised it heretofore.

III.

<sup>6</sup> Although France is fenfible how oppofite it is to principles of conciliation, <sup>6</sup> that the party which cedes fhould propofe to the party who has conquered and <sup>6</sup> would maintain the ceffion of poffeffions which are not perfectly known; though <sup>6</sup> there is no doubt but that the manner which England requires is liable to in-<sup>6</sup> numerable difficulties, neverthelefs the King, to teftify his acquiefcence in every <sup>6</sup> expedient which may conciliate the two Crowns, is willing to declare to Eng-<sup>6</sup> land, that he will guaranty the poffeffion of Senegal and Goree to that Crown, <sup>6</sup> provided England, on her part, will guaranty the poffeffion of the fettlements <sup>6</sup> of Anamaboo and Akra, on the coaft of Africa.

IV.

<sup>6</sup> The fourth article of the Answer includes variety of objects, each of which <sup>5</sup> requires a particular explanation.

England always endeavours to connect the liberty of fifting and of drying the fifth on part of the coaft of Newfoundland, granted by the fifteenth article of the Treaty of Utrecht, with the ninth article of the fame Treaty, which flipulates the Demolition of Dunkirk : it is given in anfwer to England for the fourth and laft time, that those two flipulations of the Treaty of Utrecht have nothing in common between them, unless that they are both comprized in the faid Treaty ; and that the concession expressed in favour of the French in the thirteeth article of that Treaty, is a compensation for the cession of Newfoundland and Annapolis Royal, made on the part of France to England by the twelfth and thirteenth articles of the fame Treaty.

<sup>6</sup> But to the end that the two Courts may clearly underftand each other on this <sup>6</sup> head, and for the furtherance of Peace, the King agrees to demolifh the works <sup>6</sup> which have been made for the defence of the port of Dunkirk fince the Begin-<sup>5</sup> ning of this war, to fill up the bafon which contains the fhips of war, and to <sup>6</sup> deftroy the buildings belonging to the rope yard : but at the fame time his <sup>6</sup> Majefty will leave the trading port, which will not receive a frigate, fubfifting <sup>6</sup> for the good of England as well as for the benefit of France. She will alfo un-<sup>6</sup> dertake not to fuffer any maritime military eftablifhment in that port; but the <sup>6</sup> cunette fhall be left ftanding round the place for the falubrity of the air, and <sup>8</sup> the health of the inhabitants. • As to the fifhery and the drying of fifh on the Banks of Newfoundland, the • King requires that the thirteenth article of the Treaty of Utrecht be confirmed • by the prefent Treaty.

Concerning the condition proposed by England, with respect to the liberty of fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, France agrees, that beyond the port of Newfoundland specified by the thirteenth article of the Treaty of Utrecht, the French (unlefs in case of accidents) cannot land on the coasts appertaining to the English in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, whether to dry their fish, or to spread their nets on the faid coasts; but without these two exceptions the French shall be at liberty to fish, without molestation, in all parts of the faid Gulf of St. Lawrence.

• With respect to the ceffion of the island of St. Pierre, the smallness of that • island, and its fituation near Plaifance, make the King of opinion that such a • shelter will be illufory, and will rather ferve to breed conterns between the two • nations, than to procure the accommodations for the fishery of the French sub-• jects.

<sup>6</sup> The King had required the island of Cape Breton, or the island of St. John; his Majefty had even reftrained himfelf to the little island of Conceau, and now makes the fame proposition to his Britannic Majefty; or if the King of England, for reasons unknown to France, cannot agree to the ceffion of the isle of Conceau, it is proposed to add to the ceffion of St. Pierre, the islands of Maquelon or Michelon, two islands, of which one, which is St. Pierre, is but three leagues wide, and Michelon but two. However inconfiderable these two fettlements may be, which do not properly make one, the King will accept of them, and will even oblige himfelf, t. That neither in one or the other island, or in that of Conceau, if England cedes the latter, there shall be any military eftablishment; France will only maintain a guard of fifty men to enforce the police, which it will be neceffary to maintain in those islands.

XIV.

• This Article will meet with no difficulty.

• The Court of England will do justice to the confiderable Accommodations • which the Court of France has teffified in this Memorial, towards a reconci-• liation between the two Crowns.

It may he collected from this Memorial that the first Article of the English Answer was granted in the full extent which the Court of London required; France only defired eighteen months, instead of a year, for the emigration.

By granting the first part of the fecond Article, which cedes the whole current of the Ohio to England, France proposed in regard to the second point of that Article, to agree upon the nations which should be reputed neutral between Canada, Carolina, and Louisiana: This proposition was the more reafonable, because that by agreeing on this division of the possession of the two nations, an equitable system was adopted, discussions about the limits were prevented for the future, and France did not incur the risk of losing the colony of Louisiana, whenever it pleased the Court of London to invade it.

England, in her answer, persisted in requiring France to name the possessions which the king defired to have on the coast of Africa. The third Article fatis-fied that demand.

The King, in the fourth Article, agreed to the Demolition of Dunkirk, as far as it was poffible; for it will not be practicable, as after the peace of Utrecht, to erect afrefh a dam against the fea, which would inevitably carry it away prefently. As to what remained, it was offered to demolish every thing at Dunkirk which had the appearance of a military port. Every one must be fensible how mortifying fuch a demolition must have been to France.

They agreed that the liberty of fifting in the Gulf of St. Laurence, and upon the banks and coafts of Newfoundland, fhould be the compensation for the Demolition of Dunkirk. They accepted the ceffion of the Isle of St. Pierre, on Conditions more than burthensome: the union of Michelon to St. Pierre was of the least confequence, and the D. de Choiseul even affured Mr. Stapley that such a ceffion would not be infifted on.

It is true the King rejected the infpection of the English Admiral, and that his Majefty was refolved rather to refuse the Possefition of St. Pierre, than to agree to fuch an infpection, which was useless for the maintaining the flipulations of the Treaty, and injurious to the dignity of the French nation, as that condition feemed to be proposed only with a view to manifest, on the part of England, an ill-timed fuperiority.

The other Articles of the French Memorial explain of themfelves, with fufficient precifion, the fincere and pacific intentions of his Majefty.

The eighth and ninth Articles of the Answer of England, could not be agreed to in the form they flood; they required at leaft, especially the last, fome explanation: For how could the King cause Germany to be evacuated by his forces,

forces, and at the fame time fulfil his engagement with the powers of the Empire his Allies? There was a manifest contradiction in this proposition. One might fuppose that England intended, by the ninth Article, that France, after having evacuated Westphalia, should be at liberty to dispatch forces into Bohemia or Saxony to the aid of the Empress Queen. But not to mention that such a march would have been as difficult as destructive to the King's army, is it probable that his Majesty, however closely he may be connected with that Princess, should abandon his possible from his frontiers, without any communication, fend his troops to the aid of this Ally, and make war upon the King of Prussia, who is not his direct enemy !

Such neverthelefs was the proposition of England. The King, in his Memorial, repeated what he had faid before, that the two Crowns should equally remain at peace in Germany, as in the other parts of the world, or that England should propose fome plain and honourable method to conciliate his Majesty's good faith towards his Allies, with his Majesty's defire of contributing no farther to the war in Germany.

M. de Buffy remitted the Memorial of the 9th of September to Mr. Pitt, on the 13th of the fame month, and without having received any answer to that Memorial on the part of the British Court, Mr. Stanley wrote to the D. de Choifeul the following Letter, and received the Answer underneath on the fame day.

Mr. Stanley's Letter to the Duke de Choiseul, of the 20th September, 1761.

SIR,

• I Have the honour to inform your Excellency, purfuant to the orders I received yesterday from my Court, that as the Court of France has not agreed to accept the Propositions contained in the last Answer from the British Court, the King my Master has ordered me to request a passport of you, to return to England; my Court expects also, that M. Bussy will, on his part, receive the fame orders.

As the ftate of war has no influence over the perfonal fentiments of the King of England, with regard to their Moft Chriftian Majefties, he is perfuaded that they will take part in the event of his marriage, and I have letters in my hands by which he communicates that happy event to their Majefties. I have the honour to fend your Excellency the copies, and I take the liberty, Sir, to confult your better intelligence, to inform myfelf of the moft fuitable manner of remitting these Letters, in purfuance of my Credentials, and according to the established custom of your Court.

• I have the honour to be, &c. • Signed Stanley.

The Duke de Choifeul's Answer to Mr. Stanley, the 20th September, 1761.

SIR,
THE King has ordered me, Sir, to expedite the paffports which are neceffary for your return to England : you will find them annexed. M. Buffy had orders to demand an Eclairciffment with respect to the last Answer from England, and to return to France if those Eclairciffements were not favourable.
They have certainly been otherwise, fince your Court has anticipated his return by your recall. However it be, Sir, his Majesty hopes that fome more happy opportunity will produce more effectual inclinations to peace, and he has charged me to observe to you, that you may affure the King of England, that he will always find him disposed to renew the Negotiation, and to confent to equitable conditions, which may establish a firm union between the two Crowns.

• The King most fincerely takes part in the marriage of the King of Eng-• land; if you will fend me the Letters from his British Majesty, I will remit • them to their Majesties.

I have the honour to be, &c.
Signed Le Duc de Choifeul.*

At the fame time M. de Buffy underftood at London, that a Courier had been difpatched to recal Mr. Stanley, he explained himfelf on that occasion; and after the British Ministry had confirmed the fact, he defired, agreeable to the orders he had received, the necessary Passports to return to France.

Thus the Negotiation between the two Crowns has been broken off. They who talk fo readily, and upon all occafions, that We must make Peace, do not confider, that however well difpofed a Sovereign may be for the re-eftablifhment of tranquillity, his defire cannot be effectual, but when it is equally fincere on the part of the other Belligerant Powers; and it will be admitted, on reading this Memorial, that the King has omitted nothing to come to an Accommodation; no one can fay, that his Majefty's Allies have occafioned the rupture of the Negotiation. It has been proved, that the war which the King maintains in Weftphalia, is a war purely Englifh, that it brings no advantage either to the Empreffes, or to Sweden, or to Saxony; befides, the Proposition made by France, not to afford any fuccours, either direct or indirect, to her Allies in Germany, evidently demonstrates that the war in Weftphalia neither has been, or could be, an impediment to the Peace.

England and fome other courts would pretend that the engagements of the King with his Catholic Majefty, and the proposition made by France to conciliate the differences of Spain with England at the fame time with those which were the principal object of the Negotiation, had fo difgusted the court of London, that for that reason only she refused the terms for the conclusion of peace. It is true, as has been shewn already, that the British Minister haughtily rejected the expedient which his Majefty's prudent precaution induced him to fuggeft to England, with a view to conclude a firm peace, and to entirely obviate all obftacles which might oppofe the continuance of that tranquillity which his Majefty laboured to re-eftablift; it is true likewife, that fince the firft Memorial of France, there was no farther notice of the differences of Spain in the propofition made by the Court of Verfailles to that of London: his Catholic Majefty has even declared to the King, that if the objects which concerned the Spanifh Monarchy fhould embarrats the negotiation and retard the peace, he agreed that those points fhould be no farther negotiated on the part of his Majefty. In fact, to repeat it once more, fince the firft Memorial of France, there has been no more mention of Spain. It cannot be imagined therefore, that the interefts of his Majefty's Allies have proved an obftacle to the pacification. It remains therefore to examine whether the Negotiation has been broken off with respect to the articles which are the fubjects of the particular discussion between the two Crowns.

It is neceffary to recollect here, agreeable to the reprefentation in the opening of the Memorial, what were the poffeffions acquired fince the commencement of the war between the two Crowns, to the time when the Negotiation was entered upon, on the bafis of the Uti poffidetis.

England had conquered from France in North America, Canada, and the ifles Royal and St. John, fituate in the Gulf of St. Laurence : in South America, the ifles of Guadaloupe and Marigalante : in Africa, Senegal, and the ifland of Goree : in Afia, Pondicherry and the French fettlements on the coaft of Coromandel.

In Europe, the island of Belle-isle, attacked fince the opening of the Negotiation, and subsequent to the epochs of Statu Quo, proposed by the Court of France.

The Uti pollidetis of France comprized in Afia, the English fettlements on the coast of Sumatra, and other advantages on the fide of the Mogul, of which they had yet received but imperfect accounts. In Europe, the island of Minorca, the Landgraviate of Hesse, the country of Hanau, and the town of Gottingen in the Electorate of Hanover. Lastly, France had re-established, or could have availed herself of the liberty which the infraction of the Treaty of Utrecht gave her, to re-establish the port of Dunkirk.

The King offered to guaranty Canada to the English in the utmost extent which the Court of London required.

His Majefty proposed that the right of fishing and of drying their fish on the Coast and on the Banks of Newfoundland should be confirmed to France, and on that condition she conferted to the Demolition of Dunkirk.

The King propoled to reftore the illand of Minorca to England, for the ceffion of Guadaloupe and Marigalante.

His Majefty agreed to evacuate Heffe, the County of Hanau, and Gottingen, provided that one of the two Settlements fhe had loft in Africa were reftored to her.

The Indian companies of the two nations were to treat concerning their particular pacification, agreeable to their reciprocal interefts. If the reduction of Belle-Isle should be acknowledged a legal conquest, though undertaken after the proposition of Uti possidetis, France agreed that the possififion of that important island should remain to England.

Who can pretend to fay, after the foregoing reprefentation, that France has not for puloufly purfued, in all her propositions, the principle of her Memorial of the 26th of March! Can any one, at the fame time, deny that the compenfations offered by the King, were not as advantageous for England as she could defire?

Therefore it evidently follows, that the Allies of France in Germany could have been no obftacle to the peace, fince they take no part in the war which is carried on in Weftphalia, nor are affifted by the King's forces in the war maintained in Saxony, Silefia, and Pomerania. Moreover, it was proposed to England, on the part of France, that the two Courts should absolutely withdraw themselves from the war.

It is equally demonstrable, that Spain cannot be alledged to have been an impediment to the pacification, as the King did not renew the Proposition he made to unite the accommodation of the differences of that Crown with the Treaty under Negotiation between the Courts of Verfailles and London, and his Catholic Majefty approved of their filence in this behalf.

It is certain, that the conditions and compensations offered by France, for the conclusion of a separate Peace with England, are all for the advantage of the latter Power; that the Court of London, had she been inclined to Peace, could not make claims beyond her Conquests; and that the Court plainly and clearly gave up every thing which was not compensated by some restitution on her part.

This detail neceffarily leads to the queffion, which the whole univerfe, that fuffers by the miferies of war, must neceffarily make: What then has been the motive of the rupture of fuch an important Negotiation? That motive has no other principle than the positive aversion of the Court of London to Peace: it has proved impossible to infuse a conciliating spirit into a Court resolved to perpetuate the War, and less influenced by the real interests of the kingdom and the deftruction of the human species, than inflated with the success the has had, and greedy of those advantages the has farther in view.

It is with regret that the King finds himfelf obliged to continue an oppofition by force to the progrefs of the ambitious defigns of his enemies, and under an impoflibility of procuring his people that repofe which his Majefty wilhed, for their welfare. The King trufts, that Providence will difappoint thofe vaft projects, which England fcarce endeavours to difguife, and which threaten the fecurity of every Potentate. His Majefty, invariable in his pacific difpofitions, will be always ready to concur in every expedient which may be judged proper to reeftablift the public tranquillity, and will make no difficulty of facrificing, even his own interefts, to the glory and confolation of reftoring Peace to his kingdom and to Europe.

By Order of the King,

Signed LE DUC DE CHOISEUL.
