

TRAVELS

عظظاهم كماحاحاحاجاجاجاجاجاجاجا

62320

THROUGH THE

INTERIOR PARTS

A M E R I C A;

OF

SERIES OF LETTERS.

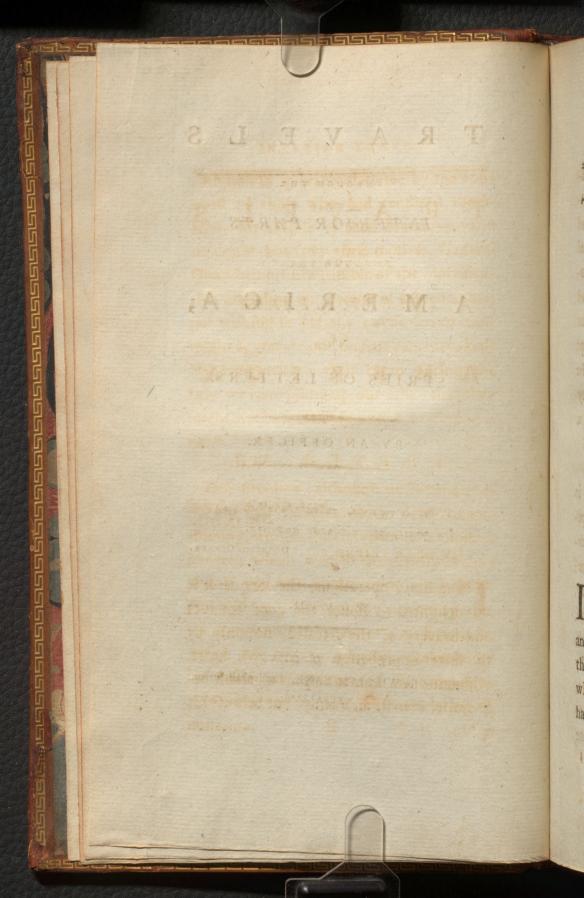

IN A

BY AN OFFICER,

Τί ἕν, ἀν τις είποι, ταῦτα λέγ:ις ἡμῶν νως Ινα γνῶτε, καὶ αἶσΞησΞε αμφότερα. Demosth. Olynth.

VOL. II.

L O N D O N: Printed for WILLIAM LANE, Leadenhall-Street.

بحاطين كعلجاه ومواه والمرحا والمراكان

INTERIOR TRAVES

natiered by the con-

LETTER XLII.

Cambridge, in New England, 1960 - 1960 - 10 Cambridge, in New England, Nov. 17, 1777.

MY DEAR FRIEND, 200 notide , asvuer

IN military operations, the conqueror is delighted to honor the good conduct and bravery of the defeated, not only by the fecret approbation of his own heart, which induces him to refpect a gallant behaviour, even in an enemy, but becaufe his Vol. II. B ambition ambition is agreeably flattered by the conqueft of those who had rendered themfelves formidable by their bravery—and no doubt but from these motives, General Gates being fully sensible of the mortification attending our reverse of fortune, and not wishing to add any circumstance that might aggravate our present calamity, kept his army within their camp during the time we were piling up our arms, that they might not be spectators of so humiliating a fcene.

2

E T T E R WILL DIed

Our fituation, although unfortunate, is not the first instance of an army's capitulating, witness the convention at Closterhauven, which was so shamefully broke; and if you look farther back into history, you will find, that exactly a century ago, the army under the Duke of Saxe Eysenack, which had been considerably weakened by the loss and fatigues of the campaign, was under the necessity of furrendering to the

3

to

the Marshal de Crequi, who granted a passport, conceived in very humble terms to the Duke of Saxe Eysenack, allowing him permission to pass with his army by a particular route, and all the officers, troopers, and common foldiers of the French army, were expressly forbid to offer the least injury or infult, either to the Duke or his army, in their return to Germany. In this latter point General Gates imitated the Marshal, for after we had piled up our arms and our march was settled, as we passed the American army, throughout the whole of them I did not observe the least difrespect, or even a taunting look, but all was mute astonishment and pityand it gave us no little pleasure to find that the antipathy so long shewn us was configned to oblivion, elevated to that treatment which the authorized maxims and practices of war enjoin, civil deportment

conem--and heral ficaand that kept they ng a te, is capiafteroke; ago, ago, ago, ago, ago, to y ago, to the 4

to a captured enemy, unfullied with the exulting air of victors.

For want of the advantages of an immediate, exact, and regular communication with the fouthern army, ill fuccefs has been the confequence. The fad event of our expedition evinces the neceffity of confiding the plan of war to a General, who might improve every conjuncture by changing difcretionally the route and fpecies of the war. If our Commander's orders had been general, and not fuch abfolute ones as could not be varied from, (of which he made us acquainted on the morning of our furrender) he would not have been under the neceffity of engaging the King's army in any hazardous attempt, as he might have recroffed the Hudfon's, and changed the war to the defensive.

People are very apt to draw conclusions from what they think ought to be, and form

sterred the provision of an and to citat branch

יקרוביי השומשמשמשמשמשמשמים יישומי

1 the

mmecation s been f our fiding might inging of the d been could ide us urrenhe nein any ve ree war

ufions , and form form fystems which circumstances must alter. No doubt but it will be generally thought in England, as we had reduced Ticonderoga, and had only twenty-five miles to Albany, the place of our intended defination, it was easy to accomplish it, without confidering the delays and impediments we have met with. This hasty kind of doctrine you must often have been witness to, from the spirited hopes and expectation of our national feelings. Our melancholy cataftrophe will be a caution to others in power, in their directions to a General; this expedition appears to have been planned by thofe, who, fitting in their clofets, with a map before them, ridiculoufly expect the movements of an army to keep pace with their rapid ideas, not only directing general operations, but particular movements of a campaign, carried on through a country in interior defarts, and at a diffance of three B 3 thoufand thousand miles, without allowing the General who is to conduct that army, to be invested with powers for changing the mode of war, as circumstances may occur.

It was univerfally underftood throughout the army, that the object of our expedition was to effect a junction with that under General Howe, and by fuch means become mafters of the Hudfon's river, dividing the northern from the fouthern provinces. You can easily conceive the aftonifhment it occafioned, when we were informed that General Howe's army had gone to Philadelphia, and it was the more increased, as we could not form to ourfelves any idea how fuch a step would facilitate, or effect a junction.

It is natural to fuppofe, when two armies are to meet, that the northern one would advance to the fouthward, and the fouthern to the northward; or if they are

to

7

وجرواح والمروا والمتعا والمتعالم والمراح المراح المراحات

the Gey, to be he mode r.

hrough. our exith that h means 's river, outhern ive the ve were my had he more urfelves cilitate,

n two rn one nd the ey are to to meet any where about the center between each, that they would fet out in those directions, much about the fame time. But it flould feem that those who have the direction at home of the armies upon this Continent, defpifing fuch fimple and natural means of effecting a junction, difpatch the army at New York further fouth, and fend the army from Canada in the fame direction, that if both continued their courfe till doomsday, it would be impossible to meet. I am too much afraid those at the head of affairs too implicitly credited every report, and are continually led away by the falle information of men who are interested in the deception, and are profiting by the common calamities of England and America. Andorso to be out

The courage, refolution and patience of the army in enduring the hardfhips of the campaign in general, but more particularly the conclusion of it, must fully refute an B 4 invidious

8

invidious charge of foreigners in general, particularly the French, that the English are unfit for the hardships of war, and though brave and intrepid in the field, are not capable of enduring fatigue, without the conveniencies of life.

Throughout the whole campaign, the men had not a morfel of bread, but mixed up their flour into cakes, and baked them upon a stone before a fire; very feldom fpirits to cheer them after fatiguing days, in clearing away the woods for encampments, repairing roads, and constructing bridges; feldom fresh provisions; scanty and miferable as the allowance to a foldier is, it was reduced to half its quantity on the 3d of October. After the action of the 19th of September, the men continually flept with their accoutrements on, and after the action on the 7th, never had a tent to fhelter them from the heavy and almost inceffant rains that fell from that time till

5년(~,,)파티머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머(음아마나)

the

9

الأكاعد ككالالكاكاكالكالمالم المالم المحاصات المالية

the convention, without the refreshment of fpirits during this period; and after our arrival at Saratoga, debarred of that very effential to the health and convenience of troops, water, although close to a fine rivulet, it being at the hazard of life, in the day time, to get any, from the number of riflemen the enemy had posted in trees, and at night the men were prevented, as they were fure to be taken prifoners, if they attempted it. All the water that the army was fupplied with was from a very muddy fpring, and what they could get out of the holes the cattle made with their feet; by way of luxury, and to render their provisions more palateable, when it rained hard, the men used to catch it in their caps, to mix with their flour.

Officers in general fared the fame as the foldiers, most of them young campaigners, and not fo provident of their liquors, relying upon a fresh supply that was following the

eral, glifh and , are hout the nixed them ldom lays, ampeting canty dier y on fthe ually after it to molt e till the

the army. This was the only time in life I found money of little ufe: how deceived we are in our opinion, that it conflitutes all our happines?—I was not the only one who, when drenching wet and shivering with cold, would have given a guinea for a glass of any spirit.

One day I thought fortune had pointed me out as one of her favorites, for my fervant came and informed me he had met with a woman who had half a pint of New England rum to difpofe of, but fhe would not part with it under a guinea. I hastened him back for it, left any one fhould offer the woman more, which I was fenfible would be the cafe, if known. I would myfelf have given treble for half the quantity, being apprehensive of an ague, from being continually in wet cloaths, and exposed day and night to all weathers. You will not accuse me of a churlish difpolition, but when I obtained the rum, 21122 neceffity.

TT

neceffity, contrary to inclination, rendered me extremely fo.

Upon our arrival at Saratoga, three companies of our regiment, one of which was that I belong to, were posted in a fmall redoubt, close to the creek; our fituation was by no means capable of making any great defence, but merely to observe if the enemy paffed the creek in any force : had they attempted it, we were to have kept up a firing during their croffing, then to have abandoned our flation, and joined the main body of the army. This post was a fmall fquare redoubt, conftructed with logs breaft high, and the only shelter afforded to the troops was from those angles which faced the enemy, as the others were fo exposed, that we had feveral men killed and wounded in the redoubt by the riflemen, who were posted in trees; we could difcern them every morning at day-break, taking their fituations upon the most lofty trees life ived utes one ring for a nted met

t of

the inea, one was I the gue, and hers. dif-

um,

lity,

trees they met with, by which means they commanded fome of the interior parts of the redoubt. Our fituation was fuch, that a man rifqued his life if he ventured in the day time to look over the works; and to convince you how fure these men are of hitting their mark, the foldiers, out of derifion, would hoift up a cap upon a flick over the works, when inftantly there would be one or two fhot fired at it, and as many holes through it. I have feen a cap that has been perforated with three balls. . We certainly could have diflodged fuch troublefome neighbours, or prevented their afcending the trees, but we had orders not to fire, as it might bring on a fkirmishing attack, whilit the enemy were meditating another of greater importance.

The men were fo harrafied and fatigued with continually fitting and lying on the ground, all huddled in a fmall compafs, that three days before the convention took place, ans they parts of ich, that ed in the ; and to n are of at of dea frick re would as many cap that ls. We troubleafcendt to fire. attack, another on the ompafs, on took place, place, they complained to the Captain who commanded, that they were not permitted to fire upon the enemy, whereby they could obtain more eafe, and therefore ought to be relieved, and they received for answer, when night came on it should be mentioned to the General. The Captain defired me to go to head-quarters, and when I arrived there, I found they partook of the hardships in common, for the three Generals had juft laid down on their mattraffes, having only an oil-fkin to cover them from the weather; the Aid-de-Camps were fitting round a fire. I went up to your old acquaintance, Noble, of the 47th regiment, as being known to him, and related the purport of my bufinefs, which he immediately communicated to General Phillips. While he was fpeaking, I am fure I shall never forget the eagerness and anxiety depicted in General Burgoyne's countenance, when he ftarted from his flumber, haftily enquiring what was the matter. General Phillips informed him him it was a triffing business about relieving a post, when he lay down again to refresh his wearied fpirits, appearing almost exhausted by a continual state of agitation. After receiving an answer that the post fhould be relieved, I returned to the redoubt. The men anxioufly expected it, but were greatly difappointed by the appearance of day-break, as knowing no relief could arrive then, and that they had another day's vexation to encounter from thefe rifle-men. It was with the greatest difficulty the officers could prevent the men from firing at them, and this only with a promife that they fhould have permiffion, if they were not relieved at night. Perhaps you will fay, the foldiers had reafon for complaint, for many of them, by being kept in fuch a confined fituation, were fo cramped, that they could fcarcely walkbut we were relieved at last.

13

Laurichini equi d'il ismessi interitent During relieving o refresh lmost exagitation. the post the repected it. y the apig no rethey had ter from greateft the men ly with a rmiffion, t. Perd reason by being were fo valk-

IS

During

During the time I was posted in this redoubt, Lieutenant Smith, of the artillery, came one evening to fee me, and upon my relating our diffrefs as to liquors, defired me to fend my fervant to him the next night, and he would fend me a cafe bottle of rum. I now thought fortune was heaping favors on me, but to shew you what a fickle creature she is, when I fent my fervant the next evening, instead of returning with the comfort I was promifing myfelf from fuch an acquifition, he brought me a meffage, that Mr. Smith was extremely forry he could not fulfil his promife, as a cannon shot had, in the course of the day, gone through his canteen, and demolished every thing in it.

The day before the convention took place, I was compelled to acquiefce in an action that diftreffed my feelings much, in making away with the little colt that my mare had dropped, as my fervant told me it

it would weaken my mare, that, to use the fellow's words, if ever we march from this encampment, fhe will not be able to convey your baggage; at the fame time adding, from the time we had arrived there the had had nothing to eat, but the dried leaves he could gather up for her; this was the fituation of the horfes throughout the army. Some fervants let their horfes stray about in the deep ravine, where they were flationed to shelter them from the cannon shot, and fo fure, as a poor horfe was allured by the temptation of fome refreshing grafs, that grew in the meadows in great abundance, it met with instant death from a rifle fhot. On the plain where we piled up our arms, there were numbers of dead horfes, from the stench of which, and from the performance of fo humiliating an act, you will eafily imagine our haste in quitting such a fpot. I remain, var he milib todt noifes

makin. 3% "zuoY the little colt that my

LET-

VELS

nat, to use the arch from this able to conne time adding, there she had dried leaves he s was the fit. out the army, es stray about were station. cannon that vas allured by reshing grass, great abunth from a rife piled up our dead horfes, ind from the an act, you uitting fuch , &c.

LET.

THROUGH AMERICA.

عذاداء كعرولولولولولولولولولولوا

LETTER XLIII.

to theink from indertaking what only up.

ne mult not be confiliend to the !

Cambridge, in New England, Nov. 19, 1777-

17

ولأمهافوهوهوهو والالكولوا والملوا والملوا والموامو والموامع والموامع

MY DEAR FRIEND,

OUR expedition, for you muft pardon my dwelling on a fubject fo near my heart, was certainly undertaken with every profpect of fuccefs, not only from the goodnefs of the troops, but the excellence of the Generals. The many difficulties, though in fome measure forefeen, were not expected to be fuch as they have too fatally proved themfelves; we had hitherto confidered them only what perfeverance would overcome. Our progrefs amidft complicated impediments and innumerable Vol. II. C diftreffes, distrefies, was really wonderful, and the failure must not be confidered fo furprizing as the perfeverance and spirit with which we struggled against it.

People who judge impartially, will make a diffinction between mifconduct and misfortune. It is true the intent of our expedition has failed—General Burgoyne was too deeply interefted in the national honor, to fhrink from undertaking what only appeared hazardous—who can blame him, for not executing with an army that always acted like Britons, what was impoffible.

Throughout the whole campaign, the General has not only been the Commander of the army, but fully demonstrated he was equally as good a foldier; amidst all the hardships and difficulties we had to encounter, the attachment of all ranks to him was unshaken, and during the inceffant labors, disappointments and diffress we

fuccels, not only from the 19

والجاجا فالمراج والمراج والمراج والمراجا والمراجات

il, and the ed fo furfpirit with

LS

, will make et and misof our errgoyne was onal honor, at only apme him, for that always prooffible.

paign, the Commander aftrated he amidft all we had to all ranks to the incef. d diffrefles we

main

we experienced, there was not the leaft murmur or difcontent throughout the army; nay, fo ftrongly attached were they to his perfon, that when they found patience and courage had been exerted in vain, and all hopes of fuccefs at an end, they were ready to follow him to the field, and to die with their arms in their hands. No one could exhibit ftronger proofs of magnanimity, nor take bolder or more decifive meafures against the enemy, when humiliating terms were proposed. It should feem that he was determined, if fate had -decreed the fall and total overthrow of his little army, to perifh nobly, and to leave his name unfullied to future ages. frength of the country, were for the molt anoitiloquib vibraini a I am yours, &cc,

B 2

of the inhabitants, who cheerfully exerted

thereferres to facilitate the movements of the King's army, at the fane time toppiy.

ing them with every requires accommoda-

fien , and from confident, when I silver,

LET-

20

LETTER XLIV.

at the other of any institute to be and the to the

Cambridge, in New England, Nov. 20, 1777.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

GENERAL BURGOYNE had not the advantages of profecuting war in this part of America, attendant on Lord Amherft and General Braddock, for in the laft the difficulties arifing from the natural ftrength of the country, were for the moft part removed by the friendly difpolitions of the inhabitants, who chearfully exerted themfelves to facilitate the movements of the King's army, at the fame time fupplying them with every requifite accommodation; and I am confident, when I affert, that

21

الحاصد كجاحاحاحاحاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجا

that had not the Generals in the last war been furnished with these resources, neither of them would have made the rapid progress that was accomplished.

The progress of our army was on the frontiers of the New England provinces, whose people are universally disloyal, and furnish such immense bodies of militia, it is really surprizing that we advanced so far, without any co-operation with the southern army, وللألك فلألها والوالوال والمتعام لماما والمتعاول والمتها والمتعافي والمتها والمتعالم والم

If General Howe had his reafons for not proceeding up the north river, and wifhed to firike terror into fome of the provinces, I think there were none he could fo well have directed that terror againft, as those of New England; for by a diversion on the coast of Maffachufett's, many benefits would have refulted: it would have kept the New Englanders at home for the internal defence of their own provinces, and C_3 impeded

KLIV.

LS

in New Englai, v. 20, 1777.

had not the war in this Lord Amor in the laft the natural or the most difpositions illy exerted vements of me fupplyccommodaen I affert, that impeded the levies for the continental army. Such a diversion would have been a co-operation with our army, and no doubt have prevented the misfortunes that have befallen it, the principal part of the army under General Gates being composed of the militia of the New England provinces, who must have been drawn down to the defence of the cities upon that coaft, in which cafe our army could not have failed to overcome every poffible difficulty, and have effected a junction with the detachment that was fent up the North River, under the command of Sir Henry Clinton, from which detachment it certainly was obvious, that the object of the two armies were the fame, that of forming a junction.

Certainly then it behaved General Howe to fee to large and important a reinforcement as our army would have been to his, in a flate of perfect fecurity at least, before he carried his fo far to the fouthward, as

to refled that forror againft, as their 23

to deprive him of the power of fupport. That our army was to be confidered as no other than a reinforcement to General Howe's, is evident from the very orders given out by General Carleton, at the opening of the campaign, flating, " That " his Majesty had ordered him to detach " General Burgoyne with certain troops, " who was to proceed with all poffible ex-" pedition to join General Howe, and put " himfelf under his command;" at the fame time adding this powerful reafon, " with a view of quelling the rebellion it " is become highly neceffary, that the most " fpeedy junction of the two armies should " be effected." and more misse basi

ولألصوف فالالا والالا والالمال الماليا للماليا والمالا المالي والملك والمالوال

By the junction of the two armies, we fhould have been in poffession of the North River, from New-York to Albany, which divides the northern from the fouthern provinces. General Washington would in that cafe have been totally deprived of

tions with new hopes, it invi

C4

.s

ental army, a co-opeloubt have t have be. f the army omposed of provinces, own to the it coaft in have failed iculty, and he detachorth River. v Clinton, tainly was two armies innction.

eral Howe reinforceeen to his, aft, before hward, as to

of the great fupplies of men and provisions from the New England States; and the British army would have been enabled to make excursions into either provinces, as occasion might ferve: the main part of the army might have kept Washington at bay, while a few redoubts, with the affistance of our shipping, would have preferved the entire possession of the river.

General Howe's carrying his army far to the fouthward, confirmed an idea the northern Provinces have imbibed, that after the affair of Bunker's-hill, and the evacuation of Bofton, no Britons will ever land again upon their coaft; it infpired them with new hopes, it invigorated their fpirits, and greatly contributed to increafe the numbers of General Gates's army, which at the time of the convention amounted to 18,000. Every candid and liberal mind will allow our refolution during the treaty of the convention was magnanimous,

25

of

الألاف كهلا واواواواوا والمحاولات

nanimous, when it is confidered our army only confifted of 3,500 oppofed to fuch numbers.

It may be urged, that General Howe's going to the fouthward was to draw off Washington from our army. He was then at Quibble-town, 200 miles distant from us when we met the enemy at Stillwater, and General Howe's force was at New-York, which was 40 miles nearer, in fome measure fituated between our army and Washington's, therefore he could not move towards us without General Howe's knowledge, nor could Washington proceed to Albany by water for want of shipping and craft, or march by land in lefs than a fortnight, and that only by a road leading through a gap of a mountain. If General Washington had, by any forced and fecret marches, passed this gap, before General Howe had taken post in the Jerfeys to prevent it, he had an immense fleet S and protates; and en enabled provinces, iin part of hington at the affifte preferved

rmy far to idea the that after the evawill ever it infpired ated their o increase s's army, nvention adid and ion durvas magmimous, of men of war and transports, fully fufficient to, have carried his whole army to Albany in a week. It strikes me very forcibly, that General Howe's taking his army round Cape Charles, 350 miles more distant from Albany than he was at New York, could by no means contribute to effect a junction; and certainly it cannot be allowed that leading Washington from Quibble-town to Philadelphia, could poffibly be any diversion of the least importance in favour of our army.

If it had been the intention of General Wafhington to have co-operated with any army that was to oppofe ours, it does not appear to me how General Howe's going to the Chefapeak, which is 600 miles diftant, and leaving Wafhington, who was 200 nearer to us, could poffibly prevent it. The only apparent means, for no doubt it was the intention of General Howe to draw off General Wafhington's army, and to

الأكامد كجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجا

Illy fuffiarmy to very foraking his niles more as at New tribute to it cannot gton from could pofft import-of General l with any t does not we's going miles difwho was prevent it. o doubt it Howe to army, and to to prevent his acting against ours, would have been to have taken post between us; it would have been a check upon him, and that detachment that was fent up the North River would not have met with the many difficulties they encountered during their progrefs, at Montgomery and other forts. Even admitting General Washington's army to have been far fuperior as to numbers, there was nothing to apprehend ; it was composed of new-raifed and undifciplined troops, commanded by officers of little experience, mostly corps that had been defeated in every action, ftrangers to victory, and greatly difpirited-that of General Howe was perfectly disciplined, commanded by brave and experienced officers, the fpirits of the men exalted above the effects of fear by their numerous and recent fucceffes, for they had carried victory and conquest with them wherever they trod.

I will

27

المروط والموالي والمروا والمروا والمروا والمروا والموالي والمروا والمروا

I will give you the opinion of General Washington himself, as it was related to me by Major Browne, whom I have been acquainted with fince our arrival at this place, and who was at that time in the General's fuite.

General Washington dreaded nothing fo much as General Howe's army going up the North River : he was fenfible of the difficulties his own must encounter in foltowing it; he knew the eafe and celerity by which the British army would be transported by water; his own had to march over mountains, ravines, and ftrong defiles, and the provisions for his army would be all from the diftant fouthern colonies; he knew that it would throw a great damp upon the spirits of the New England Provinces, especially their militia, and in a great measure prevent their joining Gates's army, and infallibly have faved ours .----This opinion being firmly fixed in his mind,

بحاداهم فكالحاصولحاصوص والماصوص والماصا

f General related to have been al at this ne in the

S

othing fo going up le of the ter in fold celerity be tranfto march ng defiles, would be onies; he eat damp and Proand in a g Gates's ours.--d in his mind, mind, when he was informed that General Howe was gone to the Chefapeak, he gave as little credit to the intelligence as we did, when the news of it was brought into our camp before the furrender; he fully difbelieved it, and concluded that fuch a meafure was too abfurd to be possible, and acted agreeable to the opinion he had formed ; for when General Howe's fleet failed from the Hook fouthward, he conceived it to be only a feint, therefore moved his army from Quibble-town to the northward, that he might more conveniently follow the British army up the North River, expecting every day to hear of the General's returning, and failing his army to Albany: nor till he heard that the British fleet was at the Capes of the Delaware, did Wafhington march his army to the fouthward. When he received intelligence that the fleet had flood out again to fea, still fo perfuaded he was that General Howe would not act fo contrary to true policy, as to go up

20

ولألحاف فافتص وتعاما والمالم المالم المالم المالم المالم والمالم المالم المالم المالم المالم المالم المالم الم

up the Chefapeak to Philadelphia, but that his intentions ftill were to go to the northward, that he marched his army to his northern poft—not before he was perfectly certain that the British fleet was near the head of the Elk, did he quit that post, and march his army to the fouthward.— Thus, you fee, the conduct of General Washington entirely coincided with his declared and fixed fentiments.

That fome great error has been committed, either unintentional or defigned, must be evident to every one—where to fix it is impossible to fay.—But time, that great difcloser of all fecrets, will no doubt reveal this, and, I hope, redeem the national honor and the national welfare.

to be only a foint, therefore moved his

and their some illetin I. Yours, &c.

LET-

ing been taken up by the Americans, and the coffin farredy covered over with earth.

Upon seconder from out-confiernation,

the called to forme foldies, which as in the redoubt, heaped mare carth upon 31

יכובורי הצובובובובובובובובובובובובובובו

of of LEAT TER XLV.

MY DEAR FRIEND, 16 1 201111111

whit notes y line sits course a bound of they we had piled up our arms,

والمروا فالموامع والمروا و والمروا وال

A and our march fettled, we moved forward, and fpent the night on the fpot where we had formerly erected our hofpitals, of which place I fent you a drawing.

As ve cooffich the river at Still-Water,

The next morning I went with another officer to vifit General Frafer's grave: upon our arrival at the fpot, we were ftruck with a contemplative filence at the awful fcene that prefented itfelf, the corpfe having ia, but that the northmy to his as perfectly is near the that poft, ithward.-of General with his end of the been com-

S

defigned, here to fix that great abt reveal : national

&c.

LET-

ing been taken up by the Americans, and the coffin fcarcely covered over with earth. Upon recovering from our confternation, we called to fome foldiers, who, with a pick-axe and fhovel which happened to be in the redoubt, heaped more earth upon The Americans had been the coffin. guilty of great inhumanity in cannonading the corpfe when going for interment, but disturbing it after burial would have difgraced a favage; the only reafon they affigned was, that we had buried cannon, and not a corpfe-a very improbable fuppofition. I rather imagine, and it is the best excuse, that they thought it was our money-cheft. test 1 sonly ibidw to statig

As we croffed the river at Still-Water, we obferved the army under General Gates marching to Albany, to join Putnam; the object of this junction was to give General Clinton a check, who was moving up the North River; and, to our mortification, we

33

والراجع ويحاط والماما والمالح والمراجع والمالا والمالي والمالي والمراجع

we learn, that General Vaughan had advanced as far as Æfopus, which place is but a few miles from Albany.—This fully proves what I mentioned in my laft, that a junction of the fouthern army with ours was fully intended, and had any certain intelligence of General Vaughan's advancing fo far, arrived at our camp, we in all probability fhould not have furrendered.

Our army being fo furrounded by the enemy, no certain intelligence could reach the camp; the three confidential fpies whom the General had fent, after the action of the 19th of September, to New-York, had not returned; and fince the convention, we have learnt, that one could get no farther than Albany, where he was obliged to be concealed in a Tory's houfe; another had the misfortune to be detected; and the third was Captain Scott, of our Vol. II. D regiment, 8

cans, and vith earth, fternation, 10, with a eened to be earth upon had been cannonadinterment, rould have eafon they d cannon, bable fupnd it is the t was our ill-Water, eral Gates mam; the re General ug up the tification, we regiment, who got fafe into New-York, and who was returning with General Vaughan's detachment, which, when opportunity offered, he was to have left, and made his way through the woods to our army. I really am perfuaded, for want of intelligence that could be relied on, the failure of our expedition was compleated; and the honorable terms which have been granted were complied with fo readily, becaufe General Gates forefaw, if we had gained intelligence of any detachment being fo near, we fhould have maintained our ground, in all extremities, notwithftanding his fuperiority of numbers.

In croffing the river, I had nearly loft my baggage, and those in the batteaux had a very narrow escape; about the center a horse proving very unruly, jumped over, and his hind legs hung upon the fide of the batteaux, and very near overset it.

After

35

New-York, ith General , when opave left, and yoods to ou , for wantd lied on, the compleated in have been o readily, be-, if we had tachment be aintained ou otwithftandrs.

LS

l nearly lot batteaux had t the center umped over, on the fife ; overfet it.

After

After we had croffed, we purchafed fome liquors and frefh provisions of the inhabitants; this purchafe convinced us of the intrinsic value of the precious ore, as the Americans received our guineas with much cordiality, and gave us paper dollars in lieu, at the rate of nine for a guinea. Here I should observe to you, that the real value of a guinea is four dollars and two-thirds of a dollar, therefore, by this exchange, we got nearly double, which show confiderable the diffunction shill is, notwithstanding their great veneration for Independency and Congress, between gold and paper. In this inftance we were taught a leffon, that things, however triffing of themfelves, are fometimes of moment; had we taken a view of the reverfe of our fituation at Ticonderoga, we fhould not have fo greatly defpifed and converted to all man ner of ufes, the many reams of paper D_2 dollars dollars that were taken at that place.— Myfelf, among many other young foldiers, experienced the laugh of the old veterans, who had carefully faved feveral quires, in cafe of any reverfe of fortune, and were procuring all manner of comforts for nothing, while we were parting with our guineas.

I am forry to obferve, the reciprocal efteem that had exifted among all ranks of officers, and the folace and comfort they afforded each other, during our trying fituation at Saratoga, feemed now to be done away; fome were fo inattentive to the dignity of their character, as to contend for the devoirs attendant on fuperior rank, in a ftate of adverfity, which, if it does not level all diftinction, fhould at leaft have foftened the hauteur of command. Conteft fhould have lain dormant, and emulation been confined to evincing the politenefs of the real gentleman, in a fituation

37

hat place.ung foldiers, old veterans, al quires, in e, and wer forts for nong with ou

LS

ne reciproel g all ranks d comfort the g our trying l now to b inattentin racter, as to ant on fupfity, which ction, fhould reur of comin dormant, to evincing tleman, in 1 fituation fituation where acts of humanity and friendship ought constantly to have conspired to infure the most perfect harmony.

As you admire frank conversation, I indulged a fhort vein of reflection on the false delicacy of aspiring too much; but we did not embarrass our own feelings in dwelling on that illiberal conduct, of which the officers concerned were so quickly assumed, and for which, by the decency and decorum of their future behaviour, they made ample amends, as it would therefore have been ungenerous to harbour, we unanimously suppressed every idea of resentment. ولالكا كالالحاد والمتعام والمتعام والمتعام والمتعام والمتعام والمترفي والمتعام و

An officer, during our march, had flipped away, unperceived, from the main body, too fenfible of the coynefs of that blind goddefs, Fortune, he only requefted her ladyfhip's aid to favour an innocent fraud; fhe fmiled propitious; for having D 3 gone

gone on before, and first reached a fmall village, he perfonated General Burgoyne, and with fuch an air of confidence, and confequence too, that in spite of the inquisitive temper of the Americans (particularly the peasants of New-England) their scruples were entirely satisfied, and being compleatly outwitted, they affigned him the best quarters. Upon our arrival at the place, after complimenting him with his ingenious device to obtain preferment, he relinquished his new dignity with a good grace, and received us dropping wet, after an uncomfortable march, with much hospitality.

We were two days in croffing the Green Mountains, which are a part of the chain of mountains that run through the whole Continent of America, more commonly known by the name of the Allegany Mountains : the roads acrofs them were almost impassible, and to add to the difficulty, when hed a fmall l Burgoyne, lidence, and of the incans (partiw-England) trisfied, and hey affigned our arrival enting him obtain prenew dignity ed us dropable march,

S

g the Green f the chain n the whole commonly any Mounvere almost difficulty, when when we had got half over, there came on a very heavy fall of fnow. After this, it is impoffible to defcribe the confusion that enfued; carts breaking down, others flicking fast, fome overfetting, horfes tumbling with their loads of baggage, men curfing, women fhrieking, and children fqualling ! It should feem that I was to encounter every unpleafant duty that can fall to the lot of an officer, for this very day I had the baggage guard; exclusive of being covered with fnow, and riding about after the bat-men, to keep them together, and to affift each other, my attention was directed to a fcene, which I did not think it poffible human nature could have fupported, for in the midft of the heavy fnowftorm, upon a baggage-cart, and nothing to fhelter her from the inclemency of the weather but a bit of an old oil-cloth, a foldier's wife was delivered of a child, fhe and the infant are both well, and are now at this D4 place.

39

وبأصمفوا وكالم والالحاظ والماط للماليا للمالا المالحا والملك والمكر والمركب

place. It may be faid, that women who follow a camp are of fuch a mafculine nature, they are able to bear all hardfhips; this woman was quite the reyerfe, being fmall, and of a very delicate conflitution.

After we had paffed the mountains, the first township we came to was Williamstown, where we foon found how choice we ought to be of our gold, as the farther we proceeded, we found it of greater value, the inhabitants enquiring if we wanted any paper money, and out-bidding each other; at this place we got eighteen and twenty for a guinea. It was rather remarkable, though they depreciated their Congress money in one way, they would not in another, for we never could get them to take our hard money for any article, making an allowance for the difference of exchange.

The

The night before we came to this 99999999999999999

41

a maîcu. a maîcu. to bear all nite the revery delican

8

intains, the as Williamihow choice as the farit of greater ring if we out-bidding root eighteen was rather eciated their they would r could get ey for any for the diftown, being quartered at a fmall log-hut, I was convinced in how innocent a view the Americans look upon that indelicate cuftom they call bundling : though they have remarkable good feather beds, and are extremely neat and clean, ftill I preferred my hard mattrafs, as being accuftomed to it; this evening, however, owing to the badnefs of the roads, and the weakness of my mare, my fervant had not arrived with my baggage, at the time for retiring to reft; there being only two beds in the house, I enquired which I was to fleep in, when the old woman replied, " Mr. Enfign," here I fhould obferve to you, that the New England people are very inquifitive as to the rank you have in the army : "Mr. Enfign," fays fhe, " Our Jonathan and I will fleep " in this, and our Jemima and you shall " fleep in that." I was much aftonished at fuch a propofal, and offered to fit up all all night, when Jonathan immediately replied, " Oh, la! Mr. Enfign, you won't " be the first man our Jemima has bundled " with, will it Jemima?" when little Jemima, who, by the bye, was a very pretty black-eyed girl, of about 16, or 17, archly replied, " No, Father, by many, " but it will be with the first Britainer," (the name they give to Englishmen.) In finiling invitation of pretty Jemima-the eye, the lip, the-Lord ha' mercy, where am I going to?-but wherever I may be going to now, I did not go to bundle with her-in the fame room with her father and mother, my kind hoft and hoftefs too!----I thought of that-I thought of more befides-to ftruggle with the paffions of nature; to clafp Jemima in my arms todo what ? you'll afk-why, to do-nothing! for if amid all these temptations, the lovely Jemima had melted into kindnefs, fhe had been an outcast from the world-treated with

The

43

مجرحاها والعاصا والمالعا والمراج المراجا والمراجات

with contempt, abufed by violence, and left perhaps to perifh!——No, Jemima; I could have endured all this to have been bleffed with you, but it was too vaft a facrifice, when you was to be victim!—— Suppofe how great the teft of virtue muft be, or how cold the American conftitution, when this unaccountable cuftom is in hofpitable repute, and perpetual practice.

We every morning look from our barracks to the mouth of Bofton harbour, hoping to catch a look of the fleet of tranfports that is to convey us to England, to which place I now turn all my thoughts, and in expectation of foon enjoying your friendship perforally, I remain,

Yours, &c.

LET-

بهلو بطاولها والما والما والما والما والما والما والقاقا والواوا والواوا والما والما والما والما والما والما والم ediately re. you won't as bundled when little vas a very t 16, or 17, by many, Britainer." men.) In do ?____the emima-the ercy, where I may be oundle with father and s too!--! f more beons of naarms-to--nothing! , the lovely is, the had Id-treated with

S

with contempt, shalld by violence, and

bleffed with you, but it was too yad a famifee, IVLX yo R vis To To E (L1)

he, or how cold the American conditution,

Cambridge, in New England, Nov. 25, 1977.

MY DEAR FRIEND, WIND SW

O N our march to this place, we were fully convinced what powerful levies the New England states are capable of furnishing; for exclusive of those that had joined Gates, and were marched to the fouthward, every town we passed through was raising two or three companies, to join General Washington's army.

racks to the month of Redon hadom,

The wants and miferies of the inhabitants in general are inconceivable, even الحاص كالحاص والمالي المالي المالي

to the conveniences of life, yet you would be furprized with what chearfulnefs they bend to them, to obtain that idol, Independency. In many poor habitations they have parted with one of their blankets, where they had only two, to fupply their foldiers, and although the interior part of thefe states have not been the feat of war, vet the diffress of the inhabitants are equally as great as if it had.

They have in this province, among many other military institutions, one of a fingular nature, that of minute-men, fo named, as they are in constant readinefs at the first fummons of their officers, to march at a minute's warning; they are composed of the most active and expert of the militia, and as an encouragement to hold themfelves always prepared to march, they are promifed never to go out of the province, but only to oppose any enemy that appears either upon their coaft

LS

XLVI. in New England.

00.25,1777.

ce, we were werful levies capable of those that rched to the Ted through npanies, to y.

the inhaable, even to or

45

بهلولكا كالكالكا كالكالك الكالكا كالكالكا كالكالكا كالكالكا كالكالك الكالك الكالك الكالك الكالك الكالك الكالك

or frontiers. These states can, in the course of a few days, form an army of fome thousands; their conduct in assembling at the skirmiss at Lexington and Concord, and annoying the King's troops in their return to Boston, fully justifies their appellation.

If the other provinces enter as heartily into the caufe of rebellion, I am afraid we fhall find it 'a very difficult tafk to fubdue them; for, exclusive of all the various modes of furnishing men and fupplies, it is in these provinces, in fome measure, become a religious caufe, in which the people being enthusias, their clergy artfully increase a warlike spirit among their flock.

One of them, in my hearing, firmly afferted, that rewards were prepared in Heaven for those who fell in the present contest, endeavoring to impress them with an

47

In

can, in the an army of At in affem. Kington and ing's troops ully juftifies

LS

r as heartily um afraid we flk to fubdue the various fupplies, it ne meafure, which the clergy artumong their

ing, firmly prepared in the prefent them with an an idea of the real neceffity of the war, as the defence of religious liberty: this was a most precious and prevailing argument to delude the ignorant; he infinuated that the Roman Catholic religion was to be introduced, artfully mentioned the Quebec-act, and after pretending that he had been visited by the Supreme Being in visions, affured them those only would be accepted in Heaven, who should feal their lives in so righteous a cause with their blood. Similar doctrine is doubtlefs made ufe of by their clergy in general. Stratagems, under the difguifed veil of fanctity and religion, are conftantly formed to encreafe our mutual animofities, for men buoyed up with fuch affurances of Heaven, will fight to defperation. In all religious contefts, we find an unexampled bravery that no dangers difconcert, and a firm conftancy that no force can withftand.

In our way hither we paffed through a fmall neat town, called Worcester, where I met accidentally with one of the Committee-men, who was upon the examination of a poor fellow, fent from our army to General Clinton, and who very imprudently fwallowed the filver egg that contained the meffage to the General, in the prefence of those who took him prifoner: after tormenting the poor fellow with emetics and purgatives till he difcharged it, they immediately hung him up. The egg was opened, and the paper taken out, on which was written, " Nous y voici, here we are, nothing between us but Gates." The Committee-men stared at each other, obferving, it contained no intelligence that could be of fervice; one of them, however, reflected, that nous y voici was French, and that might contain a good deal. None of them understanding a word of that language, they fent to the jail for a poor Canadian, who was a prifoner, to tranflate it for

49

for them: he informed them it meant here we are, but as that was in English, they would not credit it. At last one very fagaciously observed, that it certainly was fome private mark, or correspondence between the two Generals, and as none of them had much military knowledge, it was thought proper to fend it to General Washington, who certainly would understand it better.

As we paffed from this town, at a fmall village there were affembled a great concourfe of people to fee us march, who were very curious, fome lifting up their hands and praying to Heaven, fome admiring the foldiers, others looking with aftonifhment; but among the croud ftood foremost an old woman, who appeared to be near an hundred, upon whom your old friend, Lieutenant M'Neil, of the 9th regiment, thought to be a little witty, in which, however, he was fairly worsted: Vol. II, E as through a fter, where

LS

of the Com.

xamination

ur army to very impru-

g that con.

eral, in the

m prifoner:

Fellow with lifchargedit, b. The egg

ken out, on nici, here we

ates." The other, ob-

ligence that

m, however,

French, and

I. None of

of that lan-

a poor Ca-

tranflateit

for

50

as this old woman attracted the notice of every one, when he paffed, he faid to her, "So, you old fool, you must come and see "the lions;" but with great archness the replied, "Lions! lions! I declare now I "think you look more like lambs!"

The lower clafs of thefe Yankeesa propos, it may not be amifs here just to obferve to you the etymology of this term : it is derived from a Cherokee word, eankke, which fignifies coward and flave. This epithet of yankee was bestowed upon the inhabitants of New England by the Virginians, for not affilting them in a war with the Cherokees, and they have always been held in derifion by it. But the name has been more prevalent fince the commencement of hostilities; the foldiery at Bofton ufed it as a term of reproach ; but after the affair of Bunker's Hill, the Americans gloried in it. Yankey-doodle, is now their pœan, a favorite of favorites, played 25 II Jay in d the noia d, he faid w ft come and h archnels h declare now s?

. . .

ELS

Yankeesfs here just of this term: e word, eankly, I flave. The wed upon the nd by the Vir hem in a m ey have alway But the nam ince the conhe foldiery reproach; bi Hill, the Am -doodle, is not vorites, plan in their army, effeemed as warlike as the Grenadier's March—it is the lover's fpell, the nurfe's lullaby. After our rapid fucceffes, we held the Yankees in great contempt; but it was not a little mortifying to hear them play this tune, when their army marched down to our furrender.

11 30.1

of up, and pointing to his Fordhip, in

The lower clafs of the New Englanders are impertinently curious and inquifitive; at a house where Lord Napier was quartered, with other officers, a number of the inhabitants flocked to fee a Lord, imagining he must be fomething more than man: they were continually looking in at the window, and peeping at the room door; faying, I wonder which is the Lord ! at last four women, intimate friends of the landlord, got into the room, when one of them with a twang, peculiar to the New Englanders faid, " I hear you " have got a Lord among you, pray now "which may he be?" When his Lord-E 2 ship,

51

abaltata c

thip, who, by the bye, was all over mire, and fcarcely dry from the heavy rain that had fallen during the day's march, whifpered your friend Kemmis, of the 9th regiment, whole turn for wit and jocularity you are well acquainted with, to have a little mirth with them. He accordingly got up, and pointing to his Lordship, in a voice and manner as if he was Herald at Arms, informed them, that " that was " the Right Hon. Fancis Lord Napier, of " &c. &c. &c." going through all his Lordship's titles, with a whole catalogue of additions: after he had finished, the women looked very attentively at his Lordthip, and whilst he and the other officers were laughing at the adroitness of Kemmis, the women got up, and one of them lifting up her hands and eyes to Heaven, with great aftonifhment, exclaimed, "Well, " for my part, if that be a Lord, I never " defire to fee any other Lord but the " Lord

والأاحد كالمالحا والواوا والمالح المالح

53

1 over mire, vy rain that narch, whil. the oth regind jocularity h, to have ! e according Lordship, in vas Heralda " that was rd Napier, of ough all his e catalogue d hed, the wo at his Lordother officers nefs of Kem. one of them s to Heaven, imed, "Well, ord, I nevel ord but the se Lord

LS

" Lord Jehovah," and inftantly left the room.

We were efforted on our march by the brigade of a General Brickett; he was very civil, and often ufed to ride by the fide of the officers, to converfe with them. One day, as he was jogging along with our friend Sone, he complained to the General, that he was very uncomfortable in fuch wet weather and bad roads, for want of a pair of boots, and that those he had, with all his baggage, were taken in a batteaux; when the General faid, he would fell him those he had on. Sone was rather furprifed at the offer of the Brigadier General, and afked him how many paper dollars he would take; the General told him he would only part with them for gold; when Sone offered him a guinea for them; the General inftantly got off his horfe, and after he had taken E 3 a pair وكفا والفالوا والمالوا والمترك والمتمال والمتمال والمتعلم والمتول والمترك والمت

a pair of fhoes out of his faddle-bags, was proceeding to pull off his boots; Some told him there was no fuch hurry, it would do when they arrived at the end of the day's march : He replied, he fhould not be long in pulling them off, and he had got a pair of country boots to put on, which are pieces of cloth folded round the leg, and tied at the knee and ancle .--Upon being requested to defer it till we got into quarters, he mounted his horfe, rode forwards, and on our halt diligently fearched out for Sone, when he compleated his bargain, and parted with his boots. So much for an American Brigadier-General!

Notwithstanding they are difpleafed with our Government, they are not fo with our guineas, and although they are fighting for independency, they place very little dependence upon paper-money; for however

55

e-bags, was boots; San h hurry, i at the end of th, he fhould the off, and he ts to put on ed round the and anckier it till w ted his hork, alt diligently he compleaith his boots on Brigadio.

LS

e difpleak are not h igh they are ey place verj money; for however however martial they are at prefent, still they have an eye to traffic and merchandize; what a weak frate the Congress must be in, when those who are fighting for its fupport are depreciating its credit. I am confident that the majority of the Americans are ignorant as to the caufe of the contest, and what arose from the factious views of a few defigning men, expreffing a difpleafure to our Government, is now converted into rancor and national hatred. If I might be allowed to give my political opinion, there appears to me nothing fo clear, as that the true intereft of America is to live in perfect harmony with Great-Britain, for it is evident to the obfervation of every one, that the colonies reaped great advantages when the union fubfifted; they have feverely felt, and at this moment continue to feel, the bad effects of being at variance.

E 4

That

5) 너희 아이어머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머머

That they may be fubdued, and an union formed upon the most permanent bafis, for the interest of both countries, will, I think, coincide with your fentiments, as it does with those of

Your's, &c.

conversion of the second of the

The toth town we first the TS

wal at this pie a was weltowh an industries flore and batter in on the road in is equal to moth in andheid is a firend to and the

has been nuch berts uted. He was without his supreheations of being conpraces for ittention linewn to the office

LETwinners and like all of that defer pri

LETTER XLVII.

same high a ship house the which man

muluag more than the continent civility

toda and the section seeds the at house h as

Cambridge, in New England, Nov. 30th 1777.

57

والألمان والمامام المالما والمالما لمالما لمالم المالما والمالما والمالم المالي والمركب والمركب والمركب

MY DEAR FRIEND,

THE laft town we left, before our arrival at this place, was Weftown, where we found the most convenient inn of any on the road, it is equal to most in England, the rooms commodious, provifions good, and fervants attentive; above all, the landlord is a friend to our Government, and like all of that defcription, has been much perfecuted. He was not without his apprehensions of being fent to prison for attentions shewn to the officers who

ELS

and an union manent bass, atries, will, ! entiments, a

's, &c.

LET.

who ftopped at his houfe, which was nothing more than the common civility he fhewed to all his guefts: in fhort, he was deemed by the Americans a rank Tory.

The fpirit of Whig and Tory is as predominant in America, as it was in England fome years back; perhaps you may not have troubled yourfelf as to the unde derivatur of these two words, you will therefore pardon my explaining them : Tory, originally, was a name given to the wild Irifh robbers, who favored the maffacre of the Irish Protestants, in 1641; it was afterwards applied to all enormous high-fliers of the Church. Whig was a ludicrous name, first allotted to the country-field devotion-meeting, whole ordinary drink was whig, or whey of coagulated four milk: it was afterwards applied to those who were against the Court interest, in the reigns of Charles II. and James II. and which was mon civility in fhort, he cans a rank

59

LS

ory is as prewas in Eng. aps you may s to the und ds, you will ining them: given to the ored the malts, in 1641; all enormous Whig was a to the counhofe ordinary of coagulated ls applied to ourt intereft, nd James II. and

and for the Court, in the reigns of King William and King George; the Americans apply them quite the reverfe.

Our march from Weftown to this place was the moft unpleafant of any, as it rained inceffantly, and we reached the barracks on Profpect Hill very late in the evening, which were unfortunately in the worft condition imaginable for the reception of troops, being fo much out of repair, that we fuffered feverely from the inclemency of the weather; the barracks were, in fact, bare of every thing; no wood, and a prodigious fearcity of fuel, infomuch, that we were obliged to cut down the rafters of our room to dry ourfelves. The method of quartering was dreadfully inconvenient, fix officers in a room not twelve feet fquare, permiffion was denied us to accommodate ourfelves with rooms rooms in this town, till General Burgoyne arrived, and reprefented our fituation to the Council at Bofton, when it was reluctantly granted. We laboured under many diftreffes and difficulties; every fpecies of provifions was very dear, and to add to our misfortune, could hardly be procured for money. You do not, I believe, in England, rank milk in the catalogue of luxuries, yet we were obliged, ourfelves, to traverfe a deep fnow for a full mile, to get a finall quantity for our breakfafts, as our fervants were not permitted to pafs the centinels

해는 1000년 1

It was underftood at the convention, that the troops were to be flationed on Profpect and Winter Hills, and the officers were to be quartered in Bofton, and the neighbouring towns. On this fuppofition fome of the officers had pufhed forward and got into Bofton, but were immediately ordered out.

At

67

ELS

ral Burgoyne fituation to it was reluct. under many ery fpecies of nd to add to y be procurd I believe, in catalogue of . ged, ourfdea, a full mile, to our breakfalts, mitted to pass

e convention, e flationed on nd the officen flon, and the this fuppolid pufhed forout were im-

At

At prefent, the army is difpofed of in the following manner: the English troops upon Prospect Hill, and the German upon Winter Hill; the officers have the towns of Cambridge, Mystic, and Watertown, to quarter themselves, and a parole of about ten miles in circumference; but to preferve order and regularity among the troops, three officers of each regiment constantly refide in the barracks.

It is no little mortification that I cannot vifit Bofton, for it is the fecond city in America, and the grand emporium of rebellion; but our parole excludes us from it: what makes the mortification ftill greater is, that we can go as far as the ferry at Charles-town, and are debarred croffing it. By an officer who has joined the army from Albany, I am informed, that Lady Harriet Ackland, after fhe quitted our army, army, experienced great difficulties before fhe arrived at that city, the night being far advanced before the boat reached the enemy's out-pofts, and the centinel would not let it pass, nor even come on thore, notwithstanding the Chaplain that accompanied her offered the flag of truce, and represented the state of her Ladyship. The guard, from apprehenfions of treachery, and punctilious to orders, threatened to fire into the boat if it stirred before day-light. What must have been her anxiety and fufferings, when protracted for feven or eight hours, without covering to shelter from the inclemency of the night air, and uncertain what her hufband's fituation might be, her reflexions during the long, dark, cold hours, could not imprefs her with any favorable fentiments of the treatment she was to expect, from this first reception. When day-light appeared they were fuffered to land, and conducted to General Gates, who, with that

63

الأذاعد ككركركركركرورورواجاجاجاجاجا والحاكا

ELS

culties before night being t reached the entinel would me on those n that accom. of truce, and er Ladylhin, ons of treach. lers, threatenit ftirred beift have been when protrad. without coveremency of the what her huher reflexions hours, could vorable sentiwas to expect, hen day-light to land, and , who, with that that humanity for which he is fo confpicuous, received and accommodated her with that refpect and attention her rank and merit deferved.

barracks, and attend religious duties. The

When you trace her through the various trying feenes fince her arrival in America, the flands forth an example of female excellence—an example of patience, fuffering and fortitude, exhibiting an interefting picture of that fpirit of enterprize and diftrefs, you meet with in romance, realized, and conducted upon that difcipline of duty and chaftenefs of principle, which fhould ever be attendant on connubial love. How little the female frame can be capable of fupporting, delicate to a degree as hers is, fuch extreme diffrefs! yet fhe foared above it, and forgot the weaknefs of the woman in the fondnefs of the wife. numbers of other perfustions, particularly

We have had feveral difputes with the Committee-men, relative to travelling on a Sunday,

Sunday, in time of fervice; fome officers have been taken up and confined, which has occafioned the General's interference. We are now permitted to affemble at the barracks, and attend religious duties. The felect men wifhed to be as rigid with us as with the inhabitants, any of whom that are feen in the ftreets, during divine fervice, are compelled to go to fome place of worfhip. Whoever fhall be caught carrying a bundle is committed to prifon, for the fpirit of puritanifm is as prevalent now in these ftates, as it was on their firft fettlement.

الغوراب المالجا لحالما لحالما لأرثما لحالما لحالما والمتعالم والمتعالم والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع

The eftablished religion here, as in all the other provinces of New-England, is that of the Congregationalists, a religion different only in some trifling articles to that of the Presbyterians; there were great numbers of other persuasions, particularly of the Church of England, and at this place there is a church erected within sight of fome officers fined, which interference flemble at the duties. The duties. The duties. The duties. The duties of the f whom the during divine to fome place and be caught the to prilon, is as prevalent on their furth

ELS

here, as in al -England, is is, a religion g articles to are were gran , particularly and at this within fight of Havard College, the feminary of thefe Congregationalists; this gave them much offence, as they confidered it a fatal ftroke levelled at their religion. Upon this account, before hostilities commenced, they perfecuted the minister, who was the Rev. Dr. Apthorpe, now Rector of Croydon, obliged him to refign his cure and quit the colony; but fince the war, not only this church, but every one over the province is shut up, nor will the inhabitants suffer any other religion but the Congregationalists; they were happy to feize the opportunity of suppressing the church of England, as it was gaining ground very faft, and therefore objected to it on the ground of praying for the King and Royal Family. Some ministers offered to omit that part, but toleration is no part of their creed, and they were happy to feize fo favourable an occafion to crush it.

F

VOL. II.

Before

AND THE PARTY

65

Before the commencement of the war, Arts and Sciences were making great progrefs in these states. In this town there is erected an University, the first ever raifed in America; it is a neat brick building, containing three halls for the claffes, a room for natural curiofities, another for instruments of astronomy and mathematics, and a gallery where formerly was a very valuable library, but when this place was the head quarters of General Washington, the library, as well as the instruments and other articles were removed, in which many were loft and more damaged; those that remain of the handfome collection are very few; adjoining to the college is a neat chapel.

The Prefident of this Univerfity is a Mr. Willard, and there are only a finall number of fludents at prefent, not exceeding twenty, the youth of America fludying tactics in preference to the more enlightening

67

every وجراحا والمتحا و

t of the war. ng great prois town there first ever railed orick building r the classe fities, another my and mathe e formerly was out when the ers of General as well as the icles were n were loft an remain of the y few; adjoinchapel.

ELS

Iniverfity is only a fina nt, not exceed merica fludyin tore enlighter ing feiences. This Univerfity has been founded near an hundred years, and altho' it is not on a perfect plan, has produced a number of men of genius. It was much encouraged in its infancy, by many perfons at home, particularly a Mr. Hollis, who founded the profefforfhip for the mathematics and natural philofophy, and many other benefactions, nearly to the amount of 5000l. Neither the profeffors or fludents refide in the Univerfity; the former live in their own houfes, and the latter board in the town. The town of Cambridge is about fix miles from Bofton, and was the country refidence of the gentry of that city; there are a number of fine houses in it going to decay, belonging to the Loyalists. The town must have been extremely pleasant, but its beauty is much defaced, being now only an arfenal for military stores, and you may suppose it is no agreeable circumstance,

F 2

فالأباد المالا المالية المالية

every time we walk out, to be reminded of our fituation, in beholding the artillery and ammunition waggons that were taken with our army.

The character of the inhabitants of this province is improved beyond the defcription that our uncle B- gave us of them, when he quitted this country, thirty years ago, but Puritanism and a spirit of persecution are not yet totally extinguished. The gentry of both fexes are hospitable and good-natured, with an air of civility in their behaviour, but constrained by formality and precifenefs; even the women, though eafinefs of carriage is peculiarly characteristic to their nature, appear here with much stiffness and referve: they are formed by fymmetry, handfome, and have delicate complexions; the men are tall, thin, and generally long-vifaged; both fexes have univerfally, and even proverbially, bad teeth, which must probably be

69

e reminded of the artillery at were taken

ELS

pitants of the I the defenp. re us of them, , thirty years spirit of perfe extinguilhed. are hospitalit air of civily onstrained by even the m. arriage is p. ir nature, ap s and referre ry, handfomi ons; the men long-vifaged and even pronust probably be occafioned by their eating fo much molaffes, making ufe of it at all meals, and even eating it with greafy pork.

be

Converfing one day with a Virginia officer relative to the curiofity of the New Englanders, he told me, that finding he never could procure any refreshment for himfelf or horfe, till after he answered all their queftions, and they had compared them with their information, he adopted the following mode to avoid their inquifitive delays: Whenever he travelled from his own province to Boston, and alighted at an ordinary, (the name given to inns in America, and fome juftly merit that title) the mafter or miftrefs, and other company in the houfe affembled at the door, and he began in this manner,-"Worthy people, I am Mr. , of Vir-" ginia, by trade a tobacco-planter, and a " bachelor, have fome friends at Boston, " whom I am going to vifit, my ftay will be F3 fhort,

بهر يولوا والمتعلم والمتعلم المتمال والمتعلم المتعلما والمتعلم المتعلم المتعلم

" fhort, when I fhall return and follow my " bufinefs, as a prudent man ought to do. " This is all I know of myfelf, and all I " can poffibly inform you. I have no " news; and now, having told you every " thing, have compafiion upon me and my " horfe, and give us fome refrefimment."

Intelligence being brought me that fome fhips are feen in the offing of Bofton harbour, I am haftening to Profpect-hill, to fee if they are those that will be the means of conveying me to the fight of my worthy friend, and that they may be is the wifh of doors and he began in this manner.

فأذاره يبددا حاصا حاصا حاصا حاصا أأقرحا يراجر والمروا والملم وموالم والمروا والمراجر والمراجر

ralto hats abschim to to Yours, &c, it met

LET-

LETTER XLVIII.

Cambridge, in New England, Dec. 9, 1777.

71

MY DEAR FRIEND,

DEPRIVED of the privilege to vifit Bofton, ftill from the view that we have of it from our barracks on Profpect Hill, I am enabled to give you a defcription of its fituation; for its interior parts, police and government, you must be referred to those authors who have described them.

of months fatety of she give for upon this

Bofton is fituated on a peninfula of about four miles in length, at the bottom F_4 of extented Bolloin they denotified die

ELS

and follow my a ought to do elf, and all ! I have m cold you even on me and m frefhment."

t me that fim f Bofton hapect-hill, tofa the means of of my worth e is the without irs, &c.

LET.

of the bay of Maffachufett's, which reaches eight or ten miles within land; the opening of the bay appears to be fheltered from the impetuofity of the waves, by a number of rocks, which appear above water, and by feveral iflands, most of which are inhabited, whofe fituation is fuch, that they will not admit of more than three or four fhips to enter at the fame time.

Nature herfelf too feems to have provided for the fafety of the city, for upon this narrow channel there is an ifland, that, when fortified, no fhip can pafs it : this important poft was entirely neglected till the end of the laft century, when a regular citadel, named Fort William, was erected on it, defended by a hundred pieces of cannon, of the largeft fize and extremely well placed. When our troops evacuated Bofton, they demolifhed the fortifications, which rendered the city liable to an attack by fea, therefore the principal which reaches d; the opea. Cheltered from s, by a numabove wate of which an fuch, that the three or four ne.

فأظر فينتفا مالا المالحا لمالما فأقتر فالعاصا فالمالم فالملما والملاحد فالم

73

ELS

to have provide for upon the in ifland, the in parts it: the ely neglected tury, when William, we william, we y a hundred regeft fize and en our troops periodifhed the red the city therefore the principal principal object of the New Englanders was to put Bofton and this ifland in fuch a flate of defence, as to prevent its falling again into our poffeffion; and fo indefatigable were they in this bufinefs, that every able-bodied citizen allotted two days in a week, the more fpeedily to conclude it, as they were not without their apprehenfions, that when the fleet and army were reinforced they would return; what impreffed them fo ftrongly with this idea was the demolition of the works. About a league from this ifland, near the mouth of the harbour, there is a high light houfe, the fignals from which are perceiveable at Bofton, where there are beacons, as well as upon moft of the heights along the coaft, to fpread the alarm to the inland countries of an enemy's approach. Except when a very thick fog prevails, at which time fome fhips might flip in amongst the islands, the town town has always five or fix hours to prepare for the reception of an enemy; and in the fpace of four-and-twenty hours, they can raife feveral thoufands of militia. If ever a fleet of ours fhould be able to pais Fort William, it would be effectually ftopt by the ftrong batteries the Americans have raifed, both to the north and fouth of the town, which command the bay entirely; the harbour appears fo fpacious, that it will admit of fix or feven hundred veffels anchoring fafely and commodioufly. I am informed, on that fide of the city that faces the harbour, there is a very magnificent pier which extends to far into the fea, as to admit of thips unloading their cargoes, without the affistance of finall craft, from whence they are deposited in warehouses, ranged along mann to the infinit countries this pier.

Opposite to the northern part of the peninfula on which Boston stands, are the remains invest approach. I weept releast

ELS

hours to pre n enemy; ad twenty hour, inds of militia uld be ablem and be effer g batteries th h to the north which on. e harbour a ill admit of fa nchoring fat informed, @ es the harbour pier which a as to admit a es, without the m whence the , ranged along

n part of the Atands, are the remains

THROUGH AMERICA.

وجرجاها والأرجاع الجاما والمالح المراح الحاكات

remains of Charles-town, which had the fame connection with Bofton as the Borough has with the city of London; the river that divides the two is not much wider than the Thames, and it appears rather fingular, that the inhabitants never erected a bridge, as it would have greatly contributed to the profperity of both, efpecially as it was the direct entrance from the inland towns into Bofton, Unlefs you crofs the ferry, you have to make a circuit of feveral miles, over fwamps and moraffes, from this place to Bofton, which is only two miles in a direct line; no doubt, as the Americans are become for expert in making bridges across rivers of greater width than this, they will, when the contest is ended, erect one; for what was formerly either through indolence or individual concerns confidered as impofiibilities and arduous undertakings, will now be thought matters eafily accomplifhed. to some lo some

Near

75

Near to the remains of Charles-town is that famous fpot where fo much blood was fpilt, and fo many brave men flain, Bunker's Hill, which will ever be a memento to British Commanders, against attacking works with fuch temerity, without a fufficient information as to their construction, and holding an enemy in too great contempt; but in this inftance it was in fome measure unavoidable, for had the Americans fecured that poft, Bofton would have been untenable, as it is a high ground that overlooks and commands the whole town, the only error that appears to have been committed, was at first not endeavouring to turn their flank (which proved the means of driving them from their works) inftead of attacking them in the front. The only motive that could lead to the mode of attack that was adopted, must have been upon a fuppofition that it was impoffible, in fuch a fmall space of time, to crect any

أحزت والعاما والمالا الماليا فالقاط والمراجا والمراجا والمراجا والمراجا والمراجا والمراجا والمراجا والمراجا

AVELS

THOUGH AMEICA.

f Charles-tom fo much li brave men ill ever be an inders, againly h temerity, m ation as to t ing an enem it in this info unavoidable ecured that m n untenable. verlooks and n, the only a in committed ng to turn t e means of b vorks) instead front. The a o the mode of must have be it was impoff f time, to # any works, but what might eafily be demolifhed by the artillery, and carried by ftorm : Certainly our troops were much annoyed by the Americans from Charlestown; and if it had not been for the General's unwillingness to destroy it, the enemy might eafily have been diflodged, in which cafe, the weakness of their flank would have been discovered, and fo many lives would not have been loft in attacking them; their industry, diligence and filence in constructing the works, which confifted of a finall redoubt and ftrong intrenchment, reaching near half a mile down to the river Mystic, is incredible. I cannot conceive how the importance of this post should escape the vigilance of our Generals, as the fafety of Bofton depended entirely on our having poffeffion of it. وجروا والمتعام والمتعام والمتعام المتعام المتعام المتعام المتعام المتعام المتعام المتعام المتعام المتعام المتع

77

The best description that I can possibly give you as to the engagement, is what I gathered gathered from Captain Drew, whom I met with at Cork, who, in that action, was wounded in feveral parts of the body; and, notwithstanding fcarcely recovered from his wounds, was going out to join his regiment. He acknowledged himfelf to have never been witnefs to fuch a fcene of carnage and flaughter; and, in addition to the inceffant roar of cannon, difcharge of mufquetry, and the groans of the wounded and dying, there were great explofions from the burning of the town, from which afcended a large column of black finoke ; in fhort, it was fuch a fcene as cannot be defcribed, nor can any one form the least idea of it, but those who were prefent. What must have been the feelings of the Generals and troops in Bofton, who were fpectators of this dreadful carnage, without participating? The behaviour of the British troops, was truly characteristic of that valour and intrepidity that is allowed by all nations. But the reception

79

VELS

w, whom Im at action, 10 the body; and recovered fm out to join ged himfelf fuch a scener nd, in addition mon, discher groans of th e were greata g of the tom arge column i was fuchaton or can any but those m have been it and troops i s of this dread icipating? The pops, was trul and intrepidi ons. But th reception reception they met with from these entrenchments, and the execution, which was terrible, was sufficient to stagger the bravest troops;—for full half an hour, the fire poured down upon them like a stream; many old veterans declared, that, for the time it lasted, it was the hottest and most bloody engagement they ever remembered. We are anxioufly expecting the veffels, as our fituation is not only very unpleafant but dangerous, both to officers and foldiers; the latter of whom are in contiual broils with the American guards, which are composed of militia, who not being under very great discipline, not only infringe their orders, which perhaps they do not comprehend, or elfe use their authority as they think proper; they have received orders not to let any officer pass without his fide arms, and as many of them left their baggage in Canada, others lost them with

with their baggage, during the campaign, this ignorant people will not let any one país without a fword, drawling out, " I " fwear now you fhan't pafs, becaufe you " have not got a fword;" at the fame time, stupid fools, they might perceive by our cloaths and bayonets that we were officers. Much altercation has enfued, to remedy which, the officers had pafiports figned by General Heath; but this did not avail, as very few of the centinels could read. At laft it was ordered, that any officer who wanted to pass the centinels, was to go to the American guard, where the officer should fend a foldier to pass him; this did not altogether remedy the evil, as many of the officers could not make out the paffport.

states and the second states and a second state and a second state of the second states and the second states a

When I defcribe to you the troops, you will not fo much wonder at these embarrassiments, In marching the party to relief, you will see an old man of fixty, and a boy

AVELS

g the campaign not let any a wling out, " als, becaule m " at the far ight perceive that we were d has enfued rs had paffort : but this d e centinelson dered, that a s the centine guard, where er to país him nedy the evil, d not make # the troops, m at these ember. e party to relie of fixty, and boy of fixteen; a black and an old decrepit man, limping by his fide; most of them wear great bufhy wigs; in fhort, they would be a fubject for the pencil of Hogarth; but, egad, they are ready enough in prefenting their pieces, and if a foldier comes the leaft near them they level at him, and fay. " I fwear now, if you attempt to pafs, I'll blaze at you."

The foldiers' wives are allowed to pafs the centinels; but the other day a most ludicrous circumftance took place, by the obstinacy of an old man upon guard. He would not permit a woman, who was a true campaigner to go beyond him, great altercation enfued, in which the lady difplayed much of the Billingfgate oratory, when the old man was fo irritated as to prefent his firelock; the woman immediately ran up, fnatched it from him, knocked him down, and firiding over the proftrate hero, in the exultation of tri-G

umph

89

وبهوا والمتعاد المتعاد المتعاد المتعاد المتعاد والمتعاد وال

umph, profulely befprinkled him, not with Olympian dew, but that which is efteemed as emollient to the complexion—and 'faith, fomething more natural—nor did fhe quit her poft, till a file of fturdy ragamuffins marched valiantly to his relief, difpoffeffed the Amazon, and enabled the knight of the grifly caxon to look fierce, and refhoulder his mufquet.

The Winter is now fetting in, and as the coafting of the transports from New York to Boston is attended with delay and danger, on account of the strong winds that blow at this season upon the coast, General Burgoyne has made application to Congress for the troops to march to Providence, and to embark at Rhode Island. We are now anxiously waiting for an answer; that it may soon arrive is the ardent wish of

Yours, &c.

AVELS

ed him, not in which is effect exion—and in mor did the p ardy ragamum relief, difpolid ed the knight x fierce, and

etting in, an fports from b inded with the te of the funfeafon upon has made and troops to m embark at Rho unxioufly watto hay foon article

irs, &c.

THROUGH AMERICA.

A STATE OF THE STATE OF THE STATE OF

LETTER XLIX.

Gambridge, in New England, Jan. 19th 1777.

83

MY DEAR FRIEND,

I is impossible to defcribe with what a dejected mind I fit down to write, as not only the flattering hopes of fhortly feeing my friend is done away, and every prospect vanished, but some years, perhaps, may elapse, before the termination of this unhappy contest.

What was intended as an accommodation to the troops, relative to their embarking at Rhode Island, has proved a most G 2 unforunfortunate circumftance indeed; for the Congrefs have not only denied that requeft, but have put a ftop to any embarkation, till the convention is ratified at home by the King and Parliament; an event that can never happen, as it would be allowing the authority of the Congrefs, and the independence of the Americans. What renders our fituation more diffreffing is, that had the transports come round to Boston, the Council would have confented to our embarkation.

며, can support of the second of the second

The General's requisition to Congress has created fuspicions in their minds (and, by the bye, no people are of fuch a fuspicious disposition as the Americans,) that the measure proposed was merely for an opportunity of joining General Howe's army, and that we should, like themfelves, be base enough to evade and break the articles of capitulation; after which we were to act in concert with that army against

والالعاد فهروا والوا والوا والوالوا والما والما والما

93

AVELS

indeed; fort denied, that, p to any embe on is ratified Parliament; open, as it'm y of the Cong of the Ameria fion more diff fiports comem would have a in.

on to Congress ir minds (and fuch a fufpio ricans,) that merely for an General Hon ould, like the o evade and ho ion; after while it with that an age againft Washington; and, in support of their suspicions, or, at least, to give a colour to them, they pretend that the vessels fent to Rhode Island were insufficient for transporting the army to Europe, and that it was impossible to victual the fleet and army for so great a number, in so short a space of time. This idea must arise from the great dilatorines in all American departments. General Burgoyne having made complaints concerning the bad accommodation of the officers, which was not agreeable to the terms of convention, the Congrefs have conftrued that as a direct declaration, that it had been broken on their parts by a violation of its conditions, and an indication, that we confider the convention as diffolved; that, under thefe circumftances, when out of the limits of their power, and at large, we fhould make no hefitation in acting as if G_{3} we

we were in no degree bound by a capitulation that we had difavowed under reftraint.

The Congress have likewife paffed fome frivolous refolutions, that the foldiers had not faithfully delivered up their accoutrements, alluding to the crofs belts and Any one the leaft concartouch boxes. verfant in military affairs, must know they are not public ftores, but private, as being always furnished by the Colonel of the regiment. In fhort, the Congress were happy to feize any circumstance, as a pretext to favor their proceedings, and to render them justifiable in the eyes of the world. But had they made a reference to General Gates, they would have found what little dependence was to be placed as to that accufation; for, when he observed the men march by with their accoutrements on, he asked Colonel Kingfton, who had fettled the treaty-" if it se was

AVELS

und by a capit vowed under ewife paffed in t the foldiers ip their account crofs belts : ne the leaft m airs, must b es, but privati by the Col ort, the Con circumstances proceedings, 1 le in the eva ney made a re they would b dence was to ation; for, m ch by with the ed Colonel Ke he treaty-"

THROUGH AMERICA.

وجرجاه ولالما والما والمالح المالح المالح المالي والمالية المالية المالية

87

" was not cuftomary, on field-days, for " arms and accoutrements to go toge-" ther ?" when Colonel Kingfton replied, " There was nothing faid in the conven-"tion that he had agreed to with him, " relating to accoutrements; and that he " could have no right to any thing but " what was ftipulated in the treaty." To which General Gates replied, "You are perfectly right ;"-and, turning to fome American officers, faid, " If we meant to " have had them, we ought to have in-" ferted them in the convention." Hence it is evident Congress were ready to grafp at any pretence, however weak, to evade the terms of convention without incurring the charge of a direct breach of faith,

. In vain was every expostulation of General Burgoyne, as to the fubstance of his letter, which conveyed no other meaning than complaint of improper ulage, and a too relaxed adherence to the articles of capitu-G 4 capitulation. To obviate all farther difficulties, the General and Officers figned a parole, and were willing to fign any paper, the more fully to ratify the convention.

and their to eccourtements, and that he Congress were inexorable, and it was very perceivable, they would not eafily recede from a measure once adoped; no explanation of fecurities could produce the defired effect upon their determination. The conduct of Congress upon this extraordinary transaction, is extremely visible; they had conceived an idea if our army were fuffered to return to Europe, it would be eafily replaced in the fpring ; General Howe's army being now in possession of Philadelphia, Jerfey, New York, and other commanding fituations, and General Washington fo clofely preffed at Valley Forge, that upon the arrival of fuch an additional force, it would turn the fcale of war against them; and, all farther & 1 Officers fige g to fign any p tify the come

AVELS

ble, and it n vould not et nce adoped; could prote their determin Congress w faction, is t id conceived a ffered to retu e eafily repla Towe's army of Philadelphi her commande Washington forge, that m litional force rar against the

THROUGH AMERICA.

97

والجامر وحروا والمام والماما والمام والماما والمامان

and that the next campaign must end in their final fubjugation; they therefore chose to facrifice their faith and reputation, although an infant state, by an act never excusable. This ever will be an obloquy upon America, and point out to other powers, what little dependence is to be placed upon her public faith.

of our foldiers; after calling over their

5년195년9월9월9월9월9월9월99999월9월9월9월9월9월9월9월9월9월

Judge, my dear friend, what must be the feelings of every one, and how exasperated we must be at this treatment! we have no other hopes left but an exchange of prifoners, which, confidering our numbers, will be some time before the whole can be effected. Our fituation now hecomes every day more and more mortifying, for, exclusive of the infults we continually meet with from the American foldiery, the officers, no doubt, ftimulated by this refolve of Congress, behave very tauntingly, and Colonel Hentey, who commands the troops, has been guilty of Ionel of great cruelty to the foldiers. That you may form an idea as to the natural ferocity of disposition in this man, and how deliberate he is in his barbarities, I shall frate a few of them. and T

loguy upon America, and point out to

On the 19th of last month, he went up to the American barracks to releafe fome of our foldiers; after calling over their names, he addreffed himfelf to a corporal Reeves, of the oth regiment, " and told " him he had been confined for infulting " a provincial officer." Reeves made anfwer, " He was forry for it; that he was " in liquor, and would not have acted " fo, had he known him to have been an " officer, and was ready to alk his pardon." Colonel Henley faid, " By God, Sir, had " you ferved me fo, I would have run you " through the body, and I believe you to " be a great rafcal." Reeves made an-" fwer, " I am no rafcal, but a good fol-" dier, and my officers know it." Colonel

وجرحا ولا والألا والمتعا والمتع

lonel Henley then demanded filence. Reeves repeated nearly the fame words, adding, "That he hoped foon to carry " arms under General Howe, and fight " for his King and country." The Colonel then replied, " Damn your King " and country, when you had arms, you " were willing enough to lay them " down." Colonel Henley then ordered filence, Reeves repeating nearly the fame words, the Colonel ordered one of the guard to run him through for a fcoundrel; the men of the guard not obeying his orders, he difmounted from his horfe, and feizing a firelock with a fixed bayonet from one of the guard, stabbed Corporal Reeves in the left breaft, and whilft he had the bayonet at his bofom, the Colonel told him, " If he faid another word, he " would have it through his body:" Reeves then told him "He did not care, " he would ftand by King and his country, " till he died." Colonel Henley then made a fecond

VELS

ners. Thatym ne natural fm. man, and hy barities, I fd

th, he went to release for ling over the lf to a corpur nent, " and w ned for infulty leeves maden it; that he m not have at to have been afk his pardo y God, Sir, h Id have run m I believe your eeves made in but a good fi know it." (

lott

91

a fecond dart at him with the firelock and fixed bayonet, which two of the other prifoners threw up, and it paffed over Reeves's fhoulder; at the fame time one of the men faid to Colonel Henley, "That " the man was his prifoner, that he had " better not take his life, as he could do " with him as with the other men who " were in his cuftody." Colonel Henley then returned the firelock, and ordered him back into the guard-room, difmiffing the reft of the prifoners.

en of the quard not obceing his or-

On the 8th inftant, as fome foldiers were looking at a party of Americans, where Colonel Henley was prefent: he ordered the foldiers to go off and clear the parade. The foldiers turned about, and went off as faft as they could; the croud being great, and the road very dirty, Colonel Henley turned about, and addreffing the foldiers, faid, "Damn you, "I'll make you make more hafte;" and running

مكالاتهم كيهجا كالحاصا حاصا حاصا حاصا

he firelockan o of the olar it paffed on fame times Henley, "In er, that held as he could other menn Colonel Heisek, and other toom, difinili

VELS

as fome folds of America was prefent: o off and its s turned about they could; road very din about, and a , "Damn pa ore hafte;" a running running up to a corporal Hadley, pufhed his fword in his left fide and bent it : he then turned about and went to the right of his party, ftraightening his fword as he went along—a pretty example this from a commanding officer to those under his command.

ful clenched, and faid, " You raleals, 11

Do not be furprized after this, if you fhould hear of a general maffacre of all the British troops! But what more fully ftamps the character of this most fanguinary man, and his ferocious disposition, is a most unaccountable expression he made to fome foldiers, without any provocation. وللكم تكفيها واواوا والمرفا والماما والمرفي وال

Our paffes are renewable every month, for which purpole the Quarter-mafterferjeants of the different regiments attend at the American Deputy Adjutant-General's office; on the 16th of last month, as the ferjeants attended at the office, to apply

ply for paffes, Serjeant Fleming, of the 47th regiment, not being acquainted with Colonel Henley, took him for Colonel Keith, the Deputy Adjutant-General, faluted him cap in hand, and was going to addrefs him, when Colonel Henley extended his arm towards him, with his fift clenched, and faid, "You rafcals, I'll " make damnation fly out of ye; for I " will myfelf, one of thefe nights, go the " rounds, and if I hear the leaft word, or " noife in your barracks, I'll pour fhot " amongft you, and make flames of Hell " jump out of ye, and turn your barracks " infide out; declaring, if he was a cen-" tinel, and any British foldiers looked. " fulky at him, he would blow their " brains out !"

sides and the second second

Such glaring conduct could not efcape the notice of General Burgoyne, who applied to General Heath for redrefs, and he inftituted a Court of Enquiry, to inveftigate

VELS.

leming, of the acquainted with im for Color nt-General, nd was going onel Henley him, with You rafcals. ut of ye; far fe nights, got he leaft word a I'll pour ke flames of H irn your barns if he was a to foldiers los ould blow th could not eff urgoyne, who for redrefs, a Enquiry, to inter the tigate the grounds of complaint, and reported, it would be for the bonor of Col. Henley, as well as for the fatisfaction of all interested, that the judgment of a Court-martial should be taken on his conduct, during his command at Cambridge, which Court-martial is to fit to-morrow.

The weather has been very fevere of late, and there has been great falls of fnow, but now it is more pleafant and ferene; the north winds blow very fharp, the fnow is about two or three feet thick on the ground, and the inhabitants, inftead of carioling, like the Canadians, have large fleighs, that will contain ten or twelve perfons, which are drawn by two, and fometimes four horfes, but parties of young folks are more accuftomed to go a frolicking. As this is a fingular cuftom, I fhall defcribe it to you.

on and a formation of the second of the second

the the state

When the moon is favorable, a number of young men and women, to the amount of thirty or forty, fet off in fleighs, about feven o'clock in the evening, to join fome other party, perhaps at the diftance of eighteen or twenty miles, where they dance and caroufe till day-light, when they return and follow their common avocations, as if they had refted all night; it is not uncommon, an hour or two after daylight, to be awaked with the finging and noife they make, and by the number of bells affixed to the horfes, on the return of fome of these parties. Singular fituations and manners are productive of fingular cuftoms. In England, this would be effected extremely imprudent, and attended with dangerous confequences; but, after what I have related refpecting bundling, I need not fay, in how innocent a view this is looked upon. Apropos, as to that cuftom, along the fea coaft, by a continual intercourfe among Europeans;

it

AVEILS

rable, a numbe , to the amount in fleighs, abo ng, to joinin the diftance where they day t, when they morlavocation night; it is two after de the finging v the number s, on the return . Singular fr roductive of land, this we prudent, and nfequencesi; h refpecting has how innocent on. Apropos, the fea coaft, nong Europea

THROUGH AMERICA.

97

وللك فالكر فالمالوا والمراوا والمروا والم

it is in fome measure abolished; but they ftill retain one fomething fimilar, which is termed tarrying. .

When a young man is enamoured of a woman, and wifhes to marry her, he propofes the affair to her parents, (without whofe confent no marriage, in this colony, can take place) if they have no objection, he is allowed to tarry with her one night, in order to make his court. At the ufual time, the old couple retire to bed, leaving the young ones to fettle matters as they can, who, having fat up as long as they think proper, get into bed together alfo, but without putting off their under garments, to prevent scandal. If the parties agree, it is all very well, the banns are published, and they married without delay; if not, they part, and poffibly never fee each other again, unlefs, which is an accident that feldom happens, the forfaken fair proves pregnant, in which cafe H the

the man, unlefs he abfconds, is obliged to marry her, on pain of excommunication.

The ignorance of the American officers and foldiers, and the forupulous punctuality to their orders, which one half of them have not understanding to comprehend, must occasion confusion and trouble. I have hitherto endeavoured to avoid having any altercation with them; but the other evening I had the pleasure of being conducted to the guard-house, though not without company, among whom was Lord Balcarras, Major Mafter, of our regiment, and Major England, of the 47 regiment.

We were returning, about nine o'clock, from Profpect-hill, to our quarters in Cambridge; and about a mile from the barracks, were ftopt by a patrole; who, although we fnewed our paffes and our fide-

ورجاعا والالحاط والعاما والعام والحا

99

AVELS

conds, is oblige of excommunic

American offic crupulous puhich one half nding to comp of ufion and ta endeavoured ation with the had the plef the guard-hucompany, amrras, Major li Major Engle bout nine o'du our quarters a mile from i y a patrole; w ar paffes and to fide-arms, would not let us proceed; but faid, he had orders to take every British officer or foldier up after dark. His Lordship then informed him, " that he was fure no fuch orders had been given ;" but the Corporal faid, " he received those " orders from his Captain; and that we " must march to the guard-house." Accordingly we were efcorted, though a very cold piercing night, back to the barracks. When we arrived at the guard, his Lordship remonstrated with the Captain, who faid, "He believed he had fuch orders. " but he was not certain ; however, as we " were brought prifoners, we must re-" main till next morning." His Lordship then defired him to fend to Colonel Gerrifh, at Cambridge, the commanding officer, which he refused. After much altercation and fome perfuafion, rather than pass the cold night without any covering, in their bleak guard-houfe, he was prevailed upon to let us proceed to our H₂ quarters, quarters, upon our figning a parole to return the next morning at eight o'clock; the next day, when we went to the guardhouse, they flocked round us with the fame eager curiofity to fee his Lordship, as they did to fee Lord Napier; we remained at the guard till it was relieved, when the Captain that came to relieve would not take charge of us, nor the other difcharge us; therefore, when the old guard was gone, his Lordship asked the Captain "Whofe prifoners we were?" he replied, "None of mine, and I defire you will go all of you about your bufinefs." We went accordingly. Complaint being made by General Philips to their Commanding Officer, all the answer he received was, that he fuppofed it was fome ignorant Captain, who had made a miftake. Thus you fee we are the fport of these fools. What a footing military discipline is on in the United States ! ...

ولفت والفافا والمتعام المترك والمتمام لمتمام المتعام والمتعام والمتعلقات فللمتعام والمتعام والم

I could

RAVELS

ning a parole at eight o'de vent to the gue und us with fee his Lord d Napier; wi ill it was reliev t came to the of us, nor erefore, when is Lordship rifoners we we mine, and Id about yourk ingly. Comp al Philips to all the answe fuppofed it 1 1, who had D ee we are the a footing mile Inited States!

In

THROUGH AMERICA. 101

I could not fo freely have communicated my fentiments, had I not an opportunity to fend this by an officer going to New-York, from which place he returns to Europe, who will deliver it to you, and at the fame time inform you that he left, in good health, but very low fpirits,

Yours, &c.

LET-

والكر والمتعامل والمتعام المتعام المتعام المتعام والمتعام و

H 3

eldefordies.

LETTER L.

Cambridge, in New England, Feb. 28, 1788.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

فأفرد يربدا حاجا حاجا حاجا حاجا أبأقا حاجا حاصا حاصا حاصا حاجا العالم المالح المالح المراح

O UR attention has of late been engroffed with the trial of Colonel Henley. As the whole proceedings would be tirefome, I fhall only juft give you the fubftance of General Burgoyne's opening that profecution, his reply, and the Judge Advocate's, with the extraordinary opinion of the Court, after the enormous crimes were fully fubftantiated, upon oath; when ill - treatment, mifconduct, and cruelty, were indifputably proved, by fuch refpectable

THROUGH AMERICA. 103

יקרופיי בשמשמשמשמשמשמש

وللك فالكم والمتعاولة والمتعام لمتمام المتعام والمتعام والم

refpectable witneffes as Colonel Anftruther, Colonel Lind, Major Forfter, Lieutenant Vallancy, Lieutenant Bibby, and other officers. But as giving you only the heads of his fpeeches, would take from the energy and beauty of the General's language, I fhall relate it verbatim, as taken in fhort-hand.

At the opening of the Court, General Burgoyne took notice of a diffinction between the charge, as flated in his letter, and General Heath's order. In the letter, the general tenor of Colonel Henley's language and conduct, encouraging his inferiors, and feemingly calculated to excite them to bloody purpofes, was only flated as a matter of fufpicious belief; reafoning upon this principle, it was more candid to fuppofe one infligator of fuch evils, than a general, voluntary, bad difpofition among the American troops; that the direct matter of charge which the General

AVELS

ŖĻ,

idge, in New Engla Feb. 28, 1788.

of late been a trial of Colm roceedings wa juft give you rgoyne's open ly, and the Ju aordinary opin enormous crim l, upon oth nifconduct, a proved, by hu refpectal

General pledged himfelf formally and officially to fupport, was contained in the words " behaviour, criminal as an officer, and " unbecoming a man, of the most inde-" cent, violent, vindictive feverity against " unarmed men, and of intentional mur-" der."

General Burgoyne made this obfervation, as a fecurity againft any cenfure of inconfiftency on his part, for not going at large into matters of inferior moment, as to the general tenor of language and conduct of Col. Henley, declaring he fhould confine his evidence to transactions of the 19th of December, and the 8th of January, except in cafes where the behaviour of Colonel Henley, at other times, ferved to elucidate the principles and defigns upon which he acted upon those particular days. After making this observation, as to the diffunction in the charge, the General opened the profecution.

a Mr.

AVELS

ormally and offic ined in the work an officer, a the most in e feverity again intentional m

de this obler A any cenfur for not goin erior moment anguage and anguage a

"派

THROUGH AMERICA. 105

" Mr. Prefident, and Gentlemen of the Court,

^c conduct of the profecution falls nameslive

" who has the function that, upon the

" I prefent myfelf as profecutor before "you, in charges of a heinous nature against Colonel Henley;—and, before I proceed to adduce the evidence in fupport of them, I think it a duty to my fation, and a part of propriety towards the Court, to declare the principles upon which I act. ولوافي فالوالوا والمالوا والمالوا والمالوا والمالوا والمالوا والمالو وال

" If the reports in my hand, and which " will prefently be brought to teft upon " oath, do not deceive me, public faith " has been fhaken, wanton barbarities " have been committed, and a general " maffacre of the troops under my care, " apparently threatened. In objects of " this magnitude, where not only the " rights of a fingle nation, but the inte-" refts of human nature are concerned, the " conduct

" conduct of the profecution falls naturally " (however difagreeable the office, and " unequal the talents of the perfon) to him " who has the fupreme truft upon the " fpot.

" A fecond inducement to appear here, " is that of private honor. I have un-" dertaken to accufe Colonel Henley, " in a degree that ought to affect the feel-" ings of a foldier nearer than life. It is " fit I ftand forth, in perfon, to maintain " my accufation, and if it fails in point of " proof, to make him the fulleft atone." " ment in my power.

" I acknowledge a third impulsion upon " my mind, equally irrefistible; —grati-" tude, efteem and affection to that meri-" torious, respectable part of my country, " the brave and honest British foldier-" a private man, defenceles, because un-" armed, ignorant of your laws, unqua-" listed on falls natural the office, a the perfon) to h truft upon h

AVELS

t to appear h or. I have Colonel Hea to affect the than life. I rfon, to main t fails in poin he fulleft au

d impulsion w refiftible;-gr ion to that m to f my cours British folde defs, becauses ur laws, unge a ju

THROUGH AMERICA. 107

" lifted to make good his caufe in a court " of juffice, and who has not to look for " redrefs of injury to his own officers...." " I confefs I am too felfifh to refign to any " brother officer the pride and gratifica-" tion of ftanding in the front, for the " defence of men, faithful comrades of " honor and misfortune,......who have " fought bravely under my orders, who " have bled in my prefence, and who are " now expofed to opprefilon and perfecu-" tion, by the abufe of a treaty figned by " my hand,

" Thus much I thought proper to pre-" mife, left any man fhould fuppofe me " actuated by fo mean and paltry a mo-" tive, as vindictive perfonal refentment, " againft a gentleman too, of whom, be-" fore thefe tranfactions, I could know no " harm, and towards whom, if I had any " prejudice, I ferioufly declare it was, from " his general deportment, a prejudice of " favor-

" favor—perfonal refentment ?—No, gen-" tlemen, I ftand upon broader and firmer " ground—the ground of natural rights, " perfonal protection and public honor,— " and I appeal to the great principles and " land marks by which human focieties " hold and are directed, and which, whe-" ther in fituations of amity or hoftility, " are efteemed equally facred by the uni-" verfal concurrence of civilized man.

"And this leads me to a momentary reflection upon the order under which you fit, originating from the report of the Court of Enquiry.

sides, 1919년 19

"It flates—That the Court, after mature confideration, are of opinion, that from the evidence offered on the fide of General Burgoyne against Colonel Henley, it will be most for the honor of COLONEL HENLEY, as well as for the fatisfaction of all interested, that the judgment of a Court Martial should be

AVELS

ent ?-No, ga oader and far f natural right public honorat principles human focial and which, we nity or hoffil cred by the u ivilized man.

a momentary ler under will om the report

fourt, after min nion, that from de of General Be aley, it will be NEL HENLEY, on of all introp urt Martial from

THROUGH AMERICA: 109

" be taken on his conduct, during his command " at Cambridge. The General approving the " opinion of the Court, orders, Sc.

" commented upon by every major in the

" I confefs, I expected General Heath "would have joined iffue with the profe-"cutor, in this inftance, and placed the "Court-martial upon a more enlarged "bafis than the honor of an individual, "however refpectable he may be, or the "fatisfaction of the complainants.-But "be it as it may, my purpofe is anfwered, " a Court-martial is obtained, the mem-"bers are fworn, and they are bound to "decide." "I know you will feel with me the "difference between this and common "courts; fuch a ftate of the minutes as "would fuffice for your internal convic-"tion, after hearing the evidence, or as "would be merely explanatory to the per-"fon who is to confirm the fentence, will "not

" not be thought fufficient here. You " well know the whole of this matter will " be published, translated, confidered and " commented upon by every nation in the " world :- not only reality, but perfpicuity " of justice must appear upon the face of " the proceedings. You are truftees for " the honor of an infant State, and there-" fore evalion, fubterfuge and law-craft" (an allufion to the Judge Advocate Tudor, who is a lawyer at Bofton) " were any " man hardy enough to offer fuch at " your tribunal, would be of no avail; " nay, were it poffible any member could " be warped unintentionally by perfonal " favor, or prejudice of civil contest (good " minds are fometimes prone to fuch illu-" fions) yet here a moment's reflection " upon the reputation of his country, " would retrieve his reason, and what his " prejudice would incline him to adopt, " policy would prompt him to reject."

" Upon

THROUGH AMERICA. 111

AVELS

ient here, h f this matter d, confidered very nation in ty, but perloin upon the face are truffees State, and the e and law-cri Advocate Tu fton) "were : to offer fuch be of nom iny member on ally by perfor civil contest (rone to fuch !! ment's reflecti of his count on, and what! ne him to ado im to reject."

"[]]

"Upon the full confidence, therefore, "of the neceffary, as well as willing "juffice of the court, I fhall proceed "to call the evidence. I have neither inclination or powers to heighten the facts by a previous narrative; let them "frike the view as truth fhall fhew them "in all the fimplicity of their horrors—a "monftrous fpectacle, from which the mind and eye will turn afide with de-"teftation." 기능(학교) 전문(학교) 등 (학교) 전문(학교) 전문(학교)

Here a variety of evidence fully proved the acculation of the crimes I mentioned in my last, besides various others which you will perceive commented on, when the General closed the charge.

After a full examination of the evidence in fupport of the profecution, the Judge Advocate made an objection to the General making any obfervations on it, arguing, that if he was permitted, it must be upon the

the principle of indulgence, not of right; and after fome little altercation between the Judge Advocate and the General, the Court acquiefced, when General Burgoyne proceeded as follows:

" Mr. Prefident and Gentlemen of the " Court,"

"" It being now admitted, that in clofing "the evidence I may offer fuch argu-"ments as to me shall feem proper, in " fupport of the charge, and referving to " myfelf a claim of replying to the de-" fence, I shall enter upon the first part " of the very painful, though by no "means difficult undertaking-painful, "because I cannot pursue the offender " without fetting that offender in points 56 of view, at which every benignant mind " must shudder-easy in every other re-"fpect is the talk, becaufe I will venture "to pronounce the evidence, when ar-" ranged and adjusted, will amount to " fuch Lais .:

RAVELS

nce, not of ith tercation between the General, the General Burger

d Gentlemen of t

ted, that in data offer fuch and ill feem propere, and referring plying to the upon the firth , though by lertaking—parts infue the offer offender in parry benignant in every other caufe I will versiidence, when will amount

THROUGH AMERICA. 113

والأرجع ويعاد والمالي والمالي والمالي والمالي والمالية المالية والمالية و

والكرك والكبوا والمتواد والمتواد والمتمام والمتعام والمتعام والمتعالم والمتعالم

"fuch a mais of proof as cannot be over-" thrown, and will authorize and call for "the ftrongest terms I can use, in my " demand of public justice: And, Gen-" tlemen, let me be permitted to affume " to myfelf applaufe rather than blame, " that the evidence has not been laid be-" fore you in a regular feries; the reafon " was, that though affured by the reports " made to me, that the evidence would " produce conviction upon the whole, I " was ignorant how the testimony of the " particular witneffes would apply, and " point to the progeffion of the charges, " becaufe I had no previous intercourfe " with them. I declare upon my folemn " word and honor, that I had no con-" cern or communication, directly or in-" directly, with any non-commissioned " officer or foldier who has appeared at " your bar, one only excepted, viz. Ser-" jeant Fleming, of the 47th regiment, " who has deposed to the falutation Co-" lonel I

" lonel Henley gave him and his comrades at the Adjutant General's office; the whole matter appeared fo very improbable, that I not only fent for the Serjeant, to warn him of the facrednefs of an oath, and the crime of intemperate zeal that led to bearing falle witnefs; but alfo I thought it my duty to enquire minutely into his character.—I found the man firm and uniform in afferting his facts; and I found his officers unanimous in fupporting the credit of his veracity.

" In every other circumftance I adhered " religioufly to the determination I had " taken, of fectuding myfelf from the " witneffes, not only to guard my cha-" racter, in this region of fufpicion and " afperfion, against the supposition of un-" fair practices ;---I befides had a feruple " of trufting my own mind with too " hafty prepoffessions in a cause, where; " " with and his communications ral's office; the I fo very impufent for the te the facredness the facredness of intemper ing falle wind y duty to enquitracter.—I for form in affettuth is officersum the credit of i miftance I athe ermination II myfelf from 1 o guard my d of fulpicions upposition of a les had a from mind with a caufe, what "" " with the folemn matter of a public na-" ture, is involved the fate of a gentle-" man, high in his military flation, and " to judge by the apparent figns of good " wifhes on this day, high in popular " efteem.

THROUGH AMERICA. 115

AVELS

"Thus unprejudiced I came into Court. I forn to take the flighter matters that might be comprehended in the general words of the charge, fuch as perfonal incivility to the officers, expreffions and actions of peevifhnefs, haughtinefs and difguft. I mean not to prefs, that they exifted, or if they did, I am defirous that they fhould pafs as faults of temper and deficiencies of manners, incident to man's nature, education, and habitual courfe of life; and I fhall confine my comments, as it is my duty to do, to the teftimonies of your minutes, and the circumftances relating to them.

I 2

. Without

"" Without departing from this princi-" ple, it will be neceffary to take a general "view of the flate of things, previous to the " date of the grievances complained of .--"We arrived at Cambridge, paffengers " through your country, under the fanction " of a truce-in whatever capacity we had " been found in a foreign, and as you intend, " an independent flate, we were entitled " to a perfonal protection, by the general " and most facred laws of custom and " reafon; but when, to the promulgated " law of civilization, are added, the un-"written principles,-or written only " upon the hearts of generous people,-" honor, refpect for the brave, the hofpita-" ble wifhes that ufually prefs to the re-"hef of the unfortunate, the stranger, " and the defencelefs man in your power, " how will our claims multiply upon the " mind ! __ Sanguine imaginations con-" ceived yet further motives for kindnefs; " there were among us men fo vain as to · believe

AVELS

rom this print. to take a generi s, previous toth complained ofridge, paffenge nder the fandin r capacity wel and as you inte we were entit n, by the genn of custom a the promula e added, the w r written a enerous peopleprave, the holi y prefs to then ate, the Arang in in your port nultiply upont naginations of ives for kindn men fo vain at si hels

THROUGH AMERICA. 117

" believe, that notwithstanding the sepa-"ration between us, the different duties "we now maintained, the prejudices of political zeal, and the animofity of civil war—yet still the conflict over, it might "be remembered we once were brothers, and the more especially, as it was impossible, by the convention of Saratoga, "that the generality of us should ever oppose America in arms again.

"We were led into these delusive hopes by the very honorable treatment shewn us by General Gates, by that we received from you, Mr. President,—(who was a Brigadier General Glover) when you conducted us upon the march, and by that we afterwards found from the worthy member of the Court near you, (a Colonel Lee) who had the immediate command in this district upon our arrival, and to whom, most happily I 3 "for

" for us, the command is now again " devolved."

" The first fymptom we discovered of " any uncandid defign, was the mode " eftablished for correcting errors and dif-" turbances in the troops of convention; "men were taken up, imprifoned and " otherwife punished by the American " troops, without any prior reference to " their own officers. I very well know with " how much flight and fevere derifion my " fentiments have been treated on this " fubject, but I still infist, that after tak-" ing up men for faults, to have applied " to the officers of the convention troops, " in the first instance, for their punish-"ment, would have been confonant to " every principle of decorum and good " policy, not meaning to deny, that upon " any proof of partiality or connivance, " or undue lenity, it then became a pro-" per and indifpenfible duty of General " Heath,

لاز دور الاستفادات الالالية المالية الم

AVELS

l is now and

we discovered was the mo ng errors and s of convention imprifoned a y the America rior reference ry well known evere derifions treated on the ft, that after the , to have apple onvention trom for their pun en confonant corum and gu o deny, that up y or connivant en became ap duty of Gene Si Her

THROUGH AMERICA. 1-10

" Heath, to take the distribution of justice

"The contrary maxim having been " established, let us examine, in point of " time, though the last in the proceed-" ings, that burft of independency, fcur-" rility and impiety, from Colonel Henley " to the Quarter-master Serjeants at the "Adjutant-General's Office. It is not "without difficulty I can frame my " mouth to read the words, as they were " delivered upon oath, by that very re-" fpectable witnefs, Serjeant Fleming,-" You rafcals, Ec. I'll make damnation fly " out of you, and I will myfelf one of thefe " nights go the rounds, and if I hear the " least word or noise in your barracks, Ill " pour shot amongst you, and make flames of " Hell jump out of ye, and turn your barss racks infide out." o normalinomob suite s comber, and ichies no lotter chan

" mind was on of about the 16th of " The ولأأدافا فاقتصا والوالوالوا والمالوا لمالما لمالوا والمالوا والمالوا

" The Court will remember, that when " this evidence was given, it rather ex-" cited laughter in fome part of the au-" dience, than any ferious condemnation; " this day it feems to make a very dif-" ferent impreffion-the minds of all " around follow me while I contend, that " expressions fo wild, fo unfit, fo unpre-" cedented, from the mouth of a Gentle-" man, argue the most horrid passions " boiling in the breaft-the very enthu-" fiafm of rage and malice .---- I defy any " man to divest himself of that idea; it " will attend the mind through the whole " courfe of the proceedings, and caft a " fhocking glare over every fubfequent " transaction, of fore-thought intention, " and bloody refolution."

" It is very material to obferve, that " this demonstration of Colonel Henley's " mind was on or about the 16th of " December, and it was no longer than " till

THROUGH

THROUGH AMERICA. 121

"till the 19th, before he confirmed by "an overt-act, the principles he had "profeffed."

"The flabbing of Corporal Reeves is "proved by the evidence of Corporal "Buchanan, Alexander Thomfon, and "Robert Steel.

"I paulo here to apply to the follows

"I fhall quote indiferiminately from "the teftimony of thefe witneffes, becaufe "though one may recollect a few fhort "paffages or words more than another, "there is not a fhadow of contradiction, "and I am confident, there never was an "inftance where truth was laid before "a Court by united evidence, more per-"fpicuoufly."

to obferve, the Colonel Henk out the 16th s no longer the

AVELS

mber, that whe

en, it rather e

part of them

is condemnation

make a very

the minds of

le I contend, th

unfit, fo unm

outh of a Gem

horrid palin

-the very ent

ce.----I defy :

of that idea;

hrough the wh

ings, and cat

every fubleque

nought intenti

"It has been fworn, "That on the morning of the 19th of December, Colonel Henley went to the barracks, on Prospect Hill, to release some British foldiers, who were

 were prifoners; that having paraded them,  be read over their crimes, and coming to  Reeves, told him he was confined for in- fulting a Provincial Officer. Reeves made  answer, he was forry for it; that he was  in liquor, and would not have acted fo,  had he known him to have been an Officer."

" I pause here to apply to the feelings " of the Court, whether a more decent, " proper and fatisfactory excufe could " have been conceived --- what did it draw " from the Colonel ?----" Had it been me * you ferved fo, I would have run you through " the body, you rafeal." Continue the comparifon between the language of the Colonel and the Corporal :---- " Sir, I am no " rafcal, but a good foldier, and my officers " know it; and I hope foon to be with General " Howe, and fight for my King and country." What did this produce from the Colonel? "" Damn your King and Country, and an " order to the guard to run him through " the

THROUGH AMERICA. 123

وللك فالكما والمالوا والمراوا والمروا و

والجاجاة ويعاطوا والماطوا والمالج المالوا والمالوا

" the body---not a hand nor a heart could " be found for the butchery. The Colonel, " enraged at the virtuous difobedience of " his men, leaps from his horfe, feizes a " firelock with a fixed bayonet, and firikes " at the man's heart. I call upon the " Gentleman of a learned profession near " me, to inform the Court, when he " fums up the evidence at the clofe of the " trial, whether this act would not con-" conftitute malice propense in law. I "mean, that admitting, for the fake of " argument, that there had been fuch " provocation given, as would have jufti-" fied a man having an offenfive weapon " to make use of it instantly, which would " have been only manflaughter, whether " the intermediate act of difmounting a " horfe, and taking a firelock from the " other, implying time for recollection, " would not have conftituted the act of " wilful murder, had the man died. Con-" fider now, Gentlemen, what followed : ss the

RAVELS

ving parallelite nes, and coming vas confined in ficer. Reeves a for it; that he not have add ave been an Offic

ply to the feat er a more den tory excule a --what did its --" Had it ha have run jouth Continue thew nguage of the :---" Sir, Ia dier, and my for on to be with Ga y King and com from the Color d Country, and prun him thm

"the brave Corporal, in the inftant ex-"pectation that his words would coft "him his life, perfevered, " I don't care, I "will fland by my King and my Country till I die !" The action would have charmed a brave man; it would have been a "fpell upon his arm, and kept the ftroke fufpended beyond the power of witchcraft—what effect had it upon the Colonel? To provoke a fecond ftab, which was only diverted by the intervention of the man next him, who caught hold of "the bayonet and threw it up."

"Gentlemen, when I fay the perfeverance of the Corporal ought rather to have pleafed than provoked, I fpeak not vaguely or romantically----I feel conficious proof of the truth, and when I confider the actions of a Washington---when I meet in the field a Gates, an Arnold, a General Glover, and fee them bravely facing death, in support of

HI SVER Flore No

THROUGH AMERICA. 125

RAVELS

n the inflant e words would a d, "I don't can and my County would have cha would have ba and kept the fu e power of wi d it upon the fecond ftab, wh the intervention tho caught hole wit up."

" of their principles---though I would " fhed my laft blood upon a different con-" viction, I cannot withhold from the " enemy the refpect due to the foldier, " and the immediate conflict over, he " robs me of my anger, and feizes my " good will.

· Lifeantheder zwieds allow apon this ando-

"Gentlemen, in the different parts of " the examination upon this fact, many " queftions have been asked by the pri-" foner, by the Judge Advocate, and by " the Court, refpecting the appearance of " the prifoner's temper. Was he not in " a mild mood ?--- Did he not feem good " humored ?-----Mild murder-----Good "humored murder----are phrafes, I " fancy, will not convey any clear mean-" ing, till men change their ideas of that " crime ! We hear, it is true, fometimes, " as a fort of proverb, to mark the utmost " malignity and treachery of a man fmil-"ing in your face while he cuts your " throat ;

" throat; but, I believe, fuch finiles were " never produced as excufes or extenua-" tion of guilt. These questions, there-" fore, as I conceive, can have no ten-" dency but to infinuate, that Colonel " Henley's paffion was entirely raifed by " the immediate provocation he received. " I am ready to join iffue upon this argu-" ment, and if the gentlemen will reft his " caufe upon it, I will relinquish the " proof established of Reeves's decency " and confiftency, and give him latitude " for all the provocation he can fuppole, " fhort of perfonal affault, and the ne-" ceffity of felf-defence, which I am fure " will not be pretended --- transpose, if he " pleafes, the time when Reeves is prov-"ed to have talked about Ring Hancock, " and bring it back to the inftant where " it was attempted to be introduced as a " fubstantial matter of provocation. He " fhall add infolence of gefture to abufive "terms, and under all thefe fictitious " circumftances, : teorid "

RAVELS

; fuch fmiles xcufes or exten e questions, th can have not late, that Con entirely railed cation he recei fue upon this tlemen will ra vill relinguit E Reeves's det d give him hi on he can fum fault, and the e, which I am ed---transpole, nen Reeves is out Ring Hann o the inftant n be introduced provocation. f gesture to abi all these fiction " circumfat

THROUGH AMERICA. 127

"circumftances, I will take the judgment of the Court, whether Colonel Henley, with full powers to imprifon, and to punifh by regular, decent, legal proceeding, has a fhadow of juftification for making himfelf, in his own perfon, party, judge and executioner." Deferring the conclusion till another opportunity, and willing to embrace the very favorable one that occurs. I remain

Yours, &c.

the state of the responsion of this president.

LET-

والأبوا والواوا والمتعاولي والمتعام لمتعامل والمتعامل والمتعام والمت

LETTER LI.

Gambridge, in New England, March 6th 1778.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

والما حاجا جاجا حاجا جاجا بكركا حاجا حاجا كالحاجا والملح ومصف والمحاجا والمراجات

WITHOUT any preface, I shall proceed to finish the General's address, as if no delay had intervened.

" From the 19th of December, the hands of Colonel Henley were imbrued in blood, till the 5th of January; but it evidently appears upon your proceedings, that the influence of his example, and the encouragement of his precepts, failed not to operate. As the first proof RAVELS

R LI.

THROUGH AMERICA. 129

وجروافي ويهاجرونوافاطواجرواجر والجروا

" proof of it, I request the attention of " the Court to the testimony of Colonel " Lind, concerning the polition of the " centry, which was fuch as must necessa-" rily affect every paffenger upon the " public road, whenever he fired; and " at the fame time with a readinefs to do " mischief, so marked, that he took wo-"men for his objects, and would not " give them time to turn round, ' be bad " orders fo to do.' Let the behaviour of the " next centry, to whom Colonel Lind " applied, concerning the ungentleman-" like behaviour of the officer, with his " confirmation of the whole proceeding, " being ACCORDING TO ORDER, be com-" bined and compared, and it must uni-" verfally strike common fense, that these " were feveral parts of one determined " plan to diffuse the feeds of discord and " fury, in order afterwards to countenance " a general havock.

March 6th 171

ambridge, in Newlin

preface, I in hifh the Generation of the Generat

becember, the were imbrue of January; he pon your prose nee of his exerent of his prese ate. As the app

VOL. II.

K,

" But

" But, it may be faid, the orders under " which the continental troops acted, " were not those of Colonel Henley, but " of a fuperior. Will that be pleaded? " Was the polition of the centries to kill " or wound three or four passengers at a " fhot, the firing upon women, the refufal " of redrefs to Colonel Lind, with all the " indecent manner and language attend-"ing---will these circumstances be al-" ledged to have proceeded from superior " orders ?-If fo, the excufe, indeed, be-" comes more alarming to us. It is not " my part, at this time, to drop a confider-" ation that would lead far on that fub-" ject, I shall only remark, how little the " excuse would benefit Colonel Hen-" ley, who would ftill remain a cruel agent " of-(I will use no improper terms) I " will only fay, a cruel agent of too hafty " principles.

X

* Colonel

RAVELS

, the orders un tal troops and olonel Henley, that be pleak the centries to ur passengers: women, the refi Lind, with all 1 language atta umstances bei eded from lupe excuse, indeed, to us. It in to drop a confi id far on that ark, how little fit Colonel H emain a cruel g improper terms l agent of tool

ss Col

THROUGH AMERICA. 131

" " Colonel Henley has afked, whether " complaints were made to him of the " transactions of the 22d; I believe there " were not-but I dare fay he will recol-" left the reafon-other grievances of the " most atrocious nature, abuse of officers, " and affaults upon their lives, were pre-" paring to be laid before General Heath : " they were in number, and in time, to " have filled up a much longer interval "than between the 19th of December " and the 8th of January, and not brought " before this Court, becaufe I understood " it to be the intention of General Heath " they fhould be feparately enquired into. " Enough has appeared to fhew how the " fystem of perfecution was preferved, and " I come now to the transaction of the " 8th of January.

"Upon a general view of that black day, I am at a lofs where first to carry your observation—the field was exten-K 2 five,

" five, the fcenes feparate and fucceffive, " but evidently guided by one uniform de-" fign.—In one place, a party on the " march are ftabbing and knocking out " the brains of innocent fpectators—at " another, men, under pretence of a pri-" foner's efcape, are glutting the fame " bloody purpofes upon men not pretend-" ed to be concerned—in a third, Colonel " Henley, in perfon (the Britifh officers at " the fame time being denied admittance, " as appears by the evidence of Lieutenant " Bibby) is running men through the " body with his fword.

" The first of these complicated horrors, " in point of time, was the attack first " with the bayonet, and afterwards with " the butt end of the firelock. I will " read the evidence, without a comment" (which was the evidence of Major Forster of the twenty-first regiment, and Lieutenant Smith of the Artillery, who deposed, te and fuccelle y one uniforme , a party on t and knocking a nt fpectators pretence of ap glutting the fa men not preta h a third, Cola e British officen denied admitta ence of Lieuten men through mplicated hom as the attack is and afterwards in firelock. In thout a comme of Major Fan iment, and Lin rtillery, who is

AVELS

THROUGH AMERICA.

133

pofed, that they were within thirty yards, that they neither heard or faw any provocation or infult offered, but were counting the files of the guard; that when the rear came near the British Guard-room, they observed a scuffle, and the guard passed on; upon their going over, found Trudget had been wounded, and the blood running down his face; they ordered the men to difperfe, which they did immediately; that there was a free passage for the Continental troops, and not the leaft difpute upon that fubject. " I have only " now to remark, it is rather a prepof-"feffion in favor of the Continental " troops, to fuppofe that fuch malici-"ous treatment could proceed from a " general fentiment; no body of people " are fo barbarous, unless instigated, and " now is the time to call upon the learned "Gentleman near me, for another duty " of his office, to expound to the Court " the principles of law, refpecting accel-" faries K 3

" faries and accomplices, and to fay whe-" ther a man, by order, advice, example, " or any other encouragement, influencing " another to do a mifchievous act, is not " particeps criminis, at an hundred miles " diftance, as much as if prefent on the " fpot.

" The ftabbing of Wilfon follows in " course of the evidence." (he was wounded in the fide by a Provincial foldier, whilft he was parrying off the bayonet that another was pushing at him) " and it " appears, as little comment is neceffary ".upon this, as upon the former action, " further than to remark, that in this " cafe, Colonel Henley is found to be ac-" ceffary, not upon circumstantial, pre-" fumptive and argumentative, but up-" on politive proof, for it is fworn the " action was done in his fight; that he " made no attempt to prevent it, and "though it be alledged, and even ad-" mitted,

RAVELS

and to fay the advice, examp ement, influence ievous act, in an hundred m if prefent on

Wilfon follow " (he was won ncial foldier, m the bayonet t at him) "mi nment is necel he former adu nark, that int is found to be rcumftantial, 1 entative, but or it is fwom his fight; the prevent it, ed, and even is mit

THROUGH AMERICA.

125

وللك فالموالي والمنافع والمرافية والمرافية والمرافية والمرفي والمرفي والمرفي والمرفية و

" mitted, that he was at too great a dif-" tance, yet his giving no reprimand nor " check to the foldiers, upon feeing the " act committed, carries as direct a con-" viction of approbation and encourage-" ment, as if he had given open ap-" plaufe,

" The last article to mark the thirst of " blood, is the ftabbing Corporal Hadley, " and following Winks with threats of the " fame fate.-It would be fuperfluous to " expatiate upon the frength of the " proofs, the concurrence of witneffes, " that there was no provocation to this " deliberation and wantonnels of bar-" barity. The intention is fo clear, in " my opinion, against the probability of " doubt, that I should not touch a mo-" ment upon it, were it not that a very " grave application was made to the " Court; by the most respectable autho-" rity in it, to confider of the nature of " wounds, K4

" wounds, as matters of the greatest im-" portance-and question upon question " was put to the Surgeon, in every cafe, " to find whether they were dangerous or " not.-Is it poffible that any Gentleman " can mean to measure the degree of the " crime by the depth of the wound, and " to argue that a man may thrust a wea-" pon into another's breast with impunity, " provided he does not touch a mortal " part! If this doctrine holds good, you " ought to establish schools of anatomy " for the education of young officers; the " fcience of diffection should be added to " the skill of the fencing-master, to train " the pupils to that nicety of touch, that " can feel to a hair's-breadth between " death and life; a fort of fiddleftick dex-" terity, that can run divisions upon veins " and arteries, and ftop fhort in time and " tune to the thoufandth part of a fecond. " Really, Gentlemen, I am not willingly "Iudicrous upon this fubject, but it is " impossible

۲۰۰۰ ما دادا الالا الالا المالي ال المالي المالي

THROUGH AMERICA. 137

الجاجات والحالي المالي المالي المالي المالي المالي المالي المالي المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالي

" impoffible to treat fuch an argument " gravely .---- I difmifs it to my learned " neighbour, with one more injunction to " fhew the Court, in law, that where a "man paffes a fword with violence at " another's breaft, whether the wound is " a mere puncture, or goes to the hilt, the " intentional guilt is the fame .---- I have " only one matter further to obferve, upon " the crofs-questioning of the witness; " it has perhaps been wifhed to infinuate, " that at the time of thefe violent proceed-. "ings, there was caufe of apprehenfion " the armed troops might be furrounded " and overcome; the troops themfelves " will hardly thank their friends for that "idea !- What, fhall it be alledged that " the militia of America, who, animated " by their caufe, have been felf taught the " ufe of arms; that body, where every " man is supposed himself to be an host-" fhall fuch foldiers be apprehenfive of " danger, from half their number of un-" armed

وبكولكا كبلكا والمالوا والمالك المالكا لمالكا لمالك والمالك وال

RAVELS

of the greatelt on upon que eon, in every a were dangerous hat any Gentle the degree of of the wound a may thruft an east with impun t touch a m e holds good, hools of anatu oung officers; hould be added g-master, to in cety of touch, t -breadth betwee of fiddleftick & vifions upon re fhort in times h part of a feco am not willing fubject, but it "impoli

" armed, mercenary, ministerial flaves, for " fuch I know they think us !- No, Gen-" tlemen, I reject with you fo injurious a " fupposition ; I give credit to the spirit " and force of your militia;-I do it feri-" oully and upon experience, and it is " upon that credit I found this propofi-" tion, that it being impoffible the officers " and foldiers fhould be induced to acts " of violence, by any apprehension of " refistance, it follows, by the fairest de-" duction, that either there was more pre-" valent malignity than ever appeared be-" fore in the human heart, or that the " whole proceeded from direction, order, " and a fystematical plan.

"Little more, I imagine, need be remarked, to apply the evidence to the feveral diffinct terms I have used in the charge. That the whole tenor of Colonel Henley's conduct was heinously criminal, as an Officer, will hardly be disputed, in a country

وجروافي ويقاط والمتعاط والمتعاط والمتعاط والمالع

" country where the principles of liberty " have been fo deeply fludied. An army " is not to be borne in a free State, but " upon the principle of defence against an " outward enemy, or the protection of the " laws.—The officer who makes himself " the Arbiter of the Law, is guilty of the " most shameful perversion of moral duty, " and his impunity would scarcely be " thought a very comfortable prefage of " the growing liberties of his country.

" I have alfo faid, the Colonel's behaviour was unbecoming a man.—I will not trifle with the time or underftanding of the Court, to enter into definitions upon this term, nor will I fhock the ears of Officers, nor even of the unfortunate perfon under trial, with fo grofs a term as the world in general apply to the act of affaulting a woman, a prieft, or unarmed man, for they are all exactly in the fame predicament. The fword "tawn nisterial flaves nk us !-- No, G you fo injurion credit to the ilitia ;-I do int erience, and i found this prov poffible the of be induced to: y apprehenim , by the fairet there was more n ever appeared heart, or the m direction, a an.

RAVELS

ine, need be rem dence to the fer ufed in the da or of Colonel B cinoufly crimina dly be difputed "com

" drawn for fuch a purpose is no longer " the badge and distinction of a gentle-" man; it is degraded with the imple-" ments of the assaftin and hangman, and " contracts a stain that can never be wiped " away.

I cannot help remarking to you, for I was in Court that day, at the conclusion of this last fentence, the Colonel changed color, and appeared bursting with rage; but to proceed—

"Gentlemen," fays the General,---" I have now gone through the material parts of the proceedings; whether the offences are refolved into vindictive refentment, or more deep defign, or both, it must still appear wonderful that a general massacre did not enfue.--By the patience and the discipline of the British foldiers, those horrors have been avoided; but whatever the escape "may

RAVELS

rpofe is no long Etion of a gen I with the imp and hangman, a can never be m

king to you, day, at the o atence, the Colu appeared built eed—

the General,ough the mate ings; whether ed into vindiff e deep defign, appear wonder re did not enfine the difcipline thofe horrors he hatever the dor "g

THROUGH AMERICA. 141

الحاصد فبعلما والمالوا والمالم المالم المالم المالم المالم

" may have been upon our part, it is " tenfold more material on yours. We " might, perhaps, for the ftruggles of the " defperate are hard----but, perbaps, we " might have been facrificed to the laft " man-we fhould thus have paid a fol-" dier's debt, which we have often rifqued ; " our fall would have been revenged, and " our memories attended with pity and " honor .---- But for America, the tranf-" actions would have remained a foul and " indelible blot in the first page of her " New Hiftory, nor would any feries of " difavowal and penitence, nor ages of " rectitude in government, purity in man-" ners, inflexible faith, or the whole ca-" talogue of public virtues, have redeem-" ed her in the opinion of mankind."

Here the Court was ftruck with much awe, and feemed to be imprefied with a refolve to act impartially-----but to return to the General's fpeech----

" Now,

" Now, Gentlemen, confider the words " of the order under which you fit----re-" form the opinion of the Court of En-" quiry, and fay, whether it is the honor " of Colonel Henley, or the honor of "America, by which your minds ought " to be imprefied, when they proceed to " judgment in this caufe. I clofe with " that confideration, as far as I can im-" impress it upon your breafts---- I truft " they are replete and pregnant with juf-" tice, honor, and duty to your profef-" fion; and above all, with that glorious " whig principle, the words of which are " become almost a general motto in this " country, and the genuine fubstantial " practice of which I shall ever revere in " any country, a due fenfe of the general " rights of mankind." I truft you have all " these qualities, and in that perfuasion, " I cannot doubt what will be the iffue " of the caufe."

« After

RAVELS

confider them hich you fitthe Court of ther it is the or the honor your minds on en they proceed aufe. I clofe s far as I can ir breafts---lt pregnant with ity to your pri with that glo words of which neral motto in genuine subt shall ever rent fense of the go I truft you have in that perfua at will be the

THROUGH AMERICA. 143

After the General had finished, the evidence for the prisoner was adduced, which went fully to substantiate the evidence of the witness for the prosecution, making only this addition, that Reeves, &c. gave great provocation.---After the evidence for the prisoner was finished, Colonel Henley read a paper, which he had figned, attested by the Judge Advocate, and declined faying any thing further in his defence.

Mr. Prefident and Gentlemen of the Court.

" I have particular reafons, and in my "own apprehensions very fufficient, for "declining to fay a fingle word, in answer " to the illiberal abuse thrown upon me, " and the palpable difhonor done to my " country, by General Burgoyne, in this " Court.----It is, Mr. President, a new " thing under the Sun, and, taken in all " its

"its circumftances, totally without example

" The Judge Advocate will fum up the " evidence with ability and impartiality. " Such is my confcioufnefs of having done " nothing through this whole affair, but " what the honor and fafety of my coun-" try abfolutely required, that I shall reft " entirely fatisfied with your decifion, be-"ing at the fame time fully perfuaded, " that the impartial public, at whofe bar " I stand, will join with you in acquitting " me from all the injurious and illiberal " charges of General Burgoyne, and that " they will vindicate me for that huma-" nity, characteristic of an American " Officer, and with which the officers and " foldiers of General Burgoyne's army " have been treated, while I was honor-" ed with the command of the Guards."

Ta

145

RAVELS

tally without

te will fum up and impartin nefs of having th s whole affair. lafety of myon d, that I shall your decision, ne fully perform blic, at whole h you in acquit rious and illin Burgoyne, and t ne for that hus of an Ameni ich the officers Burgoyne's m hile I was how of the Guards

To this poor defence, which the Colonel and the Judge Advocate were feveral days in framing, with a review of the evidence in defence of the prifoner, the General made an immediate reply, which I muft defer to my next, till when, I remain

Controlls reply to the investive dutence of

e the ladee Adro ate notified to me, that

L

. Yours, &c.

LET-

وكفا والموالم والموالي والموالم والموالم والموالم والموالي والموالي

LETTER LH.

Cambridge, in New England, March 12th, 1778.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

N O doubt, long before you receive this, you will be anxious for the General's reply to the invective defence of the Colonel.—I therefore take up my pen, and only wifh this had not to crofs the Atlantic to eafe your anxiety.

" Mr. Prefident, and Gentlemen of the " Court."

" On the day of your last adjournment, the Judge Advocate notified to me, that the וכובנג כפובובובובובובובובו

147

TRAVELS

ER

" the Court had agreed I fhould reply to " Colonel Henley's defence, but had di-" rected that the reply fhould be made " immediately after the Colonel clofed : " He added, that all interefted are to at-" tend and come prepared.

Cambridge, in Noch March 12th, 17

III.

ND,

ng before you m 11 be anxious fu he invective defaurefore take up m had not to crub r anxiety.

and Gentlemen

your last adjourne

" I did not judge, from the manner in " which the Court have treated me hither-" to, that in any inftance they meant me " uncandidly. I therefore fuppofe, that " when they made it a point I fhould " come prepared to anfwer, off hand, ar-"guments which might have been a "month in framing, they faw the evi-" dence before them in fo ftrong a view, " that no argument, on my part, could " be neceffary----Did I want further con-" fidence in this opinion, I could not fail " of deriving it in a most ample degree, " from the conduct of the prifoner, who " has been just now constrained, by his " fituation, to fubftitute invective for ar-" gument, L 2

"gument, and to recriminate, where it " was impoffible to defend. Under the " fanction of the Court, and the circum-" ftances of the time, this candid Gentle-" man has ventured to make use of terms " to which my ears have not been accuf-" tomed; but he is mistaken if he thinks "to draw from me an intemperate reply; " on the contrary, as conductor of this " profecution, I have rather to thank him " for his affiftance. After having furnish-" ed me, during the whole courfe of what " is called his defence, with evidence to " corroborate the facts alledged against " him, he at last steps forth a volunteer " witnefs (the most undeniable one fure " that ever came before a Court) to prove " the heat of his own temper, which is of "itfelf a material part of his accufation. " This remark is the only return I shall " at prefent address to the prisoner, for " the expreffions he has used; but I can-" not quit the fubject, without ferioully " appealing Justin 19

" appealing to the recollection of the " Court, whether, from the outfet, I did " not, in the most positive terms, difavow " all perfonal refentment, and whether " the strongest language which the course " of my duty, as profecutor, led me to " ufe, did not invariably arife from the " facts, and apply to the offence more " than to the offender. I make the fame " appeal against the accufation of " bav-" ing done palpable disbonor to the country " in this Court." Is it to do palpable dif-" honor to a country to appeal to the " justice of it ?----It puzzles my intellects " to conceive the meaning of this laft ex-" preffion; but indeed, Sir, I want no " other vindication than your filence, to " prove that I have not abused the lati-" tude I possefied in either cafe; for would " you, Mr. Prefident, or any member of " the Court, have fuffered a profecutor to " infult an unhappy man, under trial,  with illiberal abufe? Still lefs would

i.

L 3

• you

" you have fuffered the country to be treated opprobioufly. It is for Colonel Henley to reconcile with his refpect to the Court, charges, which if founded, would be a general reflection upon their conduct.

" I understand great expectation has " been raifed of a very elaborate defence " on the part of Colonel Henley, and ac-" knowledge I myfelf little thought he " would throw up his cause quite fo con-".feffedly, though I was always fure, that " neither ingenuity nor fophiftry, nor all " the talents which the ableft counfel " could affift him with, would be fuffi-" cient to effect the great leading propoli-"tion upon which I ground myfelf, as " upon an immoveable rock, viz. that the " proofs on the part of the profecution " do not only remain unimpeached, but " are augmented and enforced in the moft « material

كرحة كجاهاهاهاهاهاهاها

" material parts, by the evidence produced " in the defence.

"Gentlemen, a very few obfervations "will fuffice to justify this affertion.

of the charge man which had a

"The firft part of the charge which the "prifoner brings evidence to oppofe, is "that concerning Coporal Reeves, on the "19th of December, and the firft evidence is Major Sweafey, an officer of rank and "truft in your army, warm in the prefent unhappy conteft, and naturally imprefied with inclinations to favor his countryman, his brother officer and friend. Yet, with all thefe circumfances to bias (fuch is the force of "truth and honor upon that gentleman's "mind) he proves to be the ftrongeft witnefs of the whole trial, on the fide of "the profecution.

L4

a los of the lot building and the

" The

" The beginning of this Gentleman's " relation is a confirmation of all the lead-"ing circumftances mentioned by the " other witneffes. The first new matter " of evidence is, that when he, the Major, " told Reeves he was a rafcal, the Corporal se made a reply to him (not to Colonel " Henley) he was no more a rafcal than " he was, at which he raifed his whip, " and told him, if he did not hold his " impertinence, he would ftrike him .-" One circumstance of this part of the " evidence cannot pass observation, viz. " that the poor Corporal had two ag-" greffors to answer instead of one .- The " word, and the menaces attending that " word Rascal, came to his ears on both " fides. Another circumstance is equally " obferveable, and it stands upon your pro-" ceedings, as a record of honor to Major " Sweafey, that his warmth of temper was " moved at the recital of Reeves's offence, " to give a fharp rebuke, and to use an " opprobrious

THROUGH AMERICA. 153.

كأكاهم كالكالكالكالجالكا والكالكات

" opprobrious expression, but the idea of " chastifement went no further than a " stroke with a riding-whip—Happy had " it been for the prisoner had he followed " fo temperate an example.

"The Major's narrative proceeds in re-"fpect to Colonel Henley's difinounting, "catching the firelock and ftabbing "Reeves, in conformity to all the wit-"neffes for the profecution, except that "the circumftance of ordering one of the "guard to run the Corporal through is "omitted, and his recollection being called "to that circumftance, by a queftion in "the crofs-examination, he replies, "He "did not hear him" (but with a candor "and tendernefs to his oath, which never "departs from him) he adds, "He MIGHT "bave given fuch an order and I not hear it.

"The foregoing evidence, therefore, is not fhaken by any contradiction, but "it

" it is immediately after augmented by an " entire new circumstance, viz. that after " the first thrust, upon Reeves's still talk-" ing to Colonel Henley, he ftepped back, " and made a motion to cock the firelock, " and added, he would blow his brains "out, or words to that effect, when a " British foldier took hold of the firelock " and threw it up. I requeft the Court " to take notice, that Major Sweafey, un-" called upon by any leading queftion, " remembers that act which faved Reeves " from a fecond thruft, accompanied per-" haps with fire. Can any doubt be now " entertained of Colonel Henley's refolu-"tion? I think I have proof they were " obvious to Major Sweafey, at the time, " by the very remarkable part of the evi-" dence, " I then got off my horfe (a con-" duct worthy his character, expressive of " his apprehenfions and his humanity) " and begged Colonel Henley to fend Reeves " to the Guard-house."-The other peti-" tioners

משני בישרפופופופופופופו

" tioners joined their interceffion, and the " man's life at laft was faved.

" It may perhaps be objected to this " argument, that Major Sweafey, upon " being afked, in the crofs-examination, " whether he thought Colonel Henley " made a thruft with an intent to injure " or to filence the Corporal; anfwers, to " filence him; for if he had pufhed his " arm forward, he would have run him " through.

" And in another place he makes use of " the words, " to ftill him,

" I foorn to infinuate, that a witnefs of the Major's defcription meant to keep a falvo upon his mind, and purpofely to ufe any term of ambiguity. I upon my honor believe, that when the Major makes ufe of the words to filence or to fill, he means to terrify him till he held " his

¢.

R

" his tongue; but I beg leave to observe, " that great difference might be made in " the Major's opinion, between the time " the act was committed, and the time " his fentiments are afked in Court .- The " conversation with Colonel Henley, the " belief of his other friends, and the can-" dor of his own heart now perfuaded " him, that the Colonel's intents were in-" nocent. His own interference and in-" terceffion mark his doubts, at least at " the time, and did they not, the Court " will hold themfelves bound to act upon " their own opinion, formed upon com-" bination and comparison of circum-" ftances, and not upon the opinion of " another, which is no evidence. They " will also recollect, that this opinion " goes only to the first stab, and is formed " upon its not being forcible. It does " not appear that the Major formed any " opinion, nor indeed could he, upon " what force would have been the fecond " ftab

THROUGH AMERICA. 157.

واجر فعاداداداداداد

" ftab of a man rifing in a paffion, had " it not been prevented by feizing the " bayonet and his interceffion.

"It is not neceffary to trouble the Court with a review of any other parts of this upright evidence, which is long. The anfwers to the crofs queffions in general go to a full confirmation of the narrative, with this one addition and aggravation of Colonel Henley's conduct, that the Major thinks the language of Reeves was addreffed more to himfelf than the Colonel, till after the ftab.

"Captain Wild, of the Militia, is the next witnefs, and confirms the excufe of Reeves, and every other circumftance in the beginning of the affair, as ftated by the former witneffes, and by Major Sweafey, except the fmall difference that Colonel Henley, not Major Sweafey, "firft

1

1

Į,

" first made use of the word Rascal. He " mentions afterwards another new cir-" cumftance, that the prior witness had " forgot, viz. " Reeves turning to Buchanan, " and damning him, faying, why don't you " fland up for your King and Country .----" Buchanan defired bim to be still. Reeves " replied, God damn them all, Ill fland up " for my King and Country while I have life; " if I had arms and ammunition I would " foon be with General Howe and be re-" venged." ---- He afterwards relates, in a " very circumstantial manner, making the " pufh at Reeves; " Reeves ftepped back " one foot, but the bayonet pricked him," " and the lifting up the piece a fecond " time, and Buchanan feizing it and turn-" ing it afide.

" Upon the crofs questioning, the wit-" nefs gives nearly the fame answers as " Major Sweafey, upon the matter of opi-" nion of Colonel Henley's intention, and " of

ירובה בבובובובובובובובובוב

كالكاكالكالكالكالكالكالكا

" of not hearing Colonel Henley order "a man of the guard to run Reeves "through, before he difmounted, but " repeating the first, the manner in which " this Gentleman expresses himfelf is re-" markable : " I believe you only meant " to filence him, as you spoke mildly, till " Reeves faid, God damn them all." That " Captain Wild thought the Colonel was " in a paffion afterwards, is clear from " his answer to the question, " whether " it is a rule in the Continental Service, to " filence men by the bayonet or fivord; when "he replied, it is not, but when a man's " temper is raifed, be is apt to do things be " would not at other times.

"I cannot quit this evidence, without " claffing it with Major Sweafey's, and " while it does honor to the witnefs, in " point of truth and candour, it is to be " remarked, that it is alfo exceedingly cir-" comftantial, new and leading circum-" frances

"ftances are remembered, none forgot, except the order to the guard, and the Court will fee by and by, why I fo folicit their attention to thefe remarks.

" The witneffes that follow are indeed " of a very different fort; the Court will " recollect the appearance of the first, " Corporal Dean, he told his ftory very "fluently, with that remarkable new "incident of provocation in Corporal " Reeves, who, he fwears politively, faid. "to Colonel Henley,-" If I am a rafcal, " you are a damned rafcal; but after all this " fluency and recollection, upon his crofs " queftioning, neither encouragement, nor " admonition, nor patience, nor leading " question, could draw an answer that " any man could understand; and parti-" cularly the Court will remember his "filence and his countenance, when prefied " to declare his fentiments upon the obli-"gation of an oath; I will not be fo un " candid

فالمرافع والمتحاجات والمتحاصا فالقاط والمتعاصا والمتعاص والمتعاط وال

" candid as politively to pronounce upon " guilt from appearance, but it is the great " value of parole evidence, that a Court " may fee the manner, and thence form a " judgment upon the credibility of a wit-" nefs.—From what probable caufe did the " confusion of this man arife?—It was " not the awe of the Court; and it is fair " to fuppofe it is a weaknefs of under-" ftanding; confequently he was a fit fub-" fubject to be tutored, and if not wilfully " perjured, led into a belief of more than " he actually faw and heard.

" He is followed by a ftring of the beft inftructed young men that ever related a ftory in public---Elijah Horton, Silas Mofs, James Brazer, Wedfworth Horton, and John Beny, most of them lads of fixteen years of age.

" I need not recall to the Court the pre-" cifion of the recital of these youths, nor Vol. II. M " the

" the manner of their delivery .--- It was " the exact tone and repetition of a fable " at fchool, and fo well was the leffon got " by heart, that there was not a fingle " difference in the arrangement, and fcarce " a fyllable mifplaced. But it is not only " in the fimilitude of memory thefe youths " are extraordinary, they are equally re-" markable in the precision of their for-" getfulnefs, with a recollection fo acute, " as to repeat verbatim a long ftory of " Corporal Reeves, and the marked ex-" preffion of " damned rafcal" to Colonel " Henley; not one fyllable was heard by " any British witness, nor by those atten-" tive, circumftantial, respectable witneffes " Major Sweafey and Captain Wild; not " one of the whole five can remember a " word or circumftance refpecting the " Colonel's damning Reeves's king and " country, attempting a fecond pass, and " being prevented by Buchanan's feizing " the firelock; to all of which all the " other

فالأباد المالا المالا الماليا المالي المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية ال

" other witneffes have politively fworn.----" Upon the whole, I contend, that no " contradiction of witneffes could invali-" date their teffimony more than fuch an " exact conformity in circumftances, fen-" tences and words, when it was for the " purpole of five perfons to recollect the " fame flory, and an equal conformity in " the want of recollection in circum-" ftances, that must indifpenfibly have " been as manifest to their observation, as " to that of any other witnefs.

"I owe an apology to the Court for having dwelt upon the invalidation of thefe witneffes longer than was neceffary; for the weaknefs of their inftructor, whoever he has been, has counteracted his wickednefs, and it would do no harm to this profecution, to give a full fcope to their teftimony, becaufe there is no maxim in law more clearly laid down, and more generally under-M 2 "ftood, والكالكالكالكالكالكالكالكالك

"ftood, than that "no affront by words or gestures only is a sufficient provocation, so as to excuse or extenuate such acts of violence as manifestly endanger the life of another.

"The next matter to which the wit-"neffes in defence have gone, is the flabbing of Trudgett on the 8th of January, and there likewife their teftimony has ferved to aggravate, inflead of contradicting the charge. Serjeant Kettle, in particular, expressly fays, he thought the foldiers deferved flabbing, as they would not get out of the way; and in another place, that laughing and fneering as it were (which he acknowledges was the only provocation) was fufficient to juf-"tify flabbing.

"I shall give the Court no trouble upon the evidence brought to prove the pro*vocation* of a refcue; the efcape of "Buchanan

"Buchanan was not heard without a " finile in Court, nor can it be ferioufly " commented on, except in the anfwer " of Efell Pierce, a lad of fixteen, to " the Judge Advocate, who asked him " whether he thought he run the British " foldier into the body; " I believe I did " (fays he triumphantly) I puffed as hard " as I could, and with a good will-be cried " out God damn you." This is but one of " feveral infrances that might be felected " from these proceedings, to shew the de-" gree of rancor to which the minds of " the American foldiers were excited. " Children that had fearcely loft the tafte " of their mother's milk, acquired a thirst " for blood----among those from whom "they took the example; the Colonel ." thinks a man deferves death if he looks " fulky; the Serjeant thinks the fame if " he finiles. Good God! What is the " value of a British life, at such a time, 4 in fuch hands.

M 3

4 In

وللكوال والموالي وال

" In a former part of these proceedings, " I expressed my defire that the Judge-"Advocate would explain to the Court " the eftablished principles of law, respect-" ing abfent perfons being acceffaries to " offences which they have in any man-" ner influenced, and almost every fen-" tence that has fallen from the laft wit-" nefs upon the affair of Trudgett, is a " new call to prefs the confideration of " those principles. I am perfuaded the " learned gentleman will not contradict "me, in the few more leading propoli-" tions I shall add to those I mentioned on " a former occasion, First, " Any man " advising, influencing, or countenancing ano-" ther, be it by words, reward or example, " to do mischief, is an accessary at a distance." " Secondly, Though mischief is committed " by different means than those proposed be-" tween infligator and perpetrator; for in-" flance-----A. perfuades B. to poifon C. be se kills him by any other means; A. is acef-" fary.

فردين بالالما والالالا الماليان والمراجعة والمراجعة والملاحدة والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع

" antroprable for them i and

" fary. Thirdly, When the principal goes beyond the term of folicitation, if in the event the mischief committed was a probable confequence of what was ordered or adwised, the person giving such orders or advice will be acceffary.

" Apply the above maxims :-- Colonel " Henley directs his men only to knock " down any British foldier, who they think " looks fulky at them (you have feen that " he often thought a much greater punish-" ment was due for fuch a crime as a fulky " look) but we will fuppofe, he only or-" ders them to knock a man down, or to " prick him or still him, and a foldier fires " down a common road, flicks his bayonet " into one, and ftrikes at the brains of " another with the butt of his firelock, " Colonel Henley is a party to the mif-" chief, whatever it may be, and upon a " continuation of the principle laid down " before, --- " The advice, orders or influence, M4 " are

فليبتد بالحالجا لحالجا لجالجا فالغالجا لحالجا لحالجا والمتعا والمتعالج الحالج الحالج

" are flagitious on the part of A---the events falling out beyond his original intention, are in the ordinary courfe of things the probable confequence of what B. does under the influence, and at the infligation of A.---and therefore, in the justice of the law, he is anfwerable for them.

" So much, Sir, for the enormities com-" mitted under the orders, influence, en-" couragement and example of Colonel "Henley, when he was not prefent; as " for the reft, it is needlefs for me to fol-" low the witneffes brought by the Colonel " through all the parts, wherein they fe-" verally and diffinctly confirm the former "evidence, upon the charges refpecting  the attempt upon Wilfon in the Colo-" nel's fight, and of the stabbing Hadley " with his own hands .- I fhall only re-" mark one very ftriking circumftance, a " little previous to the latter fact, which " came out upon the fecond examination 66 of

وجروب ويعرونه والمروا والمروا والمراجع

" of that very honorable and fenfible gen-" tleman, Major Sweafey .---- After Bu--" chanan had run away, Colonel Henley " (having first ordered fome men to load, " and put himfelf at the head of the whole " detachment) afked Major Sweafey what " method he thought they fhould take to " recover Buchanan : the Major faid "the " best way would be to acquaint the British " Commanding Officer on the Hill, and he " made no doubt but he would give him up im-" mediately." The Major went with a " meffage from Colonel Henley to Major "Foster, the British officer then com-" manding, who ordered the man to be " fought for and confined .---- I ftate this " circumftance to fhew, not only what " was the proper and ready method of " avoiding differences and ill blood in " fact, but alfo to fhew that this method " was proper in the judgment of your " own temperate officers .---- The Major " preceds to fay, that Colonel Henley ap-" peared

D.

B

" peared perfectly fatisfied with the an-" fwer he brought from Major Foster, but " it is well worthy remark, that the vio-" lent act of stabbing Hadley, was com-" mitted in the interim of Major Sweafey's " leaving Colonel Henley and his return.

" method he thought they fould take to

" The whole ftrefs of the evidence upon " the defence I have not remarked upon, " goes to one fingle point, viz. to prove " provocation. I have admitted that a " centry was knocked down, as I readily " admit every flighter provocation alledg-" ed, and shall not give a moment's trou-" ble to the Court, in addition to what I " argued and quoted in a former part of " the proceedings upon this fubject, from " undeniable authority of law ---- I affume "it to be undeniable, because I under-" ftand, gentlemen, that the criminal and " common law of England, as well as great " part of the Statute Law, are, notwith-" ftanding your prefent feparation, in " force " peared

961919191919191919191

" force and practice in your Government, " and that your articles of war are almost " transcripts from ours.

" The maxims then, to which I have " alluded will hold equally good in martial " and other judicatures.

" I have only, Sir, to revert to the lead-" ing proposition, and affirm that the " charges are proved in the fulleft man-" ner, even by the prifoner's witneffes. " It is not for me to fuggeft an opinion " upon the nature of punifhment. I " fcorn the idea of feeling joy from the " most rigorous fentence; and the most " perfect acquittal would not harm me "further, than that fuch an example " might continue the infecurity of the " troops. Inflexible and impartial justice, " and rigid discipline, are the vital prin-" ciples upon which a Republic rifes to " maturity, and establishes itself in respect " and

" and fame——Should the Court, upon " due reflection, find thefe principles re-" concileable with lenity in the prefent " cafe, and the great tribunal of the world " be of a contrary judgment, this caufe " cannot be faid to have mifcarried.

and other indicatures.

" As to the difpleafure which this pro-" fecution may bring upon me, I fear, in " the prefent temper of this part of the " country, it is not to be avoided. I " ftand in this circle, at beft an unpopular, " with the fanguine enemies of Britain, " perhaps an obnoxious character. This " fituation, though difagreeable, does not " make me miferable. I wrap myfelf in " the integrity of my intentions, and can " look round me with a finile. Implaca-" ble hatred is a fcarce weed in every foil, " and foon is overcome and loft, under " the fairer and more abundant growth of " cultivated humanity .- To the multitude " who only regard me with the transient 66 anger

" anger that political opinions and the oc-" currences of the time occafion, I retain " not a thought of refentment, becaufe I " know the difpofition and hour will " come, when fleadinefs of principle, that " favorite characteriftic in America, will " recommend me amongft my worft ene-" mies: As Chriftians I truft they will " forgive me; in fpite of prejudice I know " they will refpect me.

"But from the prefent refentful fentiments of this audience, fhould I carry my apprehension further, and suppose it possible that misapprehension or misrepresentation of my conduct, should operate upon the supreme rulers of this country to treat me with severity, I hope I should still find myself prepared.---Let fuspension be added to suppension, and health and fortune, and fame, and life, become successive forfeits in this lingering war-I shall lay at last down my devoted "head

" head with this confolitary reflection, " that I have done what I ought ---- that I " have performed to the best of my power " my duty to my country, to the British " troops under my charge, and to my-" felf----and above all, it will be confola-" tion to reflect, that however mifinter-" preted or abufed, I have acted in all " instances, and specifically in this trial, " without a fpark of private malice to-" wards any individual foever. With this " declaration I opened, with the fame I " conclude, and have only to affure the " Court of my acknowledgements for the " patience, the attention, and the civility " which they have heard me."

Common justice—the laws of Nature and of arms, were never more forcibly depicted, that in this flight of ingenuity and of eloquence, in which nothing appeared more confpicuous than truth, nor blazed higher than humanity—determined prejudice prejudice and enthufiaftic rage alone could withftand it—you might read conviction itfelf in every face, alhamed to be convicted—and fee, what will perhaps never be feen again, the blufh of confcioufnefs on the cheek of an American—for black as their hearts are, their countenance feldom betrays them.---Thefe are my fentiments, abftracted from party or intereft, God fend I may have reafon to change them.

Yours, &c.

The sector of the sector of the sector of L E T-informor her night coz-ti bas in 176

LETTER LIII.

Cambridge, in New England, March 20, 1778.

se Mr.

nificherstand entities follow

MY DEAR FRIEND,

كفياط ما جاجا بالحاصا بألغاج الجالجا بجالجا بحاصا والمالحا والمالح الحالم

B Y this time you are become highly interested for the iffue of this trial, and therefore I fit down to give you the Judge Advocate's reply, and the sentence of the Court. After the General had finished his speech, Mr. Tudor, the Judge Advocate, a little vain conceited fellow, in a pert speet manner, addressed the Court as follows:

THROUGH AMERICA. 177 "Mr. President, and Gentlemen of the "Court.

التاجع كيها والمواصح والمحاص

"It has at laft become my duty to fum "up thefe proceedings, which by accidents and other unavoidable caufes, have been drawn on to this period; they have excited much talk and public difquifition, but have acquired greater force from the abilities of the profecutor, than from their real merits.

"Pains have been taken, and every al-"luring art has been ufed to perfuade the "Court to confider what may be the po-"pular opinion in other countries; but, gentlemen, though it was neceffary for "the public bonor, that Colonel Henley "fhould be removed from his command, that first a Court of Enquiry, and then a Court-martial should be held, you will now regard the merits as they affect the "Officer under trial, and the fervice of the "States alone.----The Court fits upon N "truth

" truth and honor, the ftrongeft ties upon " foldiers; you will decide upon those " motives, and upon justice, and your pro-" ceedings will ever remain a testimony " against any men who would dare to ac-" cufe you of partiality.

" It is now my duty to ftate the facts as they rife from the evidence, ftripped of all that meretricious colouring which uncommon ingenuity and refined eloquence have thrown upon it. It is not my intention to catch the crowd by well turned periods; I am fenfible of my deficiency.----I am an American, warmly attached to my country, known to be a friend to the prifoner---yet, notwithftanding thofe reafons may with the jealous fubject me to cenfure, I fhall endeavour to preferve as impartial a line as poffible----I am determined in this caufe to be of no party.

" Infinuations

"Infinuations of a general maffacre "have been dreffed out in all the pomp "which attic language could give, and "wanted only truth to have made it felt "as far as the public were concerned. It "is unneceffary to fay more upon that "fubject; I have endeavoured to reduce "the other charges into method, and "propofe to feparate them into five facts, "in all of which Colonel Henley is con-"fidered as a principal or an acceffary.

"The first is as a principal, with refpect to stabbing, wounding, or pricking (for it has been called by each of thefe terms) Corporal Reeves, of the ninth regiment.

"The next is to prove a Provincial "Serjeant having ftabbed Thomas Trud-"gett, of the twenty-fourth regiment; "Colonel Henley in this appears only an "acceffary.

N2

" The

" The third is the ftabbing of Wilfon, " in which likewife he is confidered as an " acceffary.

"The fourth fact alludes to the flabbing Corporal Hadley, in which Colonel "Henley is a principal.

"The laft contains a general principle, "not only of all the American officers being bloodily inclined towards the Britifh troops, but that Colonel Henley foftered and encouraged principles of this bloody nature.

فبالعاطا والمالحا والمالجا والمالوا والمرافع والمالوا والمالوا والمرافع والمرافع

"The evidence, gentlemen, must be "read, and I shall first read that of the "profecution, and then that in support of the defence, fact by fact.

"The first fact is with respect to Colo-"nel Henley's stabbing Reeves (here he "read the evidence on both fides.)—It "may

الحاف كهاها والمافا والمافا والماقا

" may be neceffary to mention a few cir-" cumftances.

" It appears from the evidence of Major "Sweafey, that Colonel Henley went to " the barracks with the temper of a man " going to gratify benevolent feelings.

" The prifoners were ordered out and " paraded, and the Colonel addreffed them " mildly."

"The Court fits to judge of the credi-"bility of the witneffes; there may be "characters of fo fufpicious a nature that "though they cannot be abfolutely ac-"cufed of perjury, yet circumstances ap-"pear ftrong against them.

"The Court will be pleafed to recol-"lect, that Buchanan was afterwards the "means of getting Hadley ftabbed, and "the Court will give what regard they N 3 "chufe

" chufe to the credibility of his teftimony : " Upon the whole, it appears, that Reeves " behaved with great infolence. It may " be collected, that his looks and manners " were more provoking than his words, " which may frequently be the cafe, yet " with all this provocation, there is no " reafon to fuppofe the Colonel even in-" tended more than to frighten him to " filence; the very act fhews it, the " bayonet was placed against his break, " not thrust with violence; this appears " from the testimony of many witness, " and the arguments to invalidate fome " of them are very uncommon, viz. that " they have exactly agreed. I beg the " Court to recollect with what an air of " fincerity, as well as acutenefs, one of " the youths, in particular, gave his evi-" dence : His ingenious manner must have " made an impression.

ss The

"The General has called upon me to "explain, whether Colonel Henley's difmounting and taking a firelock was not malice propense in law? I think not, for the act that followed it feemed not the "effect of any malicious intention.

"The next fact is the ftabbing Trud-"gett." (Here be read the evidence on both fides.)

"A great deal of ftrefs has been laid "upon the doctrine of accomplice, and "the General has argued with a know-"ledge and ingenuity that would do credit "to the ableft of my profeffion; but the doctrine does not apply, becaufe there "is no proof nor reafon to fuppofe that "the Colonel had given fuch orders, or "ufed fuch influence as to excite men to "acts of violence. His written orders "indeed prove the direct contrary; and "if a fuperior in command is refponfible N 4 "for

"for every action committed by his in-"feriors, as well might we make the Ge-"neral a party in the murder of Mifs "Macrea (the cataftrophe of this young "Lady I mentioned in a letter to you during the campaign) "becaufe the In-"dians who committed that murder, were "under the General's orders; an act of "which I believe he ftands acquitted in "the opinion of every perfon."

I think you will coincide in opinion, that the Judge Advocate plainly evinced his profeffion, as I think the comparison can in no degree hold good: one was in time of hoftilities, where two parties are oppofing each other; the other at a time when a fet of men, unarmed, prifoners, are in a peaceable country, and amenable to the laws of the State for any crime they committed, therefore could only be meant as an obloquy against the General.

command is reponited.

" The

" The next fact, which is that of stab-" bing Wilfon, you will find depends " much upon the refcue of Buchanan. " The Court will judge whether this was " a refcue or not; if it was one, I will " maintain that Colonel Henley, exclusive " of his military command, confidered " only as a private magistrate, in peace-" able times, was justified by law and " cuftom in putting to death any perfon " who attempted to force a prifoner out " of cuftody; and this leads to the con-" fideration of the principal, and I muft " confess the most unaccountable trans-" action, the ftabbing of Hadley. (Evidence on both fides read.)

كهام والموامع والموام والموام والموام والموام والموامي في الموام والموام والموام

" It must be acknowledged, that Co-" lonel Henley acted in this affair with a " degree of warmth which his best friends " cannot defend, and it must rest with " the Court to combine the various cir-" cumstances of his fituation, and to con-" fider

a Colorel Menior follered and encouraged

" fider the nature and extent of the pro-" vocations he received. If they can fup-" pofe a man capable of deliberately and "wantonly running an innocent man " through the body, they will be bound " by their oaths and their honor to inflict " a proper punifhment; on the other hand, " if they think fuch repeated provocation; " fuch infolence and infult, as were offered " daily and hourly to the troops under his " command, and particularly before his " eyes, in the refcue of Buchanan, they will " make due allowances for a high fpirited " officer, animated in his duty and by re-" fentment for affronts offered to his " country. As for the fuppolition that " Colonel Henley foftered and encouraged " principles of a bloody nature by his ge-" neral conduct, it needs no other con-" futation than the want of any proof on " the other fide, and his general character. " My friend is known to be of a warm " temper ; it must be allowed, warmth has " carried " carried him too far; but a more ge-" nerous, honorable or humane man, does " not live in the American, or any other " army. The behaviour of the Britifh " troops in general, who, notwithftanding " their fituation treated ours upon every " occafion with pride, contempt and out-" rage, is notorious, and the inftances " were many which called upon an officer " for inftant and exemplary chaftifement. " How little it was to be obtained by ap-" plication to the Britifh officers, appears " by what paffed with Colonel Lind, and " by other parts of thefe proceedings." كواكا والوالا والمركا والوالوالوالوالوالوالوالوالوالوالو

Leaft you might be led to imagine that the British officers were culpable, I shall quote part of Colonel Lind's evidence, to point out wherein the Judge Advocate had mifapplied the evidence. After proving the centry fired upon a woman, and with great difficulty got accefs to the American officer that commanded, fays Colonel Lind, Lind, " I related to him what had paffed between the woman and the centry, begging he would order him to be confined, that the affair might be enquired into, be told me be could not (thefe are the words the Judge Advocate has applied vice verfa) and that the centries had particular orders to fire upon all women, as well as foldiers, who attempted to pass them. I then obferved that it was a very extraordinary order, that I was fure General Heath could never intend that women fhould be fired upon, and that it must have been a miftake; he replied, that it was not his particular affair, that the centry had his orders, and I might feek redrefs elfewhere; we then parted. This is the whole evidence of Colonel Lind, therefore I leave you to judge how it can have the leaft affinity to what the Judge Advocate has infinuated, that no redrefs was to be had from the British officers : but to the conclufion of his fpeech.

" I will

"I will trouble the Court no longer-----"it may perhaps appear that I have plead-"ed for Colonel Henley more than I pro-"pofed when I began: He is, I confefs, "my friend; the man I efteem for the "goodnefs of his heart, for his fpirit as "an officer, and the attachment to the "caufe of his country; and if I have "erred in making myfelf more his coun-"fel than counfel for the profecution, I "have done fo, becaufe I thought a caufe "fupported on one fide by fo able an advocate as General Burgoyne, required "every poffible fair affiftance on the "other."

Throughout the whole of the Judge Advocate's fumming up the evidence, he has not taken the leaft notice of the Colonel's fpeech to Serjeant Fleming, which, in my opinion, points out his character very ftrongly; nor has he confuted the witneffes produced in fupport of the profecution, fecution, but wifnes to imprefs the Court that Colonel Henley is a good man, and to take his word for it, as he is his particular friend.

This trial, which commenced the 20th of January, and by adjournments, was protracted till the 10th of February, you muft naturally imagine, raifed our anxiety, as no doubt it does yours, for the fentence of the Court, when it was given to General Heath—but it was not given out 'till the 27th of February, thus you have it verbatim from our general orders.

Head Quarters, Boston, Feb. 27, 1788.

EXTRACT FROM GENERAL ORDERS.

"Colonel David Henley, late Com-"manding Officer of the post at Cam-"bridge, tried at the Special General "Court Martial, whereof Brigadier Ge-"neral Glover was Prefident, accused by "Lieutenant

"Lieutenant General Burgoyne, of a ge-"neral tenor of language and conduct "heinoufly criminal as an officer, and "unbecoming as a man, of the moft "indecent, violent, vindictive feverity "againft unarmed men, and of an inten-"tional murder.

"The Court, after mature confideration, are of opinion, that the charge against Colonel Henley is not supported, and that he be discharged from his arrest.

"The General approves the opinion of "the Court, thanks them for their un-"wearied endeavors to inveftigate the "truth, and orders Colonel Henley to "reaffume his command at Cambridge "immediately.

"The General thinks it to be his duty, on this occasion, to observe, that al-"though

" though the conduct of Lieutenant Ge-" neral Burgoyne (as profecutor against " Colonel Henley) in the courfe of the " foregoing trial, in his feveral fpeeches " and pleas may be warranted by fome " like precedents in British Court-martials, " yet as it is altogether novel in the pro-" ceedings of any general Court-martial " in the army of the United States of " America, whofe rules and articles of " war direct, that the Judge Advocate " General shall profecute, in the name of " the United States, and as different prac-" tice tends to render Courts-martial both " tedious and expensive, he does proteft " against this instance being drawn into " precedent in future.

" Signed J. KEITH, D. A. G."

In confequence of this acquittal, Colonel Henley reaffumed his command the next day, but merely for form fake, as the next week Colonel Lee took the command, which which he had when we first arrived. Affairs are much better regulated, every thing is now in perfect tranquillity, and a good understanding has taken place between our troops and the Americans .----Colonel Lee has remedied one great evil, in which I cannot help thinking Colonel Henley was interested, which was compelling our foldiers to purchase all their provisions at two ftores in the barracks, and not permitting them to fend to Cambridge, where they were much cheaper .--Paffes have been granted for a Serjeant. and fo many men, to go out and purchase provisions, by which means the flores cannot impose on the troops, and they now fell their commodities at the market price. Having fo long dwelt upon public affairs, you no doubt will be happy to hear fomething relative to my own.

A Lalla La

The refolution of Congress in preventing our embarkation was a very fevere Vol. II. O trial trial indeed, but we are now become more reconciled; and as Hope, that great fupport through life, never forfakes us, we are in expectation that at the end of the enfuing campaign. we may in all probability be regularly exchanged; for my own part, I have made up my mind ;---and as I find Cambridge very expensive, on account of the great number of officers who refide there, I am going to remove my quarters to a farm house, near the town of Mystic, in order to live a little reafonable; we have had no pay fince our arrival, but what has been in paper money, which lowers very faft, fo that you are compelled to purchase such articles as you think you are in want of, otherwife your money will not be a third of the value it was at the time you received it. The exchange of hard money is now at the rate of forty and fifty paper dollars for a guinea. What must you think of the depreciation in these few months.

وبساحا حاجا حاجا حاجا كإشراحا حاجا حاجا حاجا عاصا حاصا حاجا حاجا

months, fince we were made prifoners, when we could with difficulty get only nine. On account of unavoidable expences, and the depreciation of the paper currency, I have drawn on you for fifty pounds, which bill you will pleafe to honor, and place to the account of

Your's, &c.

LET-

ward he he at ist received a politice de-

بهرولكا جبقاها والواوا والماما والواوا والوافا والواوا والمولف والفاف بدد

ville T T E R LIV.

with, which bill you will pleafe to head and place to the account of Myftic, in New England, May 10, 1778.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

T has ever been a maxim in all ages, and unhappily formed upon experience, that events are feldom anfwerable to expectations; when we form to ourfelves a promifing profpect, how mortifying is a difappointment—fuch is our prefent fituation; for after a fecond application of General Burgoyne to Congrefs, to effect our liberty, in which ftate of fufpence we have been for a length of time, he has at laft received a positive denial nial to his repeated folicitations. They have, however, on the 3d of laft March, paffed a refolve, that Lieutenant General Burgoyne, on account of his ill ftate of health, may have leave to embark for England; and fhortly after this intelligence, he left the army for that purpofe This final refolution of Congrefs, makes our prefent fituation very trying; however, we are forced to be contented, for the greater power bears the fway all the world over.

وجروا والمتحا وال

From the conversation of a number of gentlemen of the first name and property, who were not quite fo violent in their meafure as a Hancok or an Adams; I have been thoroughly convinced, that none of them entertain the most distant thought of withdrawing from our Government at the commencement of hostilities, but now they have joined in that hereditary and fettled hatred which the New Englanders in general ever entertained against the constitution of our country, both in Church and State, ever exclaiming against tyranny and perfecution, have assumed a power unmasked, and are cruel insolent and perfecuting; exclusive of their daily imprisoning and harrassing the poor Loyalists, I think the trial of Colonel Henley sufficiently marks their character.

03

tion

The Spring is now far advanced, and the country around has a charming appearance; our attention to the many novelties that prefent themfelves is taken off by the variety of birds, whofe plumage is peculiarly beautiful, the most remarkable are the Fire-bird, Hanging-bird, Blue-bird and Humming-bird,

والما حاجا حاجا حاكا كألأبا حاجا حاكا كالعاط معاطما والعاط والمالح المالي

The Fire-bird is fomewhat larger than a fparrow, and its plumage is of a fine deep yellow, refembling a flame color, from whence it derives its name,

The

The Hanging-bird is of about the fame fize, of a brilliant orange, with a few black feathers in the wing, which forms a pleafing contraft: It appears as if this bird was fenfible what enemies men, as well as other animals, are to the young of the feathered creation, for they construct their nests upon the extremity of a large bough, not in the nature of other birds, but fuspended at a confiderable diftance from the bough, refembling a hornet's neft; on one fide there is a hole where the birds enter. It is fomewhat remarkable that these nests. though fuspended near two feet and a half from the branch of the tree, and that only by five or fix fmall cords which thefe birds make from the loofe hemp that they pick up, they are never blown down by the high winds. I was prefent at the taking of one of these nests, and it was with great difficulty it could be difengaged from the branch, without deftroying the whole neft. The young ones are the most tractable of the feathered tribe, and in the hands of those who would bestow time and pains, they might be instructed in a variety of little tricks and fancies.

04

the

An officer, who was ill and confined to his room, being a great bird-fancier, had a neft with thefe young ones brought him, which he amufed himfelf with, and finding them tractable, he fed them with flies, for which they would follow him all round the room: in a fhort time he had them in fuch command, that they would at his defire, retire to their neft, and come out again either fingly, or all three together: one he had fuch fway over, that he would take it into the garden, and let it fly into a tree, and the inftant he called it, the bird flew and perched on his fhoulder.

The Blue-bird is of the fize, and nearly as numerous as the fparrow; there is nothing remarkable about this bird but its plumage, plumage, which is of the most beautiful mazarine, and when the rays of the Sun reflect on it, the color is greatly heightened.

The Humming-birds are in great plenty here, but not near fo numerous, as I am informed, they are to the Southward.— This bird being not only beautiful, but having many peculiarities, and being the leaft of the feathered creation, not being much larger than an humble bee, you'll pardon my entering into a full detail of it. The plumage of the cock is beautiful in the extreme, varying into an infinity of colour; in one light it is of a lively green, in another a beautiful blue, and in another a fine golden color: in fhort, in every ray of light you can poffibly turn it, you diffinguifh a different tint. This little creature fubfifts upon the juice of flowers, which it fucks up with a long bill; it is really really diverting to fee it putting its little bill into every flower in a circle; as foon as one is fucked, it flutters to the next; during the fucking the juice out of the flowers it never fettles on them, but flutters continually like bees, and moves its wings fo quick they appear hardly visible, and during this fluttering make a humming noife. This bird is not very fly, but if you attempt to feize it, flies off with the fwiftness of an arrow. You would hardly conceive how predominant the paffion of envy is amongft thefe little creatures; if feveral of them met on the fame bed of flowers, they attack each other with fuch an impetuofity, that they feem as if they would pierce each other with their bills. In their combats they would often fly into a room if a window is open, fight a little, and flutter away again; they not only poffers the paffion of envy, but anger; for if they meet with a flower that is withered, or that is withering, and contains tains no more juice, thefe little creatures, in a violent paffion, pluck it off and throw it on the ground. I have feen in large gardens, where there has been many beds of flowers, the ground quite covered with the effects of their rage.

وتحاجاها والمتعامين والمركر فالمرعا والمركم والمتعا والمتعامي والمركر والمركر والمركر والمركر والمركر

كالكلها فالمال والمتعالم المتمال والمتعالم المتعالم المتعالم

The Humming-bird being fo exceeding fmall, and very difficult to catch, I was greatly at a lofs to procure one to ftuff and add to the collection I am making for you; fenfible that firing at it with fhot would fhatter the little creature to atoms. I knew not what method to devife to obtain one, therefore confulted the inhabitants, who informed me, they never caught them unless they flew into a room when the window was open; for a week and upwards I fat in expectation that that would happen, during which time I employed my thoughts as to fome other mode, when it occurred to me, if I loaded a piftol with powder, and put put fome fine fand as a charge, I thought the great report would either ftun them, or the grains of fand would beat them down : and after my patience was quite. exhausted as to the other mode of catching them, I adopted my own, which I found fucceeded to my wifh; for feeing one alight upon a flower, I fired at it, and it fell with the flower, but was not killed, only ftunned with the report; as fhortly after I had taken it up, it was near escaping; what makes me imagine it was only ftunned was, that the grains of fand had not hurt even its feathers; but to afcertain the matter, I procured feveral only by putting powder in the piftol, which fully proved it was the report that had effect on them.

يتحاداها والمالحا والمالجا والمراجر والمراجر والمراجر والمراجر والمراجر والمراجر والمراجر والمراجر والمراجر

It is looked upon as a great rarity indeed, if the neft of this little bird is found, and it is merely accidental, as they are only to be met with in fwamps, when the trees trees are very thick of foliage. Having procured the bird, I was anxious to obtain a neft, as I no doubt imagined that it was equally as curious as the bird itfelf. but well knowing any fearch that I could make would be in vain, I told feveral Negroes, who where cutting wood in a fwamp, if they found a neft and fhewed it me I would give them a dollar; accordingly, one morning a negro came and informed me he had found one; I went with him into the middle of a large fwamp, and ftopping just by where he had been cutting fome wood, he fays, "Maffa, Maffa, dere is de neft," which not being very eafily difcerned, he got a long pole and pointed to it, when even then I could not fee it, perceiving nothing but mole ; but taking away his pole haftily, he faid, " Maffa, keep your eye dere, and you will fee de old one;" and fhortly after the old one came and fettled on the neft, between the forks of a bough; I afcended the tree, and was then as

as much- at a loss to find it till the negro pointed to it, and I faw the old one on the neft: upon my approach fhe flew off, and kept hovering and humming about my head. In the neft there were two eggs; I cut off the branch the neft was on, and descended the tree, but coming down the main stem, I had the misfortune to drop one of the eggs out of the neft, as I was obliged to bring the branch it was on in my mouth, and although the negro and myfelf fearched for it near an hour, we could not find it; I cannot but fay I was heartily vexed, as the eggs are the greatest curiofity : it is rather fortunate I have one left to fend you, otherwife you would fcarcely credit it, when I tell you, that although the bird, which, as I before mentioned, is not much larger than an humble bee, the eggs are nearly as large as a wren's mostly after the old one can s'narw

usid any bin most of behavior to Upon

Upon an examination of the neft, I was not furprized at my difcerning it with difficulty from the other mofs that grew on the tree, for the outfide has a coating of green mofs, fuch as is commonly on old pales, enclofures, and old trees; the neft, as well as the bird, is the leaft of all others ; that which I have taken is round, and the infide is of a brown and quite foft down, which feems to have been collected from the ftems of the fumach, which are covered with a foft wool of this color, and the plant grows in great abundance here; the inner diameter of the neft is hardly a geometrical inch at the top, and the depth fcarcely half an inch. I have taken peculiar care of it, as well as the neft of the Hanging-bird, and shall fend them by the first opportunity, and am fure you will join with me in the adoration of that Being, who has endowed thefe creatures with fuch natural inflinct, to guard against the wiles of man and other enemies : but what creature creature is there either offenfive, or inoffenfive, but fome of its fpecies has fallen a victim to the rapacious hand of man.

A few days fince, walking out with fome officers, we ftopped at a house to purchase vegetables, whilft the other officers were bargaining with the woman of the houfe, I obferved an elderly woman fitting by the fire, who was continually eyeing us, and every now and then shedding a tear. Just as we were quitting the houfe fhe got up, and burfting into tears, faid, "Gentlemen, will you let a poor distracted woman fpeak a word to you before you go ?" We, as you must naturally imagine, were all aftonished, and upon enquiring what she wanted, with the most poignant grief and fobbing as if her heart was on the point of breaking, asked if any of us knew her fon, who was killed at the battle of Huberton, a Colonel Francis. Several of us informed informed her, that we had feen him after he was dead. She then enquired about his pocket-book, and if any of his papers were fafe, as fome related to his eftates, and if any of the foldiers had got his watch; if fhe could but obtain that in remembrance of her dear, dear fon, fhe fhould be happy. Captain Ferguson, of our regiment, who was of the party, told her, as to the Colonel's papers and pocket-book, he was fearful they were either loft or deftroyed : but pulling a watch from his fob, faid, " There, good woman, if that can make " you happy, take it, and God blefs you." We were all much furprized, as unacquainted, as he had made a purchase of it from a drum-boy. On feeing it, it is impoffible to defcribe the joy and grief that was depicted in her countenance ; I never in all my life, beheld fuch a ftrength of paffion ; fhe kiffed it, looked unutterable gratitude at Captain Fergufon, then kiffed it again; her feelings were inexpressible, the knew VOL. II. P not not how to express or shew them; she would repay his kindness by kindness, but could only sob her thanks; our feelings were lifted up to an inexpressible height; we promised to search after the papers, and I believe, at that moment, could have hazarded life itself to procure them.

والما فالما فالما فالمالة المالية المالي

You know, I ever had an averfion to tea, as being highly detrimental to the flomach, and always made use of fome fubfitute, I have now adopted one, which the inhabitants make use of, ever fince they made a virtue contrary to their inclinations, of not drinking tea at the time of the Bofton Port Bill, which is the flowers that grow upon the faffafras tree; as to the efficacy of the root of this tree, in all feorbutic cafes, it is well known, I therefore conceive the flowers must have more virtue; the flavor that they produce is extremely delicious, greatly refembling that of a peach: the

يتديدا حاجا حاجا حاجا فأفرحا عرجا حاجا حاجا مالعا معاملا معاملا معاطر والمراجع

الألااعة كجلالواواواواواواوا

the faffafras trees grow in abundance, they are fcattered on the borders of the woods and near bufhes and inclofures; and are generally one of the firft trees that fpring up on uncultivated ground; the cows are extremely greedy after the fhoots of the tree, and fearch for them every where; if they are in an enclofure the cattle will knock down the fence to get at them; the women make use of the bark for dying worfted, which produces a beautiful orange that does not fade in the fun.

In the beginning of this letter I mentioned that General Burgoyne is failed for England. No doubt, on his arrival, his enemies will be attacking him in all quarters, do not you be led away with the general voice and follow a mifled faction, the General, in every fituation of danger and difficulty, ever had the confidence of the army; even in the late P_2 recent

đ

12

n.

recent affair of Colonel Henley's, they were perfectly fatisfied with his efforts and exertions to procure them redrefs; many ill-minded and malicious perfons will affert that he has fought his own eafe and comfort and forfaken his diftreffed army : In that refpect I can with the utmost confidence affert, that neither officer or foldier expreffed diffatisfaction at his return to England; fo far from it, it was their with he fhould go to Europe to justify his own and their conduct. He has fhared at all times the dangers and afflictions in common with every foldier; they look on him as their friend, and would receive him in perfon, or any accounts of him with marks of affection; and withing you may be impreffed with those ideas, and hold it forth against all calumniators, I remain

Yours, &c.

LET-

containing of the arcillary, advanced corps, and nintheregiment, on the 15th of laft fronth from Brothed: Hill, 10 a place

L È T T E R LV.

Mystic, in New England, May 20th, 1778.

ters, on Winter Lill,

بلولولك بالكافا والوالوالم والمروا والمالما والمالوا والمالوا والمروا و

MY DEAR FRIEND,

THE intentions of Congress are very apparent as to our detention as prifoners, no doubt as hoftages, in cafe of failure to the Southward the enfuing campaign, and apprehensive that fome diverfion may be made near Boston, fo that our foldiers might either be released, or escape to any army that may make a landing. The Council of Boston, under pretence that the troops would fare better, removed the first brigade of the British, P 3 consisting confifting of the artillery, advanced corps, and ninth regiment, on the 15th of laft month from Profpect Hill, to a place called Rutland, fifty-five miles further up the country, at which place they are to ftay till further orders from Congrefs; the reft of the British troops are shortly to follow; as to the Germans, the Americans look upon them fo tame and submissive, that they are to remain at their old quarters, on Winter Hill.

By an officer who came from Rutland, we learn, that the first brigade arrived there the 17th, about two o'clock; the men were fent to barracks that were picketed in with pickets near twenty feet high, and had been treated with great feverity, very badly supplied with provifions, and denied to go out for any thing amongst the inhabitants. The officers with great difficulty obtained quarters in the neighbouring houses, and those at a confiderable confiderable diftance from each other. It happened rather fortunately for the troops, that a veffel under a flag of truce arrived with fome neceffaries just before they marched, otherwise the men would have been in a wretched state.

We do not fo readily procure neceffaries from the country people as we were accuftomed, having only Congress money to pay them for their commodities, for they entertain little opinion as to its value; and I am induced to think that the earnest civility and defire to oblige, which they first shewed us, proceeded from no other motive, than that they should receive hard money in payment for their goods. The trees are now in full bloffom, and as every houfe has an orchard adjoining, the country looks quite beautiful; upon enquiry of the inhabitants, I find most of P_4 the

the European fruits have degenerated in New England, except the apple, which it is faid, if it has not improved, it has multiplied exceedingly. I am the more induced to credit this, as the ufe of cyder is more common here, than in any other part of the world. Most of our roots and garden-stuffs have had good fuccefs, but the feeds, either for want of proper care, or the methods of preferving them, do not thrive fo well; wheat is apt to be blighted, barley grows dry, and oats yield more ftraw than grain; but to fupply these defects, the maize, or Indian corn, thrives exceeding well, which is their grand staple commodity, that supplies both themfelves and cattle : as to Indian corn, it is now fo generally known in England, I shall not tire your patience with a long defcription of it; but only observe, that were the heat more predominant in the fummer months in England, I think it might eafily be raifed; its grain is certainly the

وردا الالمالا الالمالا المالي المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع

the heartieft, and most firengthening food for cattle and poultry, and gives their meat a firmnefs and exquisite flavor. I am averfe to feeding horfes with it, for it makes them fo liable to founder. A few days ago I faw an inftance of its perniciouspeffects at an ordinary, where a man, being in liquor, and had rode hard, and his horfe exceedingly heated, would infift on its being fed----the poor creature eat his meal very heartily, and in about two hours after was deprived of the use of all his limbs, and lay on the ground trembling and fhaking every nerve; the only remedy that could be applied, was to take off his fhoes, and drag him into a wet fwamp, and it was near four days before the creature could stand on its legs, and then it walked very crippled; it grieved me much as it was a very fine blood horfe, that the owner had lately got from Virginia, which differ widely from the New England horfes; for they, of all the various breeds of

المركا كالجافية والمالك المالك الم

of that noble animal, certainly are the most peculiar and diabolical to ride; the horfes in general have a pretty good head and neck, and from that to their rump, they fall off furprifingly; they are all, without an exception, what is termed amongst jockies, goofe-rumped and cathamd; in a natural pace they will shuffle on for eight or nine miles an hour; it is not that eafy kind of pacing that is taught ladies horfes, but an unaccountable wriggling gait, that till you are accuftomed to it, you are more fatigued in riding two miles, than a whole day's fox-chace; in fhort, you cannot poffibly form a just idea of it, unlefs you were mounted on a New-England Rofinante, which title, they juftly merit, for I affure you, they are very much a la Quixote; and to meet a New-Englander riding in the woods with his blazing iron (the term they give to a musket or gun) you might miftake him for the knight of the Woeful Countenance ; their horfes

وتدار المتعامية والمتعافي فالمتعامية والمتعامية والمتعامية والمتعالم و

horfes are of a very flender make, and not over fat, with a long fwitch tail and mane down to the horfe's knees; for I fhould obferve to you, they never cut either, then the mafter, with his long legs, beftrides it, which are in firrups that the toe can but just reach; then his upright position, with his long lank vifage, and on his head an old grizely caxon and a large flapped hat, with his faddle-bags behind, and provisionbags before, and his blazing-iron on his fhoulder; picture to yourfelf a man thus mounted, of fuch an outré appearance, and forbear to laugh if you can. ولالمتعلقا والمتمام المتمام المتمام المتمام والمتمام والمتعلم والمتعالم والمتعام والمتعام والمتعام والمتعلم والمت

Diew-Englands are very memerous, and

Exclusive of Indian corn, the inhabitants plant great quantities of fquashes, which is a species of pumpions or melons; the feed of it, when imported from Europe, by the first fettlers, has ever fince been cultivated with affiduity, and found to thrive much better than in Europe; the fruit has an agreeable taste, made made use of at table as a vegetable, and dreffed as turneps.

The foil of New-England is various, but I observed it was more profilic towards the Southward ; there are excellent meadows in the low grounds, and good pasture almost every where; their best meadows will yield about a ton of hay by the acre; fome will produce two, but that is what is termed timothy hay, which is rank and four. The country, as I before observed, is not favorable to any grain except the Indian corn; the cattle in New-England are very numerous, and fome of them very large; hogs are likewife in great abundance, and particularly excellent, being fattened upon the Indian corn, and fome fo large as to weigh twenty-five fcore.

يندادا حاجا حاجا حاكر كأكردا جاجا كركا كالكالك وكالكا كالكرك

We have of late been greatly amufed in catching of ell-wives, or ale-wives, a fpeobacia cies

bus , violate diverbany the nost and

cies of fifh, greatly refembling a herring, both as to make and flavor, but fomewhat fuller; they come up all the creeks and inlets from the fea at this feafon to fpawn, floating in with the tide in large floals, and proceeding as far as they can for frefh water; when the tide is going out they return, at which time they are caught by means of nets faftened round a hoop, and affixed to a long pole; the nets are very deep, and at one haul you may catch two or three dozen. It is part of the traffic of the inhabitants, who falt them down, and barrel them for the Weft-Indies.

I need not tell you of a reftles disposition we English are of, and that we must be employed on something, fituated as we are, without books, newspapers, or any other amusement: some officers, who came from the West of England, have inflituted the diversion of fighting of cocks; for my own part, you know, I ever esteem-

tion of the letter

ing

it a barbarous custom, and a difgrace to our nation, and cannot but fay I was a little pleafed at a reprimand that fome officers met with from an old woman, to whom they had applied for a couple of fine birds that were in the yard, fhe enquired if they were to fight, or to kill for eating; being told the former, fhe in a most violent rage exclaimed, " I fwear " now you shall have neither of them; I " fwear now I never faw any thing fo " bloodthirsty as you Britonions be; if " you can't be fighting and cutting other " people's throats, you must be fetting two " harmlefs creatures to kill one another; "Go along, go; I have heard of your " cruel doings at Watertown (the place " where the cocks fought) cutting off the " feathers, and the poor creature's comb " and gills, and putting on iron things " upon their legs; go along, I fay." I could not help laughing to fee them decamp in hafte, as the old woman had worked herfelf into fuch a paffion, that they

아니 ㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋㅋ

they expected the would have ftruck them with her crutch, which the lifted up to give the greater energy to her language. This is the only inftance in my memory, that can reflect credit on American humanity.

frength is chiefe imputed abein

New-England produces very good timber, the woods and fwamps abounding with oak, elm, afh, cyprefs, pine, chefnut, walnut, cedar, aftrin, beach, fir, fassafafras, and fumach, with all other kind of trees that grow in England; the firs are of an extraordinary growth, for mafts, yards and planks; the fumach is much used by the tanners and dyers, and the cedar produces fweet gums, befides being extremely ufeful in making fhingles for coverings to their dwellings, as being the most durable, and least injured by the weather; but the treafure and glory of the woods are the monarch oak, the fpruce, and fir trees, which are in fuch abundance, that the navy of England might be fupplied with all forts of naval stores at a cheaper rate than than from the Baltic; and it is on this account that they build more fhips in this province, than all the other parts of America; and they have the reputation of being very well built and firong; to this ftrength is chiefly imputed their being fuch bad failing veffels.

To Europeans, the noife of the frogs, of which there are vaft numbers, and of various fpecies, is at first very alarming, and till accustomed, you are at a loss to make out from whence fuch a hideous noife proceeds, there are thirty different voices among them, fome of which refemble the bellowing of a bull. In order that you may conceive how numerous they are all over the continent, as likewife how clamorous, I shall relate a circumstance which has been told me, and vouched for an absolute fact by the perfon who related it.

والالا المالا المالا المالي فالمالي المالي المال

and in of mark stores as a charge do en One

One Summer night, in the month of July, 1758, the town of Windham, which ftands on the borders of Winnomantic' River, in Connecticut, was greatly alarmed by a number of these reptiles which were marching, or rather hopping in a body, from an artificial pond, near three miles fquare, that, by the exceeding heat of the weather was dried up. This pond was about five miles from Windham, in their way to the Winnomantic, were under the neceffity of keeping the road that led through the town; they entered about midnight; the bull-frog, as being the most powerful, in the front, the rest following; they were fo exceedingly numerous, that they were fome hours paffing through, and for want of water unufually clamorous. The inhabitants were greatly terrified, and fled from their beds naked, near half a mile, imagining it was the French and Indians ; the men, after a little recollection, finding no enemy in purfuit, VOL. II. muffered mustered courage to return ; when they came near the town, they imagined they diffinctly heard the words Wight, Helderkin, Dier, Tété, which refembles the noife they make, and in their fright they thought the last word meant treaty, when three of them, in their fhirts, approached to treat with the General of the French and Indians; but being dark, and no anfwer given, their terrors were greatly encreafed, and they were diffracted between hope and fear; at length day appearing, they were eafed from all their anxiety, by discovering that this terrific enemy was an army of frogs, dying with thirst, going to the river for a little water. The people of Windham have ever fince been laughed at for their timidity by the New-Englanders; but I really believe, in a fimilar fituation, thefe Yankees would not have felt themfelves much bolder.

بالالالا المتعامية والمتحافية والمتعامية والمتعامية والمتعامية والمتعالي والمتعالي والمتعالي والمتعالي والمتعالم والمتع

At

At this feafon of the year, every night you are furrounded with mufic, not the most harmonic, from frogs, bull-frogs, hooping-owls, and the whipper will, a bird fo named by its nocturnal fong, being a conftant repetition of whipper will; it is also known by the name of the Pope, by reafon of its making a noife refembling that word: when it alights upon a tree or fence. I have endeavoured feveral times to fhoot one, but owing to its being dark, and their flying fo exceedingly fwift, I have never been able to kill. By the information I have gathered from the inhabitants, I find it is about the fize of a cuckow, with a fhort beak, long and narrow wings, a large head, and mouth enormous, what is remarkable, it is not a bird of prey; under the throat there is a kind of skin which it can expand, and fill with air at pleafure, and that enables it to make the noife which refembles the Q 2

ورسا الالمالا الالمالا المالي أثراما والمالوا والملاقط والملك والملك والملك والملك والملك والملك والملك والمرابع

the word Pope. From this defcription, I conceive it to be a Mufquito hawk, abundance of which are to be feen in the day time; I accordingly fhot one, and found it exactly correspond to the defcription of the other, only I could not perceive that loofe fkin under its throat; I rather think that circumstance is imaginary, and am apt to conclude, that the Mufquito hawk and whipper-will are the fame bird.

that fring to exceedingly fwift, I have

I am forry to inform you that the Americans are too fuccefsful in enticing our foldiers to defert; a few days fince the whole band of the fixty-fecond regiment, excepting the Mafter, deferted in a body, and are now playing to an American regiment in Bofton. The temptations heldout to our foldiery are very great, and it muft be a Corporal Reeves, and fuch as poffefs his principles who can withftand them; think think how far it must operate on a foldier's mind, that by defertion he shall be free and protected, allowed to follow his trade. or if he enters their army, obtain a commiffion ; there is now a Major Brown, who has fome post in the supplies of provisions, he was a private, and deferted from the forty-feventh regiment, at the battle of Lexington and Concord. The fellow, confcious of his bafenefs, when he meets an officer of that regiment, rides haftily away, but you must allow it is rather grating to be in the power and under the command of fuch a villain. You will be pleafed with a noble and animated faying of a little drum-boy, not ten years old : this boy's father, who belonged to our regiment, fome time fince deferted into Bofton, and has been as nigh as he could venture with fafety to our barracks, to entice or feize his fon, and take him with him ; but finding it in vain he fent an American to en-Q3 - treat

وبداد المالجا لحالما كالأنز فالجالجا لحالجا لحالجا لحالجا والعالج المالج المالج المالج المالج المالج المالج الم

treat him to go to his father, when the little fellow replied, "No; tell my fa-"ther, if he is fuch a rafcal as to defert "his King and country, his fon won't; "he has fed at their expence, and will die "in their fervice." I remain the second of a stand out of RT.

Your's, &c.

LETTER LVI.

not and propher and and and the state

Myflic, in New England, Sept. 10, 1778,

MY DEAR FRIEND,

 \mathbf{Y} OU must not be furprized if you hear of a massive; bloody purposes are apparent fince my last, three men have been fired at, one of whom was wounded, but the most melancholy cataftrophe is the death of Lieutenant Brown, of the twenty-first regiment, who was shot dead in a chaise, as he was conducting two females from the barracks. The centinel who shot him was a little boy, scarce fourteen, who called out to him to stop, \mathbf{Q} 4 but

but the horfes being headftrong, he could not, and putting his head out of the chaife to inform him fo, the little rafcal in an inftant levelled his piece and fhot him through the head. Had it not been for a few of our officers who happened to be on the fpot, and the great difcipline of our men, the boy would have fallen an inftant facrifice; as it was, notwithstanding the prefence of our officers, the men could fcarce be reftrained from feizing the boy from the American guard. By this fad accident fell a brave young man, who had fignalized himfelf during the campaign, and who, had he lived, would have been an ornament to his profession,

When the matter was reported to General Phillips, he inftantly wrote the following letter to General Heath :

"Murder and Death has at length taken place; as to justice I do not alk "it,

הבס בפרפרפרפרפר

" it, every principle of it has long forfaken " these provinces, I only request that an " officer may be permitted to go to the " Head Quarters of General Washington, " to lay the affair before him."

To this letter the General received no anfwer, but an order came to the Commanding Officer of the American troops, to put General Phillips under an arreft, and to confine him to his houfe and garden; he was accordingly laid under an arreft, and his houfe and garden is furrounded by centinels.

mencement of hoffilities, to plunder, ran-

A few days after the above melancholy event, permiffion being obtained, the remains of poor Brown were interred in the church at Cambridge; all the officers at Cambridge and the environs attended, a most mournful fight ! you can eafily paint to your imagination what our feelings must have been at the time, for the loss

lofs of a young man univerfally refpected, efteemed, beloved, and the reflection, we knew not how foon it might be our own fate; for in the hands of fuch wretches, our lives are very precarious, and of little value.

I cannot pais over the littleneis of mind, and the pitiful refentment of the Americans, in a very trifling circumstance, during the time the fervice was performing over the body, the Americans feized the opportunity of the church being open, which had been shut fince the commencement of hostilities, to plunder, ranfack and deface every thing they could lay their hands on, destroying the pulpit, reading-desk and communion-table, and ascending the organ lost, destroyed the bellows and broke all the pipes of a very handsome instrument.

NYOUL IN ALL SALES WILL OUT

Although

Although, (as General Philips obferved in his letter, and which I am induced to believe, is the real fituation of affairs in these provinces) every principle of justice had fled from them, still the Americans were not fo daring as to overlook fuch an atrocious crime without fome appeal to justice, were it only to deceive the populace with an appearance of it, and therefore ordered a General Court-martial on the boy who fhot Lieutenant Brown, the judgment of which was fent by General Heath to General Phillips, that he might give it in orders to the British troops, which was as follows : " The Ge-" neral Court-martial that fat upon the " trial of an American centinel, for fhoot-" ing Lieutenant Brown, of the twenty-" first regiment, acquit the faid centinel, " having done his duty as a good foldier."

Infults are not only fhewn to the officers and foldiers remaining at Cambridge, but but if poffible, they are treated worfe at Rutland. As Mr. Bowen, the furgeon to the ninth regiment, Lieutenant Toriano, of the twentieth regiment, and Lieutenant Houghton, of the fifty-third regiment, were taking an evening's walk, they were met by an inhabitant, who, from his office of Select Man (these are a kind of overfeers to their meeting-houfes, who regulate the affairs of the parish, and report perfons for non-attendance at worship, compelling those walking in the ftreets, or travellers, on a Sunday, to go to fome place of worship; they are very confequential perfons, and very officious) derived no fmall authority, and who had on every occafion diffinguished himself for his infolence and perfecution of the prifoners of war, as well as the unfortunate friends of Government, who had remained in that part of the country; this man of confequence charged those gentlemen with having trefpafied on his property, and before they

ירובה בברברבובובובובובו

they could explain that they had not been off what they confidered as the high road, he, in a most menacing manner, accompanied with many opprobious epithets, shook a whip over their heads. Mr. Bowen, who happened to be next the man on this occasion, refented the infult with a blow, a conflict enfued, in which the countryman was worsted, though Mr. Bowen was feverely bruised on the occasion, the countryman prefuming, as well from his perfonal strength as his authority.

Though this infult had been given thefe gentlemen in the fight of many people on the road, who alfo bore teftimony to Mr. Bowen's alone having ftruck him, thefe three gentlemen (through the influence of this Select Man) were fhortly after their return to their lodgings, taken by a party of the guards, conveyed to the guardhoufe, where they paffed the night in the common common guard-room. The foldiers of the guard occupying the platform, these gentlemen were obliged to put up with the dirty floor, where they fuffered every kind of indignity from the guard, who, not fatisfied with making use of the most indecent language, would fpit on them as they lay on the floor; in the morning they were removed to an adjoining barrack room, where they were very little better accommodated, and after seven or eight days confinement, they were given to understand, they were to be delivered up to the civil power.

والمالا المالية المالا المالية المالية

The humanity of Major Carter, of the artillery, who was the fenior officer of the Convention troops at Rutland (as well as confidering it his duty to interfere) induced him from the first of the confinement of these gentlemen, to interest himfelf very warmly in their behalf, he had frequently remonstrated with the Commanding

الألااحد كالماحاد واحادادا

manding Officer of the guard, at the cruelty and injuffice of their conduct towards them, but not being able to obtain redrefs, demanded a pafs to fend an officer to Cambridge, in order to reprefent the affair, through General Phillips, to the Commanding Officer at Bofton. Major Carter then informed thefe Gentlemen, that as he thought it neceffary for the good of the troops in general, to make their treatment a public concern, it was his orders they fhould wait the refult of General Phillips's interference with the American General, and not to act for themfelves in the bufinefs on any account.

Before the return of the officer from General Phillips, these gentlemen were taken to a justice, who resided fome distance from Rutland, before whom they were conducted with all the ceremony of criminals going to trial. The magistrate, who was an apothecary, possible a few few hard words, and a moft ftarched puritanical air, and perhaps on this account, had been judged under the new government the only man of the neighbourhood capable of fupporting the dignity of a country juffice : he was furrounded with a numerous train of officers of the police, fuch as committee and felect men, who, with a number of fpectators, whom curiofity had brought together, to be prefent at the trial (as they exprefied themfelves) made a very formidable groupe.

The gentlemen were no fooner brought before this very awful Court of Juffice, than Doctor Frienck (for fo the Juffice was called) who was placed in the moft confpicuous part of the room in an arm chair, with infinite folemnity, and all the importance of office (without even permitting the leaft accufation as to any offence committed by them) afked them "whether they pleaded guilty or not guilty "of the crimes laid to their charge?" On

יכוביבי בשובובובובובובובים

On this occasion, I think it would have been difficult for any indifferent perfon to have reftrained his rifible faculties; nay, the gentlemen themfelves have declared it was not without the utmost circumspection they could compose their muscles to this curious demand of the Justice ; one of the gentlemen informed this worfhipful magistrate, " That they having fuffered " fo many days confinement under the " military guard very unjufly, as they con-" ceived, and their commanding officer " having thought it neceffary to make the " treatment they had met with a public " concern, they looked up to their General " for redrefs, confequently were not al-" lowed to plead either one way or the " other !"

The Justice, enraged at what he conceived a flight to his authority, without hefitation committed them to prison, with the additional charge of contempt of Court, Vol. II R and

and the next morning they were conducted by a body of armed conftables to Worcefter, about ten miles diftance, and were lodged in the county jail, where, with two gentlemen, who were imprifoned as enemies to the States, they occupied a very confined dungeon, out of which a woman had, a very fhort time before, been taken to execution, for the murder of her hufband.

On their first entrance into this most gloomy state of security, it may easily be imagined, their feelings received no small shock, and their fellow prisoners perceiving their distress, one of them, who had been bred to the sea, by way of offering some consolation in his own way, observed, that he could only compare their situation to that of so many young bears, whose missfortunes were all to come. The excessive heat of the weather, with the confinement in this detessable hole, which, when their mattrass were laid on the floor,

الأثاعد كجاجاحاداواواواواوا

919191919191919191919191919191

floor, compleatly filled it; and from whence, on no occafion, or the preffing calls of nature, they were allowed to retire, must, in a very short time, have rendered their existence burthensome, if not deprived them of it, had they not found means of foftening the heart of a Mulatto woman, who ferved them with provisions through a hole, and who, by the force of bribes and fair promifes, was prevailed upon to open the door upon these occafions for fresh air.

During their confinement, no attention was wanting on the part of their brother officers, to alleviate the horrors of their wretched fituation, who gave them hopes of foon being relieved, through the interposition of their General. But at the ex= piration of three days, they received a meffage by an officer from Major Carter, at Rutland, expreffing his extreme concern that he should in any measure be acceffary 10

R 2

to their being fent to prison, at the fame time lamenting that his reprefentation of their very unjust and cruel usage had produced no other effect than a letter from General Phillips, part of which the Major had transcribed for their perufal, which reprobated in the ftrongest terms, the imprudence of those gentlemen, in paying attention to the infolence or abufe of the people of the country, the General observing, " that they should listen to the abuse " of the Americans, as to the mere cack-" ling of geefe ;" and concluded with faying, "He should not concern himself with " a boxing-match."-Here I cannot but cenfure the conduct of General Phillips, for if he had his reasons for not making an application to General Heath, he should not have retorted fo feverely on the gentlemen, efpecially when it is confidered two of them were innocent of the crime alledged; at the fame time, the General might have recollected his own warmth of temper temper was, at that very moment, the occafion of his confinement to his houfe and garden.

In confequence of Major Carter's meffage, thefe unfortunate gentlemen (two of whom, as I have juft obferved, had not even been guilty of the crime imputed to them, who had always found fome confolation in reflecting, that they were then fuffering in conformity to the will of their Commanding Officer, and as they were given to underftand, for the public good, and that through the interpofition and zeal of their General, they fhould obtain juftice, and be fet at liberty, found themfelves reduced to the neceffity of fhifting for themfelves.

On confulting a lawyer (the affiftance of whom is feldom wanting in any country for certain confiderations) the learned limb of the law, after examining their commit-R 3 ment, ment, and fatisfying himfelf, with refpect to the state of their finances, gave them to understand, that he should be able to prove a flaw in it_for it specified a crime against the States, when it was evident the breach of peace that they were charged with, could only affect the State of Maffachufets (the State they were then in) but added, to bring their caufe forward for the confideration of the Court during the affizes, that were then fitting, the fees would be confiderable .---His terms, though exorbitant, were readily acceded to by thefe gentlemen, and by that means they were enabled to relieve themfelves from the horrors of a dungeon, on quitting which, it was their obfervation, that they had little more reafon to extol the humanity of their own General, than they had the justice of the Americans.

Having often made feveral remarks, as to the footing military difcipline is upon, I think

יבובובים בישרשבובובובי

I think, by the profecution of thefe gentlemen, you will fee upon what grounds of justice and equity their civil laws are founded, and even fuppofing they gain their independency, what anarchy and confusion must ensue, for want of rulers with good hearts, to enforce the laws of equity and justice. The mist that is before the eyes of Americans must shortly pass away, when they will clearly fee how eafily they have given up the fweet content and happiness they possefied, and the innumerable privileges and liberties they enjoyed when under our Government .---Deluded people, when it is too late, you will fee your error ! I fpeak not partially nor vaguely, but am confident there is not one, let him be ever fo bigotted to Independency, can lay his hand upon his breaft and fay, that he experiences that eafe and happiness he ever was accustomed to, and when he looks forward, in all human probability, neither he nor his generation R₄ generation ever will---Many, I am certain, are now open to conviction, and would wifh to retract, but having engaged, they are afhamed; and rather than abandon a principle that they haftily adopted, prefer facrificing their lives and fortunes: Difference of opinion ever will prevail, but it is the very height, nay, the very principle of madnefs, not to be open to conviction. In hopes that they foon may, and a permanent union formed between the Mother-country and her colonies, I remain,

Yours, &c.

LET-

LETTER LVII.

and many the Converts have parted a

Myffic, in New England, Nov. 6th, 1778. MY DEAR FRIEND,

Cannot impute any blame to you, but no letter has reached me for an age. Your friendship for me is so fincere, that agreeable to my first request on communicating our literary correspondence, you no doubt have answered all my letters; all must be laid to my present situation, and the want of friends at New-York, to send them to me. Many officers have received letters; and by our friend, Captain B____, who has a short epistle from you, I have

I have the happinefs to hear you enjoy a perfect ftate of health, and that you altogether refide at the old family manfion, in Norfolk. I do not claim your promife of anfwering this, but wait till the next, as it is very uncertain where any letter will find me, for the Congress have passed a refolve, to march the Convention army from the State of Massachusets to Charlottestille, in the province of Virginia, where barracks are erected, and where the troops can be more readily supplied with provisions.

When this refolve of Congress was made known, every one was ftruck with amazement; but upon reflection, it certainly is obvious, that the views of Congress, by marching the men eight hundred miles in the depth of winter, would be the means of their deferting in numbers, rather than endure fuch fatigue. General Washington has had the humanity to order

كتلعد كمحاداداداداد

der waggons for the women and children ; what adds to the diftreffes of the foldiers; is their being fo badly cloathed, having only the jackets that were made from their coats in the winter, whilft in Canada: and what is still more mortifying, a cartel fhip arrived but two days fince from New-York, with cloathing for the army : however, the men are to be fupplied with fhoes, fhirts, ftockings and cloth leggings, and the reft is to go round to James River, in Virginia. General Phillips will ask no favor of General Heath, otherwife, I think, he could not be fo divefted of humanity, as not to defer the march for a week, during which time the men might be cloathed; all is now hurry and confusion, as the first division march the 10th inftant; the army is to follow in divifions, the fame as they did from Saratoga to Cambridge.

We

We are in great diffrefs for want of money too, to undertake this march, none has arrived from New-York, and to add to our confolation, the Commander in Chief has written to General Phillips, that it is his Majefty's pleafure, no more hard money fhould be fent to the Convention army; this is, no doubt, with a view that fo much coin as is neceffary for the payment of our army should not be in circulation among the Americans, and be an inducement to detain us longer; the motive certainly is very good, but what is to become of poor fubalterns, who, as it is, can fcarcely fubfift on their pay? No matter for that, you'll fay, " private interest must " give way for the public good." Therefore we must have recourse to the only method of removing the evil, by drawing bills on the Paymaster; but you are not aware of the fad effects attending it, it must inevitably ruin one half of the officers, for it is with great difficulty you can get

can get a bill difcounted, and that only in paper money, which depreciates fo exceedingly faft, that it foon lofes a third of its value: only imagine, fince our arrival it is fo depreciated, that we get fixty and feventy dollars for a guinea; but in difcounting a bill you can with difficulty get forty; what with difcount and depreciation, what a lofs there must be upon every bill that is drawn. It may certainly be judicious in politics, to withhold the pay from the troops, but at the fame time it must be highly injurious to fortunes of individuals, for I can affert it as a fact, that for every bill of ten pounds, you do not in reallity, get more than fix guineas and a half, and fo in proportion.

1

1

E

10

1 ett

T

21

, i

The inhabitants of Maffachufetts would certainly keep up the credit of the Congrefs money, and make it fomewhat more valuable, but the people from the Southward, from the Carolinas and Virginia, who who in the course of their large dealings, are compelled to take the money in payment, fenfible of the uncertainty of its value, with to realize it into folid coin; therefore think little of the journey, from those distant provinces to Boston, to exchange with our army; they are fenfible of the rifk they run, and are very cautious. But as the people to the Southward poffers more liberal fentiments, and know the principles of British officers, they, as we walk by, will enter into conversation, and frankly afk if you want any paper dollars? They are rather cautious as to the Germans, for two German officers not being able to get fo much from a man as they wanted, they informed against him, and he was fent to prifon in Boston. These traders of paper money are very uncertain, fometimes there will be a fcarcity of them for fome days, at other times there will be a dozen or two at a time ; we then frick out for our exchange; one day guineas role from

וכומים, כיבוכוסוסוסוסוסוסוסוסוסו

from twenty-five and twenty-fix dollars, up to thirty-fix, and I fhould obferve to you, that when once they rife, they never fall.

ł

AN

1

D.

T

A few days fince there was a meeting of the Commanding Officers of the feveral corps, at General Phillips's, to confult upon fome method of procuring money for the different regiments; various were the modes propofed, and the Paymaster-General confulted; but they could not agree upon any, when a Commanding Officer obferved to General Phillips, that it was impoffible the troops could march without money, and he was certain the officers of his regiment had not twenty paper dollars among them. General Phillips, with a warmth that fpoke his good intentions, replied "Good God, Sir, what would you " have me to do, I cannot make money; " I wish to God you could flit me into " paper dollars, I would chearfully fub-" mit for the good of the troops ?" At laft it it was refolved, that the Paymaster-General was to use his best endeavours, in which he fucceeded, and the next day procured a confiderable fum, which was immediately distributed to the different regiments. It is fufficient to enable the troops to march, and the Paymaster is to go to New-York, in hopes the Commander in Chief will iffue fome money upon this emergency.

It fell to the lot of an officer who is quartered with me, to go express with the money to the different regiments at Rutland, and you would have laughed at his diftress, in what manner to deposit the paper dollars, for he was not without his apprehensions of being way-laid, and it was then nearly dark. He had fcarcely two hundred pounds sterling, but that fum in paper dollars, makes a great bulk; at last, he thought the fasest mode would be, to few it in the lining, accordingly ordering ordering his fervant, he ripped open his coat, fewed in the dollars by large parcels —and thus accoutred he fet off, and was a welcome vifitor at Rutland—had not this feafonable relief arrived, the confusion would have been very great, as many officers, rather than march without, had got themfelves arrefted, and were going to jail.

Were it not for the diftreffes of the foldiers, I cannot, for my own part, but fay, this march was rather agreeable, for it enables me to fee the fouthern part of America, which I muft confefs, I have a ftrong inclination for, having heard very great accounts of thofe Provinces, and how much fuperior they are in every refpect to this; and it is no unpleafing reflection, after the cruelties and barbarities the troops have experienced fince our arrival, that we are quitting fuch an inhofpitable country; but in the moft Vol. II. S flourifhing flourishing times, I find this province was never remarkable for its courtefy to ftrangers.

Being at prefent much taken up in preparing for this long march, I hope you'll excufe the fhortness of this epifile, at the fame time affuring you, that you shall hear from me by every opportunity that occurs.

Your's, &c.

LET-

9999999999999999

LETTER LVIII.

Sherwood's Ferry, upon the Banks of the Delaware, Des. 10, 1778.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

ON my leaving New-England, I joined the regiment, juft as they had croffed the Connecticut River, at Endfield; but in my way to this place, I and another officer, who accompanied me, had a very narrow efcape of being fent to prifon, for in travelling at night we miftook our road, and got into the town of Springfield, which was out of the route laid down for us, and is unfortunately the great arfenal of all military flores for the State of Maf-S 2 fachufetts

fachufets; happily for us, the landlord of the houfe we put up at was a friend to Government, who concealed us, and we were glad to get away before day-break, not but it could be clearly proved it was merely accidental: But thefe Americans will not hearken to reafon, and no doubt they would have found people ready enough to fwear, that we went there either as fpies, or to deftroy their flores.

بالالا المالا المالا المالي فالمالي المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية الم

At a fmall town we paffed through in Connecticut called Sharon, there is an exceeding curious mill, invented by one Joel Harvey, and for which he received a prefent of twenty pounds from the Society of Arts and Sciences. By the turning of one wheel the whole is fet in motion; there are two apartments where the wheat is ground; two others where it is bolted, in a fifth threfhed, and in a fixth winnowed; in another apartment, hemp and flax are beaten; and in an adjoining apartment it is dreffed; what adds greatly to the ingenuity of this conftruction is, that either branch may be difcontinued without impeding the reft.

1Z

Most of the places you pass through in Connecticut are called townships (as the township of Endfield, Suffield, &c.) which are not regular towns as in England, but a number of houfes difperfed over a large tract of ground, belonging to one corpotion, that fends members to the General Affembly of the States. About the centre of thefe townships stands the meetinghouse, or church, with a few furrounding houfes; fometimes the church stands fingly. It is no little mortification, when fatigued, after a long day's journey, on enquiring how far it is to fuch a town, to be informed you are there at prefent; but on enquiring for the church, or any particular tavern, you are informed it is feven or eight miles further.

$ 3

I could

I could not help remarking, that the houfes are all after the fame plan, and what was rather fingular, most of them were only one half finished, the other half having only the rough timbers that fupport the building; upon enquiry I found, that when a man builds a houfe, he leaves it in this state till his fon marries, when he fits it up for his family, and the father and fon live under one roof, as though they were two distinct houses; but as the houfes are entirely compleat on the outfide, and the windows all glazed, they have the appearance of being finished, but on entering a houfe, you cannot at first help lamenting that the owner was unable to complete it.

Just before we croffed the North River, we came to the town of Fish Kill, which has not more than fifty houses, in the space of near three miles, but this place has been the principal depot of Washington's ton's army, where there are magazines, hofpitals, workthops, &c. which form a town of themfelves; they are erected near a wood, at the foot of a mountain, where there are a great number of huts, which have been the winter quarters of the American army, and to which they are fhortly expected to return for the enfuing winter; they are a miferable shelter from the fevere weather in this country, and I fhould imagine, must render their troops very fickly, for thefe huts confift only of little walls made with uneven ftones, and the intervals filled up with mud and ftraw, a few planks forming the roof; there is a chimney at one end, at the fide of which is the door. Near the magazines are fome well-conftructed barracks, with a prifon, furrounded with lofty pallifadoes. In this prifon were a number of unfortunate friends to Government, who were feized' in their plantations, for refufing to take the oath of allegiance to the United States," SA.

世

T

and

and who were confined till a floop was ready to take them to New-York; for the Americans are fo oppreffive, they will not let any one remain neuter; and they compel every inhabitant, either to take the oath, or quit the country. When we croffed the river, there were two large floops going to New-York, crouded with people of this defcription, many of whom, the boatmen informed us, had left beautiful houfes, with extensive, and well cultivated plantations.

General Washington was not without his apprehensions, that Sir Henry Clinton would make fome efforts to retake us, either by an expedition up the North River, or in our march through the Jerseys, and therefore took every precaution to frustrate any plan that might be concerted, for upon the arrival of our army at Fish Kill, General Washington moved his army into the middle of the Jerseys, and detached detached a confiderable body of troops to efcort us, fo very apprehenfive was he of a refcue, that to each brigade of ours they had a brigade of armed men, who marched the men in clofe columns. As to the officers they paid little attention, as we had figned a very ftrict parole, previous to our leaving New-England. Now we have paffed the Delaware, the Penfylvania Militia are to guard us, and the brigades that efcorted us through New-York and the Jerfeys, return to Wafhington's army.

وكاعد كالمالمالمالمالمالمالمالما

In a former letter I delivered my fentiments on our having poffeffion of the North River, and on croffing it, they were fully confirmed; for the Americans judging it was the plan of the campaign, 1777, to make ourfelves mafters of the North River, and thus to feparate the Eaftern from the Weftern States, after the taking of Forts Montgomery and Clinton, and our troops proceeding fo far as Œfopus, and then returning

th

turning to New-York, they immediately began to fortify West Point, which is not at prefent compleated, but when it is, will be impregnable, and effectually prevent any fleets paffing; it being a point of land that projects, and makes a winding in the river, and at the fame time narrows it, fo as to have the whole command at that place. No doubt the Americans made choice of this post, as the most important to fortify, and Fish Kill as a place the best calculated for a depot of provisions and other ftores, as being fituated on the high road from Connecticut, and near the North River. It is by this important post of West Point, that the Americans are enabled to keep pofferfion of the North River, and a communication between the Northern and Southern Provinces; and I do once more affert, not only upon my own opinion, but of the Americans themfelves, that had we kept poffeffion of the North River, the war would have been by ورجاحا والمالح المالح المالح المالح

by this time, nearly terminated in favor of Great-Britain.

ent.

21

SI

17

As we paffed through the Jerfeys, I was much delighted with the falls that are on the Pafiac River, being totally different from those of Montmorency, and others I had The river is near forty yards wide, feen. and runs with a fwift, but fmooth current, till coming to a deep chafm, that croffes the channel, it falls in one entire sheet near feventy feet perpendicular; one end of the chaim or cleft of the rock is closed up; and at the other, the water rushes out with an incredible rapidity, in an acute angle, and is received into a large bason; from whence it winds through feveral rocks, and then fpreads in a confiderable channel. The fpray formed a beautiful rainbow, which rendered the fcene fuch as left the imagination nothing to add to its grandeur. This extraordinary phenomenon, no doubt, muft must have been the production of an earthquake. The inhabitants who refide near it, have a story handed down to them of two Indians, who venturing too near the falls in a canoe, were carried down the precipice and dashed to pieces. What confiderably heightened the scene is, another fall, about thirty or forty yards from the great one, where the water most beautifully glides down fome ledges of the rock, that are two or three feet perpendicular.

I was much ftruck at the grandeur of the North River, from the majeftic appearance of the high lands that are on one fide of it, and the beautiful meadows interfperfed with farm houfes on the other. What greatly adds to its beauty is the width, being near a mile and a half acrofs; although pleafed with the river and the furrounding objects, ftill this idea would prefent itfelf, that the water I was then failing

יכובובי, כישוכובוכובובובים

failing on, might in a few hours, be at New-York where every one is continually withing to approach. You must pardon these melancholy reflections, they are the effusions of nature, and will burft forth --- but to return to my description of the river : It is navigable from New-York to Albany, for large floops, from whence there is a communication by the Mohawk and other rivers (except a few carrying places) into the most interior parts of America, through the country of the Six Nations, as far as Lake Ontario; then by a continuation of the Hudson, or North River, for they are the fame, there is communication with the River St. Lawrence, through the Lakes George, Champlain, and the river Sorel, This river merits the greatest attention, and had not the prefent contest arofe, fome fpirited gentlemen had it in contemplation, by means of locks and canals, to have opened a paffage for finall floops. No doubt, a century hence, there will

to

ea

dom

TI

201

311

間

will be water carriage for fchooners and floops from Quebec to New-York, which must greatly add to the wealth and commerce of America.

The fmall part of New-York we paffed through, feems to be well cultivated; it affords grain of all forts; there are abundance of cattle, hogs and poultry. As to the Jerfeys, they marched us fo much in the back fettlements, that I had not an opportunity of feeing those parts, which were, before the war, deemed the garden of America.

We paffed through a little town called Hopel, before we croffed the North River, which is chiefly inhabited by the Dutch. At a houfe where we were quartered, the people behaved extremely civil and attentive, and upon leaving them, would fcarce permit us to pay for what we had : from which circumftance we concluded they were

יכובים בהבובובובובובובובים

억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억억

were friends to Government, and fome officers opening their heart, fpoke very freely about the Congress, Washington, &c. obferving how great a fhame it was, that we should be put to fuch expence, and that Congress ought to pay for us, the man went out of the room in a moment, and just as we were mounting our horses, brought us an enormous bill, exorbitant in every article, which he infifted upon being paid, and upon our urging that we had paid him what he had demanded, he replied, "Yes, gentlemen, fo you have, " but then I thought Congress were to de-" fray all your expences; now I know you " are to pay me, I can't take a farthing " lefs than this bill," which we were compelled to difcharge; however, it ferved as a leffon in future, to be cautious before whom we railed against Congress.

The Paymaster, as we expected, joined us in the Jerseys, which has enabled us to proceed proceed on our march, and by whom we have received accounts, that Sir Henry Clinton purpofes to make an exchange of prifoners this winter; a partial exchange, as to officers has taken place, and many have quitted us; this partiality has given much offence, as it is but juffice, when a number are to be exchanged, they fhould draw lots.

والداما والما والمالا المالية المالية المالم المالية والمالية والمالية والمالية والمالية والمالية والمالية والم

Hitherto the weather has been remarkably temperate and fine, which is extremely fortunate for the men, as they have moftly flept in the woods; but fince we came into a more populous country, they have flept in barns. When we left New-England the frofts were very fevere, here we have not any, being fo much to the fouthward, and in a manner, the further we proceed we fall in with the clofe of the Autumn.

One morning, as we renewed our march, the weather being remarkably fine, fome officers

اكاكام كجاحادادواحاحاداد

officers were extolling the beauty of the morning, an old woman who was in the croud, and overheard him, in the most violent rage exclaimed, "Well, for my " part, I believe God Almighty has turned " Tory, to give these Britainers such fine " weather for their march."

At a house where I flept in the Jersey, the owner, who was a friend to Government, had left an exceeding fine plantation, near Trenton, and retired to this place till the termination of the war, made heavy complaints of the troops plundering both friends and foes. He observed, as to the British foldiers, they only pilfered poultry and pigs, but the Hessians entered houfes, broke open drawers, taking away plate, cloaths, and other valuables; but to point out to you what an idea they must have of plundering fomething, he related that he faw fome Germans enter a house which was abandoned by the owner, VOL. II. T in

f

in which they had left an eight day clock, and a few tables and chairs, that he fhortly after observed one of the Germans come out of the houfe with the works of the clock, pendulum, and all the leaden weights; this enormous weight, in addition to his knapfack and accoutrements, the fellow had near twenty miles to carry to New-York, where the most he could poffibly get for it, would be three or four dollars. After he had related this ftory, he observed, that the defolation of the Jerfeys, which included friends, and moderate perfons, as well as enemies, had done great injury to our caufe, as it had united the latter more firmly, and detached numbers of the former --- exaggerated accounts of all the enormities that had been committed were published in all their prints, which determined those who were wavering, and imbittered the minds of every clafs throughout the colonies, and he concluded with a figh, observing. that the refentment, fentment, occafioned by the depredations carried on through the Jerfeys, had left few, or fcarce any friends to Britain in the province.

2

靓

he

til.

12

T

2 ndi

盟

St

前

THE!

to

The inhabitants of New-York, as well as the Jerfeys, are chiefly the posterity of the first fettlers in those provinces, who were Dutch, and they feem to retain their principles, industry, frugality, and an affiduous perfeverance in the means of thriving. Before the war they must have been in an affluent and happy state, especially their farmers, but now they fow and plant, and know not who will reap the fruits of their labor, for their grain and other produce are taken for the use of the continental army, and in lieu certificates are given to be paid at the Treafury at Philadelphia; to many of them, especially those they imagine are inimical to their caufe, they have barely left fufficient for the fupport of their families and the flock on the T 2 farms farms for the enfuing Winter. Oh deluded Americans, you must be independent, and these are the bleffed fruits of those principles!

I was much delighted at meeting a bird lately, peculiar to America, termed the Mocking-bird, which derives its name from imitating the note of every bird they hear; its plumage is very fimple and not fhewy, it is a Summer bird, very difficult to bring up, and has a very melodious voice, which, in my opinion, would far exceed the Bullfinch, if the fame pains were taken with it, from its amazing readinefs in catching every note it hears. This one I faw imitated a cock in fuch a manner, that you could hardly believe but that there was a cock crowing in the room. The inhabitants fay this bird is fo very fhy, that if any perfon difeovers its neft, which is mostly built in bushes, and looks at its eggs, it will never return again

ta

والمالا المالحا والمالي المالي المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية

fr

DE

21 ste

enti

Í

. [

ion

信

)tt II

ki

rdi

M

isti

retu

277 to the neft. When a neft of young ones are taken, and put into a cage, they take great care to hang it where the mother cannot get at it, for if fhe can, fhe will feed them three or four days; and finding fhe cannot release them flies away, after which, the young ones fhortly die, as in general they cannot eat what is given them ? but the inhabitants attribute their death to the mother, who, they fay, the laft time fhe feeds them, contrives to give them poifon, in order to releafe them from captivity .---If that really is the cafe, it fhews how repugnant it is to the principles of nature, to confine any thing, and that fhe calls aloud to partake of the bleffings of liberty, but at prefent it reminds me of my own fituation, I must therefore drop the fubject, waynes east a sin york gethind han

and mostly used to crafe the ray re at this large rivers , tables or is creek, which is

T 3

Your's, &c.

about these miles from this toyon, LET-278

LETTER LIX.

Lancaster, in Pensylvania, Dec. 16th, 1778.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

WE halt a day or two at this town, and I cannot fo well employ my leifure time as to give you a defeription of our march from the Delaware: we croffed the river in fcowls, which are flat bottom boats, large enough to contain a waggon and horfes; they are a fafe conveyance, and mostly ufed to crofs the rivers in this country, they are rowed with oars upon large rivers; but over a creek, which is about three miles from this town, called called Coneftoga, they pull them across by means of ropes fastened to either shore.

After you get over the Delaware, a new country prefents itfelf, extremely well cultivated and inhabited; the roads are lined with farm houfes, fome of which are near the road, and fome at a little diftance, and the fpace between the road and houfes is taken up with fields and meadows; fome of them are built of ftone, two ftories high, and covered with cedar fhingles, but moft of them are wooden, with the crevices ftopped with clay; the ovens are commonly built a little diftance from the houfe, and under a roof to fecure them againft the weather.

記

311

OIL

VETS DETS

, th

The farmers in Penfylvania, and in the Jerfeys, pay more attention to the conftruction of their barns than their dwelling-houfes. The building is nearly as T 4 large large as a common country church, the roof very lofty, and covered with fhingles, declining on both fides, but not very fteep, the walls are about thirty feet; in the middle is the threfhing-floor, and above it a loft for the corn unthrefhed; on one fide is a ftable, and on the other a cowhoufe, and the fmall cattle have their particular ftables and ftyes; and at the gable end of this building there are great gates, fo that a horfe and cart can go ftrait through: thus is the threfhing-floor, ftable, hay-loft, cowhoufe, coach-houfe, &c, all under one roof.

The Penfylvanians are an industrious and hardy people, they are most of them fubstantial, but cannot be confidered rich, it being rarely the cafe with landed people. However, they are well lodged, fed, and clad, and the latter at an easy rate, as the inferior people manufacture most of their own apparel, both linnens and woollens, and

281

and are more industrious of themfelves, having but few blacks among them.

They have a curious method to prevent their geefe from creeping through broken inclosures, by means of four little flicks, about a foot in length, which are fastened crofsways about their necks. You cannot imagine how extremely aukward they appear, though it is diverting enough to fee them walk with this ornament ; their mode preventing horfes from leaping over their inclosures is equally as curious, they fasten round the horfe's neck a piece of wood, at the lower end of which is a hook, which, catching in the railing, ftops the horfe just as he is rifing to leap over; fome indeed, fasten the fore and hind foot together, which makes them walk flow; both thefe methods are extremely dangerous to the horfes.

In

In New England they have a very few hives of bees, but in this province, almost every farm house has seven or eight; it is fomewhat remarkable they fhould be more . predominant here, as all the bees upon the Continent were originally brought from England to Boston, about one hundred years ago; the bee is not natural to America, for the first planters never obferved a fingle one in the immense tract of woods they cleared, and what I think ftands forth a most indubitable proof that it is not the Indians, as they have a word in their language for all animals, natives of the country, have no word for a bee, and therefore they call them by the name of the Englishman's Fly. On the high road from Philadelphia to this town are milestones, which are the first I observed put up in this country, as to the other parts, the inhabitants only compute the distance at guess. It was no little mortification that we were debarred feeing feeing one of the first cities of America (Philadelphia) we passed within twelve miles of it, and several of us made application to the Commanding Officer who efcorted us, to grant permission for us to go into the city, assuring him we would upon our honour join the troops at night. He was a good-natured man, and nearly complying with our requess, but on a sudden faid, he really could not, as Congress would be mightily displeased at it; however, we confole ourfelves, that on our exchange, we may have an opportunity of feeing it.

In the greatest part of our march the inhabitants were making of cyder, for in almost every farm there is a prefs, though made in a different manner; fome make use of a wheel made of thick oak plank, which turns upon a wooden axis, by means of a horfe drawing it, and fome have stone wheels, but they are mostly of the former.

In

In travelling through Penfylvania, you meet with people of almost every different perfuation of religion that exifts; in thort, the diverfity of religions, nations, and languages here is aftonifhing, at the fame time, the harmony they live in no lefs edifying, notwithstanding every one, who wifhes well to religion, is hurt to fee the diverfity that prevails, and would, by the most foothing means, endeavour to prevent it; yet, when the misfortune once takes place, and there is no longer an union of fentiments, it is neverthelefs glorious to preferve an union of affections, and certainly it must be highly pleasing to fee men live, though of fo many different perfuafions, yet, to the fame Christian principles, and though not of the fame religion, still to the great end of all, the profperity and welfare of mankind. Among the numerous fects of religion with which this province abounds, for there are Churchmen, Quakers, Calvinifts,

999999999999999999

فمحدوا والمتعام والموام والمتعام والموام والمتعام والمتها والمتعام

nifts, Lutherans, Catholics, Methodifts, Menists, Moravians, Independants, Anabaptifts, there is a fect which, perhaps, you never heard of, called the Dumplers; this fect took its origin from a German, who, weary of the world, retired to a very folitary place, about fifty miles from Philadelphia, in order to give up his whole time to contemplation; feveral of his countrymen came to vifit him in his retreat. and by his pious, fimple, and peaceable manners, many were induced to fettle near him, and, in a fhort time adopting his modes, they formed a little colony, which they named Euphrates, in allufion to that river upon whofe borders the Hebrews were accuftomed to fing pfalms.

Their little city is built in the form of a triangle, and bordered with mulberry and apple-trees, very regularly planted. In the center of the town is a large orchard, and between the orchard and the ranges ranges of trees that are planted round the borders, are their houfes, which are built of wood, and three ftories high, in these every Dumpler is left to enjoy his meditations without difturbance; these contemplative men, in the whole, do not amount to more than five hundred; their territory is nearly three hundred acres in extent, on one fide is a river, on another a piece of stagnated water, and on the other two are mountains covered with trees.

، الا الا الا الا الا الماليان المالية المالية

They have women of their community, who live feparate from the men; they feldom fee each other but at places of worfhip, and never have meetings of any kind but for public bufinefs; their whole life is fpent in labor, prayer, and fleep; twice every day and night they are fummoned from their cells to attend divine fervice; as to their religion, in fome meafure, it refembles the Quakers, for every individual, if he thinks himfelf infpired,

وجراعد ويعادر والمرما والمرح والم

fpired, has a right to preach .--- The fubjects they chiefly discourse upon are humility, temperance, charity, and other Chriftian virtues; never violating that day held facred amongst all perfuasions; they admit of a Hell and a Paradife, but deny the eternity of future punifhments. As to the doctrine of original fin, they hold it as impious blasphemy, together with every tenet that is fevere to man, deeming it injurious to divinity .--- As they allow no merit to any but voluntary works, baptifm is only administered to the adult; neverthelefs, they think it fo effentially neceffary to falvation, as to imagine the fouls of Christians are employed in the other world, in the conversion of those who have not died under the light of the Gofpel,

Religion among the Dumplers, has the fame effect philosophy had upon the Stoics, rendering them infensible to every kind

ed ron iich an igh, in gh, in thele a their to res ins other 1 the oth trees.

ir comm at pa metin in contraction r, proje contraction gion, in Qualar ks him kind of infult; they are more paffive and difinterested than the Quakers, for they will suffer themselves to be cheated, robbed, and abused, without the least idea of retaliation, or even a complaint.

Their drefs is very fimple and plain, confifting of a long white gown, from whence hangs a hood to ferve the purpofes of a hat, a coarfe fhirt, thick fhoes, and very wide breeches, fomething refembling thofe the Turks wear. The men wear their beards to a great length, fome I faw were down to the waift; at the first fight of them, I could not help comparing them to our old ancient bards, the Druids, from their reverential appearance; the women are dreffed fimilar to the men, excepting the breeches.

Their life is very abstemious, and eating no meats, not that they deem it unlawful, but more conformable to the spirit of Christianity,

יקקופים אשראשובושובושובושובו

Chriftianity, which they argue has an averfion to blood, and upon those grounds they fubfist only on vegetables, and the produce of the earth.

They follow with great chearfulnefs their various branches of bufinefs, in fome one of which, every individual partakes, and the produce of their labor is deposited in one common flock, to fupply the neceffities of every individual, and by this union of industry, they have not only established agriculture and manufactures, fufficient to fupport this little fociety, but fuperfluities for the purposes of exchange for European commodities. Though the two fexes live feparate, they do not renounce matrimony, but those who are disposed to it leave the city and fettle in the country, on a tract of land which the Dumplers have purchased Vol. II. U for e pality rs, for neated, leaft ii nt.

e and gown, the pu ick these ing rd the length rd the not help ent bats al appear ar to the

ous, and em it wh the fi

for that purpofe, the couple are fupported at the public expences, which they repay by the produce of their labor, and their children are fent to Germany for education. Without this wife policy, the Dumplers would be little better than Monks, and in process of time annihilated.

Although there are fo many fects, and fuch a difference of religious opinions in this province, it is furprizing the harmony which fubfifts among them; they confider themfelves as children of the fame father, and live like brethren, becaufe they have the liberty of thinking like men, to this pleafing harmony, in a great meafure, is to be attributed the rapid and flourifhing ftate of Penfylvania, above all the other provinces. Would to Heaven that harmony was equally as prevalant all over the globe; if it was, I think you'll acquiefce with with me in opinion, that it would be for the general welfare of mankind.

le mi

whit

r labe Germa

fe polit

better

time

any let

IS OPI the h thera e fame ufe th men, at me ind fin e all ven th

ant allo 70U'll 2

An officer who is exchanged, and going to New-York, having fent for my letters, I must hastily conclude, affuring you, I am

Yours, &c.

U2 LET-

292

LETTER LX.

Lancaster, in Penfylvania, Dec. 17, 1778.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

۱۰۰۰ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ -

IN our way hither, we croffed the Skuylkill, over the bridge built by General Wafhington's army, when they were encamped at Valley-Forge. I imagine it was the intention of the Americans, that this bridge fhould remain as a triumphal memento, for in the center of every arch is engraved in the wood, the names of the principal Generals in their country; and in the middle arch was General Wafhington's, with the date of the year: this bridge bridge was built to preferve a communication, and to favor a retreat, in cafe they were compelled to quit their encampment.

Our troops flept in the huts at Valley-Forge, which had been conftructed by the Americans; and as we waited till late the next day for the delivery of provisions before we marched, I had a full opportunity to reconnoitre the whole camp: on the east and fouth fide were entrenchments, with a ditch fix feet wide and three deep, the mound not four feet high, very narrow, and eafily to have been beat down with cannon; two redoubts were alfo begun, but not compleated, the Skuylkill was on the left, and as I before obferved, with a bridge across; the rear was mostly covered by an impaffable precipice formed by Valley Creek, having only a narrow paffage near the Skuylkill: this camp was by no means difficult of access, for the U3 right

r, ielaļ 1. 17, 17

IX

ed they at they a magine they a magine they a magine triumph for a man of the man of the right was attainable, and in one part of the front the afcent was fcarcely to be perceived, the defences were exceedingly weak, and this is the only inftance I ever faw of the Americans having fuch flight works, thefe being fuch as a fix-pounder could eafily have battered down; the ditches were not more than three feet deep, and fo narrow, that a drum-boy might with eafe leap over.

٫

A Loyalift, at whofe houfe I was quartered, at Valley Forge, and who refided there at the time Walhington's army was encamped, told me, that when General Walhington chofe that fpot for his Winter quarters, his men were obliged to build them huts with round logs, fill the interftices with clay, and cover them with loofe ftraw and dirt, very uncomfortable, as the fhelter was not fecure from the weather, where the men fuffered exceedingly from the inclemency of the feafon, feafon, the camp diforder raged among them, the greater part of them were in a manner naked at that fevere feafon of the year; many without fhoes and ftockings, and very few, except the Virginia troops, with the neceffary cloathing : his army was wafting away by ficknefs, that raged with extreme mortality in all his different hospitals, which are no lefs than eleven, and without the effential medicines to relieve them; his army was likewife diminished by constant defertions in companies, from ten to fifty at a time, that at one period, it was reduced to four thoufand men, and those with propriety could not be called effective. The horfes from being constantly exposed to fhowers of rain and falls of fnow, both day and night, were in fuch a condition, that many of them died, and the reft were fo emaciated, as to be unfit for labor, had he been attacked and repulfed, he must have left behind all

U4.

his

ELS

onen

arcely

exce

Ancel

g fud

a fix-pu

dówi:

nree fet

m-bori

1 who i

on's am

when G

forh

re oblit

logs,

COTE

very I ras not e men t

mencri

his artillery, for want of horfes to convey it; in addition to all thefe diftreffes, Washington had not in his camp, at any one time, a week's provision for man and horfe, and sometimes he was totally destitute.

The Loyalists greatly cenfure General Howe, in fuffering Washington to continue in this weak and dangerous flate from December till May, and equally aftonished what could be the motive he did not attack, furround, or take by fiege, the whole army, when the feverity of the weather was gone-they expected that in the months of March, April, and May, they should hear of the camp being stormed or befieged. Certainly the fituation of it favored either, for on the left was the Skuylkill that was impassable, but over the bridge, on the rear, lay Valley Creek, with the precipice and narrow pafs; on the right, and in the front, it could be approached approached on equal terms; by pofting two thousand men on a commanding ground, near the bridge on the North fide of the Skuylkill, it would have rendered the efcape of the enemy on the left impoffible. Two thousand posted on a like ground opposite the narrow pafs, effectually prevented a retreat by the rear, and five or fix thousand men placed on the right and in the front of his camp, would have deprived them of flight on those fides; the politions were fuch, that if any corps were attacked, they could inftantly have been fupported; under all thefe favorable circumstances, fuccess was to be little doubted; but it fhould feem that General Howe was exactly in the fame fituation as General Burgoyne, refpecting intelligence, obtaining none he could place a perfect reliance on. In fact, the Americans have a most decided fuperiority over us this war in that refpect, our poft and fituations, nay, even fecret marches, with their ELS festom ele dh is cam ifion h e was nfure & igton to ingerous and a the mit r take h feverity pected t oril, zi p being the fitm he left able, h v Valle ITTOW PS nt, it a

appi

their intentions, are made known to General Washington by the inumerable spies and secret enemies who come into our camp and lines, under the specious character of Loyalists; it is quite the reverse with him, every man who enters his camp is known to some one or other, as his army is composed of troops from every province.

[The Loyalifts in Penfylvenia generally accufe General Howe with ungrateful conduct, in abandoning Philadelphia, after all the affiftance they had given him, and not having, during the Winter, endeavored to diflodged General Wafhington at Valley Forge, fuffering the enemy to harrafs and diftrefs the loyal inhabitants on every fide of the Britifh lines, deftroying their mills, feizing their grain, horfes and cattle, imprifoning, whipping, branding and killing the unhappy people, devoted to the caufe of their Sovereign, who, at every rifque, rifque were daily fupplying the army, navy, and Loyal inhabitants within the lines, with every neceffary, and luxury the country afforded.

Indeed, the Loyalists of Penfylvania are greatly to be pitied, for they have been much perfecuted fince our troops evacuted Philadelphia, their loyalty is greatly abated, as they conceive themfelves made a facrifice of by the conduct of General Howe; and are fo exceeding incenfed, and violent against him, they do not hefitate to fay, that in ease and comfort, in the city of Philadelphia, he cared little for military fame or glory; that he neglected his duty to his King and country, that he neglected the interest and fafety of the country he was fent to protect, and that his whole conduct was founded on private interest and ambition; you fhall not know my fentiments 'till we meet.

At

ELI Nown n

meraik me im fpecion te the a nters line other, a s from:

enia ga ngratéli delphia ven hin ter, ena withingu enemy u inhabin ess, delm in, hork ter, ena s, delm inhabin ple, den who, s

At a poor farm house I was quartered at. the night before we came into this town. I was much furprized when it grew dark, to fee the landlady bring in a couple of green wax-candles, which at first we really took them to be; but lo! they were made from the berries of a tree, which is called the tallow fhrub, as they produce a kind of wax or tallow; this plant grows in England, and known by the name of the candleberry tree. The method of making the fat from these berries, is by gathering them late in the Autumn, then they are put into a pot of boiling water; of course the fat melts out, and floats on the furface, which is fkimmed off, and this procefs is continued, 'till there is no fat left, when congealed, it has a green dirty color, but after refined, becomes perfectly transparent; with this they manufacture their candles; they were formerly much ufed, but before the war, they could procure tallow in great abundance, and therefore

ورا الالالا المالية الم

وحواصد وعروا والمالوا والمالح المالح المالي الم

fore used it in preference, as the time for gathering the berries and preparing them, fcarcely repays the trouble. Now the poor inhabitants are obliged to have recourse to them, as no tallow is imported, and all the cattle is taken for the supply of the army. There are many qualities appertaining to the candles made from their berries; they do not easily bend or melt in Summer, as common candles, they burn better and flower, and when extinguished, do not solver, but rather evaporate with an agreeable odour. The town of Lancaster is the largest inland town in America, it contains at least ten thousand inhabitants, chiefly Germans and Irish, there are some few good houses, and exclusive of those, it appears neither handsome, nor agreeable; however the markets are plentifully supplied with all forts of provision, and the cyder is very excellent,

ILS

S QUATE

grewa

oupled

we real

ere mi

15 02

luce a h

grows 1

name

is by a

, then the ter ; di

pats on 1

F, and th

re is not

2 50

ecomespi

ley man

formerit

they cou

ance, 2

cellent, the nearest to English of any I met with in America.

Most of the houses before the door have an elevation, to which you ascend by steps from the street, refembling a small balcony with benches on both fides, where the inhabitants sit and enjoy the stress where the inhabitants sit and enjoy the stress and and view the people passing; most of them have stoves similar to those of the Canadians.

This town, before the commencement of thefe unhappy troubles, carried on a confiderable trade with Philadelphia, and the frontier fettlements; now it has fcarcely fufficient to fupply the inhabitants, and the neighbouring farms; it is really a diftreffing circumftance, to fee fuch a populous, and no doubt, flourifhing town, once a fcene of buftling induftry, now in a ftate of fupinenefs, the fhopkeepers lolling and fmoaking at their doors, their

وجراحا والحاص والمتعاد المتعاد المتعاد

hofz

TELS

ore the you do nbling 1 th fide, by the fi ; moft 1 ofe of 1

comma s, cara iiladebb withal inhabitu it is real fee fault g indub b fault the fault their fhops which were overflowing with forts of commodities, fcarcely contain more than Shakefpere's Apothecary's "a "beggarly account of empty boxes," unlefs indeed, fome French frippery, which the inhabitants will not purchafe; the only little fign of trade that I could perceive, was among fadlers and gunfmiths, who were making materials for the Continental army:——This unhappy war has thrown the Americans into fuch a ftate, that it will be a century before they can recover from it. The town of Lancaster has no building of any confequence, except the Lutheran church, which, is only built of brick, the infide has a most magnificent appearance; the large galleries on each fide, the spacious organ-lost, supported by Corinthian pillars, are exceedingly beautiful, and there are pillars of the Ionic order, from the galleries to the roof. The altarpiece piece is very elegantly ornamented; the whole of the church, as well as the organ, painted white with gilt decorations. which has a very neat appearance; it greatly reminded me of the chapel at Greenwich Hofpital; the organ is reckoned the largest and best in America, it was built by a German, who refides about seventeen miles from Lancaster, he made every individual part of it with his own hands; it was near feven years in compleating; the organ has not only every pipe and ftop that is in most others, but it has many other pipes to fwell the bass, which are of an amazing circumference, and these are played upon by the feet, there being a row of wooden keys that the performer treads on. I do not recollect ever feeing an organ of this construction, except those of the Savoy Chapel and St. Paul's; in the latter they are fhut up as the vibration of found was found too powerful for the dome; but then they had only four

وحرصة ويعرفا فالمافا فالمافا فالمافا فالمافا فالمافا المافا فالمافات

four or five of these wooden keys, whereas this organ has a dozen: the man who fhewed the inftrument played on it, and the effect of these keys was aftonishing, it abfolutely made the very building shake. It is the largest, and I think the finest I ever faw, without exception; and when you examine it, you wonder it did not take up the man's whole life in conftructing; to effimate its goodnefs and value, I shall only tell you it cost two thousand five hundred pounds sterling; to you who are fo mufical, what a treat would it be to be here a few hours only. unlefs indeed, you would think a few more not thrown away entirely, when allotted to

Yours, &c.

VOL. II.

X

LET-

VELS

amenta

vell 2

ilt dem

appeara

the d

organ ist

America

o refits

cafter.

t with E

vears i not on

noft oth

o frelt

g citem

on brb

len kepst do not s his conte

y Chapel I are that a ound tool on they b 306

LETTER LXI.

Frederick-Town, in Maryland, Dec. 25tb, 1778.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

A FTER we left Lancaster, we croffed the Susquehannah, which, though a large, broad, and beautiful river, is extremely dangerous, on account of the rapidity of the current, and innumerable simall rocks that just make their appearance above the furface; in croffing it we were not without our fears, for a fcowl, belonging to the fecond brigade, in which Lord Torphinchin, and a number of officers and foldiers of the twenty-first regiment was near being loft by ftriking on one of these rocks; this river falls into the Chefapeak and forms the head of that vast water, which, though one of the largest and most beautiful rivers in America, is the least useful, as it is not navigable above twelve or fifteen miles at the farthest, for ships of any burthen, and above that scarcely so for canoes; the utility of this river would be great, if the navigation, even for canoes was practicable, as the fource of the east branch of this river is in the Mohawk country, and from thence to the mouth in the Chefapeak, is near feven hundred miles. After we croffed the Sufquehannah, we arrived at York-town, which was fome time the feat of Congress; this is reckoned the fecond inland town in America, it is not near fo large as Lancaster, but much pleafanter, being fituated on Codorow-creek, a pretty stream which falls into the Seque-X 2 hannah;

AVELS

rich-Tom, i Dec. 25th, 1

II

neathr, n which is account of and im and im ke their m for a fool ade, in m and, in m wenty-fah

hannah ; this town contains between two and three thoufand inhabitants, chiefly Irifh, intermixed with a few Germans: here was formerly more trade than in Lancaster, and notwithstanding the troubles, it has still more the appearance of it; as we came into the town at four o'clock in the afternoon, and marched the next morning, you may eafily imagine I had but little time to make any very particular observations ; but in walking about, I faw the Court-houfe and a few churches, which are very neat brick buildings, and I remarked the houfes were much better built, and with more regalarity than at Lancaster; of the two, though York is confiderably lefs than the other, I should give it the preference for a place of refidence.

As I obferved in a former letter, it was with a view and hope that the men would defert, that the Congress marched us at this

فكالكام كالكالكالكالجالجالجالجا جاجا حاكا الما

this inclement feafon; numbers have anfwered their wifhes, efpecially the Germans, who feeing in what a comfortable manner their countrymen live, left us in great numbers, as we marched through New-York, the Jerfeys and Penfylvania; among the number of deferters is my fervant, who, as we left Lancaster, ran from me with my horfe, portmanteau, and every thing he could take with him. I did not mifs him till night, as I concluded he was with the baggage waggons; the next morning I obtained permission from the officer that efcorted us, to return back in purfuit of him, as I had reafons to fuppofe he was going back to New-England; in the afternoon, on the other fide of Lancafter, I met the first brigade of the Germans, who were marching into the town. Being acquainted with Colonel Mingen, who commanded, he enquired if I had orders for him, but telling him the purport of my return, he informed me that he had

X 3

met

VELS

is between oitants . few Ge trade ti ndingth the appr the tr on, and you ma me to m is; buti urt-hout very nel the hout with mor r; of th ably lefs t e prefera

mer letta at the me

met my fervant that morning, juft as they were going to march; he enquired of him how I did, and the reafon of his returning, when the fellow faid "I was very well, " and that I defired my compliments to " him, if he fhould meet him, and that " he was returning for a pair of faddle-" bags that he left behind on the road." After this I thought any purfuit in vain, therefore returned back to the regiment, who, by this time, had arrived in this town.

We have been greatly perplexed in our march through the different provinces, by the dollars being of fuch various value; in fome it is only fix fhillings, in others feven, feven and fixpence, and eight fhillings. The provinces entertain little opinion as to the value of their neighbours' money, as it will not pafs in the next province; the New-York money will not pafs in the Jerfeys, nor that of the Jerfeys in

محاداهم كماد وعاولها والواور والماد والم

in Penfylvania, and fo on. The Congrefs money is taken throughout the whole of them, but there are fome provinces which deem their own money of more real value than that of Congrefs, and take it in preference, not that they dare refuse the other, as it would be deemed high treason.

Till our arrival at this place, we have had the moft delightful weather imaginable, but yefterday morning there came on a moft violent fnow ftorm, and which lafted the whole day; it was as fevere as any I ever faw in Canada; the fnow is up to one's knees, which has rendered the Potowmack fo dangerous, that we are waiting here till it either freezes over, or becomes paffable, the firft brigade are fortunate, for by this time, they are arrived at Charlottefville. Frederick Town is a fine large town, and has a very noble appearance, as the X 4 houfes

AVELS

ing, juh enquire of histe (was to complin et him, a to him, a purluktion to the sparsed a rarvel 1 arrivel

perpleti ent proi variouri illings, i illings, i ite, and i pels in the their nij pals in the that of th houses are mostly formed of brick and stone, there being very few timber buildings in it; it contains near two thousand inhabitants, chiefly Germans, quite inland, the nearest port being George Town, which is fifty miles distant, the only river, which is the Potowmack, is eight miles from the town.

About four miles before you enter it, you crofs the Monoccacy Creek, which, without a guide to fhew the ford, a ftranger muft inevitably be carried down the ftream; this ford is in the form of a crefcent, and made with large loofe ftones, that a horfe is in continual danger of falling; the water, in general, is up to the fkirts of the faddle, and after the leaft fall of rain, it is impaffable for fome hours; there is a ferry-boat, but it is fo badly attended, and in fuch a fhattered ftate, that you are afraid to venture in it.

Iam

I am quartered at the house of a Mr. M'Murdo, who is the Commiflary of Provisions in this town, and, although ftrongly attached to the caufe of the Americans, poffeffes very philanthropic ideas, his treatment and polite behaviour to the officers quartered at his houfe, truly mark the gentleman and man of the world .--- His attention is fuch, that although for this day, which is as much a day of feftival as in England, he has been engaged for fome time past among his friends and relations, he would ftay at home, and entertain us with an excellent Christmas dinner, not even forgetting plumb-pudding. If the Americans in general poffefied fuch liberal fentiments, it would prevent the many horrid barbarities and perfecutions which arife in confequence of this unnatural war, and which have branded the name of America with an odium, that no time can obliterate, no merit expunge.

I now

VELS l of lin w timhe ar two h hans, qu g Georgi t, the oni , is eight

y Creek y Creek ew the i in the fur arge look al dange for form for form ti is in a function

I now experience what has been often told me, that the further I went to the fouthward, I fhould find the inhabitants poffers more liberality and hospitality, I remain make is as made a day of the livel is in pair among the Minute and a clations, in;

All-- Mow of the nam Your's, &c.

entionendre hutbo na debe roi L.E.T.

LETTER LXII.

tinually finking us up to our knees,

fevere in the extreme ; the roads were

Jones's Plantation, near Charlotteswille, in Virginia, Jan. 20, 1779.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

A FTER we left Frederick Town, we croffed the Potowmack River with imminent danger, as the current was very rapid, large floats of ice fwimming down it, though the river was only half a mile wide, the fcowl that I croffed over in had feveral narrow efcapes; at one time it was quite faftened in the ice, but by great exertions of the men in breaking it, we made good our landing on the oppofite fhore, near a mile lower than the Ferry.

The

AVELS

i has be r I went I the inter and host

lour's, ku

The difficulty of croffing was only a fore-runner of the hardships and fatigues we were to experience on our entering Virginia; for on our march to this place. the men experienced fuch diftreffes, as were fevere in the extreme; the roads were exceedingly bad from the late fall of fnow, which was encrufted, but not fufficiently to bear the weight of a man, fo we were continually finking us up to our knees, and cutting our fhins and ancles, and, perhaps, after a march of fixteen or eighteen miles in this maner, at night the privates had to fleep in woods; after their arrival at the place of deftination, the officers had to ride five or fix miles to find a hovel to rest in.

والمالا المالية المالا المالية المالية

But on our arrival at Charlottefville, no pen can defcribe the fcene of mifery and confusion that enfued; the officers of the first and fecond brigade were in the town, and our arrival added to their distrefs; this

الأكاكد كهادا واواواواواواواواوا

this famous place we had heard fo much of, confifted only of a Court-houfe, one tavein, and about a dozen houfes; all of which were crowded with officers, those of our brigade therefore, were obliged to ride about the country, and entreat the inhabitants to take us in.

As to the men, the fituation was truly horrible, after the hard fhifts they had experienced in their march from the Potowmack, they were, instead of comfortable barracks, conducted into a wood, where a few log huts were just begun to be built, the most part not covered over, and all of them full of fnow; thefe the men were obliged to clear out, and cover over to fecure themfelves from the inclemency of the weather as quick as they could, and in the courfe of two or three days rendered them a habitable, but by no means a comfortable retirement; what added greatly to the diffrefies of the men, was

VELI

IS Was ps and i our a h to this h diffice the role our kne fo were our kne ss, and p r eighte e private find a b

harlotten e of mile he offices ere in the o their &

was the want of provisions, as none had as yet arrived for the troops, and for fix days they fubfilted on the meal of Indian corn made into cakes. The perfon who had the management of every thing, informed us that we were not expected till Spring.

Never was a country fo defitute of every comfort, provisions were not to be purchafed for ten days; the officers fubfifted upon falt pork, and Indian corn made into cakes, not a drop of any kind of fpirit, what little there had been, was already confumed by the first and fecond brigade; many officers, to comfort themfelves, put red pepper into water, to drink by way of cordial.

Upon a representation of our fituation, by Brigadier General Hamilton, to Colonel Bland, who commanded the American troops, he promised to render the fituation

فكالعد ككاكاكاكاكاحاكاكاكاكاكاكا

tion of the men as comfortable as poffible. and with all expedition. As to the officers, upon figning a parole, they might go to Richmond and other adjacent towns, to procure themfelves quarters, accordingly a parole was figned, which allowed a circuit of near one hundred miles. And after the officers had drawn lots, as three were to remain in the barracks with the men, or at Charlottifville, the principal part of them fet off for Richmond, many of them are at plantations, twenty or thirty miles from the barracks. I am quartered with Major Master and four other officers of our regiment, at this plantation, about twenty miles from the barracks; the owner has given up his houfe, and gone to refide at his overfeer's, and for the use of his house, we pay him two guineas a week.

On the arrival of the troops at Charlottefville, the officers, what with vexation, and

VELS

s, as m ps, and i meal d! The perin wery thin not expension fo defin were not the office and India trop of an e had be first and to comfort o water, to

of out it amilton, u aded the ha render to

and to keep out the cold, drank rather freely of an abominable liquor, called peach brandy, which, if drank to excefs, the fumes raife an abfolute delirium, and in their cups, feveral were guilty of deeds that would admit of no apology, the inhabitants must have actually thought us mad, for in the course of three or four days, there were no less that fix or feven duels fought.

Colonel Bland, who commands the American troops, was formerly a phyfician, at a place called Peterfburg, on the James River, but on the commencement of the war, as being fome way related to Bland, who wrote a military treatife, he felt a martial fpirit arife in him, therefore quitted the Æfculapian art, and at his own expence raifed a regiment of light horfe. As to thofe troops of his regiment with Wafhington's army, I cannot fay any thing, but the two that the Colonel

BUSIES

, drank liquor, lrank no e delirin guilty d pology, t cally thou of three hat fix a

VELS

comman ormedy i verterburg e comman me way is litary usa art, and litary usa art, and opps of h c's anny, the two b

Colonel has with him here, for the purpofes of expresses and attendance, are the most curious figures you ever faw; fome, like Prince Prettyman, with one boot, others lefs fortunate, without any ; fome hofelefs, with their feet peeping out of their fhoes; others with breeches that put decency to the blufh; fome in fhort jackets, fome in long coats, but all have fine dragoon caps, and long fwords flung round them, fome with holfters, fome without, but gadamercy piftols, for they have not a brace and a half among them, but they are tolerably well mounted, and that is the only thing you can advance in their favor ; the Colonel is fo fond of his Dragoons, that he reviews and manœuvres them every morning, and whenever he rides out, has two with drawn fwords before, and two behind; it is really laughable to fee him thus attended with his ragged regiment, which looks, to borrow Shakefpeare's idea, as if the gibbets had been robbed to make it up---then the Colonel himfelf, notwithstanding his martial VOL. II. Y fpirit fpirit, has all the grave deportment, as if he was going to a confultation.

not curions houses pour series in fave :

The houfe that we refide in is fituated upon an eminence, commanding a prospect of near thirty miles around it, and the face of the country appears an immenfe forest, interspersed with various plantations, four or five miles diftant from each other; on these there is a dwelling-house in the center, with kitchens, fmoke-houle, and out-houses detached, and from the various buildings, each plantation has the appearance of a finall village; at fome little distance from the houses, are peach and apple orchards, &c. and fattered over the plantations are the negroes huts and tobacco-houfes, which are large built of wood, for the cure of that article.

The houfes are most of them built of wood, the roof being covered with shingles, and not always lathed and plastered within, only those of the better fort that are finished finished in that manner, and painted on the outfide; the chimneys are often of brick, but the generality of them are wood, coated in the infide with clay; the windows of the better fort are glazed, the rest have only wooden shutters.

AVIL

eportme

tation.

ide in it

andinga

ound it, 1

pears and

s diffantt

s a dwellin

hens, fmak

ed, and f

plantatio

village;!

the hos

ards, Ac. 1 ons are th

es, which

cure of the

A of that overed with

and plat

better fet

The fences and enclofures in this province are different from the others, for those to the northward are made either of stone or rails let into posts, about a foot afunder; here they are composed of what is termed fence rails, which are made out of trees cut or fawed into lengths of about twelve feet, that are mauld or split into rails from four to fix inches diameter. When they form an inclosure, these rails are laid fo, that they cross each other obliquely at each end, and are laid zig zag to the amount of ten or eleven rails in height, then stakes are put against each corner, double across, with the lower ends drove a little into the ground, and above these states is placed a rail of double the fize of the others, which is termed the rider, which, in a manner, locks up the whole, and keeps the fence firm and steady.

and

Thefe enclofures are generally feven or eight feet high, they are not very firong but convenient, as they can be removed to any other place, where they may be more neceffary; from a mode of conftructing thefe enclofures in a zig zag form, the New-Englanders have a faying, when a man is in liquor, he is making Virginia fences.

Their manner of clearing the land is, by cutting a circle round the tree through the bark quite to the wood, before the fap rifes, which kills it; they then clear the finall brufh-wood and cultivate the ground, leaving the trees to rot ftanding, which happens in a very few years; and after receiving

الأكامات كالحاكاكالحاكاكا والطاكاكا

receiving the circular wound, they never more bear leaves; a large field in this ftate has a very fingular, ftriking, and dreadful appearance, it should feem dangerous to walk in them, for the trees are of a prodigious magnitude and height, from which are impending in awful ruins vaft limbs, and branches of an enormous fize, which are continually breaking off, and frequently whole trees are falling to the ground with a most horrible crash, the found of which is greatly encreafed and protracted by the furrounding echoes : yet I am informed, notwithstanding the danger, few accidents happen from them, except to cattle.

Upon our informing the Commiffary of Provisions where we were quartered, he gave us an order upon a Colonel Cole, who refides about four miles distant, to fupply us, he being appointed to collect for the use of the Congress in this district,

Y 3

who

AVELI placed ii hers, vi in a t

keeps ti enerallyk not ver

nor nor ney mayb of conb g zag for faying, 1 making 1

tring the the tree bod, before hey there trivate the t ftanding vears; 0

who, upon application, fent us about a month's provision of flour and falt pork for ourfelves and fervants. As the cart with the provisions came through the plantation, I was much furprized to fee all the cattle, horfes, fheep, and hogs following it, nor could the driver keep them off, till he came to the house. I found this was to lick the barrels which contained the falt meat.

The inhabitants throughout America, whofe habitations are at any great diftance from the fea or falt-water, give their cattle and horfes falt once or twice a week, with which they are fatisfied, but here they were fo diftracted after it, as to lick the earth where there has been any pot liquor in which falt meat has been boiled, till they have licked up all the faline particles, and if a horfe that has been rode hard, and in a fweat, is turned out with others, they

they each instantly furround and lick him.

Nature feems to have prompted thefe animals by inftinct, as if fenfible thefe faline particles were abfolutely neceffary to correct the acidity arising from a fuperabundant accumulation in the ftomach of the vegetable juices; the inhabitants therefore not only give them falt as medicinal, and to promote their encrease of flesh, but to render them gentle and tame, and to allure them to visit their plantations; otherwife, as they are not deficient in provender in Winter, they would run wild and roam beyond the reach of their owners, in these immense woods; yet notwithstanding this precaution, great numbers do run at large entirely wild, and have no proprietors, but those on whofe lands they are found.

Y 4

Moft

وللمتفر والمتعاول والمتعام والمت

AVEL

fent un r and in s. As in the thrugh furprise driver has house in three with ughout & t any p falt-ma are faist ted after t has been t has been the falstas been the falstas been the falstas the fals-tas the falstas the fals-tas the fal

Moft perfons who are in poffeffion of any confiderable plantation, have what is called a right in the woods, by which they are entitled to a certain proportion of the ewe cattle that run wild, which they can difpofe of, or transfer as affixed property; there is no other criterion to afcertain them but by branding, or putting fome mark on them; each perfon differs in this, and they are recorded in the county court, fuch property is further fecured by an act of the affembly, which made it felony, to alter or deface the marks.

فبصاحا والعاوا والمالية والمراوا والمراجعة والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع

Most of the planters confign the care of their plantations and negroes to an overfeer, even the man whose house we rent, has his overseer, though he could with ease superintend it himself; but if they possibles a few negroes, they think it beneath their dignity, added to which, they are so abominably lazy. I'll give you a sketch of this man's general way of living.

He rifes about eight o'clock, drinks what he calls a julep, which is a large glafs of rum, fweetened with fugar, and then walks, or more generally rides round his plantation, views his flock, infpects his crops, and returns about ten o'clock to breakfast on cold meat, or ham, fried hommony, toaft and cyder; tea and coffee is feldom tafted, but by the women. He then faunters about the houfe, fometimes amufing himfelf with the little negroes who are playing round the door, or else fcraping on a fiddle; about twelve or one he drinks toddy, to create him an appetite for his dinner, which he fits down to at two o'clock; after he has dined, he generally lays down on the bed, and rifes about five, then perhaps fips fome tea with his wife, but commonly drinks toddy 'till bed time; during all this he is neither

VELS

in palé n, have roportin which the affixed pp fers in the fers in the del by a del it fal onfign the groes ton fe houfe t h he cou delf; but chey think ed to which y. Il §

neither drunk nor fober, but in a flate of flupefaction; this is his ufual mode of living, which he feldom varies, and only quits his plantation to attend the Court-Houfe on court days, or to fome horfe race or cock fight; at which times he gets fo egregioufly drunk, that his wife fends a couple of negroes to conduct him fafe home.

Thus the whole management of the plantation is left to the overfeer, who as an encouragement to make the moft of the crops, has a certain portion as his wages, but not having any intereft in the negroes, any further than their labour, he drives and whips them about, and works them beyond their ftrength, and fometimes till they expire; he feels no lofs in their death, he knows the plantation must be fupplied, and his humanity is estimated by his interest, which rifes always above freezing point.

۱۰۰۰ ۲۰۰۰ مالا المالا المالك الم

It

ut in an al model uries, and tend the 0 to fone ch timesh his with onduct him

VELS

agement d overfeer, u e the motition as his of in these and works id fometim no lofs in untation m ty is ethinm ways abore It is the poor negroes who alone work hard, and I am forry to fay, fare hard. Incredible is the fatigue which the poor wretches undergo, and that nature fhould be able to fupport it; there certainly muft be fomething in their conflictutions, as well as their color, different from us, that enables them to endure it.

They are called up at day break, and feldom allowed to fwallow a mouthful of homminy, or hoe cake, but are drawn out into the field immediately, where they continue at hard labour, without intermiffion, till noon, when they go to their dinners, and are feldom allowed an hour for that purpofe; their meals confift of homminy and falt, and if their mafter is a man of humanity, touched by the finer feelings of love and fenfibility, he allows them twice a week a little fat fkimmed milk, rufty bacon, or falt herring, to relifh this miferable and fcanty fare. The man man at this plantation, in lieu of thefe. grants his negroes an acre of ground, and all Saturday afternoon to raife grain and poultry for themfelves. After they have dined, they return to labor in the field, until dusk in the evening ; here one naturally imagines the daily labor of these poor creatures was over, not fo, they repair to the tobacco houfes, where each has a talk of ftripping allotted which takes them up fome hours, or elfe they have fuch a quantity of Indian corn to hufk, and if they neglect it, are tied up in the morning, and receive a number of lafhes from those unfeeling monfters, the overfeers, whofe mafters fuffer them to exercise their brutal authority without constraint. Thus by their night tafk, it is late in the evening before thefe poor creatures return to their fecond fcanty meal, and the time taken up at it encroaches upon their hours of fleep, which for refreshment of food and sleep together together can never be reckoned to exceed eight.

وجراحا والألافة والمتعام والمتعام والمتعام المتعام والمتعام والمتعام

When they lay themfelves down to reft, their comforts are equally miferable and limited, for they fleep on a bench, or on the ground, with an old fcanty blanket, which ferves them at once for bed and covering, their cloathing is not lefs wretched, confifting of a fhirt and trowfers of coarfe, thin, hard, hempen ftuff, in the Summer, with an addition of a very coarfe woollen jacket, breeches and fhoes in Winter. But fince the war, their mafters, for they cannot get the cloathing as ufual, fuffer them to go in rags, and many in a ftate of nudity.

The female flaves fhare labor and repofe just in the fame manner, except a few who are term'd house negroes, and are employed in household drudgery.

Thefe

VELS

lieu di of ground aife gran After the or in the here oner hey repair ch has a ti es themu ch a quati if they orning, a om thefer s. wholen eir brutal Thus b he evening! n to their e taken T hours of of food at 11

Thefe poor creatures are all fubmifion to injuries and infults, and are obliged to be paffive, nor dare they refift or defend themfelves if attacked, without the fmalleft provocation, by a white perfon, as the law directs the negroe's arm to be cut off who raifes it againft a white perfon, fhould it be only in defence againft wanton barbarity and outrage.

Notwithftanding this humiliating flate and rigid treatment to which this wretched race are fubject, they are devoid of care, and appear jovial, contented and happy. It is a fortunate circumftance that they poffefs, and are bleffed with fuch an eafy fatisfied difpofition, otherwife they muft inevitably fink under fuch a complication of mifery and wretchednefs; what is fingularly remarkable, they always carry out a piece of fire, and kindle one near their work, let the weather be ever fo hot and fultry.

As

כרובה פשבופוסוסוסוסוסוסוסו

2019년(1919년) 2019년(1919년) 2019년) 2019년(1919년) 2019년) 2019년

As I have feveral times mentioned homminy and hoe-cake, it may not be amils to explain them: the former is made of Indian corn, which is coarfely broke, and boiled with a few French beans, till it is almost a pulp. Hoe-cake is Indian corn ground into meal, kneaded into a dough, and baked before a fire, but as the negroes bake theirs on the hoes that they work with, they have the appellation of hoecakes. Thefe are in common ufe among the inhabitants, I cannot fay they are palateable, for as to flavor, one made of fawdust would be equally good, and not unlike it in appearance, but they are certainly a very ftrong and hearty food.

Having given you a pretty good fketch of thefe back-fettlers, in my next I fhall be able to afford you fome account of the country, and the lives and manners of the people in the lower parts of this province, for

AVEL

are all fin and are of y refift of ithout the perfon, at to be can perfon, fi ainft warm

s humilia are devid ntented an inflance to f with fuct therwife to iuch a comedness; minney alwayso ndle one to be ever fol for in a few days I am going to Richmond to purchafe fome liquors and neceffaries, to render our fituation a little comfortable, in this dreary region of woods and wretchednefs. I remain

a maie hack-fettlers, in avenest, I faall

Yours, &c.

I E T. to afford you fome account of

LETTER LXIII.

Richmond, in Virginia, Feb. 12 1779.

20121212121212

MY DEAR FRIEND,

A F E W days after my laft letter, with your friend Johnfon of our regiment, I fet off for this place, and an uncomfortable journey we had, as the feafon was unfavorable, and rendered travelling very dangerous, on account of the fnow then on the ground, and the continued falls of fleet, till our arrival at this place.

The country is fo much covered with woods, that you travel a long time with-Vol. II. Z out and test and test a little on on of wow

AVEU

Yours,

out feeing an habitation, (the first we met with, was near eighteen miles from Charlottefville) you can fcarcely conceive the difficulty in finding the proper roads, as they are hardly to be guefied at by those who have often used to travel in America; when one is bad, they make another in a different direction, added to which, the planters, fans ceremonie turn a road to fuit their own convenience, and render it more commodious to their plantation, if perchance you meet an inhabitant and enquire your way, his directions are, if poffible, more perplexing than the roads themselves, for he tells you to keep the right hand path, then you'll come to an old field, you are to crofs that, and then you'll come to the fence of fuch a ones plantation, then keep that fence, and you'll come to a road that has three forks, (which is their manner of describing the partings in the roads) keep the right hand fork for about half a mile, and then you'll come to a creek, after you crofs that creek, you must turn to the left, and then you'll come to a tobacco houfe; after you have paffed that, you'll come to another road that forks, keep the right hand fork, and then you'll come to Mr. fuch a ones ordinary, and he will direct you. Thus you fee it requires the most retentive memory to be able to proceed at all, if unaccustomed to the roads.

n, (the h

hteen mik

the proper

quefiedath

ravel in A make and led to whi

turn a roll

and rende plantation

nhabitant

directions

ing that i

Ils you to I

n you'll at

rols that, I

nce of fui

p that for

that has the

ner of dela

Keep then

mile, and b

We adopted a fingular mode, which proved fortunate. One day after travelling a ftraight road for near fifteen miles at the leaft, as we calculated by our watches, during the whole way, we neither met or overtook a living creature, and were greatly at a lofs, as totally uncertain of being in the right road. Our perplexities greatly increased by the roads dividing; unacquainted with the country, or in what direction the place we wished to reach, lay. We continued for a length of

Z 2

of time undetermined which road to take, at laft my companion proposed we should tofs up a dollar, and if heads, to take the right hand, if tails, the left; it chanced to come up heads, and we took the right hand road accordingly, when after travelling about four miles, we came to the ordinary where we baited, the landlord of which informed us that had we taken the other road, we should have gone near fixteen miles further without seing an house.

Having feveral times mentioned an ordinary, it may not be amifs to acquaint you, that out of the principal towns, all taverns and public houfes are, in Virginia, called ordinaries, and 'faith not improperly in general; they confift of a little houfe placed in a folitary fituation, in the middle of the woods, and the ufual mode of defcribing the roads, is from fuch an ordinary to fuch a one, fo many miles ; the entertainment you meet with is very poor indeed, feldom able to procure any other fare than eggs and bacon, with Indian hoe cake, and at many of them not even that; the only liquors are peach brandy and whifkey. For this miferable fare they are not remifs in making pretty exorbitant charges; but I am not furprized that accommodation for travellers is fo bad, as I am informed, before the war, the hospitality of the country was such, that travellers always ftopt at a plantation when they wanted to refresh themfelves and their horfes, where they always met with the most courteous treatment, and were fupplied with every thing gratuitoufly; and if any neighbouring planters heard of any gentleman being at one of these ordinaries, they would fend a negroe with an invitation to their own houfe.

 \mathbb{Z}_3

On

AVEL

ich roadt

poled mi

eads, total

left: itd

we took the

when at

we cank!

, the land

t had me

nould have

er without

nentioned

is to acquir

towns, ali

in Virginia

notimprot

Fa little hos

ion, in the ufual mot

om fuch and

342

On our journey to this place we overtook a flock of wild turkeys; a couple of fpaniels we had with us purfued them, and it is incredible how fwift they run, as neither of us, though we galloped our horfes, could overtake them, although they run near two hundred yards before they took flight; they appeared confiderably larger than ours, and I am told, fometimes weigh thirty or forty pounds each. Just before we came to Goochland Court houfe, we faw the manner by which the inhabitants catch them ; they make a log fence of about twelve feet fquare, fecuring the top with heavy logs, but before they cover it over dig a passage from the center, to the outfide of the fence, which is covered over fo as to admit light, and round about the entrance, and through this paffage they ftrew Indian corn, as well as a quantity for them to feed on when in the trap, the birds feeing the

م الا الا الا الا الماليان المالية الم المالية المالية

the corn in the infide, keep walking round to gather it, till they meet that which is laid to conduct them into the paffage, which having confumed, they keep eating on till they get into the trap, and thefe foolifh birds, when they wifh to get out, inftead of returning the way they came in, keep continually flying up, by which means one or two out of the flock, in the morning are found dead, and they fre quently catch a flock of ten or a dozen at a time in this manner.

At Weftham, about feven miles, the falls of James River commence, which continue to about half a mile below this place, where the tide comes up. The grand ftaple commodity of this province is tobacco, carried down the river from the back fettlements to Weftham, upon canoes lafhed together, and then it is brought by land carriage to this place, as the falls prevent any communication by water, Z_4 through

AVELS

s place m

evs; a con

B purfuel

wift they

we gallopi

them, all

red vards

ppeared on

and I a

or forty 1

ime to Ga

manner by nem ; they

ve feet four

ry logs, but

a pallage

tfide of the

o as to admi

ne entranc

they ftrem

antity for t

ap, the birt

through the diftance of feven miles; and during the courfe of that part of the river, the water rufhes down in vaft torrents, raging with great impetuofity, and dafhing from rock to rock with a most tremendous noife, which may be heard for many miles.

At this place the land fuddenly rifes into hills of a great height, abounding with prodigious rocks, large flones and trees; and as the fummit of many of thefe hills hang over the falling torrent of James river, they command most romantic prospects.

see continuelly Buildy the by which

A little below Richmond, the tide flows up to the rocks of the fall, and there James River is half a mile wide, at which place there are ferry-boats.

omenento about half a mile below they

At the foot of the falls there are three towns; Richmond, which is the largest, feparated

3명역역학학학학학학학학학학학학학학학학학학

feparated by a creek named Shoekoes, from the town of Shoekoes, that joins it; thefe are on the North fide of the river, and on the South fide frands Chefterfield, but from its fituation, more generally known by the name of Rocks Bridge; finall floops come up to the falls, and two miles lower, large fhips come up to load.

conflected of fixed principles, of affiliance

I am informed, above the falls, the river, after heavy rains, fwells to a great height, and overflows all the low ground for feveral miles; and at the falls, where the river is confined by the mountains that abruptly arife on each fide, the noife, force, and impetuofity of the torrent, are most dreadfully tremendous and awful.

Many gentlemen around Richmond, though ftrongly attached to the American caufe, have fhewn the liberality and hofpitality fo peculiar to this province, in their particular

mail form

AVEIS

feven min part of the in valt to aofity, an with a mi may be he fuddenlyn , aboundin Atones an f many d falling ton and molt

ond, the tie e fall, au ile wide, ^g ts.

Ils there and ich is the l

particular attention and civilities to out officers, who are quartered here, and in the adjacent country; among thofe who are moft diftinguished in this line, are Colonel Randolph, of Tuckahoe; Colonel Good, of Chefterfield; Colonel Cary, of Warwick, &c. &c. The illiberal part of their countrymen charge them with being partial to Great-Britain, but these are gentlemen of fixed principles, of affluence and authority, and therefore despite all popular clamour.

۵٫۰۰۰ دا جانجانجا با الماليان المالي المالي المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية الم

There happened the moft remarkable phenomenon a few nights ago, that we imagined might be peculiar to this climate, but at which we found the inhabitants exceedingly alarmed and terrified; it was a moft terrible ftorm of thunder and lightning; the day had been as piercingly keen and penetrating as any we had felt this Winter, and in the evening the ftorm came on; the erufcations and flafhes of lightning civilities red here, s mong this this line, s ckahoe; 0 Colonel G e illiberal s e them with 1, but the refore des moft ra ghts ago, 1 liar to this the inhabit terrified, 1 thunder a as piercing y we had t evening th ons and th lightning inceffantly followed each other in quick and rapid transitions, and the j thunder was a constant succession of loud contending peals; this storm lasted near two hours; at its commencement, the air felt warm, which encreased so fast, that at one time it was intensely hot; but as the storm decreased, so the heat left us, and the next morning was a sharp frost.

As I was walking with fome officers, I was fhewn a gentleman of the town, a Mr. Fanchée, a furgeon and apothecary, who had the misfortune to have one of his eyes gouged out, it was happily in time replaced, and there were hopes that he would recover the ufe of it. I fhall relate the way the accident happened, to fhew the ferocioufnefs of the lower clafs in this country; this gentlemen was at play in the billiard-room, where there were a number of gentlemen, and feveral of our officers: a low fellow, who pretends to gentility gentility came in, and in the course of play, fome words arofe, in which he first wantonly abufed, and afterward would infift on fighting Mr. Fauchée, defiring at the fame time, to know upon what terms he would fight, as the lower fort have various modes; Mr. Fauchée declined any, faying, that he was totally ignorant as to boxing, but the other calling himfelf a gentleman, he would meet him in a gentleman-like manner ; he had fcarcely uttered thefe words, before the other flew at him, and in an inftant turned his eye out of the focket, and while it hung upon his cheek, the fellow was barbarous enough to endeavor to pluck it entirely out, but was prevented. You can eafily imagine what the officers who were prefent, mult have felt, as fpectators of fuch a fcene, who were obliged to fuffer fuch a wretch to go off with impunity, their hands being restrained, by their parole, from any interference.

AVEL

This

This most barbarous custom, which a favage would blufh at being accufed of, is peculiar to the lower class of people in this province; at one time it was fo prevalent, that the Governor and Affembly were obliged to pafs a law which made it criminal, and that law is now in force, but the rabble are fuch a lawlefs fet, especially those in the back woods, that they are little reftrained by any laws the State can pafs, and in the back fettlement, this favage cuftom prevails .---- I have feen a fellow, reckoned a great adept in gouging, who conftantly kept the nails of both his thumbs and fecond fingers very long and pointed; nay, to prevent their breaking or fplitting, in the execution of his diabolical intentions, he hardened them every evening in a candle.

It is an univerfal opinion, that death is preferable to lofs of fight, and as every occafion of quarrelling with the officers is greedily

in them

in which afterward uchée, dé upon wh lower fa Fauchée i is totally i her calling meet himi e had for re the other turned his e it hung harbaroust t entirely a can eafily were prelen s of fuch 1 affer fucha ty, their his ir parole, ti greedily fought after, we feldom go out without our fide arms. What pity it is, that a country where the fuperior clafs are of fuch an hofpitable and friendly difpolition, fhould be rendered almost unfafe to live in by the barbarity of the people. That I was but out of it, and once more in Old England, is the constant prayer of

Yours, &c.

priver LET.

LETTER LXIV.

Richmond, in Virginia, Feb. 18th, 1779.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

I HAVE been detained at this place beyond my original intention by the hofpitality of the neighbouring gentlemen, who would not let me leave them without vifiting the whole circle; among the number was Colonel Carey, who refides at Warwick, where he has a moft fuperb houfe, near which are fome curious mills and iron-works, whofe building coft fome thoufands of pounds; they have not only been of great emolument to himfelf, but very

Yours, di

RAVEL

we feldon Whatp he fuperin nd friendo

ed almosta rity of the it, and u

conftant #

very beneficial to the public. His houfe is fituated on the border of James River, and on the oppofite fhore is another of a Major Randolph; it may not be unneceffary to obferve, that the Randolphs are defcended from one of the first fettlers in this province of that name, and are fo numerous, that they are obliged, like the clans of Scotland, to be diffinguished by their places of refidence.

Peterfburgh being but a few miles from Colonel Carey's, and feveral of us, one evening, expreffing a defire to fee that town, but lamenting it was out of our parole. He, the next morning after breakfaft, faid, "Come, gentlemen, we'll mount " out horfes, and take a ride before din-" ner, to Peterfburgh," we expreffed how happy it would make us to accompany him, but were reftrained by our parole, when he replied, " not fo, gentlemen," and produced a letter from the American Commanding.

THROUGH AMERICA. 353.

manding Officer, granting us permission; this little circumstance I mention, to shew that his hospitality is accompanied with true politeness and attention.

The town of Petersburgh is fituated on the borders of the Apamatock River, and on the oppofite fhore are a few houfes, which is a kind of fuburb, independant of Petersburg, called Pocahunta----the principal trade of Petersburg arises from the exporting of tobacco, deposited in warehoufes and magazines, but before it is lodged in thefe warehoufes, it is examined, to confirm it in a proper state for exportation by infpectors, who prove the quality of the tobacco; and if found good, they give the planter a receipt for fuch a quantity, and these receipts pass current as cash : Thus any one depositing tobacco in thefe warehoufes, and obtaining a receipt, may go to Williamsburg, or any other city in the province, and purchase any VOL. II. Aa kind

El

1200

y noi he Ra he firti

ne, a liged, I

few mit

al of 1

re to i

as out

ing afte

en, mil

ide bi

e estitel

to 201

by ou

rentlen

kind of commodities, paying with receipts, which circulate through a multitude of hands before they come to the merchant who purchafes the tobacco for exportation; thus this valuable commodity is equally Bank flock, and current coin; and the inhabitants, in deferibing the prices of their different purchafes, instead of faying "I gave fo many pounds for fuch an ar-"ticle;" "I gave fo many hogfheads of "tobacco."

The Apamatocks River is nearly as wide as the Thames, and runs into the James River, about twelve miles from the falls, which are a little above Peterfburgh, and just below the falls, there is a large wooden bridge, at the town of Pocahunta, up to which floops, fchooners, and fmall vefiels continually fail.

The town of Pocahunta is named after the daughter of a famous Indian Chief, or Emperor

Emperor Powhatan (which is the Indian name of the James River) who gave all the land round this place to his daughter as a marriage portion.

At Peterfburgh refides a Mrs. Bowling, who has confiderable warehoufes, befides a very extensive plantation and effates, whofe fon has married a very agreeable young lady, lineally defcended from Pocahunta. After Colonel Carey had given us the brief hiftory of Pocahunta, relating to her friendship for the English, in their first fettlement in this province, and her marrying an Englishman, with whom she went to Europe, he related the following anecdote of a great man of her own nation, that she had in her fuite, when she left Virginia:

"This man had orders from Powhatan "to count the people of England, and give "him an account of their numbers. As Aa 2 "the els vib m coutth ihe m for a ommi

ent cie

the p

hogh

nearly

nto th

terlbur

alarge

cahur

ndfail

15 112

" the Indians have no letters or figures " among them, he, at his going ashore, " provided a flick, in which he was to " make a notch for every perfon he faw; " but he, as you may fuppofe, foon grew " weary, and threw away his flick : Upon " his return, the King afked him how " many people there were ?" " He defired " him to count the flars in the fly, the leaves " upon the trees, and the fand on the fea " store, for so many people be faid were in " England." At this conclusion, Colonel Carey archly remarked, "Don't you think " you cou'd make that reply to your King, " if he asked you how many people you " faw in America?"

The tobacco warehoufes at Peterfburg, as well as at Richmond, are crowded with that commodity, as they cannot find purchafers, and the planters will not export it themfelves, on account of our numerous privateers; fome few merchants have ventured

tured fmall floops to the Bermuda iflands, and have been fuccefsful; it is only thefe who have any commodities in their ftores, the reft being fhut up; and I cannot help making the fame reflection, at feeing fuch towns as Peterfburgh and Richmond in the fame state as that of Lancaster, all trade being at a stand in these places, where no doubt, before the war, it must have been very confiderable, thefe two towns having formerly fupplied the back fettlers with all manner of stores for their plantations. Except in the principal cities, fuch as Bofton, New-York, and Philadelphia, the towns have not various branches of manufactures, fuch as linendrapers, mercers, grocers, hofieis, haberdashers, stationers, &c. but are all comprized under the name of merchant and ftore-keeper; and what are called fhops in England, are here denominated ftores, which furnish every article in life, not only neceffary but ornamental, and even Aa 3

وكالبال والوالوالوالوا والماله لماله لمالما مالوالوا والوالوالوالوالوالوالوالوالوالوا والمالوا والمالوا

AVEG

etters o

is going

thich b

t his thi

ere i^{n al}l e the And be fands

ple he fi

"Don't

eply to 1

mauri

1, are con

ey campit

ters mile

int of our

Terchant

even jewellery; exclusive of the great stores in the capital towns, there are smaller ones scattered all over the country.

I fpent a few days at Colonel Randolph's, at Tuckahoe, at whofe house the ufual hospitality of the country prevailed; it is built on a rifing ground, having a most beautiful and commanding prospect of James River; on one fide is Tuckahoe, which being the Indian name of that creek, he named his plantation Tuckahoe after it; his house seems to be built solely to anfwer the purpofes of hospitality, which being constructed in a different manner than in most other countries; I shall defcribe it to you : It is in the form of an H, and has the appearance of two houses, joined by a large faloon; each wing has two ftories, and four large rooms on a floor; in one the family refide, and the other is referved folely for vifitors ; the faloon that unites them, is of a confider-

of the p aere ar

AVEL

at Colm whole ountry round, b manding fide is h n name ntation 1 s to bell fes of h dinal ther wit Itism ppearant irge fahr d four by familyte ety for the 1, is of 21 able magnitude, and on each fide are doors; the ceiling is lofty, and to thefe they principally retire in the Summer, being but little incommoded by the fun, and by the doors of each of the houfes, and those of the faloon being open, there is a conftant circulation of air; they are furnished with four fophas, two on each fide, befides chairs, and in the center there is generally a chandelier; thefe faloons anfwer the two purpofes of a cool retreat from the fcorching and fultry heat of the climate, and of an occasional ball-room. The outhouses are detached at some diftance, that the houfe may be open to the air on all fides.

Colonel Randolph poffeffes that fondnefs for horfes, which I obferved was peculiar to the Virginians of all ftations, fparing no trouble, pains, or expence, in importing the beft flock, and improving the breed; and it was with no little pleafure A a 4 he

he fhewed us a fine one, named Shake, speare, which he imported just as the war commenced. There was a stable built purpofely for this horfe, in which was a recess for a bed for the negroe who looked after it, that he might be with it at night. This horfe is of a handfome dappled grey, about fixteen hands and a half high, with a most beautiful head and neck; as to any other points about him, it is impoffible to tell, for the creature was fo amazingly pampered and fat, and being of the race breed, his legs were fo fmall and flim, that they appeared unable to fupport the weight of his body, exactly like the horfes one fees painted in old pictures; the best idea you can possibly form of his fize, is by telling you, that from his withers to his tail, there was fuch a groove of fat, that you might pour water upon his withers, and it would run in a ftraight line down his tail; the horfe is obliged to be kept in high condition, to enable enable him to receive the numerous vifitors attending on him in the Spring.

فالمعا والما والمالوال المالية المالية

In the courfe of a few days I shall return to Charlottefville, at which I am by no means difpleafed, for notwithstanding the hospitality and great attention shewn me, I do not feel myfelf comme il faut, feeling that uneafy fenfation, which the English in general possess, and which may be ridiculous perhaps, but it is constitutional, arifing from a confcioufnefs of its being out of my power to make a return for the civilities fhewn me. I cannot but in justice fay, that in all the gentlemens houfes I have vifited, they never started, for would fuffer any conversation on politics; fometimes, when alone with the ladies, they would indulge and rally us a little, at our being prifoners, but all with great good humour; the only unpleafant circumstance of the kind that I recollect was at Tuckahoe, where an officer

AVEL

e, name

d jut a

a Atablet

who ha

with it:

andfere

ut him

e cretti

nd fat, i

legs m

ppeared

his bot

paintadi

a can pub

ng you, t

therens

might

it would

tail; the high cool

cer fuffered his vexation to overcome that gratitude he was bound to fhew for the hofpitality he met with.

Colonel Randolph every year made a prefent of two hogsheads of tobacco to his daughter as a venture, to purchase dreffes and ornaments, and the ships had always been fo unfortunate as to be captured. As feveral officers were fitting with the ladies, the conversation ran upon politics, when Mifs Randolph innocently afked, "How "we came to be taken prifoners?" the officer with fome warmth replied, " Just "as your tobacco was, by a fuperior " force." I need not tell you the diftress and confusion of the young lady, as well as of the officer himfelf, who immediately became confcious of what he had faid, and for his ill-timed violence, he forfeited all claim to the hospitality of Tuckahoe.

Yours, &c.

LET-

a bay bay bay

LETTER LXV.

Jones's Plantation, near Charlottefville, in Virginia, April 10, 1779.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

DURING my journey to Richmond, General Phillips and General Reidefel arrived at Charlottefville, and the day after their arrival, went to the barracks; they were greatly incenfed at the treatment the army met with, at prefent the foldiers are more comfortably lodged, but had General Phillips feen them in the ftate they were in on the first arrival of the troops, I think his warmth of temper and regard for them, would have laid him under the fame refriction

AVEL

to oven to they

ery year of tobat o purdi thips be) be catt ng with t on politi ily alkel 1 prilos th replic s, by a ell vou t ounghi whoim at he had ce, he fut of Tub

Fors

ftriction as at Bofton. The men have been exceedingly ill fupplied with provifions in general, having meat only twice or thrice a week, and for fome weeks none, what they get is fcarcely wholefome, this is at prefent what the poor fellows term a faft, they not having any meat ferved them fince the twenty-fifth of laft month. General Phillips has greatly exerted himfelf fince his arrival, and there are hopes that in future, the troops will be more regularly fupplied.

Congress certainly are to be acquitted of all this bad management, as they have been mifguided and duped by one of their own members, a Colonel Harvey, who is a delegate for this Province.

When they paffed the refolve to detain us prifoners, contrary to the articles of convention, the state of Massachusets deemed it oppressive, that it should be

واجاجاد كتعاظ واطر والطوا واحاطر

The m lied win reat only ome wen ome wen ome wen one wen any me fth of lat reatly em d there m ops will 1

te to hi ent, at ed by ou nel Ham ovince.

e referring to the p of Main that it b obliged to fupport our army, as they had cheerfully fupplied their own troops with more in quota than the other Provinces, and that as they had already fupplied our army for near a twelvemonth, it would be but equitable for the fouthern Provinces to partake of the burthen; they accordingly inftructed their delegates to apply to Congress for that purpose. When the motion was made, the petition of the State of Maffachufets appeared founded upon equity, and it was then confidered to what Province we should be removed to, the Jerfeys and New-York Provinces were improper, as being the feat of war, as to Penfylvania, that Province had been fo ravaged by the two armies, that they deemed it incapable of furnishing provifion to fupply their own with the quota allotted them. As to Maryland, it was fo finall a Province, it did not admit of any confideration, and Virginia was deemed the Province beft calculated, from from its extensivenes, as well as its fertility; and that by stationing the army in the back settlements, it removed all sears of any attempts of a refcue, by a part of the army from New York.

When Virginia was fixed upon, this Colonel Harvey proposed to Congress, to remove the convention army to a tract of land that belonged to him about fix miles from Charlottesville, about four from the blue mountains, and near two hundred miles from the sea coast, that if Congress approved of that fituation, he would engage to build barracks and lay in provisions by the ensuing Spring. This proposal meeting with approbation, was passed into a resolve about the latter end of last June.

ieles, in in and the subset of the subsection o

Colonel Harvey immediately reforted to Virginia, and fet all his negroes and a number of the inhabitants to built thefe barracks, barracks, and to collect provisions; after having planned every thing, he left the completion of it to the management of his brother, and returned to Congress. His brother not poffeffing fo much activity and not being, perhaps, fo much interefted in the bufinefs, did not pay proper attention to it, which was the caufe why the barracks were not finished, and affairs being in fuch a state of confusion on our arrival. When Colonel Harvey left Virginia, he fully imagined that every neceffary comfort and fupply of provisions would be ready for the reception of the troops, at Chriftmas; being fully fenfible that the log-huts would be erected long before that time, and as to provisions, he had left fuch directions as, if obeyed, could not fail; it is just to obferve, that Congrefs confulted Colonel Harvey previous to their paffing their refolves, and fending their orders of our removal out of the Massachusets State.

The

s wella ing the removel cue, by ck, fixed up d to Cup army as about h about h d near that coaft, the c

his nega tants to b

The houfe and plantation where General Phillips refides is called Blenheim; the house was erected shortly after that memorable battle in Germany, by a Mr. Carter, who was Secretary to the colony, and was his favorite feat of refidence: It ftands on a lofty eminence, commanding a very extensive profpect, and is built after the manner of that I have deferibed to you in my laft. The prefent proprietor, Colonel Carter, posselles a most affluent fortune, and has a variety of feats, in fituations far furpaffing this of Blenheim, which he fuffers to go to ruin; and when General Phillips took it, this charming manfion was crouded with negroes, fent from various other plantations, to clear a fpot of ground a few miles off: The tract of land Colonel Carter poffelles in this province is immense, and his flock of negroes the most numerous, he being poffeffed of one thousand five hundred on his different plantations: The et constructions and a statement of the second of the sec

The first night after our leaving Richmond, I flept at an elegant villa, called Belvidera, which formerly belonged to a Colonel Bird, who diftinguished himfelf greatly in the last war, in that fad difaster of General Braddock's. He poffeffed a most affluent fortune, and was proprietor of all the lands round the falls for many miles, as well as the greatest part of the lands round the town of Richmond. His great abilities and perfonal accomplishments, were universally esteemed, but being infatuated with play, his affairs, at his death, were in a deranged state. The widow whom he left with eight children, has, by prudent management, preferved out of the wreck of his princely fortune, a beautiful houfe, at a place called Westover, upon James River, fome perfonal property, a few plantations, and a number of flaves. The grounds around the house at Westover, are laid out in a most beautiful manner and with VOL. II. Bb great

RAVIII ition whe

tly after

many, h

tary to th

at of reli

ience, con

peet, and

that I have

The pa

er, polis

las a vanit

affing the

s to go to

took it, t

uded with

nd a ferra

lonel Care menfe, ai

numerous

great taste, and from the river appear delightful.

From my obfervations and remarks in my late journey, it appeared to me, that before the war, the fpirit of equality or levelling principal was not fo prevalent in Virginia, as in the other provinces; and that the different claffes of people in the former fupported a greater diffinction than those of the latter; but fince the war, that principle feems to have gained great ground in Virginia; an inftance of it I faw at Colonel Randolph's, at 'Iuckahoe, where three country peafants, who came upon bufinefs, entered the room where the Colonel and his company were fitting, took themfelves chairs, drew near the fire, began fpitting, pulling off their country boots all over mud, and then opened their bufinefs, which was fimply about fome continental flour to be When ground at the Colonel's mill: they

9999999999999999986

they were gone, fome one obferved what great liberties they took; he replied, it was unavoidable, the fpirit of independency was converted into equality, and every one who bore arms, efteemed himfelf upon a footing with his neighbour, and concluded with faying, "No doubt, " each of thefe men conceives himfelf, in " every refpect, my equal."

There were, and still are, three degrees of ranks among the inhabitants, exclusive of negroes; but I am afraid the advantage of distinction will never exist again in this country, in the fame manner it did before the commencement of hostilities. The first class confists of gentlemen of the best families and fortunes, which are more respectable and numerous here, than in any other province; for the most part they have had liberal educations, posses a thorough knowledge of the world, B b 2 with

RAVIU the im

is and m eared to rit of m not form er prom s of people greater 🗄 er; but! ms to ba ia; an il ndolphist itry peda entered t his com s chairs, i g, pullingi er med a which to stal for tel's m with great eafe and freedom in their manners and converfation, many of them keep their carriages, have handfome fervices of plate, and without exception, keep their ftuds, as well as fets of handfome carriage horfes.

The fecond clafs confifts of fuch a strange mixture of characters, and of fuch various defcriptions of occupations, being nearly half the inhabitants, that it is difficult to afcertain their exact criterion and leading feature. They are however, hofpitable, generous, and friendly; but for want of a proper knowledge of the world, and a good education, as well as from their continual intercourfe with their flaves, over whom they are accustomed to tyrannize, with all their good qualities, they are rude, ferocious, and haughty, much attached to gaming and diffipation, particularly horfe-racing and cock-fighting;

ing; in fhort, they form a moft unaccountable combination of qualities and principles directly oppofite and contradictory, many of them having them ftrangely blended with the beft and worft of principles, the moft valuable and moft worthlefs, many poffeffing elegant accomplifhments and favage brutality, and notwithftanding all this inconfiftency of character, numbers are valuable members of the community, and very few deficient in intellectual faculties.

The third clafs, which, in general, compofes the greateft part of mankind, are fewer in Virginia, in proportion to the inhabitants, than perhaps in any other country in the world; yet even those who are rude, illiberal, and noify, with a turbulent difposition, are generous, kind, and hospitable. We are induced to imagine there is fomething peculiar in the B b 3 climate

om in the many d re handin thout ou as fets d

nfifts di Eters, ad accouptions its, thati i climate of Virginia, that fhould render all claffes of fo hofpitable a difposition.

The lower people poffels that impertinent curiofity, fo very difagreeable and troublefome to ftrangers, but in no dedegree equal to the inhabitants of New-England, they are averfe to labor, much addicted to liquor, and when intoxicated, extremely favage and revengeful; nay, at fuch times, revenge infults of long date, even after they have been amicably adjufed; for the infult arifing in their minds, and the new friendship totally forgotten, they feek their object with keen attention, and fatiate their paffion with favage barbarity.

Their amufements are the fame with those of the middling fort, with the addition of boxing matches, in which they difplay fuch barbarity, as fully marks their innate

c fhould : dilpotin

RAVEN

fleis the y dilagea rs, but is habitats the to late of to late of the to late of

are the la fort, with s, in which as fully as innate ferocious difpolition. An English boxing match, though a difgrace to a polifhed nation, is humanity itfelf, compared with the Virginian mode of fighting; for, previous to the combatants falling too, they enter into an agreement, whether all advantages are allowable, which are biting, gouging, and (if I may fo term it) Abelarding each other. If thefe three preliminaries are agreed upon, they instantly fall to, and, after some little ftruggling, feize upon their adverfaries with their teeth. What is very remarkable, and fhews what coolnefs there muft be in these disputes, and that they are not wholly the effect of anger is, that whatever terms are specified, if only one or two out of the three conditions, let the conflict be ever fo fevere, they never infringe on any other.

Vegetables not being over abundant in these back woods at any time, and there B b 4 being a great deficiency of them in the Spring of year, the we adopt the cuftom of the inhabitants who gather the leaves of the pokeplant, just as they shoot above ground and are tender and foft; it is no bad fubstitute for fpinnage, and greatly refembles it in flavor, yet great care must be taken in gathering of it, that it is neither too old. nor the stalk grown, for in that cafe, if in breaking off the upper fprouts, you leave any part that is woody, the confequence of eating it is inevitable death, as it purges the body to excefs. Notwithftanding this plant has this pernicious quality, the children eat the berries of it in the Autumn, without any ill confequence attending it. The juice of the berries produces a most beautiful crimion color, the fineft in the world, but no method has yet been found to fix it, as cloths and woollens dyed with it fade very foon. Many perfons of great ingenuity and chymical mical knowledge have endeavored, at fixing of this color, which is fought after with as much eagerness as the philosopher's stone, and no doubt would be equally as beneficial, if attained.

with clouthing for the array arrived.

ber of letters delivered out I had a prest

TTITIC In impossibility a latim campenet

me; it certainly would adold me even

Yours, &c.

RAYE

mintel utomi t above m tly real nuft be the is neithe for in th upper im woott, t excels. has this p eat the be hout and The in oft beautit e would the nd to fir thittan tingenut

378.

LETTER LXVI.

Jones's Plantation, near Charlottefville, in Virginia, May 12, 1779.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

ند (۲۰۰۰ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰۰۱ - ۲۰

A FEW days ago the flag of truce, with cloathing for the army arrived at Richmond, and among the great number of letters delivered out, I had a great mortification, as well as difappointment, not to receive a fingle one, furely my friends must imagine, at fuch a diftance in these endless woods, that it is next to an impossibility a letter can reach me; it certainly would afford me great pleasure to hear that they were alive and well.

As to the reft, I would difpenfe with. I write continually from time to time; neverthelefs, from the uncertainty of conveyance, the fame accufation may hold good against me.

ation, nurlu rinia, Nga

RID

the fag i or the am ong the gu out, I ha as difapi le one, is is woods, is woods, is is a fait is woods, is is a fait is a fai Your old friend Clark, of Bofton, who is our Commiffary of Provisions, lately arrived from New-York, I fpent a few days with him at his quarters; exclusive of the great fund of information and amufement, which I derived from a number of English news-papers and magazines he brought with him, I was informed of the transfactions that happen upon this continent, among the rest, with a full account of the retreat of our army from Philadelphia to New-York. You may recollect, in a former letter, I mentioned, that a good retreat was looked on as the chef d'œuvre of a commander, and in this retreat, I think Sir Henry Clinton has

RAVEN

has clearly evinced it, and demonstrated. that he is equally as judicious and able as he is brave, in furmounting the innumerable difficulties and dangers he had to encounter : His way lay entirely through an enemy's country, univerfally hoftile, and where he could expect no affiftance; therefore, previous to his fetting out on this dangerous retreat, he took the precaution of providing for all exigencies, and a large quantity of provisions was a necessary, though not a fmall incumbrance, as well as the baggage of the army which accompanied it, forming a line of march of near twelve miles in extent; especially when it is confidered this army had to pass through a country interfected with hills, woods, rivers, defiles, and difficult paffes; from these causes, the march of the army being flow, afforded the Americans time to affemble, which they readily did to harrafs it, and in a fhort time Washington had

بقرعين بالما المالحا المالما لمالأ الأراجا والمتعاولون والمتعاول والمتعاول والمتعاول والمتعاول والمتعاول والمعالم

had collected a fufficient force to render its movements extremely dangerous.

When Sir Henry Clinton obferved the Americans were meditating an attack, he naturally concluded, it was with a view to cut off the baggage and rear of the army, which, from its extent, he was fearful might be eafily accomplished. He told Clark to in form General Phillips, among other defcriptions of the battle, that the day before he fat upon a stone for near an hour viewing the baggage as it paffed along, and debating in his own mind, whether he fhould not give inftant orders to deftroy it. At length, as he concluded it would be a matter of great exultation with the Americans, and a difgrace to the British army, he determined to preferve it at all events; therefore, on the day of the action at Monmouth, he fent forward the baggage, early in the morning,

RAVE

and the

dicious

ting the

ngers ht

entirely fetting on

took them

igencies, z

IS Was al

cumbran

ie army r

g a line i n extent;1

his army

terfected n

and diffet

march of

the Ameni

y readily di

rt time Wi

ing, under the care of General Knyphaufen, in order that it might proceed without moleftation.

The various movements, and politions of both armies in that engagement, and the iffue of it, as you must have feen it in Sir Henry Clinton's official account, I shall pass it over, only giving you this opinion of that battle, which he fent by Clark to General Phillips --- after having given a particular description of it, Sir Henry Clinton drew fome rough sketches of the various grounds and pofitions taken during the action. At length, recollecting himfelf, he faid, " Clark, you muft " not take thefe, for if the Americans " find them on you, they'll certainly hang " you ; therefore, only tell General Phil-" lips, ' that on that day I fought upon " velvet,' he will fully understand me."

للمرابع والمالا المالا المالك الأالأناج المالح المالك المالك المالك المالك المالك المرابع المالك المالك المالك

A very

RATH

of Genn : it might

ements. n that en you mat on's office only ging which h llips-th efcription fome rout s and post It length , " Charly orifte they'll cett nly tell Ge t day I th y undertail

A very fingular circumstance took place in that battle, which fully marks the coolnefs and deliberation, though in the heat of action, of Sir Henry Clinton: As he was reconnoitring, with two of his Aid de Camps, at the fhort turning of two roads, they met with an American officer, exceedingly well mounted upon a black horfe, who, upon difcerning them, made a ftop, and looked as if he wished to advance to fpeak to them, when one of Sir Henry Clinton's Aid de Camps fired a piftol at him, and he instantly rode off. Sir Henry was much difpleafed at his Aid de Camp, and cenfured him for being fo hafty, adding, he was confident that the man wished to speak to him, and perhaps, might have given intelligence that would have been very effential, remarking, that when he was in Germany laft war, and reconnoitring with Prince Ferdinand, a man rode up in a fimilar manner, manner, and gave fuch inttelligence as decided the fate of the day.

The weather becomes very unpleafant, being for the most part of the day intensely hot; notwithstanding, the poor negroes are exposed to the heat all day long, hoeing tobacco, even at noon, when the rays of the fun are fcorching; yet, with all this heat, they fcarcely perfpire; there certainly must be fome natural endowments, through which thefe poor creatures are able to withstand this excessive heat; it cannot be their color, for we well know that black attracts the rays of the fun more than any other, and therefore imagine it must proceed from the oily fubftance continually oozing out of the pores; for I remarked, even in the coldeft weather, their skins always appear glosfy, and certain it is, they are confiderably fmoother than ours, which must proceed from the caufes I have affigned. I obferved observed, from the negro to the mulatto, and they have their various tinges; they all perspired in proportion, the further they remove from the black, and white people confiderably more than any.

Having mentioned that there are mulattoes of various tinges, it may not be amifs to inform you from whence it arifes, and no doubt, but you will be furprized, when I tell you it is by the planters having intercourfe with their negroes, the iffue of which being a mulatto, and having a connection with that fhade becomes lighter; as an inftance, I remarked at Colonel Cole's, of whom I have made mention; there were mulattoes of all tinges, from the first remove, to one almost white; there were fome of them young women, who were really beautiful, being extremely well made, and with pretty delicate features; all of which I was informed, were the Colonel's own. I VOL. II. could Cc n inttel 1 y.

very m the por all day h on, what ing; Tai ly perfor e naturi thele poor this excel r, former ie ravid and there from the ing out of in the co ways appl they and urs, which s I have all could not help reflecting, that if a man had an intercourfe with his flaves, it was fhameful in the extreme, to make his own offspring fo; for thefe mulattees work equally the fame as those who come from Africa: To be fure, you may fay, it is a pleafant method to procure flaves at a cheap rate. I imagine there could not be lefs than twenty or thirty mulattoes of this defcription, at Colonel Coles's, notwithstanding he has a very agreeable and beautiful wife, by whom he has had eight children.

You know as to the principal employment of the poor negroes, I shall now give you a description of the method to cultivate and cure the grand staple commodity of this province, tobacco.

This plant is a native of America, and of very ancient ufe, though it was neither fo generally cultivated, nor fo well manufactured,

5년(대대학교) 관광대학교] 관광대학교] 관광대학교] 관광대학교] 관광대학교] 관광대학교

factured, as it has fince the province has been fettled with Europeans; for the Indians made use of it, by gathering the leaves as it grew spontaneously: The plant, at its proper height, is nearly as tall as a middle sized man, the stalk is strait, hairy, and exceeding clammy; the leaves grow alternately of a staded yellowish green, and towards the lower part of the plant of great magnitude.

The feeds of tobacco are first fown in beds, from whence they are transplanted the first rainy weather into a ground difposed into little hillocks, something similar to our hop gardens; in about a month's time from their transplanting, they grow about a foot high, they then top them and prune off the suckers and lower leaves, and then, with the greatest attention, are cleaned twice a week from weeds and worms, by which you will perceive what immense labor there must be on a large C c 2 plantation,

RAVE

ig, thai

ith bil

treme, tu

or their

as thok i

lure, mi

d to prov

magineti

enty or th

iption, a ling he h

ul wife

ildren.

he principi

egroes, 11

n of the

he grand h

ce, tobacil

tive of 1

houghin

d, norfet

plantation, where they grow nothing but tobacco. In about fix weeks after being topped and pruned, the plant attains its full growth, and then begins to turn brownifh, and thefe marks are the criterion by which they judge the tobacco to be ripe.

The plants are thus cut down as fast as they ripen and are heaped up; and as much as is gathered in a day lies in this state a night to fweat; the next day it is carried to the tobacco-house, which is fo constructed, as to admit of as much air as is requifite, and at the fame time keeping out the rain; the plants are then hung feparately to dry for four or five weeks, and the first moist weather after, they are taken down, for unless the plants were damped, they would crumble to duft, they are then laid upon flicks, and covered up clofe to fweat for a week or two longer; then the negroes strip and fort them,

ゕゖゖヿਸ਼ਸ਼ਖ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ੵੑਸ਼ੑੑੑੑੑਸ਼ੑਖ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਖ਼ਖ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਖ਼ਖ਼ਫ਼ਖ਼ਖ਼ੑਸ਼ਸ਼ਖ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ਸ਼ੑੑੑਗ਼ੑੑੑੑੑੑੑੑੑੑੑ

them, the top being the beft, and the bottom the worft tobacco; they then put the leaves into hogfheads, or form them into rolls; wet feafons muft be carefully laid hold on for this laft procefs, otherwife the tobacco will not be fufficiently pliable. The cultivation of this plant may appear extremely fimple, but it is impoffible to defcribe to you the immenfe labor, care and fatigue there is attending it, from the firft fetting the feeds to the packing it in hogfheads, and the great anxiety the perfon who fuperintends it has for through the whole procefs it requires the utmoft fkill and judgment.

Travelling in this country is extremely dangerous, efpecially if it is the leaft windy, from the number of rotten pines continually blowing down; after a ftorm, it is no uncommon thing to turn into the woods fix or feven times in the fpace of a mile, to pass the trees that have C c 3 been

TRATU

V grown

x weeks t

the plants

en bezist

marks a r judge b

s cut dom

heaped 4

inadal

at; the m

co-houle,

dmit of a

the plant

dry for it

A moif w

1, for unk

would out

pon fich

at for a m

negros It

been blown into and choak up the road; even in calm weather it is not altogether fafe, for there are old rotten pines, divefted of all their branches, which totter with the leaft breeze. An accident happened a few days fince, by the falling of one of thefe trees, in which Madame de Reidefel, with two of her children, had a very narrow efcape: as fhe was going to the barracks in her post-chaise, when the carriage had paffed a wooden bridge (which are of themfelves very terrific, being only fo many rough logs laid across beams, without any fafe-guard on each fide) an old rotten pine fell directly between the horfes and the chaife, but providentially did no other damage, than crushing the two fore-wheels to pieces and laming one of the horfes.

Not being overftocked with fresh provifions, I accompanied feveral other officers to the woods, to procure a few rabbits;

if the dogs once get fcent of them they are foon taken, for they do not burrow as ours do in England, but run up hollow trees, which they will climb to a confiderable height, but from which place of refuge they are taken by putting up a hickory fapling, fplit at the end and twifted in their fkins. As we were employed in catching these rabbits, the dogs kept an inceffant barking at the branch of a tree; and when we came up to them, we found an opoffum, fufpended at the extremity of the branch by its tail, which this creature always does when purfued; we fent a fervant up the tree, who shook him off, and he fell among the dogs, from whom he did not make the least attempt to efcape, but appeared as if dead. It was taken and carried home, all which time it fhewed no other figns of life than gently breathing; it was put in a court-yard, where it could not escape, and we watched it for near half an hour, during which it Cc4 never

TRAVEL

hoak up

it is not rotten pin

s, which th

1 accident

the falling

Madamel

ren, hada

as goingt

aile, who

ooden hit

ry terrific,

s laid am

ard on en

directly

fe, but pri

e, than ci

ieces and I

cked with

f feveral of

rocure 1

never moved, but lay as dead; at laft, it gently raifed its head, looking all around, and not perceiving any danger, immediately ran off. We opened the door and let out the dogs, who purfuing it, the creature lay down as before, without fhewing any figns of life, nor would they meddle with it, but were returning back; we went out and fet the dogs at it, and notwithstanding two spirited spaniels worried and shook, nay, even snapped its very bones, which we could diffinctly hear, the creature never shewed any symptoms of life. After the dogs had worried it, and broke almost every bone in its body, which, perhaps you will fay, did not reflect much credit to our humanity, a heavy flone was dropt on its head, to end its tortures; and even then, at parting with life, it fcarcely struggled; but this mode of feigning death, is what preferves this creature from the mountain cat, and other carniverous animals.

A few

A few days ago, I went with feveral. officers to fee a a diversion peculiar to this country, termed quarter-racing, which is a match between two horfes, to run a quarter of a mile in a fraight direction, and near most of the ordinaries, there is a piece of ground cleared in the woods for that purpole, where there are two paths about fix or eight yards afunder, which the horfes run in, this diverfion is a great favorite of the middling and lower claffes, and they have a breed of horfes to perform it with aftonifhing velocity, beating every other for that diftance with the greatest eafe. I think I can, without the leaft exaggeration, affert, that even the famous Eclipfe could not excel them in speed, for our horses are some time before they are able to get into full fpeed, and thefe are trained to fet out in that manner the moment of starting. It is the most ridiculous amusement imagineable, for if you happen to be looking another RAVEL is dead; 1 ooking ly dange Dened the purfin fore, with , nor w ere retum he dogs a ven fname wed and had work e in its but ity, a la to endits parting 1 but the what pros ntain (#1

ther way, the race is terminated before you can turn your head ; notwithstanding which, very confiderable fums are betted at these matches. We stayed and faw feveral; and then returned, as we were given to understand, that after the races were finished, the day was concluded with feveral of those horrid boxingmatches I defcribed to you in my laft, and that two or three daring fellows had faid they would feek a quarrel with the British officers; therefore we left these buck-fkins to fight by themfelves, a-propos, it may not be amifs to explain this epithet which was given to the Virginians, by the New Englanders, (in retaliation for their calling them Yankees) in allufion to their anceftors, being hunters, and felling buck, or rather deer-fkins, for there are no roe-bucks in Virginia.

Thefe races are only among the fettlers in the interior parts of this Province, for they

ويجاجز وهواواواواواواواواوا

they are much laughed at and ridiculed by the people in the lower parts, about Richmond and other great towns; at Williamsburg, is a very excellent course for two, three, or four mile heats, where there are races every Spring and Fall; they run for purfes are generally raifed by fubfcription, and the horfe that wins two four-mile heats, out of three, is entitled to the prize, which is one hundred pounds the first day's running, and fifty pounds every other day, and thefe races commonly last a week; at which very capital horfes are ftarted, that would make no contemptable figure at Newmarket.

There are two forts of infects extremely troublefome, which are the woodtick, and the feed-tick; the former are about the fize, and greatly refemble a bug, reforting moftly upon trees and rufhes, from which, if they fall upon you, they

RAVIN

termine

; notit

ole fume

e Atavela

ed, as wer

at after

ay wate

fe horil

to you i daring H

a quand

efore Tel

themfelt

mils to a ven to th

glanders, g them To

tors, bei

r rather d

ly among th

of this Pr

they fix their probofcis into the pores of the skin, and suck the blood till they are of an enormous fize, and then drop off; they are exceedingly troublefome to the cattle; the latter derive their name from not being much larger than finall feed; thefe are chiefly upon the long grafs, and if they get on you, being fo fmall, they enter the pores of the fkin, which occasion a violent irritation, and if rubbed, is attended with very dangerous confequences, as it inevitably brings on an inflammation, and fometimes a mortification; the only mode of preventing any of these confequences, is to fumigate the parts affected with tobacco, which penetrating the pores, destroys the infects.

للامات الالتقاطية المالا المالي المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع

There is a fhrub peculiar to this province, that bears a fmall flower, which the inhabitants term the bubby flower, it re fembles that which grows on clover grafs, and has peculiar qualities, for it retains its grateful

ولؤه مولوما وبعاما واوتوا والموام والموام والموام والموام والإلكام

grateful and odoriferous perfume for a length of time after being gathered, and as it withers, encreafes; the name given to the flower arifes from a cuftom that the women have of putting this flower down their bofoms, letting it remain there till it has loft all its grateful perfume,

Having fome business with Colonel Bland, of whom I made mention in a former letter, I went to his houfe just as he had mounted horfe, but he, with the politeness which, but in justice to him, I must fay, he shews to the British officers, difmounted, and invited me in, and after communicating my bufinefs, upon my taking leave of him, notwithstanding his politeness and attention, I could not help fmiling at the pompofity, and the great importance he affumes, to make himfelf appear to us confequential; for to convince us that he was converfant with the French language, having mounted his horfe

RAVE

into the blood the nd then i roublefer e their as e their as e the long p eing fo in kin, while e rous coil a morificat as on min a morificat ang any set eculiar to 1 All Aone, 1 bubby Ane ows on cha ties, for its

horfe without his fword, he called to a negro, he had purchafed from one of the French Weft-Indian islands, to bring it him, which the fellow did without the fcabbard; when the Colonel, in great anger, faid to him, Donney moi, donney moi, and after great hefitation, donney moi mon fcabbard.

We have been of late greatly perplexed with the paper money, not only by that iffued from Congress, but that iffued by these States, they both having been counterfeited; the former, though not altogether, is in part refused in confequence of it, and the latter is entirely ftopt, and new impressions are iffued, which the Governor and Affembly conceive will not easily be counterfeited, as it is made upon paper difficult to be obtained in these parts, nor have they arrived to fuch perfection of making paper as to manufacture it; indeed, throughout America.

d, he ch fed from 1 illands,1 w did wh Dlonel, ing 1ey mi, hu

on, dans

RAVIL

te greath money, a Congres, a they be he forme art refulé he latter a oreffions a and Affen counteffio difficulta , nor havi en of mile indeed, th

America they are greatly deficient in this art, as most of their news-papers are printed upon blue, or elfe coarfe white paper, fimilar to that used by shopkeepers, but the paper of this new emiffion, is the filver paper used by hatters, great quantities of which were found in a veffel that was captured, and was feized on by the Governor for this purpofe: exclusive of the great loffes that we constantly experience with paper money in general, we have fuffered much by this new emiffion, as likewife by the great depreciation of the Congress money, as the exchange at prefent is after the rate of five hundred paper dollars for one guinea.

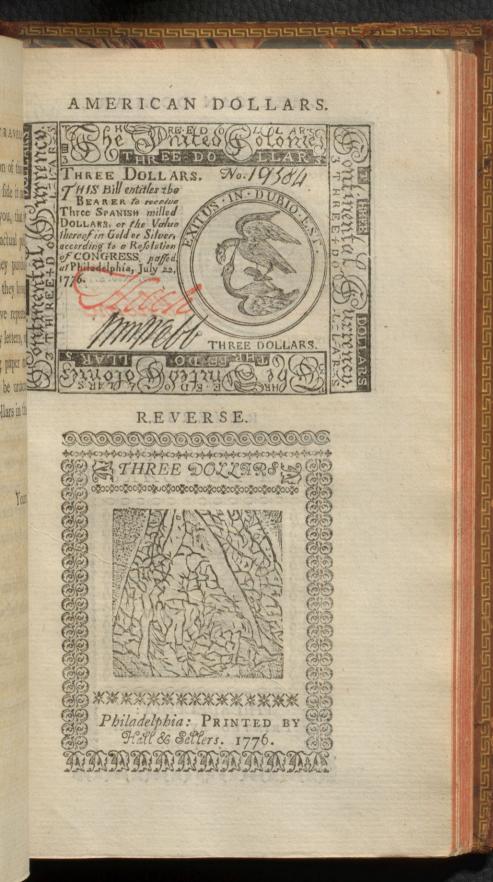

The depreciation of Congress money arises from the vast quantity of the counterfeit, which any perfon who hazards the risk, may have gratis, at New-York, to circulate throughout the province, and to point out to you what confusion there must must be at the conclusion of this unhappy contest, on whichever fide it may terminate, when I inform you, that there are many perfors now in actual possession of plantations, which they purchased with the counterfeit money they brought from New-York. As I have repeatedly mentioned in feveral of my letters, various cir cumstances concerning paper money, and thinking they may not be unacceptable, I have enclosed a few dollars in this letter.

digit model new terrar nov of TY, ET-

Instant of for hundred

Yours, &c.

عكاكم كككاكككوكوكوكوكوكوكوكاك OLLI AMERICAN DOLLARS. A ÈE (1/5 Sool 10./ Fifty Dollars X 5 THE BEARER is entitled to receive FIFTY Spanish milled DOL E A Beam i SIX Senan DOLLAG Value inni or Silver in a Relabing LARS, or an equal Sum in Gold or Silver, 0 according to a Refolu-tion of Congress of the 14th January, 1779. 50 Dollars. -Jan oner REVERSE. RSE. Stor Bar できんのできんのできん × ()(X) 「ななない × 《》(X 東京ななな LLAR A R 101010101 AR. 13 いたいた  13 Yes Ya 1ª As in Dollars. Printed by HALL and SEL-919191919191 ELPHIA LERS. 1779. 6 Kat Kat Kat Kat 故 3 「「「「

AMERICAN DOLLARS. -five Dollars. Sixty IE Bearer is entitled to receive Sixty-five Spanish milled Dollars, or an equal Sum in Gold or Silver, according to a Refolu-tion of CONGRESS of the 14th January, 1779 DOLLARS. REVERSE. ころをお:三王をという あるともののなどののなどのであるとうである Dollars Sixtv-five THE a de 京派を思えるうなどと、 and inted 60

وتا المالا المالا الماليان المالية الم

LETTER LXVII.

Richmond, in Virginia, July 14, 1779.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

DOLL

RSE

Dollar

YOU will naturally conclude, at receiving another letter from this place, that the kind reception I met with when laft here, induced me to pay a fecond vifit; but however pleafant fuch a journey would be, my prefent one is not only very difagreeable to myfelf, but has proved extremely fo to others; my bufinefs being to communicate General Phillips's orders, that none of the officers are Vol. II. Dd to to refide at a greater diftance from the barracks than twenty miles.

On my way to this place I ftopt and flept at Tuckahoe, where I met with Colonel Mead, Colonel Laurens, and another officer of General Washington's fuite.... More than once did I express a wish the General himself had been of the party, to have seen and conversed with a character, of whom, in all my travels through the various provinces, I never heard any one speak difrespectfully, as an individual, and whose public character has been the admiration and astonishment of all Europe.

يستحاصا فالعافات المالكا فالقاصا فالمالعا فالمالم والمتعامل والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع

The converfation, in general, turning upon horfes, Colonel Mead was prizing his as being remarkably high fpirited, which prevented its falling into the hands of a party of our light dragoons, as his negro, who had the care of it, was looking after forage, who was furprized, purfued,

데디디머머머리아(아아머머)

fued, and nearly furrounded by the party, in a field, enclosed with a prodigious fence, near nine feet high; the poor negro, fearful of himfelf, and dreading his master's difpleasure, in case he lost the horfe, run him at the fence, which he leaped over, and rode off into the woods, to the aftonishment of the dragoons ; the Colonel attributed the fafety of his perfon to the fwiftnefs of this horfe at the battle of Monmouth, having been fired at and purfued by fome British officers as he was reconnoitring. Upon the Colonel's mentioning this circumstance, it occurred. to me, he must have been the perfon that Sir Henry Clinton's Aid de Camp had fired at; and requefting to know the particular color of his horfe, he informed me it was black, which convinced me it was him; when I related the circumstance of his meeting Sir Henry Clinton, he replied, he recollected in the course of that day, to have met feveral British officers, and one Dd 2 of niles.

RAVIL

s place 1 h ere I matui urens, adi afhingtoni I expressi been of the fed with an travels the never heat as an inditi er has bea ment of alli

, in gran olonel Medi narkablyby falling into ight dragon care of it i to was impo of them wore a ftar. Upon my mention ing the obfervation Sir Henry Clinton had made to his Aid de Camp, the Colonel laughed, and replied, "Had he known it "had been the Commander in Chief, he "fhould have made a defperate effort to "have taken him prifoner."

At Goochland Court-houfe, I was informed in what a fpirited manner Colonel Randolph had refented the illiberality of fome of his neighbours, who had infinuated and threatened to fet fire to fome valuable mills, on account of his hospitality to the British officers : At the next court day, after he had heard of this report, he in a very animated speech stated, that no one had a right to fcrutinize into his private concerns, that his public character was well known, and that no one could with more zeal and perfeverence fupport the caufe of the Americans than he had done, and concluded with offering offering a reward of five hundred pounds for the difcovery of those who had made use of those threats. Since this transfaction, the Colonel has paid more attention to the officers, acting truly consistent with the principles of independence, and to shame his countrymen for their want of liberality.

ىستعاطاطاطا والمالك والمراجا والمراجا والمراجا والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع

I was detained near two days in my journey to this place, on account of the overflowing of the river, at what is termed the Point of Forks, where James River divides, and was rather furprized at this fudden rifing of the water, as it had not rained for feveral days, but on enquiry found, that any fall of rain, unlefs extremely violent, never encreafed the water till fome time after, during which it collects from the mountains, and rufhes in amazing torrents; the waters were fo encreafed, that they had overflowed the banks of the river for many miles, and as it comes

Dd 3

RAVELS

Jpon myn Henry Clin Camp, the Mad helu ander in Q a defperate i mer."

tt-houle, li ted manna d the illie ours, who d to fet for count of h fficers: An ad heard d imated for that his p that his p of the for and conto comes down with great impetuofity from the mountains, it washes away the earth, which being of a red caft, appears like a torrent of blood. Since the waters have abated, there has been caught a great number of fturgeons and rock-fifh, at the falls of this place : Indeed fifh is at this feafon in great plenty, efpecially cels, which are of a great fize, and caught in weirs; numbers of which are upon James River, above the falls, and indeed upon moft of the rivers and creeks; thefe weirs are constructed of stones laid across the river of the usual height of the current, and brought to a point in the center, where is placed a wicker balket, or a wooden box, in which they catch great quantities of fifh.

يستعلما والماجا والمالجا فالقالم والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع والمراجع

I think nothing more fully evinces the real diffrefies of the inhabitants in general, throughout America, and how great the fpirit of perfecution and opprefion reigns throughout

99999999999999999999999 throughout all the provinces, as the amazing emigrations to a new fettlement, at a place called Kentucky, where the foil is extremely fruitful, and where there are abundance of buffaloes, the country around, for a great number of miles, is an extensive plain, with very few trees growing on it. New difcoveries are continually making, as to the vaft extent of the continent of America, and in fome future day it may be learnt, what the boundaries are to the westward. This new fettlement is near a thousand miles from this place, neverthelefs, those travelling to it, though to fo great a diftance, and perhaps have left comfortable houfes and plantations, which have been the labor of their whole lives to clear and bring to perfection, appear chearful and happy, pleafed with the idea, that they will be free from the tyranny and oppreffion of the Congrefs, and its upftart dependants. Their mode of travelling greatly refembles that

Dd4

of

RAVEL

t impetuór les away th caft, apper ce the wat caughtage ock-filh.# fifh is at th ally eels, i caught in upon 🖄 ndeed up s; there a laid across of the cur n the cent et, or a mil great qui ore fully and habitantian, and horf

of the patriarchs of old, for they take with them their horfes, oxen, fheep, and other cattle; as likewife all kinds of poultry. On my journey to this place, I faw a family fetting off for this new fettlement, leaving behind them a neat habitation, which appeared furrounded with every requifite to make it at once the manfion of content and happinefs. As to the manner of quitting it, that favorite poet, Dr. Goldfmith, has moft charmingly deferibed it in the following lines:

" Good Heavens! What forrows gloom'd that parting day,

" That called them from their native walks away;

" When the poor exiles, every pleafure paft,

يبصا حاصحا خالجا حاصا أرثما حرجا بحرجا الحرفا والملح ومعلما والمتعاط والمراجل

" Hung round the bowers and fondly looked their laft."

Nor can I more forcibly defcribe the family's fetting out on their journey, than he has done----where he fays,

" The good old fire, the first prepared to go " To new-found worlds, and wept for other's woe;

. But

- " But for himfelf in confcious virtue brave,
- " He only wish'd for worlds beyond the grave ;
- " His lovely daughter, loveliet in her tears,
- " The fond companion of his helplefs years ;
- " Silent went next, neglectful of her charms,
- " And left a lover's for a father's arms;
- " With tender plaints, the mother spoke her woes,
- " And bleft the cot where ev'ry pleafure rofe;
- " And kift her thoughtless babes with many a tear,
- " And clafpt them clofe in forrow doubly dear,
- " Whilft her fond hufband ftrove to lend relief,
- " In all the filent manliness of grief".

The heat of the weather is at prefent very intenfe, and renders travelling unpleafant, efpecially on horfe-back, the rays of the fun are fo very powerful in the middle of the day, that neither yourfelf nor your horfe are able to withftand it, and you can only travel in the mornings and evenings. The inhabitants jog on in a vehicle called a fulky, a kind of one horfe chaife, but conftructed just large enough to contain one perfon; they fay thefe are not fo fatiguing to the horfe as a perr & Aver old, for to , oxen, he fe all kinks to this plu for this no them a no red furrows take it ato and happin pitting it oldfmith, i it in the rows gloon ldte ir native wilter ery pleafice pi id fondly lookid forcibly (c n their jour e he fays

A preparte of ad wept for cat

a perfon's riding on its back. In travelling on horfe-back, you must either walk or gallop your horfe, as the motion of trotting is too fatiguing for yourfelf and the beast.

At every plantation you pais by, the peach trees prefent their fruit, to allay the parching thirft the heat occafions; and it is deemed no trefpais to ftop and refrefh yourfelf and your horfe with them; if the owner of the plantation perceives you gathering, he will come and direct you to the tree that bears the beft fruit, for the peaches of this country are of various forts; and though they are in fuch abundance, that they feed the hogs with them, yet there are very few except in gentleman's gardens, which have that flavor and juice of those that grow in England.

Having

Having feen the process of making peach brandy, I no longer am furprized at this fpirit having fuch pernicious effects when drank to excels, and how unwholefome it must be taken in ever fo fmall quantities; for after gathering the fruit, it is put in large vats, where it remains till it is in fuch a ftate of putrefaction, as to be extremely offenfive to approach it, in this ftate the peaches are preffed and the liquor that comes from them is diffilled ; from whence the cuftom arofe to let the peaches be in fuch a putrified state, I never could learn; for upon asking several of the inhabitants if they bruifed the peaches as foon as gathered, and preffed the liquor from them, whether the flavor and ftrength of fpirit would not be fuperior, the only answer I could obtain was, that they believed it might, but the other was the ufual mode.

The

RAVELS

back, li u muitéin as the m ng for yan

you public r fruit, thi eat occain als to the ur horfe will plantation ill come a bears the le s country and they as feed the le very few a , which le

The town of Richmond, as well as the plantations around for fome miles, has been in imminent danger, as the woods have been on fire, which for fome time paft has raged with great fury, and that element feemed to threaten univerfal deftruction; but providentially, before it had done any material damage, there fell a very heavy rain, which neverthelefs, has not altogether extinguished it, as it is daily breaking out in places, but not fo violent but it can be eafily prevented from fpreading.

، الا الا المالية الم

During the Summer months, thefe fires are very frequeut, and at Charlottefville I have feen the mountains on a blaze for three or four miles in length, they are occafioned by the careleffnefs of waggoners, who, when night approaches, after they have unharneffed the horfes, fed them, pannelled them, and tying a bell round their necks, turned them loofe in the

313

the woods to graze, make a large fire to warm them when they fleep, which on purfuing their journey the next morning, they neglect to extinguifh, this communicating to the dry leaves which lay on the ground, fpreads rapidly and caufes thefe dreadful and dangerous conflagrations.

To-morrow I leave this place, to return Charlottefville, when I fhall embrace the next favorable opportunity to write, this I fend by the flag of truce that is returning to New-York, and in hopes it may fafely reach you, I remain,

Yours, &c.

LET-

TRAVE

nond, an for fomen anger, an chich for h great fun, nreaten um identially, id damage, ich nevert gwifhed in n places, h cafily prov

nmer non nt, and ato mountains illes in la e careleffan n night q urneffed the em, and to turned the LETTER LXVIII.

Jones's Plantation; near Charlottefville, in Virginia, Aug. 4, 1779.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

O N my return from Richmond, I witneffed the mode that renders the Virginian rifle-men fo expert in the ufe of arms---as great numbers were affembled, fhooting at marks, and which I underftand, long before the commencement of the war, was the conftant diversion in this country; fo certain are they of hitting, that they are not fearful of holding the board at arm's length; nay, fome are fo little apprehensive of danger, that they will

Shattal Sat

will place it between their legs for another to fire at.

R LI

entation; mult rginia, dog.;

from Rin node that a fo expertian and which the common aftant down are they fearful of b gth; my, h of dangs,

There is an infect, termed the fire-fly, which in itfelf is a great curiofity, being really a perfect phofphorus : for a confiderable portion of its life, most of the interior parts of its body being at times luminous, and from whence it emits rays of light for a great part of the night, by means of two glandular fpots, that are placed between the head and fhoulders: neverthelefs, though thefe luminous rays iffue naturally from the infect, while awake it feems to poffefs power of interrupting them at will, and then these spots are opake; though, as I obferved most of the internal parts of these infects emit a light, yet the thickness of its cover prevents it appearing through any other place but those constituted by nature for the purpofe; yet, on extending the rings that cover the different parts of the body a little

TRAVIN

A16 INTERIOR TRAVELS

little afunder, you may observe the same light to issue.

By the light of one of these infects, if held between the fingers, and moved gradually with the luminous spots over the chrystal of a watch, you can with ease tell the hour; and ten or twelve of them put into a clear phial, will give fufficient light to read or write by very diffinctly.

Thefe infects make their appearance in the evening, and are to be feen for a confiderable part of the night; they are extremely unpleafant to travellers at a late hour, being at times fo numerous, as to perfectly dazzle the eye, and by their obfcure intervals and fudden glare, the fight is diverted from every object of danger that at night prefents itfelf; an inftance of which lately happened, that had near been fatal to an officer, who, loft in the bye paths in the woods, by the reafon of thefe thefe infects, did not perceive a tree that was not entirely blown down, but refted on another, against which he came with fuch violence as to be stunned, and on regaining his senses, found that in falling from his horse, he had broke one of his legs, and he remained in that state till the next morning, when he was found by a negro, who conducted him home.

You may recollect, in a former letter, I mentioned what a lawlefs fet the lower clafs were, and of their ferocious difpofition; an inftance has recently occurred, wherein the moft wanton cruelties were intended to be put in execution againft an officer of the artillery, who, in the moft miraculous manner, made his efcape from thefe brutal favages, as they were conducting him to the place where they intended to perpetrate their horrid purpofe.

Vol. II.

Ee

The

RAVEIS observe

of their in s, and ma ous ipots you can n or twelve will give by very diff

their appears to be fearly night; the o travelless fo numers ye, and by dden glar.1 ery object is ts itfelf; the pened, the icer, who, it yes, by the s

The officer was quartered at the plantation of one Watfon, a wretch who is reckoned an adept in gouging, and who prepares his nails for that purpofe, He has an agreeable, but by no means a pretty woman, for his wife, and on account of the common civilities in fupplying the officer with poultry, milk, &c. which he regularly paid for; this ignorant fellow pretended to be jealous, and communicating his fentiments to fome neighbours of a fimilar difpolition to his own, they concerted a fcheme to be revenged of the officer.

والمالم المالحا المالك المالك المالحا المالح الم

Accordingly, a few days after, they broke into his chamber at the dead of night, but the noife awaking him, he had just time to feize his fword, with which he defended himfelf for fome time, till it broke, when he was overpowered by his landlord and three other ruffians, who made him put on his cloaths, and

and after tying his hands behind him, led him into the yard, and placing him on his own horfe, they fet out with him armed with mufkets, to proceed to another of thefe defperadoes, who refided about two miles diftant, to confult on the mode of revenge---only conceive what muft have been the fituation of his mind when in their way to this neighbours houfe, thefe fellows were confulting whether they fhould cut his throat and fecrete the body, or caftrate him and roll him down a fteep rock.

Arriving at the plantation, they took him off the horfe and conducted him into the houfe, the owner of which declined any concern in the transaction, and diffuaded the others from it, but they were steady to their bloody purposes; the ruffians then defired some peach brandy toddy, which they drank till intoxicated, all this time confulting what they should E e 2 do a wreth a wreth gouging a that papi at by no a s wife, at civilities in poultry, a d for; this e jealous, a nents to im fipolition m me to be m ew days a mber at a jife awakin, ize his far innfelf far he was on H three cas put on his

RAVEL

do with the officer. The villain Watfon, who particularly fuppofed himfelf to be aggrieved, and was the firft inftigator of this bafe plot, occafionally prefented his piece, and threatened immediate vengeance. At length the dawn of day appearing, the wretches as if confcious of their iniquitous proceeding, remarked it would foon be light, and refolving to put the laft of their threats in execution, they quitted the houfe, mounting the officer on his horfe, and proceeded to the fpot where they were to perpetrate it, which was at the foot of a mountain, near a very freep precipice.

The fituation of the officer was truly dreadful, for however refigned he might be to meet his fate, the manner of it was most lamentable; in the hands of American desperadoes, who are worse than favages, revengeful and drunk, alternately presenting their musquets and vowing instant death.

When

Shall-The

When they had proceeded with him near three miles, it was quite day light, they then judged it neceffary to haften their pace, fearful of meeting any one, and by now and then making the horfe trot, it loofened the cord with which the officer's hands were tied; perceiving this, and after fome little struggle, finding he could releafe his hands, he very prudently waited an opportunity till he came to fome road he was acquainted with. After they had proceeded about half a mile further, very near the place they were to conduct him to, he difcerned a bye path which led to the barracks, inftantly difengaged his hands, feized the bridle and fpeaking to his horfe, which had been an old quarter-racer, it fet off full fpeed. Thefe wretches all dicharged their pieces at him, but owing to the thickness of the wood and their intoxication, he efcaped, and arrived fafe at the barracks.

This

RAVELI

"he villen"

oled hink

e firftint

nally prefer

nmediateren

f day appeal

s of their

it would

to put the

ution, the

the office

o the spots

which T

, near an

the officer "

er relignels

the mannel

he handsdi

e worle the

s, alternation

This matter was reprefented to the Covernor of the province, by the General, at the fame time defcribing the inhabitants, and their place of refidence; the answer from the Governor was, that he was extremely concerned at it, but at prefent the civil power was of little ufe, the officers not daring to make use of their authority among thefe back-woods men, as it endangered their lives; and he had only to recommend the officer to be on his guard, and not quit the barracks, and that at night, for his perfonal fafety, he had wrote to the Commanding Officer of the continental troops, to place a ferjeant's guard at his houfe : yet, notwithstanding the wretches are acquainted with this circumftance, they have had the audacity to hover about the barracks, in order to feize him; but it having been intimated to them, that the American Commanding Officer had orders to apprehend them, and fend

بداعاد كججاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجاجا

prefented e, by thele ing the in efidence i was, that h it, but an ittle ule ti ife of their roods men 1 and he ha er to be out parracks, al fonal later, anding Offe to place a yet, notit quainted mit ave had the barracks, in laving beni

American Can

o appreheadu

TRAVIL

fend them down to the Governor at Williamfburgh, they have defifted in their attempts. I think there needs not a more convincing proof to fhew the anarchy and confusion at prefent existing in America, and that all pretensions to civil government are ideal, I affure you, my dear friend, Congress, aided by the military, is the only ruling power at prefent; they are desofpotic, and their orders enforced by the military with as arbitrary a fway as that with which the King of Prussia governs his dominions. The fhrub which fupplies our manufactures with cotton, is much cultivated in this Province, and the inhabitants of the lower fort, through the fcarcenefs and difficulty of procuring clothing for themfelves and their negroes, pay greater attention to it at prefent than tobacco, this plant is of a quick luxuriant growth, and rifes

rifes from five to fix feet in height, difperfing a number of branches as it floots. it requires a dry foil, and thrives beft in grounds already tilled, for though the plant flourishes more in fresh lands, yet from its luxuriance, it produces more wood than fruit, it is planted in regular walks, and at a moderate diftance from each other, for the branches to fpread, when it is grown to the height of five or fix inches, the stems are pulled up except two or three of the stoutest, which are cropped twice before the end of August; this precaution is abfolutely neceffary, as the wood bears no fruit till after the fecond cropping; and if by neglect the plant is fuffered to exceed four feet high in its growth, the crop will be greatly inferior in quality and quantity, and the fruit difficult to gather.

The fruit that the cotton fhrub bears, proceeds from a flower which blows at the agggggggggggg

and balling to

the extremity of its branches, the piftil of which turns to a shell of the fize of a pigeon's egg, and when the cotton contained in it is ripe, it burfts and exposes the feeds wrapt up in the native flocks to the fun; when the greatest part of them are thus opened, the negroes gather them, and the feeds which are naturally mixed with the cotton are cleaned by means of a machine called a gen, which is made of two fmooth rollers placed clofe and parallel to each other in a frame, and move in contrary directions by means of different wheels at the opposite fide of the machine, which are put in motion by the foot, the cotton being put to thefe rollers, while they move round, it readily palles between them, bearing the feed which are too large for the interfpace behind. What paffes in this operation is afterwards hand picked to clear it from the fmall dirt that comes feet in his anches at and three d, for the in freh h it produ s planted i erate diff branches to the height are pulled foutelt. the end of ofolutely net ruit till the l if by ne ceed four is op will be l quantiti, l er.

CRAVELI

e cotton fire ower which b

comes with the cotton through the machine, and then it becomes fit for use.

The carding and fpinning of cotton is the chief employment of the female negroes, for fince the inhabitants have been deprived of our English cottons, they manufacture a fort themsfelves, little inferior to that made at Manchester, and almost all the families in this Province, both male and female, are cloathed with their own manufacture, the superior class as an example to their inferiors, who are compelled by necessity.

The weather being fo extremely hot, woollen cloaths are infufferable, therefore from neceflity, and as is the cuftom of the country, the officers wear cotton habiliments; the cotton of which mine is

مريح والالم والمتعام والمتعام والمتعام المالية

is made I obtained from my landlord, and faw the whole process of its growth and manufacture, from the feed being fown, till it came out of the loom.

depend of the President Strong " the croad

WONSIDE SING the innumerable of

I remain,

Bornie bas releatenale Yours, &c.

TRAVEL

tton three it become inning of a t of the in habitantsh h cottons, i felves, lith nehefter, m this Proin e cloathed m he fuperiors, i y.

infufferable and as is b officers not officers not

Mandhart William Balla Ball DET-

428

Angland for an and broad hardland and the second for a second broad and the second second for the form and for manufatures from the ford bring Luce I T' T 'E Rang LXIX.

> Jones's Plantation, near Charlottejville, in Virginia, Dec. 12, 1779.

'MY DEAR FRIEND,

ىلا الا الا المالية الم

CONSIDERING the innumerable difficulties and inconveniences which the colonies have laboured under in maintaining their independency, and their fucceffes appear aftonifhing, fuch as could only be effected by that unanimity which univerfally prevails among the leading and confpicuous characters in each ftate; and it is no lefs furprizing that in their ftrenous fupport of public measures, the internal arrangement of their affairs fhould

CRAVEL)

R LT

ntation, world rginia, Du.v.

1

he innuma

nconvenien

laboured 1 ependency

Aonishing d by that a prevails Z

ous character

els furprizza

t of publica

ement of the

THROUGH AMERICA. 429

fhould be neglected, and by fuch neglect hazard a general confusion. In this state, at prefent, their internal concerns, merchandizes of all kinds, and the common and neceffary articles of life are at fuch enormous prices, that few can procure them, and for want of them all claffes are highly diffreffed ; Congress have adopted various measures to remedy thefe evils, but their endeavours have been fruftrated by a few monopolizing wretches at Philadelphia and other great cities: to this is owing much of the public diffrefs, which becomes a fcource of hindrance and discouragement in the profecution of the various defigns and undertakings of Congrefs.

But of all the arduous and trying fituations they have had to encounter, none has proved more difficult than the prefent, which they are using their utmost endeavours to overcome, and if not effected, the y

they must bid farewel to all hopes of gaining independency, and this is the depreciation of their paper money. From the first emission of bills at the commencement of the war to the prefent period, they have, by the necessity of the times, issued near forty millions sterling of continental dollars, and what contributes still more to the depreciation, is the immense fums of counterfeit money issued from New-York, and other places in our polfession.

بالالا المالحا المالا المالية المالي

Therefore Congress wifely forefeeing the indifpentible neceffity of removing all doubts and diffress, that the united flates were unable to redeem their bills, and that raising more money by a new emifion would encrease the paper in circulation, and be the cause of still more decreasing its value, have diffributed throughout the the colonies their refolve, in order to remove those apprehensions that were daily gaining

gaining ground, in which after flating the great depreciation of their currency, by the means of felfish men, who difregarded the great object they were then, and had for feveral years been ftruggling to obtain, and the enormous fums of counterfeit money their enemies had caufed to be put in circulation with that of Congress, they had thought proper to declare, that after fuch a date, no currency should pafs, but that iffued from that time; and fenfible that as many perfons might lofe confiderable fums by reason of counterfeit money, whatever fums of any fort were brought to the treafury at Philadelphia, they should receive one dollar of the new emission, for every forty dollars. And the more fully to establish the credit and value of the new currency, the Congress, pledged their public faith, to pay its value in gold or filver fpecie.

This more those spon this more that here daily to all hops I this is the money. In at the on the prefer coeffity of the ions fterling what contribution, is the money iffir places in s wifely for ty of rem that the uneent their is ney by ainpaper in or faill more buted through folve, in or fifons that w

TRAVELI

This has had the defired effect of Congrefs, that of folely keeping up the fpirits of the people; for it must be obvious to every one, that it is impossible to fulfil their engagements, and to go to Philadelphia, to procure specie for a single dollar, would perhaps only be insulted and laughed at. That this opinion prevails, the prefent depreciation is a convincing proof; for we obtain forty-five dollars of this emiffion for one in specie.

والما الما المالة المالة المالية الم

Among the various fruits upon this continent, there is one that feems peculiar to this province, named the perfimmon, and which, until meliorated by feveral fharp frofts, is not eatable, or fcarcely to be tafted. Many of us were deceived by this fruit, when ripe and hanging on the trees, it having the appearance of an Orlean plumb; but which we found poffeffed of fuch powerful aftringent qualities, as to contract the mouth to fuch a degree, that that it was feveral hours before we regained the fense of taste; of this fruit the inhabitants, in fome parts, brew a liquor called perfimmon beer.

Animals reforting to the words are extremely fond of its flavor, particularly the bears, who come from a great diftance in quest of it, especially on the approach of winter, at which time the inhabitants chace and moftly kill them, as they are unable to regain the mountains before the dogs overtake them. If they reach the mountains, the purfuit after them is attended with danger, on account of the vaft number of carniverous animals reforting there in abundance. An accident was near happening to an officer who, with fome others, and a few 'inhabitants. were in purfuit of a bear at the foot of the mountains; at the very instant, a ferocious animal, which I defcribed in a former letter, called the mountain cat, Ff VOL. II. was

RAVEL ired effet eping mph muft beth impofible d to go thil . e for a imp be infin its opinion forty-freed in fpecie.

us fruits q ne that fem med the pe neliorated b eatable, or b us were da e and hangs ne appearan which web ul aftringen outh to fach was going to fpring upon him. One of the inhabitants obferving it, with his rifle fhot him through the head, and it fell dead to the ground.

There is in this province, what I never recollected to have feen in any other, a large ravenous kind of bird that feeds on carrion, nearly as big as an eagle, called a turkey-buftard, from having red gills, refembling thofe of a turkey, whence it derives its name. It feems to be a fpecies of the kite, hovering on the wing like that bird, and being carniverous. Theinhabitants kill them for the fake of their feet, which diffolved into an oil, is efteemed very falutary in the fciatica, old aches and pains.

، الا الا المالة الم

You would fcarcely credit, from the laborious and harraffing life the negroes lead in this country, that the paffions of love and jealoufy should act very power fully

TRAVEL

pon him. 1 ng it, with e head, ai

wince, what i in anyothe d that feeds is an eagh t having radif inkey, when eems to be g on the w carniverous f for the falst into an oil, is he fciatica, d

y credit, from ing life the , that the put ould act ray

THROUGH AMERICA. 435

fully on them, naturally concluding, that their whole ideas would concenter in one, that of rendering their miferable fitution a state of comfort, yet fo forcibly do those passions operate on their minds, they are continually poifoning each other, thro' difappointment, or jealoufy: what is remarkable, they can administer the poifon that it shall affect the life for a longer or a fhorter period, agreeable to their ideas of revenge on the object. The owner of our plantation has had feveral female negroes poifoned, fome of whom have lingered out a life for fix or eight months after, and others again, only a week or a fortnight. There was one remarkably ftout wench, who expired on the eighth day after being poifoned; the decay of nature was remarkably visible from the fecond day, and she only complained of a violent pain in her head, and a conftant fickness at the ftomach; when medical affiftance was called in, it was pronounced impoffible to coun-Ff 2 teract teract the poifon, unlefs what the poifon confifted of, could be known which though in frequent ufe amongst the negroes, had never yet been difcovered.

Although we have been now near a twelvemonth in this province, the foldiers fare little better than on their first arrival: for the greatest part of the fummer they have been thirty and forty days, at different periods, without any other provision delivered to them than the meal of Indian corn. Great quantities of falt provisions have arrived at the barracks, but owing to fome defect in airing, and the heat of the climate, are in a state of putrefaction; fome perfon advifed the American Commiffary to bury the meat in the earth for a few days, and it would regain its purity, which, when dug up, and although fwarming with vermin, he infifted was exceedingly good, only a little tainted with the weather, which the utmost care could not prevent,

ىا الا المالة المالة

prevent, and ferved it out to the foldiers as fo many days ratio of meat. All complaints by General Phillips to the Governor of the Province were of little avail, he receiving for answer, that it was the concern of Congress, and what did not affect the government of his state. There are hopes, however, that the difputes of the foldiers will be remedied, as both General Phillips and General Reidefel, who were a fhort time fince exchanged, and gone to New York, purpofed, in their way to that city, to obtain an audience with General Washington, and lay those grievances before him; if that was impracticable, it was the intention of the Generals to lay the fituation of the troops before Sir Henry Clinton, and through him to feek redrefs, by an application to General Washington. As to redrefs from the Americans, little is to be expected, though their Commander in Chief possessies humanity that reflects the highest honour on him; he has not Ff 3 been

PRAVEL:

fs what the be known ufe among the been dife

been nor rovince. the on their firth of the fum orty days, at v. other # the meal es of falt m rracks, but # and the ha te of putra the America neat in the uld regain to and although infilted mi ttle tainted 1 tmost care of

been able, notwithstanding fo much loved and esteemed, to diffuse that benevolence and god-like virtue, among those who look up to him for protection. The only hope we can any way rely on is, that Sir Henry Clinton will, in compassion to the fufferings of the troops, use every exertion in his power to effect a general exchange this winter. Should that take place, I may venture to affirm, that he will not have braver troops in his army; for the foldiers, from the cruelty and ill usage they have continually experienced, fince they became prisoners, will fight to desperation.

Great numbers have deferted, with a view to get to New-York, rather than endure fuch diftrefs, they certainly had no other inducement, as many of them communicated to their officers their intentions, previous to their defertion, requefting a certificate, that on that day there was due to

to them fo much pay and fo many years clothing, which we could refuse no more than we could their defertion, but to be candid, rather than be witness of the hardfhips the men experienced, which were out of our power to redrefs, we rather connived at it, as we well knew that producing certificates from their officers, if they were fo fortunate as to reach New-York, would enfure them a favorable reception with the Commander in Chief. Near an hundred have reached New-York, and about fixty or feventy have been taken up, brought back and confined in a picketed prifon near the barracks, where numbers would have actually been farved, had not relief been afforded them by the officers, who furnished them with provisions at their own expence.

Among the deferters, there was a party of twenty who appointed a ferjeant at their head to command them, and previous to Ff 4 fetting ling form fe that bear ong tholen on. Theor n is, that for affion to the every exerts take place, that he will his army; ty and ill di reienced, for 1 fight to 1

RAVEL

ve deferted ork, rather tey certainly many of the icers their in fertion, reps tat day there r

fetting off, fwore a most folemn oath, strictly to adhere to a fet of rules drawn up by the ferjeant, in the nature of the articles of war, but the penalties inflicted in cafe of breach of any of these articles were fingularly curious --- being no lefs than death --- immediate instantaneous death --to be hanged upon the next tree, and others equally as tremenduous, the only one tending to mercy was cutting off the offenders ears. The whole party excepting one, who was apprehended as out upon a fcout for provisions, got fafe to New-York. I fhould obferve to you that this differtion is among the British troops, the Germans not feeling that amor patria, befides they are fully content, being upon the fame pay as the British troops, which is near four times as much as they receive. in their own country, and for what reason it is impossible to fay, but the Americans fhew more indulgence to the Germans, permitting them to go round the country to suitel

99999999999999999999999

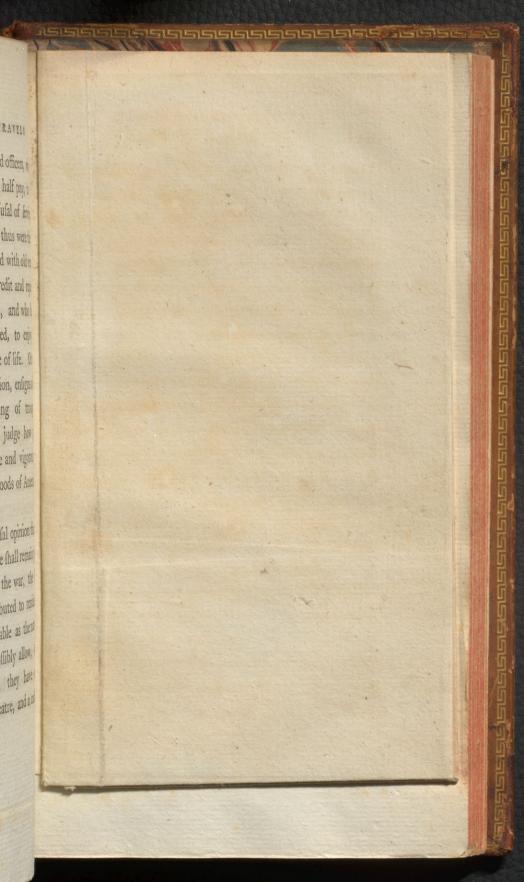

to labor, and being for the most part expert handicrafts, they realize a great deal of money, exclusive of their pay, and as the generality of the German troops are only foldiers raifed for the war, upon their return to their own country, will become perfons of property, excepting the regiments of the Prince of Heffe Hanau's body guards, and General Reidefel's difmounted dragoons, which are two well-difciplined regiments, the reft of German troops were fuch as little fervice could be expected from, and when we reflect on the manner they were raifed, who could be furprized that they did not act with more alacrity during the campaign; for the mode of obtaining thefe fubfidies. was as follows: When application was made by our court to Germany for troops, the Prince caufed every place of worfhip to be furrounded during fervice, and took every man who had been a foldier, and to embody these and form them into regiments,

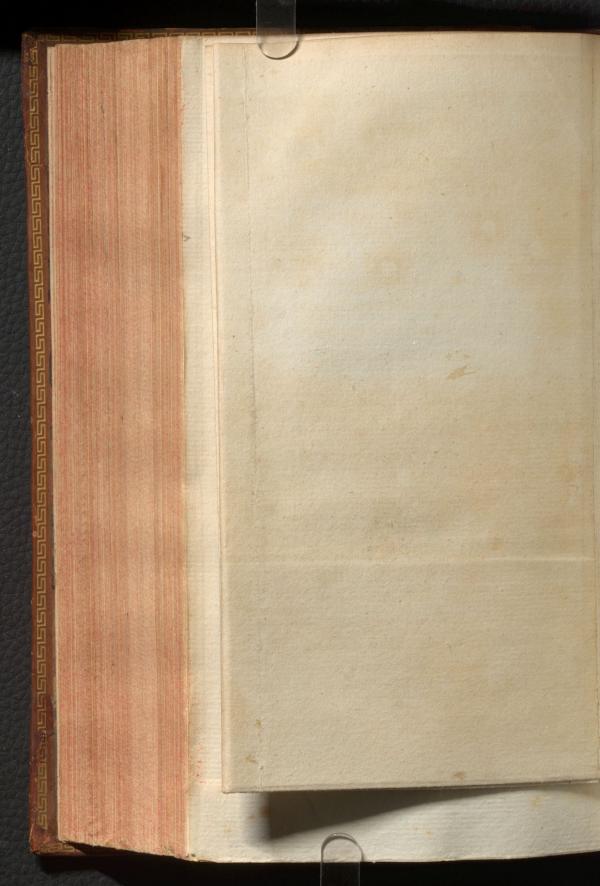

RAVELI

noft folem fet of rules e nature di enalties inff these article eing no k antaneous he next the renduous, ta was cutting whole partie pprehendal ovisions, at observe to T g the Britil ng that any content, bin ritifh troops much as the and for whit but the day ce to the G o round the

ments, he appointed old officers, who had been many years upon half pay, to command them, or on refufal of ferving, to forfeit their half pay, thus were thefe regiments raifed, officered with old veterans, who had ferved with credit and reputation in their youthful days, and who had retired, as they imagined, to enjoy fome comforts in the decline of life. Only picture to your imagination, enfigns of forty and fifty, commanding of troops not much younger, and judge how proper they are for an active and vigorous campaign, in the thick woods of America.

It being the universal opinion throughout the army, that we shall remain prifoners the remainder of the war, the British officers have contributed to render their fituation as comfortable as the nature of the country will possibly allow, and to promote affociation, they have erected a coffee-house, a theatre, and a cold bath, to

to tenfe up the relaxed flate of the body, the intenfe heat of the climate occafions.

the first infunct be facual of is way

Having repeatedly mentioned to you the barracks, and their fituation, and as any defcription would fall exceedingly fhort, I have fent you an accurate view of them. To form a just conception of the diftreffes and fituation of the army on its first arrival, you are not to confider the place as the drawing reprefents it, but as a thick wood, and not a fingle tree cut down. It is with the utmost concern I inform you of the death of your old friend W----, of our regiment, the relation of Sir Watkin Williams Wynne, Bart. who I am perfuaded, fell a martyr to the dire effects of that pernicious liquor, peach brandy, the circumstance attending his death being remarkable, I shall relate them. He had been

키리의의의의의의의의의

been on a visit a few days to some officers, and having made a little too free, during that time he became in a state of infanity, the first instance he shewed of it was getting up in the dead of the night, and walking feveral hours in the fnow barefooted, till his feet were frost-bitten, he had been abfent near four hours before he was miffed, and upon his companions going in fearch of him, he was found parading before the door, they conducted him into the houfe, and applying the ufual remedy, all danger of a mortification was removed from being frost bit. The next morning he was frequently asking for a knife to cut a flick, which his companions always contrived to evade giving him, and on their quitting Charlottefville, at which place they had flept, they intended to conduct him to the barracks for advice, but on his expreffing a defire to return to his own quarters, they indulged him in his request. It is faid that perfons perfons laboring under that most calamitous affliction, are poffeffed of extreme cunning, to deceive those they fuspect of watching their actions. He, poor fellow, fully demonstrated it, for keeping up a very rational conversation as they rode along, not difcovering the least fymptoms of any one infane, till they arrived at an exceeding fleep hill, at the foot of which was a rivulet, where they ftopt to water their horfes, feizing this opportunity, he left them and rode his horfe as fast as he could make him go up the hill, his two companions purfued, but he being better mounted, was foon out of fight, they followed the track of his horfe in the fnow, till it turned into the woods, and concluded any further purfuit would be vain by themfelves, they haftened to their quarters, which was not a mile diftant, for affistance. By this time night had come on, neverthelefs, a party of ten or a dozen with lanthorns, went various roads, and

بلولول كالكر والوالوا والمالوا والمالما لمالما لمالما لمالوا والموالوا والمالوا والمالو المالي والمالي والمالي

TRAVELS

days to fome to ttle too free b n a state of inte newed of it was l of the nich 's in the from were frost-bitm four hours bin on his comm m, he was four oor, they com , and applying iger of a mortin being froft bit. frequently alig , which his co to evade give tting Charlott ney had flept, him to the bo his exprelling at vn quarters, the queft. It is fill E.

and into the woods, which they traverled best part of the night, but could not observe the least trace of him; the next morning they renewed the fearch, and about five miles off, in a bye place, found his horfe fastened by the bridle to a fence, close by a rivulet, to which they could trace the feet of a man upon the fnow, they followed the track till they came upon the ice, which led them to the bend of the current under a hanging rock, where the river had not been frozen over. and which, by the rapidity of the current at that place, feldom did, and there it is imagined he fell in, before he came to this the ice twice gave way, but being shallow, he had fcrambled out. His companions could not long remain in fuspence, for fending his fervant back for one of his fhoes, on his return they found it exactly fitted the track in the fnow, and from his horfe being fo near, it left little room for doubt. However, fome short time after, all all doubts were removed, as the body was found---poor man---I did the laft fad office with a heavy heart---but his memory will be fincerely lamented, by those that knew him,

Yours, &c.

LET-

R TRAVELI

which they be night, but col ace of him: # ewed the fearch off, in a bren ened by the bill vulet, to whit of a man un d the track ill which led them inder a hanging not been from pidity of them n did, and the before he camen y, but being bi it. His compu ain in fulpera back for one dl they found it mi fnow, and from t left little room me thort time at

i nel

LETTER LXX.

Barracks, Charlottefville, in Virginia, April 18, 1780.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

LITTLE has transpired of intelligence worth relating, unless a repetition of grievances and hardships, during a long and fevere Winter, and all hopes or expectation of any exchange taking place; there has been a meeting of Commissioners from both armies for that purpose, but they could not agree to the different proportions of exchange, as to the number of foldiers in lieu of an officer. As to my fentiments upon this head, or any the leaft

TRAVELS

rer Lu

cks, Charluttifoille, al April 18, 1780

D,

canfpired of indi g, unlefs a repridihips, duinge dihips, duinge and all hope exchange taking exchange taking exchange to the nies for that p t agree to the change, as to the cu of an office. In this head, or p leaft tending to politics I am debarred from, as this letter muft undergo the examination of the American Commanding Officer; therefore, being confined, I shall give you my observations and remarks on the customs of the country, and whatever may concern our army, as they occur to memory, which, though you allow to be tolerable, is not fo great as Cæfar's, who forgot nothing but injuries.

THROUGH AMERICA.

449

Since I have been in Virginia I never could affign the reafon why the oxen and fheep fhould be fo fmall, having fuch abundance of grafs during the fummer, in the unlimited range of woods; but the winter has fully demonstrated the caufe, which arifes from the planters paying fuch little attention to their cattle during the inclement feafon, by which means they flarve the young ones, or at leaft ftint their growth, fo that they but very feldom grow fo large as if they Vol. II. G g. were were better managed, being content if they can but fave their lives; and though they fuffer them to be fo poor in the winter, yet they prefently grow fat again in the fpring, which they efteem fufficient for their purpofe. This is the reafon their beef and mutton is neither fo large nor fo fat as in England; their flefh, however, is efteemed delicate, and has certainly a fine flavor.

والداما والعاوا والمالي والمرافع فالمرافع والمرافع والمرافع

Among the curious plants growing in America, none contribute more to the beauty of the fpring than the dogwood, which grows in great abundance, and, when adorned with its numerous white flowers, appears delightful. The wood is very hard, and breaks into fmall fibres; for want of fuch neceffary implements as tooth-brufhes, we fubfitute this wood. The inhabitants have a cuftom of tying a branch of this tree round the cattles' neck, when they fall down exhaulted by heat in the fummer, imagining that its virtue contributes to their recovery.

and

poori

'ow fai efteen

is net

gland;

s groei

more a he diga

idansi, Ierous T

Them

inthe

一世

matt

There is another tree rather peculiar to America called the tulip tree, and it creates aftonifhment, in the fpring to behold trees of fuch a magnitude, for they are very large and lofty, bearing a flower for a fortnight together in fhape, fize and colour refembling tulips. The leaves grow in a very peculiar fhape; from whence the tree has, in fome places, the appellation of the old woman's fmock, imagining a refemblance below the leaves. The log huts in which the foldiers refide, although erected fuch a fhort time, are become extremely dangerous, the timbers being nearly deftroyed by an infect that is in the bark of the tree, which, for want of the nourifhment it receives G g 2 from

from the turpentine whilk the tree is growing, preys upon the folid part of the timber; and these infects, from the deftruction as well as the noise they make, have the appellation of fawyers, and is certainly a very proper one; for I have feen timber, nearly the circumference of one's waist, which had not been cut down above fix months, that upon stripping off the bark, there was nothing but the appearance of faw-dust, with a vast number of these infects, refembling a large grub-worm.

The foldiers have been fo indifferently fupplied with provisions, the barracks fwarm with rats of an enormous fize, and notwithstanding each hut has a cat or two, they are very troublefome, and with every precaution, they are continually destroying the men's cloaths and bedding during the night; it is no very uncommon thing to fee them running fix or

משני אאובובובובובובובובובו

or feven, one after the other, in the interflices of the logs with which the huts are constructed.

parti

mt

ers, t

forli

ifate

rim

1g 21

e hi

mous

hai

(DER)

: 00

s and

DI

You may recollect, on our first arrival in this province, I mentioned that a number of duels were fought, and what partly occafioned them. They have of late been frequent amongst the German officers, but from different motives---difputes at gambling. Their manner of fighting is rather fingular. Each party goes to the field with a fecond, and after Aripping to the fhirt, advancing, shake each other by the hand, draw their fwords, and cut and flash each other till one party relinquishes the contest; and, unlefs the inveteracy is very obftinate, the conflict is over upon the leaft appearance of blood on either fide; this is deemed a fufficient proof of their courage and justification of their honor. Most of the duels among them have ended in in this manner except one, where the combatants mutilated one another in a most shocking manner, as nearly to endanger each other's life.

Gg 3

It is no little pleafure to me that I am unrestrained from communicating and opening myfelf freely to you, fince I began this letter, as an opportunity has occurred of fending it without infpection by an officer who has received an account of his being exchanged. By the mode that I intended to fend this, which was by a flag of truce returning to New York, I wrote feveral others; fome were franked by Col. Bland and others by Col. Sherwood, the American Officers commanding the troops at the barracks. The former behaved with true politeness and liberality of fentiment; he only required an officer to pledge his word and honor, as a gentleman, there was nothing political contained in the letter, on affirming which,

which, the Colonel defired the letter to be fealed, and on it wrote, Examined, and figned his name. The latter, with an inquifitivenefs, accompanied with rudenefs and impertinence, not only read every letter, fentence after fentence, but made animadverfions on them; the Colonel, like most perfons possessed of an impertinent curiofity, met with a fevere rebuke from Lieutenant Charlton of the 20th regiment, but I am afraid he was too ignorant to take the fenfe of it. After he had read his letter, and feeing the name of Charlton figned to it, the Colonel exclaimed, " Charlton, Charlton ! I " recollected a captain of a fhip of that "name, who had a relation that was " a name-fake of mine." ---- " Very proba-" bly, Sir," replied Charlton, " and there " may be one of that name in my fa-" mily; but I'll venture to fay, if there " is, he poffeffes more liberal ideas and " principles than the American Sherwoods." Gg4

简

nett

健

ng til

0001

調

耶

ndby

afri

Some

Some short time fince I became acquainted with a Colonel Walker, who has lately been elected a Delegate to reprefent this State in Congress. The usual hospitality of the country prefides at his house; but what renders it unpleafant, the family will chiefly converse on politics, but always with moderation. I was much pleafed with a very noble and animated fpeech of the Colonel's father, a man poffeffing all his faculties with ftrong underftanding, though confiderably above eighty years of age. One day, in chat, while each was delivering his fentiments of what would be the flate of America a century hence, the old man, with great fire and fpirit, declared his opinion, that " the Ameri-" cans would then reverence the refolution " of their forefathers, and would eagerly " impress an adequate idea of the facred " value of freedom in the minds of their " children, that it may defcend to the " latest posterity; that if in any future " ages

" ages they fhould be again called forth to revenge public injuries, to fecure that freedom, they fhould adopt the fame meafures that fecured it to them by their brave anceftors,"

out;

amily

nth

th the

. fper

erftad

IT TH

e each

that T

tury

and

the

e reloit

the

ids of 1

end to any fi

To you, fo converfant with the world, I need not fay, that there are a clafs of people continually at variance with themfelves and all the world, and whom nothing can pleafe. When one of fuch a defcription gets into the army, you cannot conceive how very unpleafant it is to have any concerns with him, efpecially if he is regardlefs of life. Senfible that an officer must accept a challenge, he does not hefitate to deal them in abundance, and fhortly acquires the name of a fighting man; but as every one is not willing to throw away his life, when called upon by one who is indifferent of his own, many become condefcending, which this man immediately conftrues into fear, and

and prefuming upon this, acts as if he imagined no one dare contradict him, but all must yield obedience to his will.

One of this unhappy difpolition has lately broke forth from the recluie manner in which he lived, having only one affociate, of a fimilar disposition, and wished to ingratiate himfelf with the officers at large. There was no keeping him at a diftance by formal civilities, as he would intrude at all times and feafons. Being a little known to an officer who refides with us, he came one day to dinner; and with the idea that he would lay under no obligation for it, invited the whole mels to dine with him. On the day appointed, there came on a most violent fnow ftorm, and in the morning we difpatched a fervant with an apology. He fent word back, " that, by God, he had provided " dinner, and he expected us ;" and we had had no alternative, but either to encounter a ride of near four miles in a heavy fnow ftorm, or, in all probability, a madman the next morning. The day was, without exception, the moft unpleafant I ever paffed in my life; for after we arrived at his quarters, on his having occafion to quit the room, his companion fhewed us a brace of piftols that lay under his pillow, which he conftantly flept with, and which he had fresh loaded and, primed that morning, that if any difpute arofe, it might inftantly be decided without leaving the room.

بحاظاعة فجاعاها والماما والماما والماعا والماعات

tios

de

ima

b

部

1

appe

2011

Such conduct cannot be confidered in any other light than infanity, for a pretended indifference for life does not proceed from true courage; if thefe vaunters meet with one equally as indifferent, and receive a check, they cannot brook it. Such was the fate of this unhappy man, and fo overwhelmed was he with fhame, that that he put a period to his existence, in the following fingular manner.

4.60 INTERIOR TRAVELS

One Winter's evening, when fitting round the fire in the coffee-room, having fome occafion or other to leave it, he laid his cane in one chair and his gloves in another, and on quitting the room, faid, " let me fee who dare meddle with them before I return." In the interim an officer came in, who being very cold, took one of the chairs and drew near the fire; the company told him that they were Mr. ----'s chairs, and what he had faid, when he replied "Damn him, one chair is enough for his cane and gloves, and him too, I think." ---- Shortly after his return, he enquired with eagernefs, who had prefumed to meddle with his cane and gloves, when the officer told him he had, and that he thought in fuch fevere weather every man ought to be content with one chair, upon which he began to break out

in

1010

ingn

ne li

,"]

a hati

21 (22)

ne d

the

Mr.-

thent

is chi

im l

return

had cane

mk

形歌

with

break

in a most violent passion, " that his dignity " and himfelf were infulted in the groffeft " manner :" when the officer ftopt him fhort, by faying, " Mr. ----, I have often " heard of you as a fighting man, but " never was in your company before, now "Sir, I have only to tell you as to fight-"ing, I care as little about it as you do, " and, by God, Sir, if you fay another " word on the fubject, I'll throw you be-" hind the fire." From the most violent paffion he became inftantly calm, fat down in his chair and never spoke another word, but in about ten minutes left the room. That he should meet with fuch a rebuff. accompanied with a threat, operated fo powerfully on his mind, that the next morning he fhot himfelf; and his manner of performing that deed was fingular, as he was found in a fhallow ftream, where the water did not cover the body, with a piftol in one hand and another on the bank loaded.

Numbers

Numbers of officers have lately been been exchanged; from whence the partiality proceeds I cannot furmife, but am inclined to think it must arise from the intereft of their friends, at head quarters at New York. Notwithstanding I am deftitute of any one to make an application for my exchange, I am not without hopes it will fhortly happen; for not long fince an American officer, Capt. Van Swearingham, of whom I made mention as being taken prifoner during the campaign, vifited the Barracks. I immediately fought him out, in hopes that, in return for the civility fhewn him, his gratitude would prompt him to render me a fervice. Accordingly, on waiting on him, he expreffed great pleafure at feeing me, but infinite regret at my being still a prifoner, as he fully concluded that both Lieut. Dunbar, as well as myfelf, had long fince been exchanged ; and I had the mortification to find that, ignorant of our names, he

بحاصي ويحاجاج والماحا والحاص والمرجا والم

he had defcribed our perfons to an officer of our army who was going to New York, and wifhing to feize the favourable opportunity of ferving his friends, faid they anfwered the defcription, and giving the Captain their names, they were exchanged in lieu of us. However, as he was going directly to head quarters, it fhould be his firft bufinefs with Gen. Wafhington to effect our exchange. On taking my leave of him, your favorite adage of Nil defperandum inftantly occurred to my mind; and I am not without hopes, in a fhort time, of once more vifiting my native fhore.

h

nti

御信

oplat

longi

Dais

rn tal ide n iice. 1 he co

ber più the long is mortis ar nam Yours, &c.

EST OF CARL NEW TO THE

LET-

LETTER LXXI.

Winchefter, in Virginia, Nov. 20, 1780.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

A T receiving a letter, dated from this place, you will perhaps conceive it is to acquaint you, that fhorthy after you'll fee the perfon who wrote it. I am not, however, as yet, fo fortunate; and not without juft caufe of apprehenfion, that the buftle and hurry of the campaign has obliterated from the memory of Capt. Van Swearingham, that fuch perfons as Dunbar and myfelf exift. And when I inform you this town is not in

Eseccesses

in the extent of our parole, your curiofity no doubt will be excited, as to the caufe of my being at it; and your furprize will be no lefs, on being informed that the whole army are on their march, Congrefs being apprehenfive, from Lord Cornwallis's over-running the Carolinas, that it is his Lordfhip's intention, by forced marches, to retake our army.

7. 2.

hasi

at

) TITLE

of all

in d

1 11

han,

About fix weeks ago we began our march from Charlottefville Barracks, the army moving in the fame manner as we left New England; but as to the place of our destination, that is yet unknown : we understand it is to fome of the northern At present we remain here, provinces. till a matter in difpute is adjusted by Congrefs between this province and Maryland, as the latter abfolutely refufed the army's entering that state, apprehensive we were to remain there; in confequence of which fuch a body of men would greatly diffrefs the VOL. II. Hh the inhabitants in fo finall a province; and they actually, in arms, opposed our croffing the Potowmack.

4.66 INTERIOR TRAVELS

You may naturally conclude the murmurs of the officers were great, having been given to understand that they were to remain at the Barracks till exchanged; and many had laid out confiderable fums to render their log huts comfortable against the approaching winter, as they had fuffered feverely from the cold during the last, being unable to keep a sufficient fire without imminent danger, as the chimneys were built, as is the cuftom of the country, with wood; and therefore, to remove all fears of any accident, molt of the officers had ftone ones erected. You will fcarcely credit it, when I tell you my miferable log hut, that was not more than fixteen feet square, cost between thirty and forty guineas in erect-Some officers, who had reconciled ing. their their minds, with an idea that they should not be exchanged till the termination of the war, had laid out great fums in making themfelves comfortable habitations; for the Barracks became a little town, and there being more fociety, most of the officers had reforted there. The great objection to refiding at them, on our first arrival, was on account of the confined fituation, being not only furrounded, but even in the woods themfelves. I am apt to think that Col. Harvey, the proprietor of the eftate, will reap great advantage, if the province should not; as the army entirely cleared a space of fix miles in circumference round the Barracks.

, pin

rent la

th

mforti

te, u p alt

ger, I

He COL

od the cides.

ines e

TI

re, ci

as II

1 100

After we quitted the Barracks, the inhabitants were near a week in deftroying the cats that were left behind, which, impelled by hunger, had gone into the woods, and being fo numerous, they were apprehenfive, by their encreafe, they would in H h 2 a fhort

a fhort time be unable to extirpate; exclufive of which, there was reafon to fuppofe they would become extremely wild and ferocious, and would be a great annoyance to their poultry.

We croffed the Pignet Ridge, or more properly the Blue Mountains, at Wood's Gap, and though they are confiderably loftier than those we croffed in Connecticut, termed the Green Mountains, we did not meet with fo many difficulties; in short, you scarcely perceive, till you are upon the fummit, that you are gaining an eminence, much less one that is of fuch a prodigious height, owing to the judicious manner that the inhabitants have made the road, which, by its winding, renders the ascent extremely easy.

After travelling near a mile through a thick wood, before you gain the fummit of these mountains, when you reach the top

THROUGH AMERICA. 469.

الأتاعد كالعالم للمالي المالم المالم المالم المالم المالم المالم المالم المالم المالية المالية المالية المالية top you are fuddenly furprized with an unbounded profpect, that firikes you with awe and amazement. At the foot of the mountains runs a beautiful river; beyond it a very extensive plain, intersperfed with a variety of objects, to render the fcene still more delightful; and about fifty miles distant are the losty Allegany mountains, whose tops are buried in the clouds.

metra

ष्ट्राक्ष

, (I I

at II

ionfide 1 Cons

cultis

ill ya

are gu

that vingt

bitant

STE

3 thru

the ful

1 1200

Winchefter is an irregular built town, containing between three and four hundred houfes. It was laft war, as it is at prefent, the rendezvous of the Virginian troops, in excursions against the Indians. By an inhabitant who resided in this town during the last war, I was informed, that before we reached Fort du Quesse, the country round about it was greatly ravaged by the Indians, who committed horrid barbarities, and the town itself was in great danger, and would certainly have been levelled with the ground, and its in-Hh 3 habitants habitants maffacred, had not Col. Wafhington (the prefent famous General) erected a fort upon an eminence at the north end of the town, that fully protected it; notwithstanding the Indians were fo bold as to venture in fight of the town, but never within reach of the fort.

The remains of this fort are still to be traced. It appears to have been a regular fquare fortification, with baftions at each angle, and the length of the curtain between eighty and ninety feet. The barracks are still remaining, which will contain, with eafe and comfort, near five hundred men, but upon an emergency would contain twice as many, as is the cafe at prefent, there being near that number of our foldiers now quartered in them. These barracks are constructed of logs, in the nature of those at Charlottesville, but upon a far more extensive scale. Since the commencement of the war, the Americans ricans have picketted them in, and converted them into a place of fecurity for prifoners of war. There appears to have been fome attempts to make a dry ditch round the fort; but from the rock being impenetrable, it could not be accomplifhed.

بعروا والموالي والموالي

IN

Ger

ncer

y phi

ians 1

they

ort

£1

nam

CUITA

Th

hm

, 112

emer

, 251

r that

red int of los

tefrille

cale, I

, the

The water at Winchester is very unpleafant to the taste, which I am induced to believe arises from the limy nature of the foil. It affects strangers with excessive gripings, which we severely felt; and it was laughable enough to observe our morning falutations, accossing each other with faces distorted with pain, and execrating the water and the country in general. The inhabitants fay that it is a specific against many difeases.

It was no little mortification to be informed, that within a day's ride of each from Winchefter, were a number of na-Hh4 tural

tural curiofities, and that we were debarred from vifiting them. Therefore I muft defcribe them after the manner they were related to me by one of the inhabitants.

About thirty miles from Augusta Court House, there is a rock, which the inhabitants fay was that which Moses struck with his rod, for out of the fide of it bursts a torrent of water; and what adds to its beauty, the water, after running fome distance through a meadow, russ down a perpendicular precipice near two hundred feet deep.

Twenty miles from this place there is a most curious cave, running near a mile under a rock, in which are phænomena that I must leave philosophers to account for. These are two springs, the one being equal in heat to the warmest bath, and the other equal to the coldest; they are about a foot as funder, and separated by the natural natural rock. As both fprings poffers many medicinal virtues, fo each of them is made into convenient baths.

re dela

e In

hey m bitan

itela

10 1

les tr

what

r Till

e next

there

aral

hand

0 200

e 00191

bath,

; they

ted by

1

Near these springs is a river, which in fome measure resembles the river Mole: the only difference being, that the Mole, although it loses itself under ground, at fome miles distant makes its appearance again; whereas this river finks under a mountain and never more rises, and therefore is very justly called Lost River.

Two natural curiofities, within a morning's ride of Winchefter, we did obtain permiffion to vifit. The one was a cave or well, formed by nature; at certain periods a perfon may defcend near two hundred yards, and at others it overflows in great abundance; by the inhabitants it is called the tide well, in allufion to its ebbing and flowing. What confiderably adds to this wonderful production of nature is, that that for many miles around there is neither mountains, nor any running water, and it is fituated in a level country. The other, although confidered a curiofity in this country, cannot be deemed fo by thofe who have vifited the Peak in Derbyfhire; it being fix or feven caves in a rock, that communicate with each other.

The Americans, for a length of time, flattered themfelves that France would fend fuccours and affift them, which report we confidered merely raifed to revive the fpirit of the people, and to roufe them from their lethargy; for at the commencement of the prefent year, their affairs were in fuch a ftate, that the majority were totally indifferent on which fide the conteft would terminate, fenfible that their fituation could not be more diftreffing. But to thofe ftrongly attached to the caufe of America, judge how their hopes muft have been revived, when intelligence came that France

IS TR.

y. Tu

iolityji

bythe

bythin

ick, the

ofin

epatri

e them

1em m

encenti s wer i

WERE

eir fite

, Butt

cante i nuit ba

amet

Fill

יאליאג אאכובובובובובובובובובובוביבובו

France had actually fent them fuccours, with affurances of affifting them in the most effectual manner. From this period the Americans vauntingly boaft, that it is impoffible for Great Britain to overcome them, and that in a fhort time they shall witness the British armies being driven from the continent of America. Equally as this intelligence raifed their fpirits, fo did it deprefs ours; naturally concluding, that although France might take advantage of our unhappy contest with the Colonies, by feizing on our territories either in the East or West Indies, she would not have been the abettor of Rebellion. efpecially when it is confidered fhe had territories of her own nearly in the fame predicament. But France! France! forry am I to fay it, to gain a fuperiority in political intrigues, you are indifferent by what arts or means it is accomplifhed.

In

بالالا المتعالما فالمالك والمتعالم المتعالم متعالم المتعالم المتعالم متعالم المتعالم متعالم متعالم متعالم متعالم متعالم متعالم متعا

In a former letter I defcribed what an amazing ftrong mode of defence blockhoufes were; and a tranfaction has lately occurred, that not only reflects the higheft encomiums of honor and bravery on those that defended it, but is a very convincing proof of the veracity of my affertion.

This block-houfe was erected by a party of feventy American Loyalifts, that took poft on the fhore of Hudfon's River, oppofite New York, to fecure them from a furprize, or fudden incurfion of Wafhington's army, and not without juft caufe of apprehenfion; for a moft furious attack was made upon them by near two thoufand of the Americans, with feven pieces of cannon, commanded by Gen. Wayne, and notwithstanding a cannonade of three hours, almost every fhot of which perforated the timbers, and feveral attempts to carry the place by affault, the enemy were repulfed repulfed with great lofs, leaving behind many killed and wounded; and on their retreat the brave feventy purfued them, took feveral prifoners, and regained fome cattle that they had plundered from the neighbouring plantations.

وجروافي وتعاصص والمالم المالي المالي المالي المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية ال

By an officer just left Washington's camp, we have received the melancholy account of the death of Major André, the Adjutant General of the British army, who was taken as a fpy, in negociating a businels with Gen. Arnold, which, if it had fucceeded, would have nearly been the overthrow of the Americans. This officer was prefent at his execution, who faid, that he met his fate with that courage and manlinefs of behaviour, that deeply affected every one prefent, and that his fevere deftiny was univerfally lamented : fo much was he efteemed, that Gen. Washington shed tears when the rigorous fentence was put in execution. When he found found that his fate was inevitably fixed and determined, and that all interceffions and every exertion of Sir Henry Clinton, to fave his life, were in vain, he became perfectly refigned; fo extremely composed was his mind, that the night previous to his execution, he drew the fituation of the Vulture floop, as fhe lay in the North River, with a view of West Point, which he fent by his fervant to a general officer at New York. The only thing that any way difcomposed him, or ruffled his mind, and at which his feelings appeared hurt, was the refufal of Gen. Washington to let him die a military death. In regard to this circumstance, the officer informed us, that Gen. Washington would have granted his request; but, on confulting the board of general officers who figned his condemnation, they deemed it neceffary to put that fentence in force, that was laid down by the maxims of war; at the fame time evincing the fincerest grief, that they were were forced to comply with, and could not deviate from, the established customs in fuch cases.

מכובה מהמכובובובובובובובובובובובובובובובוב

$

ably for

terefe

ry Clim

he ber

y comp

previou

tion d

North

t, while

el office

at any

mindi

hurt,

to let!

rd to!

red us i

grante

e board

conden

to put dom !

famet

that t

By the account this officer gave us of * his being taken, it appears that Major André was too confident of being out of danger; for when the three men that took him prifoner accosted him, they enquired whether he was of the Upper or Lower Party, [Here it is necessary to explain thefe to you --- the Upper Party confifted of the partizans of the Americans, and the Lower Party of the American Loyal Refugees, they refide in New York.] he replied of the Lower Party, naturally conceiving, from the finall diftance he was from New York, they could be no other; upon which they undeceived him, and faid he must go with them, for he was their prifoner. When too late he perceived his miftake, and endeavoured to convince them to the contrary, by producing ducing a paffport which he had obtained from Gen. Arnold, in the name of John Anderson.

This feemed to have its intended effect, as they releafed him, and fuffered him to proceed without farther trouble; but he not gone many yards, when one of the young men recollecting that he appeared greatly confused, and that there was something in the stranger's face that struck him forcibly with an impression of some peculiarity, infisted upon his companions returning to examine him more strictly.

، است الا الا الا المالية المالي المالية المالية

This recollection was decifive and fatal to André, who was little accuftomed to, or prepared for fuch encounters, as the officer told us he confessed himfelf, in his letter to Gen. Washington, where he fays, "He " was too little versed in deception, to " practife it with any degree or hope of " fuccess;" for upon these young men returning returning back, he offered them a confiderable purfe of gold, a very valuable watch, and innumerable other temptations, with the fafcinating offers of permanent provisions for life, if they would either let him pafs, or accompany him to New York. In vain was every lure, and every argument; they continued inflexible, fteady to their purpofe, and conducted him prifoner to Washington's head quarters.

Had Major André, when first accosted, replied "of the Upper Party," he would have met with no hindrance. Had they been, as he supposed, of the Lower Party, he would have been taken prisoner upon making that declaration, and his person would have been easily recognized upon his arrival in New York; but the hasty declaration, that he was of the Lower Party, led to his unhappy definy.

VOL. II.

bind

of ith

ed effet

d him t

; but b

e of the append

was km

nat And n of im

ftricht

and the media

histo

Gaves, ""

eption, i or hope

g men i

As

As it is much eafier to point out errors than correct them, I fhall quit this melancholy topic with obferving, that it is very evident from the time Major André undertook his arduous commiffion, till he met his fevere fate, that he difplayed a refolution and ftrength of mind requifite for great actions, which no doubt would, at fome future day, have rendered him an ornament to his profession, and, by fome brilliant atchievement, adored by his King and Country.

What are termed thefe Upper and Lower Parties are moftly known to each other, and poffefs great inveteracy on both fides; and it is no uncommon thing, when two parties meet, to obferve the neareft ties of kindred oppofed to each other. Both parties range at large between the Britifh and American lines, and it has more than once happened, when two parties have met at the fame place, that there has been a ceffation

a ceffation of hoftilities, they have fat down to a good fupper, and fpent a jovial evening. At parting they agree to go in different directions, and after a certain fpecified time have again met and fought most desperately.

OUL CO

that i

fajor h

fion, il

dipla

ind ten loubt m

enderel

011, 创

idoredb

er and

) each |

n bobi

g, mai

e neare

other. I en their

as more

partia)

sere has

300

The Americans have circulated a report that there has been a great riot in London, that the Members of both Houfes of Parliament had been grofsly infulted, that a number of houfes had been burnt and all the prifons fet open, with other reports equally as ridiculous. We give the Americans great credit for raifing them, as their motives are answered by it, that of keeping up the fpirits of the people, and to imprefs their minds with an idea that Great Britain must relinquish the contest. They are too abfurd to be credited by an Englishman. Pray be particular in your next, if fuch a thing has really happened, which it is almost too abfurd to Ii 2 fuppose,

والما الما المالا المالية الم

fuppofe. Surely we have enemies enough to contend with abroad, without any broils at home. It is really too ridiculous and abfurd to imagine that fuch an event has taken place, or to give it a moment's thought.

Yours, &c.

LET-

المرحي كالعال المرحا المرح الم

LETTER LXXII.

Frederick's Town, Maryland, April 12, 1781.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

es enorg anybroi

event a

rs. ki

L

IN a few days after my laft letter we left Winchefter, to proceed on our march to this place, it being fettled by Congress that the army is to remain here till fome fituation fhould be fixed on; but the inhabitants think this only a deception, to grant permission for entering the province, and that we are to remain in this town.

Quitting Winchefter, we recroffed the Blue Ridge at Williams's Gap, and in our I i 3 march march to this place there was little worthy notice, except the Shennando River, which is exceedingly romantic and beautiful, with a variety of falls; and the water is fo transparent, that the pebbles may be feen at the depth of feven or eight feet. There are plenty of trout and other fish; but it is not navigable even for canoes, on account of the innumerable rocks that are under water; and, in transporting goods down the river, the inhabitants make use of rafts. When we croffed, it was nearly frozen over.

Upon our arrival in this town, I was not fo fortunate in obtaining fuch comfortable quarters, as when I last pass through it; being obliged to put up at a miferable dirty tavern, with two other officers, at which we remained till the final determination of Congress, as it was fully thought we were to proceed further to the northward.

We

We remained only nine days at this tavern, and upon quitting it the landlord gave us the following curious Bill, which I fend you by way of fpecimen of the Amcrican mode of charging.

littlem

ido Rin

nd bezi

d then

ebbler

eighth otherfi canos ks that ting p ts make was no

n, Im h con antitum antitum

1780.	Lieut. Anberry,	D ^r .
)ec. 19.	To 3 breakfastes a 12 dollars	13 10 0
21 12 5	To 5 ditto for fervants a 10 dollars	18 15 0
	To mug fyder 30. 8 quarts oats a $1\frac{T}{2}$
	dollar 90	6.00
0.2 11	To 3 diners a 15 dollars L. 16 17 6.
27 0 0	I quart beer 45	19 2 6
5 5 8	To 3 supers a 12 dollars L. 13 10 0.
0 01 81	ditto fervants L. 18 15 0	32 50
	Tô 9 quarts oats 5 1 3. 2 supers fer-	il and
0 21 15	vants 75 os angig bus vab gemod	9 16 3
20.	To 1 lodging 30. ftabling and hay 3
	horfes a 12 dollars 13 10 9 01	15 00
	To 9 quarts oats 5 1 3. 3 breakfafts
	13 10 0	18 11 3
3 15 0	To 3 breakfasts for servants 11 5 0.
0.01.61	mug fyder 30 0-21 angel 8 of	12 15 0
	To 4 diners a 15 dollars 22 10 4. 4 do.
	fervants 15 0 0 in base of sorred.	37 10 0
	To 9 quarts oats § 1 3. 2 mugs fyder	State and
E 11 1	60. 2 do. beer 90	12 11 3
	To 3 fupers 13 10 0. ditto for fervani
2 m 13	1150	34 15 0

To 9 quarts oats 5 1 3	5	1	3
21. Stabling and hay 3 horfes day and night	20	5	Q
To lodging 30 a 15 ds. 3 ditto a 12
ds. 13 100	15	D	9
To 3 mugs beer 6 15 0. mug fyder 30	8	5	0
To 9 quarts oats 5 1 3. 9 qts. ditto
5 1 3. ditto 5 1 3	15	3	9
To 3 supers a 12 ds. 13 10 0. ditto
for fervants 11 5 0 A -	24	15	0
22. To lodging 30. ftabling and hay 3
horfes day and night 20 0 0 -	21	15	0
To 3 quarts oats 5 I 3. 3 breakfasts
13 10 0	18	11	3
To 3 breakfasts for servants 11 5 0			1000
To 18 quarts oats 10 2 6. diners 16 17 6		-	2
To 2 mugs fyder 60. mug beer 45	Conference of		1
To 3 fupers 13 10 0		1.1
23. To lodging 30. stabling and hay 3
horses day and night 20 0 0 -		15	0
To 9 quarts oats 5 1 3. 3 breakfasts		-
and the second	18	II	3
To 18 quarts oats 10 2 6. 3 diners
16 17 6 -		0	0
To 1 mug fyder 30. mug beer 45 - 13
24. To lodging 30. ftabling and hay for
3 horfes day and night 20 0 0 -		15	0
To 3 breakfafts 13 10. 15 quts oats	5	-	1
8 14 3	21 1	1	3
To corn 10 quts 7 10 0. Diners		T. M.
16.17.6	24	7	6
the second se	24	1	2

488

لدادى بالاالما والمالي والمالي والمراجع والمتعامي والمراجع و

٥ آ

THROUGH AMERICA.	489
Ta z mugs beer 90. 1 mug fyder 30	6.00
To 4 supers 18 0 0	18 00
5. To lodging 30. flabling and hay 3	and the second se
horfes day and night 2000 - To 3 breakfafts 13 10 0. 3 diner:	A DESCRIPTION OF THE PARTY OF THE PARTY OF
16 17 6 · ·	30 7 6
To 32 quarts oats 18 0 0. 3 fuper
13 10 0 -	31 10 0
6. To lodging 30. flabling and hay
hories day and night 20 0 0 -	21 15 0
To 3 breakfasts 13 10 0. 2 diner	24 15 0
To 3 mugs beer 90. mug fyder 30	and the second se
A CONTRACTOR OF	6 0 0
To mug fyder 30. diner 5 12 6. Bow	1
- tody 60	10 26
To 2 quarts oats 22 6	1 2 6
We share an array array to	730 10 0
To 4 quarts ditto 45	2 5
True balance	6. 732 15 0
To the hier of the dineing room, hard	South of the

the we

itto 41 9 3 - 11 falts

0 11 | 176 n | 5 1 | - 11 | 17 3 | fails | 11 | ners

1

13

for oats

ners

- 11

11

4

عداداهم ككالالالالمالمالالمالم المالمالم المالم المالم المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية

Errors excepted,

Per ROB. WOOD.

Jan. the 3d, 1781. Recd of Mr. Thos. Amberry, Seven hundred and thirty-two Pound fifteen Shillings, in full for the Paper Currency Account above.

Per ROB. WOOD.

After perufing the articles of the bill, and finding them just, as was customary, I afked the landlord what he would allow in exchange for hard money. He, being a staunch American, flew into a violent paffion, faying, " He was furprized I " fhould make him fuch an offer; that " there were rafcals enough already to " ruin their country, by felling and traf-" ficking in paper; and that, for his part, "he knew no difference between Con-" grefs money and King George's." I begged him to be pacified; that in half an hour I would fettle his bill; when, with the utmost infolence, he replied, " I " fwear now, if it an't fettled by twelve " o'clock, I fwear I'll fend the fheriff af-" ter you, and you'll foon fee the infide of "that place," pointing to the prifon op-" polite his house."

You'll no doubt be furprized, that, for the fellow's impertinence, I dia not give him a horfe-

a horfe-whipping, which, had it been in England, a landlord would hardly have efcaped. But, my dear Friend, we are become perfect Stoics, and it requires an infinite torture to ruffle our temper in the leaft. We have fo long been accuftomed to ill language and infolence from the inferior fort, that we really pay no more attention to it, than Gen. Phillips obferved we fhould to the cackling of fo many geefe.

the hill

Roman

ild alm

le, ben

a viola

rprizel

Fer; th

Iready 1

and the r his pe

reen Ca

orge's."

11; 11

plied,"

by the

theri's

einfiel

rifon

that, I

t give b

abos

On my quitting the fellow to go in fearch of paper money, it occurred to me that he might employ fome one to watch over me. I therefore went to the barracks and fent a ferjeant, who foon came back, when I returned and paid him his bill of feven hundred and thirty-two pounds fifteen fhillings; and obferving the item of one pound fifteen fhillings in hard money, I tendered him the fum in paper, retorting upon him his own words, that he knew knew of no diffinction. The fellow appeared much confounded and afhamed; but as the charge was an agreement with his wife, who was to have it as a perquifite, for the entire ufe of the room, I paid the half-joe exclusive of the bill: no doubt the fellow would not have made the least for uple of conficience to have taken the whole amount in fpecie,

Your curiofity is raifed to know at what rate I purchafed the paper money to difcharge the bill. Know then, that the enormous fum of feven hundred and thirty-two pounds fifteen fhillings, I difcharged for about four guineas and a half. After this I think I need not mention any thing more of the depreciation of paper money.

It being determined by Congress that the army is to make some residence in this town, the men are quartered in very comfortable comfortable barracks, that were built by the Americans fince the commencement of the war, are better fupplied with provifions, and allowed many privileges, fuch as working for the inhabitants permitted to go into the country to purchafe vegetables, &c. and fince the men have been prifoners they have never enjoyed fo many comforts. Such treatment is more likely to have the defired effect of Congress than ill usage, in tempting them to defert. So prevalent, indeed, has been defertion in our regiment, that it is now reduced to fixty men, including non-commiffioned officers, and the other regiments are in proportion, all of which, in Canada, mustered four hundred and fifty.

The officers are quartered in the town and plantations around. My quarters are at a Col. Beattie's, of the militia, who, though firongly attached to the American caufe, ellow p alhand nent id a perp oom, ly no dou le the la taken n ow at the ney to d that b d and the rs, I d teas solid I not as eprecision

ngrefs til efidence i red in til omfortalt

caufe, having a fon in the Maryland regiment, in General Greene's army, is not without a penchant for a little of the true touchflone. The plea he makes to his countrymen for admitting us into his houfe is, that as he has a large family and must provide for them in the best manner possible.

Siuce our arrival in this province a perfon has introduced himfelf to the officers as a clergyman, and as one ftrongly attached to the British government. The inhabitants fay that he was never ordained, and that he has created much confufion in various families by difavowing their marriage, he having no right to perform the ceremony. This has cut out abundance of work for the limbs of the law. He still performs Divine fervice at various churches, with all their regular duties. Whether his political principles are put on for the fake of our company

وجرحاح وكالحاج والحاج والحاح والحاج والحاح والحاج والح

pany and a little conviviality, I cannot pretend to fay; but this much I can affirm as to his religious ones, that he follows St. Paul to a tittle, being "all things to all men:" for he will fwear with those that fwear, and drink with those that drink.

STRING WILL THE THE OWNER OF

a dette anny and opprehon of Cent

were and the set of attailing and the and cluing two of the most decard of a indifice at the inche of one Tarlow a

LE.T-

and allow a with the back the reader they brought

Yours, &c.

ryland a my, ism the of the takes to b takes to b arge fam n the h

8 proins f to the one has ment. I nuch as difarm has as has as their m their m f out the f out the

LETTER LXXIII.

Colonel Beattie's Plantation, near Frederick Town, in Maryland, July 11, 1781.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

NOTHING will more fully illustrate the tyranny and oppreffion of Congrefs and its upftarts in power, than reciting two of the most flagrant acts of injustice, at the house of one Taylor, a Quaker, where Capt. Jameson, of our regiment, is quartered. One of the collectors, for a tax of forty-eight shillings, took from the stable a beautiful horse, worth near thirty guineas; and for another of about five or fix pounds, they brought brought carts, and conveyed away a large ftack of hay, of near forty pounds value. This paffive man (who, I fhould inform you, was a true friend to Government, and in confequence greatly perfecuted) made no other complaint than, "Well, " let them take---let them take all my " ftock, my farm, and turn me out of my " houfe, I have that by me that will never " let me want in my old age."

From his attachment to his Sovereign, and fpeaking his fentiments, he was continually threatened with imprifonment; but that, and every other perfecution, he would bear with the utmost chearfulnefs and refignation, concordant to the principles of his religion. Nevertheles, at times, the poor old man would fetch a heavy figh, as if his heart was burfting with grief, and exclaim, "Ah, well-a-day! " little did I think, after the labor of my Vol. II. K k "youth,

XIII

near Faili 9 II, 178

ly illub on of lo r, than and a funant after Taples the column of ours the column of ours the column of for a broad

" youth, and training up a large family in " the fear of the Lord, this would have " been the reward of my old age. There, " friend, (pointing to fome extensive mea-" dows that were before his house) with " thefe hands did I clear that ground, and " many a weary night have I worked by " light of pine wood, to leave my chil-" dren an inheritance, which is daily threa-" tened to be taken from me." Here his fortitude would be overcome; and, after a little respite, his final exclamation was, " The Lord's will be done."

Oh, Americans! if this is the basis on which you are to establish your independence, furely you must think there will be a day of retribution! And though it may not fall on your heads, the next generation may have cause to curse the calamities their forefathers have brought on them.

We We

499

We daily expect to remove from this province, on account of the movements of Lord Cornwallis's army, which we underftand is forming a junction with the troops landed in Virginia, under the command of Gen. Phillips and Gen. Arnold, and this state are not without apprehenfions of a defcent being made by the King's forces. Therefore to impede this progrefs, Gen. Washington has detached two strong bodies, one of continental troops, under the command of the Marquis de la Fayette, and the other confifting of the Penfylvania line, under Gen. Wayne. They paffed thro' Frederick 'Town last month, and appeared to be mostly Scotch and Irish, with a great number of blacks. They were badly cloathed, and fo extremely mutinuous and difcontented, that their officers were afraid to trust them with ammunition. I obferved that they wore black and white cockades ; the ground being the first color and the relief of the other. Kk2 family: build in: 2. The found a cound a worked daily the and, it and, it is the h fh yours think is And thus ds, the s to curies ave brough other. On enquiring the caufe, a very pompous American replied, " It was a " compliment to, and a fymbol of affec-" tion for, their generous and magnani-" mous allies the French."

Our quarters have been rendered very difagreeable to us by an unpleafant circumftance, the death of the Colonel's fon, who was killed at the battle of Camden, in the Carolinas. He, as well as the whole family, have taken it much to heart, and the houfe has been ever fince a fcene of lamentation. What renders it ftill more difagreeable is, whenever we meet the Colonel, he feems extremely anxious to be revenged upon us. We are feeking out for other quarters, but they are very difficult to be obtained.

At Easter holidays the young people have a custom, in this province, of boiling eggs in logwood, which dyes the shell crimfon,

e, a 10

It 1881

ofte

magna

ndered T

leafanti

of Cart

es them

hean, a nce a fa it ftill m eet the

xious to!

king out

rery diffi

NUNG PEOP

ce, of his

res the l

CILL

501

crimfon, and though this colour will not rub off, you may, with a pin, fcratch on them any figure or device you think proper. This is practifed by the young men and maidens, who prefent them to each other as love tokens. As these eggs are boiled a confiderable time to take the dye, the shell acquires great strength, and the little children divert themselves by striking the eggs against each other, and that which breaks becomes the property of him whose egg remains whole.

To imprefs the minds of his children with their glorious ftruggle for independence, as they term it, the Colonel has an egg, on which is engraved the battle of Bunker's Hill. This he takes infinite pains to explain to his children, but will not fuffer them to touch it, being the performance of his fon gone to camp; but now being flain, he preferves it as a relic. The Colonel favoured us with a fight of K k 3 it, it, and, confidering the fmall fpace, the battle is very accurately delineated.

As we imagined, orders are arrived for the removal of the army to York Town and Lancaster, at which places the officers are to be feparated from the foldiers, and are to be quartered at East Windfor in Connecticut. Brigadier Gen. Hamilton has expressed great displeasure at this feparation, which is directly against the terms of the convention; but after Congrefs have broke the most effential point, it is vain to remonstrate against fuch proceedings. We are now in their power, and they act with us as best fuits their plan. The General gave out in orders, that if it was the defire of the troops, he would proteft to Congress against the feparation ; at the fame time adding, he well knew it would be in vain. He ftrongly recommended the foldiers to behave in every respect the fame as if their officers were were prefent, and, though feparated, they fhould remember that fubordination was due to the non-commissioned officers, who still had authority over them. The General lamented that he was unable to furnish supplies of cloathing and other neceffaries; therefore directed officers who had the payment of companies, to fettle the men's accounts, and give them their balance to provide themfelves, which most of them will be enabled to do, as the generality have twenty or thirty pounds to receive. To military men it will appear furprizing, but there was a private in the company I paid who had forty-five pounds If an opportunity occurs, I ... min of aud

503

you from Lancaster; but you may depend,

The troops have greatly diminished fince they came to Frederick Town, not only by defertion but death, as numbers have fell a facrifice to fpirits, which are eafily procured and at a cheap rate, as there are abundance of ftills around the coun-K k 4 try, pace, te ed. arrived ork Tm the offer Idiers, a Vindler Hamin at this againt after Co ntial put A fuch p neir pom fuits to in ca e troops inft the ing, here He Atron behang heir off try, and the foldiers were in a continued ftate of intoxication. I need not tell you of the inordinate paffion that foldiers in general have for liquor, and what a difficult matter it is to reftrain them from it; but where it is continually before them, next to an impoffibility. Within this fortnight we have loft two in a moft melancholy way, who, during the abfence of the man that attended a ftill on the Colonel's plantation, drank the liquor hot out of the pipe, and the next morning were found dead in their beds.

In a few days we fet out on our march. If an opportunity occurs, I will write to you from Lancaster; but you may depend, upon my arrival in Connecticut, to hear from

Your's, &c.

I have

505

I have unfealed this Letter, just to add a melancholy Poftscript, of which we have this moment received tidings, the lofs of that brave officer General Phillips, who died last month of a fever at Richmond. His skill and knowledge in all military concerns, not only in his early days received the approbation of that great commander Prince Ferdinand of Brunfwick, on various occasions in the last war in Germany; but justified fuch commendation by every part of his fublequent conduct : particularly in the unequalled duties, toils, dangers and hardfhips of our campaign. A circumstance attended his death, fimilar to the inhumanity that the Americans difplayed at the interment of General Frazer. For them, whom we fuppofe were exafperated, fome excufe may be pleaded ; but that the Marquis de la Fayette, whofe nation is fo' confpicuous for the quintessence of les petits attentions, should be guilty of fuch conduct, is aftonishing. For continue tot tell yu foldien i vhat a di vhat a di efore the a mole a mole a mole a a mole a blane un the Ch quor bate

$

vill with may depe cut, to b

OUT

ur's, dic

110

For notwithstanding a flag of true was fent to inform him, that across the river, at fuch a house, General Phillips lay dangerously ill, and at the point of death, and to cease cannonading. This request was denied, an incession fire was kept up, several balls went through the house, and one through the adjoining room to where General Phillips lay, just as he was breathing his last, which disturbing him, he exclaimed, "My God, 'tis cruel, " they will not let me die in peace."

duch: paracularly in the unequaled duties, tons, dangers and hardhips of our compaign. A alcoundance intended his death, fimilar to the informanity that the Americans difplayed at the informent of formericans difplayed at the informant of present Frances of or them, whom we fipplay whole nation is fo comprehes for end, whole nation is fo comprehes for of guily of fuch combach, is alternifting. For -الالم كياكاكاكولوالوالوالوالوال

L E T I T S C R S

the Britin folderts, conducted them to the

The fight was too deeply affecting, and behaved extremely politic, favirer as freuit

not march the Britifictront statistic ban-

radia, till their officers in the and him they

East Windfor, in Connecticut, Sept. 2, 1781.

we hallened from the foot. Conditional and the foot the faces of duty, rependent love and do

LS

true in

s themer

ps lave.

of deal

This a

it fire m

iningno

juftak.

l, 'tis one

eace."

T.BI

DISTRESSING and humiliating as the feene was, when we commanded our men to pile up their arms and abandon them on the plain of Saratoga, ftill much greater was the feparation of the officers from the men at Lancafter. On the morning it took place the regiments were paraded near the barracks, which are picketed in, and converted into a prifon. At a fmall diftance was drawn up a regiment of continental troops, the Colonel of which behaved behaved extremely polite, faying, he fhould not march the Britifh troops to the barracks, till their officers informed him they were ready. When the Colonel was informed he might march the men, the American troops, forming a fquare around the Britifh foldiers, conducted them to the prifon.

The fight was too deeply affecting, and we haftened from the fpot. Could you have feen the faces of duty, refpect, love and defpair, you would carry the remembrance to the grave. It was the parting of child and parent, the feparation of foul and body---it effected that which the united force of inclement feafons, hunger and thirft, inceffant barbarity, adverfe fortune, and American infults heaped together, could never have effected--- it drew tears from the cyes of veterans, who would rather have fhed their blood. As far as founds could convey, we heard a reiteration of "God " blefs

الالحامة فبجاهاه والمام والمام والمام المام

" blefs your Honors." It was fuch a fcene as muft leave an everlafting impreffion on the mind. To behold fo many men, who had bravely fought by our fide---who in all their fufferings looked up to us for protection, forced from us into a prifon, where, experiencing every feverity, perhaps famifhing for want of food, and ready to perifh with cold, they had no one to look up to for redrefs, and little to expect from the humanity of Americans,

It was extremely vexatious to be again difappointed in vifiting Philadelphia, efpecially when in fight of it; but all entreaties to the Major who efforted us, for indulgence, were in vain. However we received fome little compensation in passing through Bethelem, at which place is a fettlement of the Moravians.

The tavern at Bethelem is upon an exceeding good plan, and well calculated for

s , he fhoil o the lad him by uel was s hen, the hare area them to i for the convenience and accommodation of travellers. The building, which is very extensive, is divided throughout by a paffage of near thirty feet wide. On each fide are convenient apartments, confifting of a fitting room, which leads into two feparate bed-chambers. All thefe rooms are well lighted, and have fire-places in them. On your arrival you are conducted to one of these apartments, and delivered the key, fo that you are as free from interruption as if in your own house. Every other accommodation was equal to the first tavern in London. You may be fure our furprize was not little, after having been accuftomed to fuch miferable fare at other ordinaries, to fee a larder difplayed with plenty of fish, fowl and game. Another matter of equal furprize, as we had not met with fuch a thing in all our travels, was excellent wines of all forts, which to us was a most delicious treat, not having tafted any fince we left Bofton ;

ويحودوه والمحام والجام

$

model

ich is ter

it byagi.

Onei

, confirm

ls into m

these no

re-plast

e contil

and delta

e from into

oufe. In equal to!

may be

after h

erablefan

rder difph

and ge

furprin,

a thing in wines of

nost delin

fince we

Both

Simple in the

Bofton; for notwithstanding the splendor and elegance of feveral families we vifited in Virginia, wine was a stranger to their tables. For every apartment a fervant is appointed to attend, whole fole bufinels is to wait on the company belonging to it, and who is as much your fervant, during your stay, as one of your own domestics. The accommodation for horfes is equal, with fervants to attend them. In fhort, in laying out the plan of this tavern, they feem folely to have studied the eafe, comfort and convenience of travellers, and is built upon fuch an extensive fcale, that it can with eafe accommodate one hundred and fixty perfons. General Phillips was fo much delighted with it, that after he quitted Virginia, not being permitted to go to New York, on account of fome military operations that were on foot in the Jerfeys, he returned back near forty miles to take up his refidence at it, merely on account of the accommodations.

The

The landlord accompanied us to the intendant, or the head of the fociety, who with great politeness shewed us every thing worthy of observation on the settlement.

The first place he conducted us to was the houfe of the fingle women, which is a fpacious stone building, divided, fimilar to the tavern, into large chambers, which are, after the German mode, heated with ftoves. In these the young women purfue various domeftic employments, and fome are employed in fancy and ornamental work; in all their apartments are various mufical inftruments. The fuperintendant of these young women conducted us to the apartment where they flept, which is a large vaulted room the whole dimension of the buildings, in which were beds for every woman. The women dine in a large hall, in which is a handfome organ, and the walls adorned with scripture pieces, painted by some of the women women who formerly belonged to the fociety. This hall anfwers the purpose of a refectory and chapel: but on Sundays they attend worship at the great church, which is a neat and simple building.

The houfe of the fingle men is upon the fame principle as that of the women; upon the roof of which is a Belvidere, from whence you have not only a most delightful profpect, but a diftinct view of the whole fettlement. We obferved that the building was much defaced, which the fuperintendant informed us was occafioned by the Americans taking it from the young men, and converting it into an hospital for the fick and wounded, after the battle of Germantown; and, added he, " it is incredible what numbers pe-" rifhed for want of proper care and at-" tention, and the hospital being ill fup-" plied with drugs." Pointing to an adjoining field, he faid, " There lie buried VOL. II. L1 " near to their ciety, nho every ting iettleman.

us to w which is I. fimilar pers, mil heated women puments, I and on artments Theins en conduit e they by m the wild , in mi The work is a had dorned w fome of the mont

" near feven or eight hundred of the A-" merican foldiers, who died here during " the winter."

All manner of trades and manufactures are carried on in this place diftinctly, and one of each branch; at thefe various occupations the young men are employed. Every one contributes his labor, and the profits arifing from each goes to the general ftock. Thefe young men receive no wages, but are fupplied with all neceffaries from the various branches of trade. They have no cares about the ufual concerns of life, and their whole time is fpent in prayer and labor; their only relaxation being concerts, which they perform every evening.

These people, who are extremely shrewd and sensible, in a manner foreseeing the ill confequences attending a civil war, had, before its commencement, laid in great quantities quantities of European goods, which they fent to their various farms interfperfed around the fettlement.

The Moravians are not only very affiduous, but ingenious too. They have adopted a fort of marriage, but from the manner of its celebration you cannot fuppofe that mutual tender endearments and happiness to fublist between the parties united as with us. A young man feels an inclination to marry, which does not proceed from any object he is enamoured with, for he never fees his wife but once before the ceremony takes place; it being contrary to the principles of their religion to fuppofe it is from the paffions of nature, but merely to uphold the fociety, that it may not fink into oblivion. The young man communicates his inclination to their prieft, afking of him a girl to make his wife, who confulting with the fuperintendant of the young women, the produces L 12

manufah ftincth, a ftincth, a ftincth, a for antial evanion bor, aut bor, aut bor, aut bor, aut bor, aut bor, aut al to the a to the a the s of the s of the a the s of the

of the

here duri

refeeing th refeeing th ivil war, th laid in 5th

quantil

produces her who is next in rotation for marriage. The priest prefents her to the young man, and leaves them together for an hour, when he returns. If they both confent, they are married the next day. If there is any objection, both their cafes are very pitiable, but efpecially the woman's, as fhe is put at the end of the lift, which amounts to near fixty or feventy; nor does the poor girl frand the leaft chance of a hufband till the arrives again at the top, unlefs the man feels a fecond inclination for marriage, for he never can obtain any other woman than the one with whom he had the first interview. This, I am induced to think, was the reafon of there being fuch a number of old women among the fingle ones. Thus you fee, my friend, that marriage and its inexpreffible enjoyments, are not the refult of the paffions, but a mere piece of mechanism, fet to work by chance and stopt alone by necessity.

When

When two parties meet and are united in marriage, a houfe is provided for them by the fociety, of which there are great numbers around the town; very neat habitations, with pleafant gardens. Their children of either fex, at the age of fix, are taken from them and placed in the two feminaries, confequently they can have little affection for them. When either of the parties die; if the woman, the man returns to the apartments of the fingle men, and if the man, the widow retires to a houfe that is built for that purpofe.

The religion of the Moravians refembles more that of the Lutherans than the Calvinifts; in one point it greatly differs from both, by admitting of mufic and pictures in their places of worfhip. Prayer conflitutes almost a third of their employment; for exclusive of the daily public devotions in their great church, they Ll3 attend

tion for er to the togethe If the the ner both the ecially the nd of the sty or le frand the the arms an feels ge, for b oman the firft into think, m a numit ingle one at marris ts, are mi ut a me k by chant attend fervice in their own chapels morn. ing, noon and evening.

The

Setting afide their ridiculous mode of entering into the marriage state, and which to them is of little moment, I could not but reflect, if content was in this life they enjoy it. Far from the bussle of a troublesome world, living in perfect liberty, each one purfuing his own ideas and inclination, and refiding in the most delightful situation imaginable, which is so healthy, that they are subject to few, if any difease,

As want is a ftranger, fo is vice. Their total ignorance of the refined elegancies of life, precludes any anxiety or regret that they poffefs not wealth to enjoy them, Neverthelefs they poffefs what many are entire ftrangers to, who are furrounded with what are termed bleffings, those true true and effential ones --- health and tranquility of mind; and that you may ever enjoy them, though no Moravian, in a high degree of refinement, is the fincere with of

* Enterisies Garouth the conital of this pro-

the clonneticut livery and is freezed

in the prise of construction only the

Yours, &c.

note in a finis of potenta fion, ein ir was iblime bund L14 warma LET.

ls mon.

s mode f andwhich I could m n this life buftle di perfect ! own its in the m e, which i St to finit vice. The d eleganos y or rega enjoy the at many m furround Tings, the LETTER LXXV.

Hartford, in Connecticut, Sept. 14, 1784,

MY DEAR FRIEND,

THIS is deemed the capital of this province. It stands on the west fide of the Connecticut River, and is situated about forty miles from the sea-coast.

We were shewn, among other things, the following curiosities, an house built in the year 1640 of American oak, the timbers of which were yet found, and almost in a state of petrefaction. In it was born a Jonathan Belcher, Esq. who was Governor

9999999999999999999999999

Governor of this province as well as of New Jerfey, and, by his upright administration, idolized by both states. The fecond was an elm tree, held as facred as ever the oak was in the days of the antient bards of our own country the druids; as this elm, in fome time of imminent danger, concealed the charter of the province. The third was a most wonderful well, which being dug near feventy feet, without the least appearance of water, the labourers met with a large rock, and on the miners boring this rock, in order to blaft it with powder, they drove the auger through it, upon which the water fpouted up with fuch amazing velocity, that it was with the utmost difficulty, with the affiftance of a number of pumps and a fire-engine they could keep the well dry till it was stoned, which was no fooner accomplished than it filled and ran over, and has ever fince fupported, or rather formed,

XXV.

Sept. 14, 17h

of thisps welt fider is fiture 1-coalt.

ther thing houfe but an oak, to and, and i . Initum q. who m Governm formed, a brook, for above one hundred years.

The inhabitants of Hartford relate a Iudicrous flory of Whitfield, who travelled America in the hopes of fowing the feeds of Methodifm upon this continent; and, from a fermon he preached at the great meeting in this town, you may be fure did not gain over the female part of his congregation; but was infulted, and obliged to take shelter in the first house that would admit him. The text he had felected was, " Anoint my eyes with eye-" falve." After expatiating for a confiderable length of time, to point out what was not the true eye-falve, he, in the ufual cant of those fanatic preachers, fays, " Now I'll tell you what is the real eye-" falve--it is faith -- it is grace -- it is fimpli-" city---it is virtue---it is virgin's water. "But, ah Lord, where can that be found? " Perhaps not in this grand affembly."

At

At a place called Symfbury are fome copper mines that are exhausted of their ore, which are converted to a state dungeon; where, formerly, fuch offenders as the General Affembly did not chufe to punish with death were fent, fhewing the humanity and mildness of the law; not but, in my opinion, they would have thewn it more confiderably, by hanging up the unfortunate wretch : for in the courfe of a few months, after lingering out a miferable existence, the diffolution of nature puts a period to their pain. Thefe mines were worked many years ago, the miners boring near half a mile through a mountain, making large cells that are forty yards below the furface. The prifoners are let down by a windlafs into this difmal cavern, through a hole, which answers the purpofes of conveying their food and air; as to light, it fcarcely reaches them. This place, fince the commencement of the war, has been converted to the infamous purpofe

hundral

Telate 1 no travel. owing the ontinent ed at the u mark le part d ulted, and first hout ext he had withere er a confi t out what he, in the chers, fails e real ero it is fimply in's water be found! mbly."

pofe of imprifoning Loyalifts, to make them renounce their attachment to their Sovereign, and yield obedience to Congrefs; and I am informed that numbers have been taken from their houfes, by order of the Affembly, and after a flight examination where witneffes were eafily procured, either through malice or intereft, they have been hurried away to this dungeon, to drag on a fhort period of pain and mifery, which, from the number of fteady fpirits who have been imprifoned and expired in it, may, with great propriety, be called the catacomb of loyalty.

There is an animal fuppofed to be peculiar to New England, called the cuba. This animal, as if fenfible that his family rely on him for protection, is extremely tender of them, and never forfakes them till death diffolves the union. What further difplays his magnanimity is, he never indicates the leaft anger to the the female, though ever fo provoked by her. What a charming leffon from nature is this to mankind; and how happy would the rational part of the creation become, if they did but purfue the examples of irrational animals.

Yours, &c.

A PARTY AND A PARTY AND A PARTY AND

LET-

to Cm. numbers es, by or flight et. eafily proor interd this the od of pin numberd imprilond eat propioyalty, to be pu the cut hat hish ion, is & never haagnaninut A anger 1

to make

t to their

LETTER LXXVI.

New York, Sept. 25, 1781.

statement internet and

MY DEAR FRIEND,

NEW Haven is remarkable for having given the epithet of pumpkinheads to the New Englanders, which arofe from a fevere and religious code of laws, made at the first fettlement of Connecticut; which enjoin every male to have his hair cut round by a cap, and when caps were not readily at hand, they fubstituted the hard fhell of a pumpkin, which being put on their head every Saturday, the hair was cut by it all round the head.

ويباحد وعلاما والمالا المالا المالا المالا المالا

head. What religious virtue may be derived from this cuftom, it is difficult to find out; certainly there is much prudence in it, for it prevents the hair from entangling, faves the ufe of bags and ribbons, and prevents it from incommoding the fight by falling over the eyes. I am induced to think the cuftom arofe from this caufe, that as they were fuch enthufiafts in religion, and at the fame time a lawlefs and profligate people, thofe who had loft their ears for herefy, fhould not conceal their misfortune and difgrace.

We paffed by a meeting that was fituated clofe to the fea fhore, which about three Sundays fince was furrounded by a party from Long Ifland, at the time of divine fervice, and the most notorious rebels, with the clergyman, were taken prifoners. Upon the alarm the confusion was great, the congregation getting out

as

Sept. 23, 1916

XXVI.

ble for he of pumpders, wh gious core nent of Carery makes y a cap, al at hand, in f a pumpd every Starall rounder

as faft as they could, each man taking the first horse he met with, rode away full gallop. Some of our party, having mounted other horses, riding after them. An inhabitant, who resides near the meeting, informed us that it was a ludicrous fight; fome galloping off with their neighbours horses, the owner running after to stop him; others seeking refuge in an adjoining wood; women screaming, shrieking and fainting; and as no mischief arose from it, it must have been truly laughable.

Upon our arrival at King's Bridge, it is impoffible to defcribe the emotions of joy depicted in the countenance of every one; when we had paffed the barrier, we felt ourfelves once more at liberty and fafe out of the hands of barbarians; for fo many fortuitous circumftances had taken place from the time we were made prifoners, that, notwithstanding we received an official official accounts of our being exchanged from the commifiary of prifoners, and obtained our paffports, ftill we did not conceive ourfelves altogether emancipated, till we had got within the British lines.

an taking away full

ng mount.

hem. An

e meeting, cous fight:

neighbour

ter to fto

an adion-

, fhrieking

chief arok

ruly laugh

Bridge, is

tions of joy

e of even

harrier, W

liberty and

s had take

made prile

received

official

The ifland of New York, at King's Bridge, is joined to the continent by a fmall wooden bridge, and the country around is very rocky and mountainous. The river, which feparates the ifland from the continent, is a fafeguard againft any fudden invafion of the enemy, and the works that are thrown up, which are exceedingly ftrong, are on fuch commanding fituations, that an army would be cut to pieces in attempting to pafs it. This poft is fourteen miles from the city of New York.

Our fleet is repairing after the action they have had with the French off Chefapeak Bay, and, when in a condition, are Vol. II. Mm to to fail with a confiderable body of troops, which Sir Henry Clinton is to command himfelf, in order, if poffible, to fave Lord Cornwallis's army. I cannot defcribe the eagerness of both navy and army to effect it, particularly the former, who are using the utmost diligence and labor in the neceffary repairs.

529

A day or two before we came here, Prince William Henry arrived from England, in the Lion of feventy-four guns, under the care of Admiral Digby. The Prince has been on fhore, and vifited moft of the places in the city and the pofts around it. He is very fhrewd and fenfible, making many pertinent remarks and obfervations. Not long fince he accofted Lieut. Bibby, of our regiment, in the following manner: "Well, Captain Bibby, " fo you are in the Adjutant General's " office. I fuppofe there are handfome " perquifites." Bibby replied, "Upon my " word,

531

" word, your Royal Highnefs is mifin-"formed; for no one in that office has " more than his bare falary."---" Indeed !" exclaimed his Royal Highnefs, with furprize : "Well, well, then you fhould par-" take of those of the Commissaries and " Barrack Master Generals; for, let me " tell you, they have emoluments enough " for both."

The city of New York ftands on the fouthern extremity of the island, and its fituation is extremely delightful; commanding fuch a variety of profpects, as are the most charming that can be conceived. The city is mostly built upon the East River, on account of the harbour. In many of the freets are rows of trees on each fide, for shelter from the amazing heats in fummer. Molt of the houses are built with brick, very ftrong and neat, and feveral stories high; many of them have balconies on the roof, where company fit in

Mm 2

of troops, command o fave Lord defcribe the my to effect no are ulin in the p.

e came he from En v-four gu Digby, Th 1 visited and the patra id and he remarks a e he account it, in theil. aptain Bibb ant General re handlor d "Uponsi HINTE in the fummer evenings, to enjoy the profpect of the oppofite fhores and harbour; and the roofs are covered with fhingles. The ftreets are paved and clean, but in general very narrow; there are two or three, indeed, which are fpacious and airy. The length of the town is fomewhat more than a mile, and the breadth of it about half a mile. The fituation is reckoned healthy, but fubject to one great inconvenience, which is the want of fresh water.

There are feveral public buildings, tho' but few deferving attention. There were two churches, the Old or Trinity Church, and the New one or St. George's Chapel, both very large; the former was deftroyed by fire: by the remains it appears to have been in the Gothic tafte. The latter is built upon the model of fome of the new churches in London, and oppofite to it is a fpacious fquare, where ftands the park of artillery. Befides thefe two, there are feveral

the prof-

harbour ;

thingks.

, but in

e two or

and ary,

vhat more

it about

reckond

t inconve.

h water,

dings, the There we

ty Church

e's Chupel

as deftrored

ears to have

he latter 1

of the new

ofite to it is

ds the part

a, there ar

feveral

والجاجر ويحاولوا والمالي والمالي

feveral other places of worfhip, confifting of two Low Dutch Calvinift churches, two High, one French; meeting houfes for Lutherans, Prefbyterians, Quakers, Anabaptifts, Moravians, and a Jews fynagogue. There is a very handfome charity fchool for fixty boys and girls, a good workhoufe, barracks for a regiment of foldiers, and an exceeding ftrong prifon. The courthoufe is not fo confiderable as might be expected for fuch a city, and is now converted into a guard-houfe for the main guard.

The original fort was quadrangular, capable of mounting fixty pieces of cannon, but now there are great additions. In this fort ftands the governor's palace, and underneath the fort is a battery capable of mounting ninety-four guns, and barracks for two companies of foldiers. Upon a fmall ifland, oppofite the city, is an hofpital for fick and wounded feamen.

Mm 3

The

The North River is fomewhat more than two miles over to Paulus Hook, where there is an exceeding ftrong work opposite New York. On account of the exposure to the north winds, and to the driving of the ice, in the winter, thips cannot anchor there at that feason of the year, and therefore lay up in the East River, it being the faseft and best, though the fmallest, harbour.

The fea near New York affords great quantities of oyfters, as well as variety of other fea fifh. Lobfters were extremely plentiful, of an enormous fize; but after the cannonade at Long Ifland they forfook the coaft, and not one has been feen fince. The manner they firft came upon the coaft is rather fingular, for although New England abounded with them, none were ever caught here; but this city was fupplied by the New Englanders, who brought them in great wellboats, boats. One of these boats coming thro' the Sound, and paffing Hell Gates, a very dangerous rocky part, ftruck and fplit to pieces, and the lobsters escaped; after which they multiplied very faft, and were caught in great abundance, till frightened away by the noife of the cannon.

وجرواح والالالا المالك الم

iat more

us Hook

ong wit

nt of the

and to the

iter, thips

on of the e Eaft Ri

A, though

fords great

s variety of extreme

e; but l

Fland th

e has be firft came

Har, for 2

nded with

here; but

New Eng-

great well.

boats

Having mentioned a place with fuch a tremendous name as Hell Gates, it may not be amifs to defcribe it, which I am enabled the more fully to do, having one afternoon, with a party, made a trip up the Sound and paffed this dangerous fpot. We left New York, with a fair and ftrong breeze, near upon the height of tide, as at any other time it is impassable, and in about two hours paffed through Hell Gates. It is really impoffible to do this, without calling to mind the defcription of Scylla and Charybdis. The breadth of the Sound at this place is about half a mile, but the channel is very nar-, row,

Mm4

-536 INTERIOR TRAVELS

row, not exceeding eighty yards. The water rufhes with great rapidity and in various currents, only one of which will ·carry a veffel through with fafety; for on one fide there is a fhoal of rocks, that just make their appearance above the water, and on the other a dreadful vortex, produced by a rock lying about nine feet under the furface, which is termed the pot, and draws and fwallows every thing that approaches it, dashing them to pieces upon the rock at the bottom; at stated times of the tide this tremendous whirlpool boils furioufly like a pot, and at others fucks every thing into it like a funnel inigit adt

Nearly opposite to Hell Gates lies another reef of rocks, which, that it may bear fome refemblance of horror, is named the Devil's Frying Pan. The noife made by the water in rushing over them, may be compared to that of water poured upon upon red hot iron. This alfo draws veffels towards it, to their inevitable deftruction.

S

rds. The

ity and in which

ety; form rocks, the

ve the ma

Iful vorter

ut ninefer

termath

every thin

em to piece

n; at flat dous while

pot, and

t like am

tes lies and

t it may be

s named the

ife made by them, m ater pound

ma

There are exceeding fkilful pilots to navigate through these dangerous straits, notwithstanding which ships are frequently lost. Before the war, it was deemed an impossibility for a top-fail vessel to pass; but since the commencement, sheets of transports, and the frigates that convoyed them, have ventured and accomplished it.

But what is ftill more extraordinary, and difplays a noble inftance of courage and intrepidity, that gallant feaman, Sir James Wallace, conducted his Majefty's fhip the Experiment, of fifty guns, through this dreadful channel.

At the time d'Eftaign lay off Sandy Hook with a fuperior force, and blocked up the harbour of New York, he difpatched fome

This afternoon I were down to fome ships of the line round the east end of Long Island to cruize in the Sound, and to intercept any of the King's ships. At that time Sir James Wallace was cruizing at the mouth, and perceiving the French veffels, failed back into the Sound. The French purfued, certain of the prize, Sir James faw his danger, and being unable to engage fuch a fuperior force, rather than the ship should fall into the enemy's hands, made the bold attempt to pafs through Hell Gates; which was the wonder and aftonishment not only of the French, who were obliged to return much chagrined, but of all the captains of our fleet; as it was ever deemed a rafhnefs to attempt, but was accomplished by an act of neceffity.

This afternoon I went down to the beach, to fee the whale boat fet off with difpatches for Lord Cornwallis's army, and you cannot conceive how elated the crew crew were; entertaining an idea of conveying tidings that would make them joyfully received.

As thefe are open boats, and have fo many leagues to fail before they reach the Chefapeak, you muft neceffarily conclude the voyage to be attended with imminent danger. Their intention is to coaft along fhore, but may be frequently driven out of fight of land; the laft boat that came from Lord Cornwallis, was in that fituation for three days. They eafily evade being taken, as they can fail in fhallow water, and keep clofe in fhore. The boats that pafs between the two armies have little apprehenfion of being captured, except in paffing through the French fleet at the mouth of the Chefapeak.

Your's, &cc.

LET-

ed by ma own to the fet off mid allis's arm, w elated the

T

$

e east end

the Sound,

ing's thins.

was cruin.

the Sound

of the prize

being m.

or force, n.

all into the

d attempt i

hich was the

onlyoft

return mi

tains di

a raihnist

LETTER LXXVI.

many leagues to fail before they reach the fore, but may be frequently driven out from Lord Commellie was in that first white this that would mane them by

New York, O.J. 30, 1781.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

THOUGH Long Island is in our poffeffion, still towards the east end there are continual fcouting parties of the Americans, that cross the Sound from the Connecticut shore, whose fole business is to plunder the inhabitants, and pick up prisoners.

On croffing the East River from New York you land at Brooklyn, which is a fcattered village, confisting of a few houses. At

At this place is an excellent tavern, where parties are made to go and eat fish; the landlord of which has faved an immenfe fortune this war. At a fmall diftance from the town are fome confiderable heights, commanding the city of New York. On thefe is erected a ftrong regular fort, with four baftions. To defcribe the works throwu up by the Americans upon this ifland, would be beftowing more attention on the fubject than it deferves, as they actually cover the whole. They are not only on grounds and fituations that are extremely advantageous and commanding, but works of great ftrength, that I am at a lofs to account for their fo haftily abandoning them, as they were certain by fuch a step to give up New York. I am induced to believe, that Gen. Walhington thought the Americans were fo panicftruck after the engagement, as our troops purfued them close to their lines, that they would not stand an assault; and if his

the edu ig parts i he Soundin fe fole built ints, and p is in our

ELS

LXXVL

k, O.a. 30, 19

ver from No n, which it of a few hous

his lines were carried he was fenfible there was no place of retreat, and that his army must inevitably have been destroyed.

Long Ifland is the largeft ifland from Cape Florida to Cape Sable. It is one hundred and thirty miles in length and about fifteen miles in breadth, and from its formation derives its name. The fouth fide, next to the Atlantic, is low, level and fandy, with extensive bays within the land, near the length of the ifland; on that fide opposite the continent, the lands are high, hilly and broken, but with a number of fine bays and harbours. A chain of hills runs through the middle of the ifland, the whole length of it, from which there is an extensive view of the ocean and the adjoining continent.

The Plain is a perfect level, and what is a phænomenon in America, has not a tree growing upon it. The foil is faid to be incapable incapable of producing trees, or any vegetation except a coarfe grafs, and a kind of brufh-wood or fhrub which feldom grows higher than four or five feet, and that only on a particular part of the plain.

The foil of this plain is a black earth, covered with a kind of mofs, and under the earth, which is of a fpongy quality, is a bed of gravel, which, confequently abforbing the heavieft rains, prevents the water from remaining on the ground; it therefore naturally follows, that in wet feafons there is abundance of grafs, and in dry ones it is entirely parched up.

The plain fupports great quantities of cattle, fheep and horfes, which are fupplied with water from the ponds made by the inhabitants in different places, and, that they may retain the rain, have clay bottoms; for what is equally as remarkable

ELS Genfible the Chat his any Arroyed, ft ifland fm e. It is or n length at left, and fm ne. The int low, level at ithin the lat lithin the lat lithin

el, and what has not a ta l is faid to b incapable markable as the plain itfelf, there are no fprings or running water throughout its whole extent. This plain is of the nature of our commons in England, having no inclofures, and almost uninhabited, except a few public houses for the convenience of travellers.

It is impoffible to defcribe the anxiety of every one when the fleet left this place, in full hopes and expectation, although it had to fight its way through a much fuperior force, it would have been the means of faving the gallant and brave army under Lord Cornwallis; but language is unable to defcribe the feelings of every loyal fubject, when the fleet returned, unable to effect fo noble a purpofe; for three days before the fleet made the Chefapeak, that gallant army had furrendered to the combined forces of France and America.

When

When the British fleet left Sandy Hook, Gen. Washington had certain intelligence of it, within forty-eight hours after it failed, although at fuch a confiderable diftance as near fix hundred miles, by means of fignal guns and alarms. A very notorious rebel in New York, from the top of his house, hung out the fignal of a white flag, the moment the fleet got under way, which was immediately answered by the firing of a gun at a fmall village about a mile from our post at Paulus Hook; after that a continual firing of cannon was heard on the oppofite fhore; and about two days after the fleet failed, was the period in which Gen. Washington was fo preffing for the army to furrender. There is a fecrefy to be obferved in war, neceffary to the well-conducting of plans, and the execution of any particular meafure that is concerted, which, being difclosed, all is frustrated. This was the cafe in the prefent inftance : the failing of the fleet, Nn VOL. II.

ELS

here are m

or the naland, having nhabited, enthe convene the anim eft this plac a, although i h a much is een the max ave armys aguage is aguage is aguage is aguage is armed, und fe; for the he Chelapak hedered to the nd America fleet, by a villain under the mark of a Loyalift, was revealed to the Americans; and to fimilar caufes may be accounted the many fatal calamities attending our army upon this continent.

The lofs of Lord Cornwallis's army is too heavy a blow to be foon or eafily recovered; it evidently muft change the face of affairs: for the war which commenced in this country, and ought to have been maintained in the offenfive, muft now degenerate into a difhonorable defenfive; and if Great Britain is determined to overcome the Colonies, fhe muft fend out a very numerous reinforcement in the fpring, or the furrender of Lord Cornwallis may be confidered as the clofing fcene of the whole continental war in America.

I have taken my paffage in the Swallow Packet, which the latter end of the week fails for England. I preferred coming home home in the packet rather than a tranfport, not only as it is a better failing veffel, and having more hands is in lefs danger of being captured; but the tranfports in general are fo exceedingly crazy, and their bottoms fo very bad, owing to their laying up fuch a length of time in rivers, that they are unable to withftand the boifterous winds and waves of a winter's paffage.

As this is the last letter you'll receive from me in America, permit me, before I bid a final farewel to it, to make fome few reflections on this unfortunate contest.

Although America, through France and her naval power, may gain independence, fhe will find in what an aukward predicament fhe has involved herfelf, and how convulfed the provinces muft be for a N n 2 length

ELS

e malk d a e Americans; accounted the ling our any allis's armi i 1 or cally a hange these ch commani i to have be muft now a defensive, al ded to ovenue and out a sq the springs ornwallis sq g scene of the interice.

in the Swallow d of the web eferred coming home

Print A

length of years. As a new ftate fhe muft maintain or eftablifh her public character, and is bound, by every tie of policy, not to defert her allies.

Alas, deluded Americans ! When too late, you'll repent your rafhnefs. Let me impartially afk the moft fenfible among them, When the Independency is eftablifhed, will they poffefs that freedom and liberty as under the Englifh government? If their anfwer is impartial, they muft declare, Certainly we fhall not; but in a few years perhaps we may. That period, I am afraid, is at a great diftance.

Much, indeed, are they entangled in the cabals of a French court, which will, fooner or later, not only endeavour to enflave them in reality, but difpoffiefs them of their fouthern provinces. It is not without juft grounds I affert that e'er half a century elapfes, _______ America

America will be fuing that protection from the mother country, which fhe has fo ungratefully defpifed, to fcreen her from the perfecutions and tyranny of France. They are confcious of being happy before this unfortunate revolution, and will feel that they are no longer fo; [they must inevitably regret the change in fullen filence, or, if they have any thing like spirit left, rouze into arms again.

five that the packet might be detained for and anxious to deliver duplicates of fo

find fiding boas and notwinitanding

it blew a bardeg do, regardlefs of the in-

 $\mathbf{L} \stackrel{\text{datagers of the feas at c furround-}}{\mathbf{L} \stackrel{\text{datagers of the feas at c furround-}}{\mathbf{N}}$

Yours, &c.

ate fhe mil

policy, not

! When to hefs. Let n nfible any, y is eftable eedom anilgovernmen al, they ni hot; but in That put hance.

entanglel 1 court, whi mly endearn ity, but di nern provints grounds 1 if netury elapis. Antrio

L E T T E R LXXVIII.

On board the Swallow Packet, St, Mary's Harbour, in the Islands of Scilly, Dec. 8, 1781.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

ON the day after our arrival here, Lord Dalrymple, who had the charge of Sir Henry Clinton's difpatches, apprehenfive that the packet might be detained for a confiderable time by contrary winds, and anxious to deliver difpatches of fo much importance to the nation, hired a fmall fifting boat, and, notwithstanding it blew a hard gale, regardlefs of the imminent dangers of the feas and furrounding enemies, fo much had he the public fervice fervice at heart, that, nobly braving them, he, at the utmost risk of his life, set fail in it from this place, accompanied by the Earl of Lincoln, who was a passenger on board the packet. From a lofty eminence we faw the boat leave these islands, while the sea ran so tremendous high, that it was thought by every one they never could reach the English coast.

Strangers who land here, are conducted to the fpot where the body of that famous Admiral Sir Cloudefley Shovel was found, after his fhipwreck in the year 1707. It was in a fmall cove called Porthelifk near what is termed the Tolmens; and it is handed down by tradition that he was difcovered naked, and only diffinguifhed from the most ordinary failor under his command, by having round his neck a portrait of his royal mistrefs, on the reverse of which was engraved his name.

Nn4

A fand-

A fand-bank offering itfelf very opportunely, as if for the very purpofe, he was interred under it. Whoever has feen the place, will allow it would have been doubly inhuman not to have buried him, whoever he was. For my own part, it recalled to my mind the argument that Archytas makes use of to bespeak the like friendly office.

At tu nauta, vagæ ne parce malignus arenæ, Offibus & capiti inhumato, Particulam dare.

Hor. Od. xxviii. lib. 1.

Hiftory informs us, that the body of this great man was afterwards taken up, and conveyed to Westminster abbey. A fmall pit on this fandy green, is still vifible.

Pulveris exigui parva munera.

Ibid.

These islands are of great utility in time of war, as they afford protection to trading

ing vefiels and homeward-bound fhips, which would by contrary winds, without this refuge, be obliged to beat about in the Channel, exposed to the danger of being captured by the enemy.

The not establishing a packet between thefe iflands and the main, is an inconvenience to be lamented and a ground for cenfure. I am confident it would bring in a great revenue; for, during our stay, a packet of letters was given to the Captain of our fhip, nearly as large as that he has brought from New York. You would fcarcely believe it, but they have been feventeen weeks without any intercourse with the country. Such an intermiffion of correspondence must be extremely detrimental to trade. A fmall ship of about forty tons, to pass and repass as the weather permitted, would, by freight and trade, not only repay expences, but be a handfome income to the owners.

The

The utility of a frigate being flationed here, was noticed to me by feveral of the inhabitants; for, during this war, a French cutter came into the harbour, with a view to cut away the fhips at anchor; but a frigate happening to be there at that time, the cutter fheered off, and no other has fince made its appearance; which muft arife from the idea that a frigate is actually flationed in thefe iflands.

The wind coming favorable, the Captain has defired the passengers to repair on board.

-the res double . submers and Yours, &c.

the subsection of the second of the second form

SE S

by

LETTER LXXIX.

Falmouth, Dec. 15, 1781.

99999999999999

MY DEAR FRIEND,

YESTERDAY afternoon we left Scilly Iflands, and arrived at this place about one o'clock this morning. On going afhore, defcription would fall exceedingly fhort of the transports I felt on fetting my foot once more on my native land.

We here learnt, that after a very dangerous paffage, and being nearly captured by a French cutter, Earl Lincoln and Lord Dalrymple arrived fafe at Penzance, and a few days ago paffed through this place for town.

The former of these noblemen received a fhock that must have funk deep indeed. While they were changing horfes, a hearfe was fetting off from the fame inn for London; and on his Lordship's enquiry concerning it, he was told it was a corpfe that had arrived a few days fince in the Lifbon packet. His curiofity and his fears were awakened. It was the corpfe of his brother, Lord John Pelham Clinton, who, a few months fince, had gone over to Lifbon for the recovery of his health. A brother whom he panted to meet with --- whole affection was his joy and his pride. Thus are our proudest hopes, like a tower, propt but by a broken reed, which is ever ready to break! Your own feelings can better express the fituation of his heart, on receiving the Le brue and mane i de chel beverne melancholy

elelelelelelee

melancholy information than my pen is able to defcribe. The one of the local state of the

It is remarkable on the very day before we put into Scilly Iflands, while we were in purfuit of the fhip a-head of us, he expressed vast anxiety about his brother, as he had not had letters from him for fome months, adding, with a gloominefs, that he hoped he should have fome accounts by the next packet. The ship then in fight proved to be the Lisbon Packet, which had his brother's dead body on board.

Having fully complied with your requeft, on my leaving England, of embracing every opportunity to let you hear from me, and as this will be the laft of our literary correspondence, permit me, before I conclude, to apologize for any inaccuracies of expression, and every little fault fault that may have occurred. And if you can believe me diffident enough to diftruft my own talents, cautious of affuming merit from your too indulgent opinion, and anxious to throw myfelf into your arms, it will evince the clearnefs of your judgment, and the fincerity of your friendship for

Yours, &c.

FINIS.

biol binn simplify body

Sec. 1

